Britain, France Reach Agreement But Remain Mum

Pineau Hints at Conditions For Withdrawal of Troops

LONDON (AP) — Britain and France were reported today to have reached full agreement on their next steps in the Suez Canal dispute. There was no official disclosure of what these steps would be, but there were increasing signs the two allies planned an early withdrawal of their troops from Egypt.

Diplomatic officials Friday night said Britain had informed Washington that most British troops would quit Egypt by Christmas.

French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau, taking off early today for Paris after a round of high-level talks with British officials, declined to confirm that London and Paris never intended to pull their troops out of Egypt "without having some political questions settled and without having some military precautions observed."

COMMON OUTLOOK

Pineau said after his talks with Acting Prime Minister R. A. Butler and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd that "we put some ideas on paper . . . we will now go back onto paper . . . to arrive at a common position for the evacuation of the canal."

He did not spell out the common position or evacuation would be.

British spokesmen were equally terse on the results of Pineau's visit.

Britain has been described as "anxious" to get her troops home "withdrawal" and Lloyd is scheduled to present an outline of that policy to the House of Commons Monday.

SYRIAN PROBLEM

British and Turkish officials discussed Friday in London means of preventing the Turks from using Syria as a Soviet jet to seize control of Syria.

Turkey is reported pressing British and other NATO members to send arms and military equipment aid if military action erupts around the Turkey line between Syria and the Soviet Union.

A report from Baghdad said five Arab countries under the leadership of Iraq are preparing to form a military alliance to guard against any further Communist infiltration in the Middle East.

The nine countries concerned were said to be Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Iraq.

In New York, a UN truce supervision team reported it has discovered large quantities of a Syrian military building along the Syrian-Israel border and found nothing unusual.

Pearson Retires, His Hobby Will Be Walking

DENVER (AP)—Feel under the weather today? Take the advice of Harry Truman, 72, who begins Monday after 40 years as a postman.

Down to his life I've walked."

"All Americans," "I love it. I've been sick at all. I've never walking that has done it."

Economic Council For Maritimes Full of Optimism

In eight hours Friday, APEC received a pat on the back and words of encouragement from the federal government in the person of Transport Minister George C. Marler, changed its organizational structure and was given renewed promise of co-operation from the other Atlantic governments.

"All in all," said one of the more than 100 delegates as he packed up for home, "we feel ready to meet the rest of Canada on an equal footing after hearing what's been accomplished during the past two years."

SUPPLY ELECTRICITY

The optimistic tone was set early in the conference when N.T. Smith of Halifax, vice-president of the Nova Scotia Light and Power Company, said the APEC power committee can assure by 1960 medium - sized industries in each newspaper of Nova Scotia will establish in New Brunswick or Nova Scotia.

Mr. Smith added, however, that a special problem exists in northern New Brunswick where "copper" metallurgical, mining and pulp and paper industries need "giant blocks of power."

Transport Minister Marler urged the council to research the effects of the Maritime Freight Rate as a result of recent changes to the federal government.

Re-organization of the council's executive structures, approved unanimously in the first step in carrying APEC ideals of promoting greater industrial development throughout every corner of the four provinces.

R. J. Deadman, APEC president and one of three men who make up the executive committee, described it as carrying the council's work to "the grass roots level."

RECKLESS FLIER FINED

PRINCESS ANNE COURT-HOUSE, Va. (AP) — Edward B. Segar, who was piloting a plane which struck his uncle while the latter was in a duck blind, has been fined $100 on a charge of reckless flying. Segar, 22-year-old commercial pilot, said he had flown close to the blind to drop a note to his uncle telling him where to look for ducks. The uncle suffered a fractured skull.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Rather cold weather continues over Ontario. Skies are cloudy in most regions and a few snowflurries are reported. A weak weather disturbance is moving across Southern Ontario today and will be followed by partially clearing skies tonight. Another weather disturbance from the Hudson Bay region is forecast to move into Central Ontario Sunday accompanied by light snow in the north and a few snowflurries in southern regions of the province.

BALCER DROPS OUT OF CONTEST FOR PC LEADERSHIP

Move Narrows Field To Three Candidates

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—Leon Balcer Friday dropped out of the contest for leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, nine days after announcing he would run.

Mr. Balcer, 39-year-old Commons member for Trois-Rivieres, said the principal factor in reaching the decision was his position as president of the party's national council.

The Conservative convention week opens in 10 days in Ottawa and some 1,400 delegates will choose a successor to Hon. George Drew who submitted his resignation last September because of illness.

Mr. Balcer, announcing his withdrawal, said: "Since the Dog-10 convention has aroused great enthusiasm among all Canadian Conservatives and we expect a record number of delegates, I believe it to be very important that I continue my duties without bias as president during its session."

NARROWS FIELD

His move narrows the field of candidates to three: John Diefenbaker, Prince Albert, Sask., and party foreign affairs spokesman; Davie Fulton, 40, MP for Kamloops, B.C., and Donald Fleming, 51, member for Toronto Eglinton.

Mr. Fleming and Mr. Fulton, working to line up delegate support before the convention opening, had a meeting in Montreal Friday, moves into Alberta today. Mr. Fulton was in Saint John, N.B., Friday and travels to Halifax today.

Mr. Diefenbaker attended a gathering of Quebec supporters in Montreal Thursday and plans to go home to Prince Albert from Ottawa. He said Friday he plans no campaigning between now and the convention.

When Mr. Balcer entered the leadership campaign last week he said his candidacy "will allow my province to participate in the national character of our party before the convention at which candidates representing all parts of this great country of ours."

RUSSIA SUPPORTS

Thursday he issued a statement commenting on a news story in the Soviet Union's official army said Quebec party organizers had been "active" in the affairs of the Conservative party on the Middle East situation "unexceptionable."

Mr. Balcer said: "The alleged secret support in Quebec exists only in the imagination of Liberal members of the Commons. There is, at present among Quebec Conservatives as a mon sphere, considerable enthusiasm about the convention of next Dec. 10."

When Mr. Balcer announced his candidacy race he resigned as chairman of the five-member executive committee planning the convention and his place was taken by Hon. Leon Dion, Ottawa lawyer and former national secretary of the party.

Mr. Balcer told the Ottawa Friday that Mr. Balcer and Mr. Bell will likely be chosen as permanent joint chairmen of the convention—the platform chairmen who will preside.

15 Cities Enter Election Contest

SARNIA (CP)—Fifteen Ontario cities compete this month to see which can do the best job of getting voters to the polls on election day.

Sponsored with the generally poor turnouts in most Ontario centres at municipal election time the Sarnia Junior Chamber of Commerce has challenged 14 other cities to see which can produce the largest percentage of voters this year.

Chambers in the participating cities have accepted the gauntlet, and, with election day only a few days away, efforts are on to draw voters out are in full swing.

William Spaulding, Ontario minister of municipal affairs, has described the idea as a "valuable contribution in arousing public interest."

CAN WIN PLAQUE

Competing for the prize — a plaque bearing the provincial coat of arms and the name of the winning city—are Brantford, Chatham, Cornwall, Fort William, Kingston, Kitchener, North Bay, Oshawa, Port Arthur, St. Catharines, St. Thomas, Sarnia, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury and Timmins.

COLORFUL BRIDGE

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The new Straits of Mackinac bridge will bear the colors of both Michigan State University and the University of Michigan—green and white by day and gold and blue by night. At night the bridge will shine in golden lights strung along overhead cables and blue mercury vapor lights along the sides.

EASY-PAY PETS

$10,000,000 FOR U.N. SUEZ FORCE

U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, left, is shown as he made a report to the United Nations General Assembly in New York on the U.N. police force in Egypt and requested an initial $10,000,000 for its maintenance. The 79-nation body by a vote of 59 to nine authorized that amount. Russia warned during the debate on the enabling resolution that she would not be bound by it. Seated alongside of Hammarskjold is Prince Wan Waithayakon of Thailand, president of the United Nations General Assembly. (Central Press Canadian).

Except for Oarsmen Canada Made Poor Olympic Showing

MELBOURNE (CP)—It was a sad showing this week for Canada in the Olympic Games except for the oarsmen from the University of British Columbia. They captured a gold and a silver medal.

Outside of that, Canada got almost nowhere at the glittering international sports show that still has a week to run.

"Something has got to be done about amateur sport in Canada," said one Canadian team official. "Possible government assistance is needed."

With track and field finished, Canada has a total of four points from that featured phase of the Games. Three were fifth - place finishes in the men's high jump and the 1,600-metre relay.

Generally Canadians were hopelessly outclassed in track and field throughout the week. Exceptions are Ken Bauer, Stan Lerner, Tom Tobacco of Toronto and Terry Tobacco of Cumberland, B.C.

Seventeen showed potential strength as a sprinter. Tobacco has established himself as one of the best quarter-milers Canada ever had. He ran the best leg of the 1,600-metre relay today in 46.7 seconds. Tom Courtney, anchor man on the winning United States team, did it in 45.8.

In basketball Canada placed fifth in weightlifting Canada scored a sixth place—by Dave Baillie of Montreal in the heavyweight division.

One More Moderate Demand To Hungary Planned by UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—UN delegates — except for the Communist bloc—were united in agreement today to make one more moderate attempt to get UN observers into Hungary. Diplomats made clear that another rejection from the Budapest government would bring demands for strong UN action.

Informed sources said most delegates had agreed that if Hungary still failed to comply, the next logical step would be condemnation of the puppet Budapest government and then a move to throw the Hungarians out of the UN.

The United States was circulating a resolution among delegates urging Hungary to reconsider its refusal to accede to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's request to make an on-the-scene investigation in that revolt - torn land. Countries being sounded out on the resolution included India and other Asian powers.

An informed source said the U.S. resolution originally had included condemnation of Hungary, but that this was deleted when Hammarskjold released his long awaited report Friday in which he said he still had not given up hope of getting observers into Hungary.

The Russian and Hungarian delegations have insisted that the Hungarian situation is an internal affair and none of the UN's business.

In other UN developments, Syria's Farid Zeineddine reiterated charges at a press conference that Britain, France and Israel are massing arms in Palestine to commit aggression against his country. Similar charges have been denied.

Earlier, in the assembly's general debate, Irish Foreign Minister Liam Cosgrave appealed to the Arab states not to make a move they might regret by moving Soviet assistance.

Change in Name Called Attempt To Evade Law

HAMILTON (CP) — A union official said Friday a change in the name and ownership of the Orange Crush bottling plant is "an obvious attempt to evade the law."

This was denied by one of the new owners of the plant which became Hamilton Beverages Ltd. Thursday.

William Berry, business agent for the striking Local 879 of Soft Drink Workers, Teamsters affiliates, contended the move was designed to avoid picketing when the plant reopens. The plant's original 14 union employees have been striking since Aug. 27 in the company refused to negotiate on wage increases.

J. A. Money, former branch manager of the plant and now a partner in the new bottling, declined Berry's charge. "The opportunity came up to buy the plant and we took it," he said.

Other owners in it, Mr. McGirr of Niagara Falls, Ont., who holds the Orange Crush franchise in the Niagara Peninsula.

U.S. CAUTIOUS ABOUT HELPING EUROPE BUY OIL

European Countries Must Foot Own Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States appeared today to have adopted a cautious attitude toward helping Europe pay for emergency American oil shipments.

Responsible officials said requests for dollar aid would be handled on a case-by-case basis rather than with no thought at this time of setting up a special fund for such a purpose.

The government Friday ordered into effect longstanding emergency plans to ship about 500,000 barrels of oil daily to Europe, but said nothing about special credit terms.

European governments will be expected, officials said, to dig into their own treasuries for scarce dollars to pay for American oil shipments for at least a month—perhaps longer.

Tentative plans drawn up in August, after Egypt seized the Suez Canal, had included provision for U.S. export-import bank loans to help Europe finance the oil purchases.

LOANS MAY COME LATER

American government loans may be possible later, officials said, but only after more information has been gathered about European requirements and after the Suez Canal question has been put to rest problem.

France and Italy, these informants agreed, probably will be hit hardest by the need to divert dollars to buy American oil. Their supplies formerly came from the Middle East and were paid for in sterling or other currencies.

In advance of more precise studies, officials estimated that the extra dollar cost for European purchase of American oil might go to more than $50,000,000 a month.

Officials emphasized that no rationing is in prospect in the U.S., but industry officials have said gasoline and fuel oil prices may rise.

The emergency plan will allow 12 major American oil companies to pool tankers, production and customers in order to make maximum use of all available resources until Europe's oil crisis eases.

United States Defeats Russia In Basketball

MELBOURNE (CP) — The United States easily defeated Russia tonight, 89-55, to win the Olympic gold medal in basketball.

The Americans piled up the score after breaking through Russia's attempts to hold possession of the ball, leaving the Soviet squad with the second-place silver medal.

Earlier tonight Uruguay had defeated France 71-62 to win the bronze medal and finish the French team—which had beaten the Russians in a preliminary round—in fourth place.

Trenton Airman Directs 10-Plane Hunt for Bomber

TRENTON (CP)—RCAF search and rescue headquarters today reported one survivor from the crew of a crashed U. S. Air Force jet bomber has been picked up by helicopter and taken to hospital in Port Arthur, He was said to be in good condition.

Officials here said he has been unofficially identified as Maj. Robert Slaue, 33, commander of the B-47 Stratojet bomber, reported down Friday night in rugged bush near Nipigon, 80 miles northeast of the Lakehead. The plane carried a crew of four.

The survivor was quoted as saying he saw one other crew member, but with the falling aircraft.

Search planes Friday night reported a cross-shaped fire in the Seagull Lake area, 30 miles west of Nipigon.

10 PLANES SEARCH

RCAF officials said 10 aircraft — five U.S. and five Canadian — joined in the search out of Port Arthur, under the direction of Flt. Lt. Al Vandervaeter of Trenton. The U.S. Air Force said information has been gathered about European requirements and after the Suez Canal question has been put to rest problem.

Trenton here said they had no word on when the plane crashed, but the search-and-rescue plane took off from Trenton at 10 p.m.

Six inches of snow was reported on the ground at the crash site and a high temperature of 25 degrees, with scattered snowflurries was forecast.

"There were reports Friday night that a man was seen standing beside the fire in the bush and unofficial reports were rejected before the plane crashed.

GROUND PARTY OUT

Three helicopters from Fort William and a five-man ground party from Nipigon were converging on the area today to learn the fate of the men.

Constables Clinton Arthur and Roger Wilson of the Nipigon detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, headed the ground party which included three lumberjacks familiar with the area. They hoped to reach the crash scene before noon. Weather conditions in the remote area were good. Skies were cloudy and the temperature climbing steadily.

The USAF said the medium bomber was attached to the 32nd Bombardment Wing of the strategic air command at Barksdale, La., and was on a routine flight.

Base officials identified the men as: Maj. Robert Slaue, 33, aircraft commander; Lieut. Richard Martin, 23, pilot; and Lieut. Max Scheuerman, 25, co-pilot. The fourth, also an observer, was not identified.

The crash was first reported by residents of the Seagull Lake area who said they heard a low-flying plane and then an explosion.

It was not possible to land a ski-equipped plane on tiny Seagull Lake because it lies among hills and the ice conditions are uncertain.

First word of the crash was received at Trenton by telephone from an RCAF unit in the area which relayed a radio distress signal from the Stratojet.

More First Grade Butter Made

TORONTO (CP)—The percentage of first grade butter manufactured in Canada has increased steadily since the Ontario milk products board introduced control of production and 85 per cent of butter which is graded.

Records here set in the competitions this year said Mr. Baker. Twenty creameries manufactured 100 per cent first-grade butter from special and first grade cream — an increase of three over the previous mark last year.

Pays $10 Fine To Defend Dog's Biting Power

DETROIT (AP)—Defending his dog's dogbiting talents, Harold E. Wangbichler chose Friday to pay a $10 fine instead of $5 in pants repairs.

Terry Jenereau displayed a pair of trousers that had two distinct teeth holes in the seat. He said they were put there by Wangbichler's Doberman pinscher.

"If my dog bit him, his trousers would have a hole the size of a basketball and some scars to boot," Wangbichler said.

Given a choice of paying for repairs of a fine for harboring a vicious dog, he paid the fine, saying: "It's the principle of the thing."

UN Troops Move Across No Man's Land in Egypt

EL CAP, Egypt (AP)—United Nations troops moved across no man's land Friday and set up a buffer-zone patrol interposed right between hostile British - French and Egyptian forces—but only after four hours of bickering over final arrangements.

A Danish unit of the new UN army occupied British front-line positions, but there was no immediate word whether they'also took over Egyptian positions as had been agreed previously.

A detachment from the 1st Royal Canadian Regiment and Canadian Engineers, which had come to Egypt from Cyprus, also moved into the area with the Danes.

The Canadian unit was to have cleared mines in no man's land near the Egyptian positions but they did not get an opportunity and there are no mines in the area near the British front.

IN COMMAND

Capt. Norman Henderson of Vancouver is in command of the detachment. Sgt. G.A. McCrackin of Quebec City commented:

"Actually we have no mines to clear, I don't know just what we'll be doing."

Pte. Ian Lapierre of St. Catharines, Ont., was more philosophical, saying: "I guess it's just another one of those moves."

Despite the sun and the balmy Egyptian weather, he replied, "I think I would rather have the cold."

HUNTING TRUCK CALLED "DEATH TRAP"

A Corbyville district youth, out for an evening ride in his father's deer hunting truck was afraid of the law in the city last night, when he was checked by police.

Police said the vehicle had no emergency brake, no rear fenders, no windshield wipers, no horn and no insurance was carried on the vehicle. Neither were there doors, nor a top on the vehicle.

The officer summed the vehicle up to himself as a "death trap."

The driver was charged for operating the vehicle in an unsound mechanical condition.

Departing Agent Given Farewell Party by Staff

On the eve of his departure to Oshawa where he has been transferred as Canadian Pacific Railways freight agent, Mr. Jimmie Allen, was tendered a farewell party Friday afternoon by his fellow employees in the CPR staff and William Galt, agent.

Brief addresses were given by many members of the district who will benefit this Christmas through the music of the Salvation Army Band and other workers. Will you help the Salvation Army help others?

Ed. Buchanan of Bridge Street United church, expressed the love of Mr. Allen's services in the church.

Jimmie expressed his appreciation for the fine gift and for the good wishes of his friends, and at the same time regretted that associations gained during the past 13 years were to be cut off.

Causeway Along Moira Suggested By Recent Visitor

"A causeway along the banks of the Moira and a scenic highway along the waterfront would enable people of this city and tourists to enjoy and utilize the natural scenic beauty of the area."

In view of growing CNR and CPR co-operation it looks like the day will come when there will be no further use for the the CPR line through Belleville. This area would be wonderful for a scenic highway following the shore line. I feel that if this could be done as many Ontario cities which could draw great benefit from tourists from such Bay front projects.

The advocate of this constructive construction is Robert Hay a member of an old Belleville family who returned to this city recently to attend the funeral of his sister the late Miss Jessie Hay, who was well-known and highly regarded for her services as a teacher in this city.

Mr. Hay, who has lived in Vancouver for many years, is deeply impressed with the way British Columbia towns and cities have utilized the grandeur of their sea girt shores and he feels that they will derive long range benefits from the efforts in this direction.

Mr. Hay is the son of the late David J. Hay who engineered the branch of the Grand Trunk Railway from Belleville to Madoc and was an old-time friend of the late years representing Bleecker Ward.

Mr. Hay has served in many capacities with the CNR throughout Canada. He was a railroading in Costa Rica when the Panama Canal was opened. In 1915 he opened the passenger office of the Canadian Northern now the CNR in Vancouver. Since his retirement he has been living in Vancouver and wintering in California.

Songwriter Dies

With the late William Jerome he wrote Rockabye Your Baby With a Dixie Melody, made famous by Al Jolson; Bedelia, Chinatown and nearly 100 other songs of the First World War period, the 20s and 30s.

Schwartz and Jerome also wrote one of the famous songs of the First World War, Hello Central, Give Me No Man's Land.

Rev. A. Rigby Wife and Family Home From Egypt

Rev. Arnold Rigby, missionary with the Standard Church in Egypt, and formerly of this town has returned home to Canada with his wife and young family after being evacuated from the strife torn country.

Mr. Rigby and his wife, the former Evelyn Crowe Reg. N. of Bloomfield, and their three sons, David 4, and Timothy 1, returned to Belleville Thursday night and are now visiting with Mrs. Rigby's mother at Bloomfield.

The missionary and his family were evacuated by the American forces, their mission post at Assuit in the Nile valley and were taken to Naples on a U.S. warship. Following clearance there they proceeded on to London from where they flew to Canada.

The couple had been at the Egyptian mission post for the past two years. Mr. Rigby's mother lives at 219 Bleecker Ave.

Frozen Body Of Chas. Leggett Found in Field

Leggett, who lived in a cottage on the farm of Mrs. Welsh Con. 13, Marmora township, had been in Marmora on Thursday. Taxi driver James Heath had driven him with William Darrah to Darrah's cottage.

Leggett left shortly after to walk his way to the cottage on the property. Neighbors Frank Bird and Charles McGregor left the Leggett's cottage only to find it empty. Frank Bird found the frozen body in McGregor's property.

Heart failure is suspected as the cause of death as no cuts or bruises were found on the body.

Mr. Leggett's nephew, Joseph Leggett, came from Toronto to take care of funeral arrangements.

Church, State Combine to Aid Hungarians

MONTREAL (CP)—Church and state Friday hastened steps to open Canada's doors to Hungarian refugees — and help them once they arrive.

Immigration Minister Pickersgill left by air for Vienna where he personally will supervise government operations to speed refugees into Canada. The country needs them, he said, predicting an "acute" labor shortage next summer.

Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal and Canadian Roman Catholics it is their duty to help the new arrivals. Canadians have can. Needs, not words, were required now.

"Hungarianism has fallen off considerably in Canada during the last two or three years," he said, a result that at present manpower is scarcer than steel," said Mr. Pickersgill. "We have settled permanently at Belcrest Nursing Home, Belleville.

EXCEPT FOR

weight class. Canadians didn't place among the first six—plus rings in which the unofficial points count—in the canoe races. It was the same old story in boxing and wrestling.

Many of the swimming events are still to be held. So far a sixth place by Toronto's Virginia Grant in the 100-metre freestyle is the best.

The shooters, the fencers and the yachtsmen have been placing far back.

In the heats of the women's 400-metre relay today Canada's team was last throughout its heat and lost by at least 10 yards.

Diane Matheson of Moncton and Montreal, trailed by 10 yards before handing the baton to Eleanor Haslam, of Saskatoon. The race was lost there, Dorothy Kozak of Calgary and Winnipeg and Maureen Rever of Regina were unable to make up any yards.

In the men's 1,500-metre relay Canada's team was a well beaten last, well off the pace.

Laird Sloan of Montreal, the lead-off man, trailed the six-man field by 10 yards. Jerry Campbell of Vancouver, and Murray Cockburn of Toronto increased this behind the front United States team, Tobacco, running the anchor leg, did well to finish fourth, ahead, by the American, had run away from the field.

Canada's time of three minutes, 18.2 seconds compared with 3:04.8 for the Americans.

In the women's high jump, Alice Hoyt of Montreal finished in a 16th-place tie. She was the only Canadian entry for Canada's Olympic team, the selection causing a furore at the meeting in Toronto of the Canadian Athletic Union of Canada. Her best effort yesterday in Melbourne was five feet, four inches. In competition her best was five feet, one inch.

Egg Prices Tumble Again On Market Here

Egg prices took another tumble on the local farmers' market this morning with producers asking 65c per dozen for Grade "A". 55c for Grade "B" eggs and medium and 20c per dozen for pullets.

Apples were the main offering on the outside market with Talman Sweets, McIntosh and Courtlands selling at 75c per small basket. Delicious and Spies were 85c per basket and Russets 80c.

Cabbages were a dime and 15c each; turnips were five and 10c; carrots and beets 10c per bag or peck; parsnips 40c per half peck, onions 50c per gallon.

Potatoes fetched 60c per basket or $2 per bag.

Police Blotter

Investigation of several motor vehicle accidents, along with complaints of money and articles stolen from milk bottles, and theft of a jacket and cap from the rear seat of auto, kept city police busy Friday night and early today.

Police said Eugene Bennett, 20, of Point Anne, was eastbound on Station Street with Clarence E. Day, 46, of Cedar St., being northbound on Albion, the two vehicles colliding at the intersection.

Several other minor accidents were investigated by police.

Milk bottle thefts were reported on the East Hill, while Ray Hunt, 39 Isabel Street, told police that a parcel containing a jacket and flannel shirt had been stolen from his car.

And someone must have a grudge against the Roper Service Station on Canniffon Road. Thursday night a glass in a door was found broken. Yesterday the door was replaced and this morning was again found broken.

Two Arrested After Wave Of Break-ins at Presqu'ile

TRENTON (Special) — Soon after discovery of a wave of break-ins of cottages at Presqu'ile Point, including the Presqu'ile Hotel and Paul Yacoff's Snack Bar, Provincial Police from the Brighton detachment arrested Ralph Cooney, R. R. 2, Brighton, and a juvenile, on 60 charges of breaking, entering and theft were laid against Cooney and eight against the juvenile. A serviceman is being sought and it is stated by the police a warrant has been issued and 56 charges will be laid against him. From the break-ins were discovered shortly after noon on Thursday. Upon investigation it was found that the cottages, hotel and snack bar had been entered, vandalism destruction caused and articles including typewriters, cameras, guns of various clothing taken. It is believed by the police this series of break-ins is tied in with break-ins that occurred at Barcovan's Beach and Cardarale about two weeks ago. Some of the stolen articles have been recovered but the police would like to state where these articles were found.

In the break-ins doors were pulled from their hinges, windows were smashed and furniture within the cottages kicked about and left in a broken condition.

TRAFFIC DELAYED

A large transport trailer jackknifed on No. 1 Highway west of Trenton Thursday evening and it took the police nearly four hours to make a path along the road so that traffic could again flow normally. The driver was not injured and little damage was done to the transport and the accident was caused by the slippery conditions that prevailed on all roads last night.

Modern Housing Project Under Way at Churchill for Eskimos

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — A modern housing project, set in log buildings of varnished log siding and large windows almost typical of city developments, is under way near here for Eskimo families.

Behind the project is wiry Bill Kerr, a former RCMP officer in northern Canada who now is working with the Northern Affairs Department, Affairs.

He hopes Eskimos learn to be carpenters or electricians in half the time taken by a white man—and now are seeking some of the white man's luxuries.

NINE HOUSES BUILT

The housing project near this Hudson Bay town, 610 miles north of Winnipeg, is small. Only nine houses were built this year and already nine Eskimo families have moved in. Six more are planned for next year as well as a fair-sized hospital where Eskimos returning from tuberculosis sanatoria at St. Boniface, Man., Brandon and The Pas, Man., will be rehabilitated.

The project even has the atmosphere of a modern development. Pole-framed, wood-panelled Eskimo children, willing models for any tourist's camera, run around the site in their bright parkas. Laundry, too, is strung out on lines behind the houses.

The men are skilled tradesmen, working at the Canadian joint service establishment at Fort Churchill, six miles east of here. Chief engineer is Frank Foote of Chimo, Que., in Ungava Bay where they worked with United States Army engineers and electricians.

Kerr is transferred to Fort Churchill, they insisted on bringing their families. The idea for Mr. Kerr's housing scheme followed.

OWN AFFAIRS

The Eskimos will pay the same rent for the houses as white government employees—29 per cent of their salary. They will have their own affairs. Almost all of them can speak some English.

"The Eskimo has seen the white man's different way of life," Mr. Kerr says. "He likes construction and development of other military bases in the North. He wants to own a glimpse of the comforts of the white man. Now he wants some of them."

The work of the northern affairs official, with his new department two years ago after 27 years with the RCMP of which 13 were spent in northern duty, also extends over the Barren wasteland as far as the Arctic Circle.

Doctors and nurses were flown this summer to Chesterfield Inlet, 325 miles north, and Eskimo Point, 80 miles north, when a measles outbreak affected 290 persons at each settlement. There were four deaths at Chesterfield Inlet but they were older persons, Mr. Kerr says.

More than 250 transient Eskimos pass through Churchill each year, most of them returning to their homes in the north after 731 treatment at southern clinics. Several, however, are kept here by the northern affairs department for a short time to make sure their disease has been overcome. Many of the staff here for rehabilitation last winter.

IN MEMORIAM

McCORMICK. — In memory of loving husband and father, Arthur McCormick, who passed away one year, December 2nd, 1955.

There's a sad but sweet remembrance
There's a token of affection, father,
And a heart-felt thought for you
Ever remembered by wife and family.

ASSELSTINE. — In loving memory of our doctor, Asselstine, who passed away December 1st, 1951.

A wonderful husband, a kind and loving father.

I often wish you were sitting here,
Alone, unseen, you pass by my door,
And memory grieves that you are no more.

For deep in my heart your memory is kept,
Or one I still love and shall never forget.

Lisa.

BOWDEN. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Gertrude Roberts who passed away one year, December 2nd, 1954.

Sadly, sadly, sadly miss you,
As it dawns another year
Memories linger ever near.

BOWDEN. — In loving memory of our dear wife, Gertrude Roberts who passed away one year, December 2nd, 1954.

God knows how much I miss you,
How I wish you were here.
Loving thoughts shall always linger,
Memories never wander,
To the spot where she lies sleeping
Sadly missed by her husband.

FLETCHER. — In loving memory of a wonderful mother, Mrs. M. Fletcher, (Mrs. Mercedes Fisher), who died on December 1st, 1945.

NAYLOR. — In loving memory of Mrs. Letta Naylor, who passed away December 1st, 1955.

"To live in the hearts we love is to live forever."

Like fairies seen in the years past by,
But my love for you will never die.
Lovingly remembered by mother and family.

A Lift for Living

Man's Desire for Distinction

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Longfellow may be a bit out-of-date as a poet but the appeal still lingers from those lines learned in school textbooks:

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing, leave behind us,
Footprints on the sands of time."

In fact, we desire to leave footprints in something more permanent than the sand which the next wave of the future may erase. We should like to feel our footprints serve to make better paths for those who come after us. We want to do something worthwhile in the world.

We also crave the feeling we count among our betters men while we live. To maintain our morale we must be made to feel we matter. So Longfellow's is one way of which a home does for a person. Also Dickens' Scrooge in Dickens' "Christmas Carol." Bob Cratchit, the underpaid clerk, is dwarfed by a feeling of insignificance. But when he goes home, his Linda himself a slave to his son Tiny Tim: in the warmth of his home circle Cratchit regains his self-respect and sense of worth.

Jesus recognized man's desire for distinction. He said to His followers: "We are the light of the world." These words must have run through the minds of His listeners as the light flashes into a darkened room when the electric switch is turned on. There they were, lowly folk, common fishermen, humble residents of an oppressed province. To be told they were the light of the world seemed unbelievable yet the One who said it spoke as one having authority. He had a way of making people believe Him. Hence their eyes must have lighted up. They must have lifted their shoulders and reformed their gait.

The Roman legions who policed Palestine might treat them like cattle, as the Russians have been treating the Hungarians, but in the eyes of Jesus they were human beings. They were immortal souls put into the world for a purpose.

When Jesus said to them, "Ye are the light of the world," He made their listeners feel they counted. That is a service which becomes more and more impressive as men come to live more and more in crowds. When we live in large cities, and work in large factories, and serve in large armies, we tend to be dwarfed by the pressure of numbers. The individual loses his sense of significance when he is swallowed up in a large group.

As one who was brought up in the country and now lives in a great city, I know how much harder it is to feel that an individual counts in a city of eight million than in a town of eight hundred. A lawyer, prominently mixed in a great metropolis.

And a well-known social worker some years ago, after spending some time in the ranks of factory workers where men are known by number rather than by name, came to the conclusion that the organized society the wheels of each of us are turned for better or for worse by our mainspring desire to enjoy the feeling of our worth as a person among other persons. Yes, each of us wants to feel he is somebody, that he counts for something.

But how far is this feeling mere egoism? Two great thinkers in science, Herbert Spencer and Thomas Huxley, were once walking together, Spencer said, "I suppose all one can do with one's life is to make one's mark and die." Huxley replied, "It is not necessary to make one's mark; all one need do is to give a push." Huxley there struck the higher ethical note. Our main interest should be in the work we are advancing rather than in the mark we are making.

The lasting satisfactions of life come from serving some need. Healthy boys do not like to be praised and petted, but they do like to feel they count in the family's work. I remember the day I felt when I earned my first dollar from my father.

A few years ago I was called to see a woman who was pining away in the hospital. There was nothing organically wrong with her. But her invalid husband, whom she had been nursing, had died some months before. She had no one who needed her.

Yes, we want to count—but for something more than ourselves.

Days and Customs of All Faiths

Beginning of Christian Year

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, Dec. 2 — Man just naturally cannot get along without anniversaries: An annual cycle of days commemorating the events and the people that have shaped his own personal life and the culture in which he lives. He has tried from time to time to abolish these special days, but he has never been able to do it. Either he comes back to his old calendar or he develops a new round of observances.

Every family has its days of special significance; so does every nation; and so, of course, does every religion. Today, the first Sunday in Advent, is the beginning of the traditional Christian year, which has been followed through the centuries by Roman Catholics, Lutherans and Episcopalians.

Advent is a four-Sunday season, beginning always on the Sunday nearest Nov. 30. The Christian year continues with Christmas, a 12-day season: Epiphany, a season of varying length; Lent, 40 days; Eastertide, 40 days; Ascensiontide, ten days; Pentecost (or Whitsuntide), one week; and a final long season which ends with the next Advent. Some call this last season Trinity; some call it the Sundays after Pentecost.

The year has not always been so neatly arranged. In the early days it began with Easter and consisted of little besides Easter. It wasn't much of a year. It was not until the fourth century Christians began to celebrate Christmas. When they did, that became the beginning of the year for the Western part of the Church. The East stuck to Easter—and still does.

In the eighth century Advent was made the start of the year. As a season Advent had been kept in scattered places as a sort of extra Lent, leading up not to Christmas but to Epiphany, which was thought to be the anniversary of the Lord's baptism by John the Baptist.

Now this opening season is one of preparation for the Lord's coming (Advent means "arrival") at Christmas. It has a serious, penitential quality about it, but the Church has never been able to make it as solemn as Lent, probably because this particular time of year, the winter solstice, has a tradition of gaiety that goes far back into the dim reaches of antiquity.

Besides, the secondary theme of Advent is the Lord's coming again in the fullness of time, and that is a joyful thing, though tempered, of course, with awe at the Judgment which must also come at the same time.

RELIGIOUS CALENDAR

There are certain definite principles underlying the idea of an annual round of remembering. The first is the value of repetition. Christianity believes in recurring reminders. People who say they would rather emphasize an attitude or a memory all year round rather than on only one day are deceiving themselves about how the human mind works. "He prays without ceasing," said St. Augustine of Hippo, "he prays at fixed intervals."

Another principle behind the calendar is that of organization. The Church year organizes peoples' religious life around definite peaks, giving system to the grace of teaching and worship, and to the members' devotions. It does to it no aspect of Christianity is left out and nothing is over-or under-emphasized.

A third principle is historic continuity. Christians of today, following an annual cycle of remembering the high points of their faith, are inevitably made aware of their link with other generations, past and future, who have observed or will observe the same cycle.

And most of all, drama is involved in the Church year. Every saint's day and every holy day is a presentation of a person or a doctrine, just as, for example, every Fourth of July celebration dramatizes again the events surrounding the American Declaration of Independence.

The attempts to do away with the historic calendar are interesting, mainly because they illustrate the futility of such attempts. In 1792, France tried to abolish all national commemorative days and for 14 years refused to keep the effort going. But by 1806 popular demand was so strong the old calendar was brought back.

The Puritans in Massachusetts went so far in 1644 as to abolish Christmas and to declare a jail penalty for anyone caught observing this festival in any way. Even the baking of a mince pie was punishable. The effort simply died of exhaustion, and in a very short time. Christmas and other traditional feasts are kept just as enthusiastically in Massachusetts today as anywhere else.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

THE REMNANT

A few years ago we had practically no information about the winter quarters of the whooping crane but public has become bird conscious, banding has revolutionized bird lore, movements are being studied and biologists are digging into the scientific side of bird movement. Recently whooping cranes are on all minds because action must be taken if the species is to survive.

The name of these splendid white cranes with the black wing tips originated from their resounding "whooping", as with long necks extended, and head held proudly legs outstretched behind, they cross the southern border every six months. The flight from the breeding grounds in our Arctic to the coast of Texas, a matter of some 3,000 miles, broken by several fairly lengthy stops, takes four or five weeks.

Owing to careless or thoughtless hunters, and land changes brought about by civilization, the once large flock was reduced by 1939 to some 15 birds. Education of the public, warnings, pleas, and careful arrangements for the cranes' protection in both countries has resulted in a fluctuating but gradual improvement, the peak being 37 in the late 40's. Seventeen years ago, the U.S. Government, co-operating with the Audubon and Fish and Wild Life Societies, planned protection for these birds wintering in the 150 acre open-topped enclosure on the Federal Aransas Wildlife Refuge in Texas. When a bombing range was planned for, close to their winter home, public sentiment and natural history societies were so insistent that the idea was abandoned. After a long search by Audubon and Wildlife officials, in 1954 the cranes' northern home was found to be Wood Buffalo Park on the border of North West Territories and Alberta, and the Canadian Wildlife Service has made every effort to have the whoopers' resting grounds unmolested.

To aid in saving the species, two whooping cranes that had been wounded but doctored back to life were paired in Texas. In 1950 hopes ran high, but though their one egg hatched, their baby disappeared when only four days old. Later, the pair was sent to the Audubon Park Zoo in New Orleans. In 1953, an egg was laid, but stepped on inadvertently by the mother. This last spring there were two eggs, and both produced chicks. One vanished after two days, the other lived for 45 days, then died of a disease known as a broader pneumonia.

An arrangement is now on foot to trap whooping cranes with the hope of successfully raising young ones. Officials of the Audubon Society, people most competent to judge, are opposed to this, saying that so far there has been no success with captives, and that if a young one were actually reared it would be unable to survive when freed.

HARD-WORKING GROUP

FREDERICTON (CP)—The junior chamber of commerce is not junior, and it's not a service organization, says Dr. Don Harlow of Woodstock, Maritime regional president. "We train young men in community work," he pointed out. "Leadership training is our main object."

THE ABSENT VOTE

The municipal election date on December 3rd reminds us how fortunate we are in being privileged to cast a freely-determined vote for the candidates of our choice.

How casually we take this privilege for granted! How little do we realize that after centuries of struggle and sacrifice less than one-half of the world's population has yet attained this prerogative!

Perhaps it is a deep and confident assurance in our democratic faith which causes us to appear so casual at election time.

This apparent indifference is reflected in less than a 50 per cent turnout of the eligible voters for elections across Canada throughout the years. Thousands of Canadians have never cast their voting franchise throughout their life! . This city's recording of 53 per cent in the last municipal elections was well above the national average but it leaves much to be desired.

All kinds of varieties of reasons and alibis our tongue tips for not voting—we don't like the candidates or don't know them, the best man will get in anyway, our vote will not make the difference, elections are okay and we will get interested when they are not, we haven't got time.

The right to criticize the elected choice of our fellow citizens is a pleasure which we refuse to forego under any circumstances. After all this is a democracy, isn't it?

How wonderful it is to be free to criticize and free to vote or not to vote according to personal inclinations!

It is a completely human paradox that such great blessings can never be fully appreciated until they cease to exist.

Hungarians, for instance, lost their freedom to tyrants who dread nothing more than a free ballot. Gladly these heroic people laid down their lives in the hope of regaining free elections.

It is a travesty that dictatorships with a compulsory, one-candidate ballot are the only countries ever to achieve a full turnout at the polls. And yet it is an inexorable reaction against this insult to the spirit of man which is fostering an unprecedented insistence on free elections which will eventually sweep all usurpers of a basic right to self-government into oblivion.

If a similar suppression were to be attempted in Canada, the illusion that we take our voting privileges lightly would be shattered. The greatest turmoil of history to wring the culprit's neck would demonstrate that our absence from the polls at election time is really an assured nation's way of expressing deep inner faith in the strength of its democracy.

MODERATION NOW WANTING

One of the devices which is used, both in this country and in the United States, in an effort to eliminate industrial strife is the application of a "cooling off" period.

The theory is that if management and unions can be pried apart for a few weeks when a strike appears inevitable, tempers will subside and the chances of a peaceful settlement of differences will be enhanced.

This is a theory which sounds reasonable, so reasonable that one would have supposed it would work in other fields.

The whole trend of events since British and French forces occupied the Suez canal zone tends to throw the gravest doubts on the soundness of this theory.

The "cooling off" period has been a hot one-fire, far from serving to relieve tension, appears to have increased it.

During the days immediately following the first United Nations resolution demanding that Britain and France withdraw their troops from Egypt, there was no doubt that many Britons were amazed, hurt and annoyed at the UN attitude. Many were resentment, this did not hurt and 'this annoyance, though, there seemed to be general acceptance of the view that the U.S. was acting in good faith. Now, however, the read of British papers being filled with anti-American cartoons and articles, while a group of a hundred Conservatives has presented a resolution in the house declaring that the U.S. attitude "is dangerously endangering our alliance."

Here in Canada one might almost think that there was no question of principle involved in the issue, perhaps making it necessary to take a different opinion with a time-tested and long-trusted friend and ally, but that the whole incident was merely one in which everybody was required to choose up sides.

In the House of Commons last week Howard Green, Progressive Conservative member for Vancouver Quadra, declaring that "it is high time Canada had a government which will knock Canada's best friends in the back."

At St. Catharines we have the Standard declaring editorially: "By its actions during the last few weeks, the United States has abdicated its right to Western leadership. It cannot possibly retain the confidence of other nations whose most vital interest it has trampled before the altar of Communist imperialism."

It appears to us that such phrases as these definitely are not the language of moderation which one might have hoped would alter a "cooling off period" be used in discussing Canadian and United States foreign policies in this crisis.

The discussion of the Suez issue having degenerated from an earlier consideration of questions of principle to a present exhibition of passionate prejudice by many of those on both sides of the argument, there would appear little to be gained from joining in the debate.

IMPROVEMENT

Now the children come when called.
Off to bed on time they go,
Leaves are gladly raked and hauled,
Eyes and little cheeks aglow,
Now they hang their coats and hats
On the hooks where they belong,
Good behavior that! but that's Something that won't last too long.

Hands and faces now are clean,
Feet are wiped upon the mat,
Now their dinner plates are cleared
Grateful we should be for that
"Anything that I can do?"
One of them will surely say,
Eagerly they rush to do
Every mentioned little task.

Proved by any sort of test,
When their tops they've put away,
This is childhood at its best;
All is well with us today.
Now we have no need to scold;
They've ceased to scream or cry
Oh, so beautiful and old
Is the annual reason why.

Irish Monks Make Perfume

By Richard Thomas writing from Dublin in the Windsor Star

It is all so very Irish—but just at the moment Dublin is becoming excited by an exotic perfume produced in Wales—but it is a perfume with a difference. It is made by Irish monks on Caldey Island off the Pembrokeshire coast, where the monastery produces the oils with the lighthouse staff responsible for working beams in the Irish Sea.

Traditionally the monks were farmers. They made the pittance needed for their modest requirements of this world's goods from the land, but the island has grown bleaker, swept by the Atlantic rollers and gales in the Irish Sea and the only hope for efficient agriculture would be by more modern methods and considerable capital expenditures. The island is not really big enough for that, and so the problem of getting produce to mainland for marketing.

The future was uncertain—and agricultural prices have been falling. Then the monks of Caldy Island had to find some other way of providing for their temporal needs, and so it was some while the prior decided to go into the manufacturing of perfume. It is a change from traditional monastic industry such as agriculture, bee-keeping and the production of altar breads.

They have been experimenting with various types of perfume and as far as I can gather the fame of the famous Bath and West Show has spread to Caldy. So widely acclaimed—now another has been produced which it is claimed is "the finest ever made." It is named provisionally "Caldy Bouquet" and was sent to Miss Sybil Connolly, well known Irish dress designer who made a Caldy Gown.

She has been greatly impressed by the product and thinks the monks have got on to a good will thing which will have a wide sale if it can be produced in sufficient quantities.

The Prior of Caldy is Father Eugene Boylan, who was formerly with the congregation of Mount St. Joseph's, Clonliffe, and in sending the sample to Miss Connolly he expressed the wish Eire should have first choice if further supplies are available after she thought it would be suitable for the Irish market. Miss Connolly think it is and she believes not only will it be popular on the home market but it is good enough to enter into competition with famous French perfumes.

As a result "Caldy Bouquet" is to be launched on the Eire market in the spring and Father Mayan is contemplating a wider sale for this and for the other lines made by the monks of Caldy.

The secret of its production rests with the monks. They do not say whether they have developed the recipe themselves or whether it has been given to them, nor do they say whether the raw materials are produced at Caldy or not—but the fact remains that according to Miss Connolly they have produced a "winner."

The monks are pleased and hope they will find a ready sale for their perfumes. They have a great advantage for such an isolated community. They are not perishable. They do not suffer as goods often suffer when from the mainland. Shipment can wait for favorable weather and in aggregate it is not much. It is a product which has the added advantage of giving a good return for their labor and the prospect of being able to improve their monastery and extend its spiritual works.

There is another big advantage. As far as I have been able to ascertain it is not competitive with the products of other monasteries. For instance many famous French religious orders produce perfumes on a new departure as far as Britain and Ireland are concerned. It is possible that these perfumes are marketed on the Irish market they may be made in Ireland to help the export trade. As things are at present made in the United Kingdom and Eire there is a large import duty though at a preferential rate compared with other perfumes. They also have the advantage of having a very low production cost compared with the duty.

Miss Connolly has promised Father Boylan to do all possible to help the sale of Caldy perfumes and her world wide contacts should help.

Like I Said I Like It

Wall Street Journal

The morning mail brought us a letter from an English teacher in Texas, who seems to us accuses us of contributing to the degeneration of the English language. Because every now and then in our columns appears the word "swell," he says, as when he wrote, "Like an arrow that flies a well experienced archer hits the mark."

Or we might fill back on the words "slip" by pointing out that Francis Bacon or the Earl of Oxford, or whoever Shakespeare was supposed to have been, sometimes did the same thing, as when he wrote, "Like an arrow that flies a well experienced archer hits the mark."

Then, too, we might say, like Dr. Johnson is reputed to have done, that the English language gets in my way, the h--- with it, and let it degenerate.

What that crusty old individualist plainly meant was that as long as its forms worked it meant to say he wasn't going to be bound by straitjacket like rules of English grammar.

Cotton Dances Back to Favor

St. Catharines Standard

Cotton has made a sharp comeback in Canada and the reason is due in part to the unexpected popularity of square dancing. But there is also another factor involved; cotton has been given cross-weisland qualities that were impossible years ago. Indeed the new cotton of today is far different from that of yesteryear.

While the conservative male in Canada gives little thought to these low worries as to what he will wear, the problem of pleasing the women is more difficult. Canadian women, more than ever before, are said to be following fashion trends from many countries.

And while women's styles have changed there is little difference in the amount of material that goes into a dress. The manufacturers have found that 20 yards of material will make up into a woman dresses.

The demand for styles and colors by the Canadian woman has helped the industry, as the increase in the number of dresses owned is far than made up for the departure of petticoats.

Thus the fluctuations of cotton and the prosperity of a nation which enables women to purchase more clothing has enabled cotton to stage a comeback.

The ladies undoubtedly deserve the highest credit, for without their efforts for new clothes, smart clothes, cotton would not have achieved the place it is again finding on the Canadian market.

Cook Cedar To Make Oil

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

One of Canada's least known industries is the distillation of cedar oil which has occasionally been followed locally.

The raw material is white cedar chips, but they are cooked under a steam pressure of 70 pounds per square inch to remove the oil. The oil is boiled off and the small cedar branches.

There are plenty of uses for the cedar oil, since it has several uses in medicine, after further refinement. It also used in floor and furniture waxes and in some insecticides.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BECOME A READER

There are fewer people reading books than one would expect. People seem to be too busy to read the time, and a few publishers beat of the printings. But most of these are feasts between! One period so many people want to become writers, but it is a tough courageing route to travel.

We can get bargain readers of books, however, and what can one do that will give him so much pleasure as to be well informed? Books become friends—the kind that never grow old in interest. If you can't be a writer, be a reader, and tell others about the fact. There are books, you to read, that may change the whole course of your life.

It was the incessant reading of Abraham Lincoln that gave to him the remarkable command of language and his simple and beautiful selection of words for each speech or writing. Who could improve upon the Gettysburg address, short as it was? Our thing—it was composed in Lincoln's heart!

If you never have been a reader of books you have carloads of fun and happiness awaiting you! You are missing! Even the men and women, and into a great book the author has planted his soul. That book is the part of him that will live long after he has gone upon the long journey.

When I had first finished reading Boswell's Johnson I felt as though I had taken a long trip—and I wondered why I had not been reading that great book until I had reached middle life? And to this day I take the book out—and others equally as well—and gain new pleasure and intellectual profit.

Become a confirmed reader of books. Read from some books every day and you will be surprised how you especially have learned to love, to delve reading for the sight. There never has been intended a better "nightcap"!

In the provincial elections the Conservative Government led by the Hon. Howard Ferguson was returned to power and the government control of liquor sales will go into force in about two months' time. In the meantime the present Ontario Temperance Act will be rigidly enforced. This act has been in force for the past ten years. The standard of the parties in the Assembly early today was as follows: Conservatives 75; Liberals 14; Progressives 12; Labor-Progressives 2; Independent Liberals 4; Labor 1. Prior to this election the party standing was: Conservatives 76; Liberals 12; Progressives 12; Labor 1; Independent 2; seats vacant 10.

Locally the provincial elections resulted as follows: West Hastings: Dr. W. R. Ireland, Conservative, defeated Mr. H. W. Ackerman, Prohibitionist, by a majority of 2133. East Hastings: the Hon. Robert Cooke, new-comer running elected by a majority of 2155 over the Rev. F. M. Sharpe, Prohibitionist; in the Belleville-Mr. James F. Hill, Conservative, defeated Mr. W. H. Gordon, Prohibitionist, by a majority of 1495; in Prince Edward Mr. W. E. Raney, Toronto, the Progressive leader, defeated Mr. Horace A. Colliver, former Conservative member of the Assembly, by a majority of 47.

Tito Finally Places Bets

Montreal Gazette

Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito has finally placed his bets on Poland's big horse. After a see-saw course through the Polish National Council and Egypt and Hungary, he has spoken out strongly against the Russian actions in Hungary.

It is realized now that three distinct forces are at work in the satellite states. There are the ruthless Stalinists who believe in the international destruction of Moscow; they are the Titoist elements in the parties who believe in each country developing its own Communist system, independent of Moscow.

These two elements are in the parties which control the satellites. Outside the parties remains the mass of the people, who are anti-Communist.

Tito, like Gomulka in Poland, is in the second group. His previous course he has followed in the last few months has been dictated by the necessity of getting as much out of each side as possible. It would be suggestive that the Titoists were reinstated in Poland and Hungary. But he does not wish to encourage anti-Communist (that is, anti-Tito), revolt in any country, such as erupted in Hungary.

He has now decided that Russian armed intervention in the Hungarian "revolution" was the worst possible thing, rather than spontaneous anti - Communist feeling. Because his own army and partners ultimately rule out such interference in his own country, he has decided the risk is light for him.

This is not the major reason why he has taken a more decisive attitude, however. During his last visit to Moscow, he now reveals, he discovered a basic split among the Stalinist leaders on whether they should continue or abandon Stalin's harsh policies.

The Nikita Khrushchev clique, which has sought to destroy Stalinism, he feels to be stronger. He is placing his bets on that clique and giving it his support. For him, the stakes are high: he could become the international champion of the satellites, as well as an important influence in Communist parties in the free world.

The evidence to date shows this power game very well. It can only be said he is not mistaken in it now, that the "soft" policy clique will win out.

Personal Health Talks

The Namby-Pamby Way

Most European schoolboys can chin themselves.

Most American schoolboys cannot.

So the physical education experts purpose to omit this stunt from the standard tests to determine whether a boy is physically capable—say to qualify for a commission in the army, navy, or air corps.

After all, it seems pretty silly to build our national defence with material selected on such a basis. Even if a boy can't chin himself, he may still be able to press a button as well as the next fellow if our foreign aid programs should ever run dry and some disgruntled have-nots start shooting.

The experts who would eliminate the chinning test did not explain, but one of them suggested why European schoolboys make better physical part of it, that is.

Never heard of physical education when I was a boy. Chapel Street in Canandaigua, though Northerners regularly led their classes in calisthenics. Anyway, I'm sure we kids on Chapel Street, like Fred Wyant, G. D. Gratton and Alfred R. Symons '96; J. Douch '95; J. S. Reid '95; C. J. Wills '93; Malcolm Wright '94; Charles J. Symons '94; M. ## Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

CROWDS AND INDIVIDUALS

Massification!

You will not, of course, find this term in the dictionary. It is an invented word, but it has a profound reason.

Massification is the name for all those tendencies which lead us to think as a mass rather than as individuals. Massification lies behind all movements to make people conform in prevailing social customs. It even haunts the field of scholarship and routine the attitudes in certain branches of knowledge to stand in the way of progress by opposing the unorthodox. Every boy and girl in high school knows the power of massification. It is a malady which attains epidemic proportions almost literally every college campus. The tendencies world suffers from it also. And, be it said in sorrow, the Christian church is not entirely able to withstand the ravages of this malady.

The Bible makes it plain that God deals with men individually. We come into the world alone—and less we are we die alone. Regardless of the help given by the Bible and the Church, we are saved by individual decision to a satisfactory understanding with God if we are to enter Heaven.

Free massification as you would call it, is not necessarily evil. But a conscientious individual even though it means getting new friends or a new job. You cannot afford to have your destiny determined by others.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Trappers and backwoodsmen are known for generosity to their wives, that the secret of scarcity and plenty in the wild animal world is intimately related to the food supply. Beaver will, in the future of a very few years, multiply rapidly in response to a plentiful supply of poplar along the shores of the lakes, when before the packing on the terrain and the number of dams they can create, the end of the existing streams, so making further supplies of poplar available, the beaver will not only eat themselves out of house and home, they must then migrate or die. Many migrate. Many just perish.

This is true of nearly all species of wild life. When there are wide open spaces and no artificial hunbering operations that result in the destruction of mature timber and the immediate inauguration of new second growth, deer move in and multiply tremendously. Not simply until their number are such as to menace the new growth. As the new forest matures and the undergrowth begins to subside, the deer begin to disappear again. Their predators, such as wolves and bears, are also multiplied for the simple reason that the deer are provided, add powerfully to the imbalance. Soon the mature forest must await the coming of fire or the harvesting operations to restore it as a deer range.

These are facts known to forest economists. But what is new is the realization that our forests are not the only natural resources like Canada, are rapidly becoming more and more limited and that forest economists are no longer thinking in terms of this year or next, but they see in the browse the deer eat the loss of potential forest trees, birds, and animals and in many others, in twenty to forty years time.

Now we see forestry experts encouraging sportsmen to go forth in search of deer to kill them.

We sportsmen never knew until now that deer "herds" existed.

Aim of H-S Assoc. Theme At Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association was held on Tuesday in the school auditorium.

The theme of the meeting was based on physical, mental and spiritual education.

The president of the organization, Mrs. Paradis, opened the meeting by reading objects of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation, one of which is "To obtain the best for each child according to his physical, mental, social and spiritual needs".

After this a letter from Dr. W. J. Dunlop, Minister of Education, was read in which he commented on his admiration for the work done by the Ontario Federation of Home and School Association and the Federal Institute of Catholic Parent-Teachers Association. He was delighted to support them and set aside November as National Home and School month. He noted the influence of the school was second to home in physical, mental and spiritual education.

After reading this letter, Mrs. Paradis introduced Mr. N. A. Beach as speaker for the evening.

Mr. Beach is director of physical education for Albert College and member of the board of the Belleville YMCA.

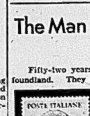
He gave an enlightening account of the activities of the YMCA whose object is the same as the Home and School Association.

Mr. Beach brought out the fact that the task of the YMCA is to strengthen the ties of the boys and girls with home, school and church. These are the fundamental institutions which refuse to break a child's character.

The YMCA also helps to build faith in them, for faith is the basis of loyalty and unless individuals are loyal to home, school and church, civilization degenerates.

He stated that the YMCA is for the up and coming generation for the up and coming are the backbone of the country. From this group come out vital leadership which the YMCA trains and guides from a young age, in every community in which it works.

Mr. Beach quoted statistics on YMCA memberships and activities after which he introduced Mr. Jim Heffernan, physical instructor at the YMCA, who in turn introduced a group of seven boys who put on a tumbling display which was enjoyed by everyone.



Refreshments were served in the auditorium.

The Face on The Stamp

The Man Who Conquered Space

By NICHOLAS MIKA

Fifty-two years ago two strangers arrived in St. John's, Newfoundland. They had a few boxes in which were instruments and all kinds of tools. Perhaps nobody would have noticed them, had they not behaved rather peculiarly. It was a cold, windy day in December. Instead of sitting home near the fire place like other people they did such a ridiculous thing as flying a kite. They must be crazy, said everyone who saw them.

One of them was a young Italian scientist. He had the phenomenal idea to send a message over a thousand miles without wire. It happened like this:

When he was still a school boy he read a book about electro-magnetic waves in the air. Before he closed this book he said to himself: Why not use these invisible waves and send them as messengers? He asked his parents for an attic room where he built his first experimental laboratory. After a few months of tinkering with wires and electric current, he was able to send sound without wire from one room to another. Encouraged by the easy success he forgot everything and worked day and night to improve his miraculous invention and transmit the sound over greater distances. Soon he was able to ring a bell in his house without wire and talk to his assistant who lived in a neighboring village.

LIKE FAIRY TALE

What an amazing invention! To send a sound over miles without wire. It was almost like a fairy tale. But when he tried to interest the Italian government in the practical value of his invention, they answered him coldly that it was no more than a children's toy.

A toy? His Irish mother became furious. She said: One of these days you will regret this. Certainly, she did not know much about physics and electricity, but she realized that her son had given one of the greatest gifts to the whole world. She persuaded him to go to England where he at once received a warm reception and great interest in his work. To support and develop his ideas a company was formed and the great benefit of wireless was soon appreciated by the Navy. All English merchant vessels, warships and lighthouses were equipped with receiving and transmitting sets. The tremendous value of wireless telegraphy, as we now call it, radio, was for the first time widely publicized when the proud luxury liner had to go to the Atlantic in the year 1912. The survivors of this sea disaster could never have been rescued without the help of wireless that sent the S.O.S. signal through the air.

WANTED GREATER SUCCESS

The world was astonished and honored the inventor. Only one man was not content with this success. The father of radio himself. He wanted something more. Something that even scientists and physicists did not believe would ever be possible. He wanted to send his wireless messages across the ocean and build an invisible bridge between Europe and America.

To prove that his bold idea was within reach, he erected a powerful transmitting station in Cornwall, England and sailed with his assistant to St. John's, Newfoundland, to receive the first signal across the ocean. For his experiment he chose the hill with the Cabot memorial tower. Strong winds blew from the west. The kite was not strong enough to raise his aerial. A balloon was better, the wind ripped it lose and carried it off. For hours the men struggled to get a kite ready on time. At last they were ready. The clock struck the appointed hour. But the receiver remained silent. Anxiously, he listened. He hardly dared to breathe. The minutes seemed endless. And then it came. Suddenly there was a sharp click in the receiver. Unmistakably. Three times the signal came, like the dots of the Morse code.

He knew that he had succeeded, his dream had come true. On December 15th all American papers carried on the front pages the most sensational news: A wireless message had been sent for the first time across 1,800 miles of ocean.

Wm. J. Davis Starts 27th Term As Reeve

As in the south, acclamations were the order of the day at civic nominations in North Hastings with at least five reeves in the north part of the country being returned to office without opposition.

Only in Faraday township where there will be an election for council, will there be a contest next year.

In McLure, Wicklow and Bangor, Reeve William J. Davis received acclamation for his 27th term of office, while Ray Hanrahan was returned in Mayo; as was John Horsepool in Faraday and Frank Peever in Herschel and Monteagle. Mr. Peever succeeds the late Thomas Scott as reeve of the northern municipality.

Ten Qualify To Run for Six Seats on Council

CAMPBELLFORD — Ten men have qualified to run for the six seats on the 1957 town council here, assuring the voters of a good selection from which to make their choice.

Retiring Mayor Ralph J. Locke, whom everyone thought would contest the position of reeve, a job which he held on previous councils, was called away suddenly and will not qualify. This left the way open for present deputy reeve F. M. Rutherford to move up to the reeveship.

There will be a contest for the position of deputy reeve.

Three men will have their names on the ballot for the two seats on public utilities commission.

Two members of the PUC retire each year, and this year's two retiring members, chairman A. C. Newman and commissioner R. J. A. McGregor, are seeking re-election. Also in the running are, Hector A. MacArthur, an electrical dealer in the town.

The ten names appearing on the ballot for councillor, six of whom will be elected, are as follows: George H. Free, R. A. Hall, F. G. Linton, G. H. Macmillan, W. J. Masterson, George Nicholls, Paul O'Sullivan, Charles Thompson, Jack Torrance and George Vice.

Linton, Macmillan, Nicholls and O'Sullivan are members of the 1956 council. Mr. Vice sat on an older council and Mr. Free has served both as a councillor and as deputy reeve.

Although voters so far have shown no great excitement over the forthcoming election it is expected that the shuffle will have some effect, and "civic fever" will increase as the day of voting nears, and the contestants step up their campaigning. One voter said on Wednesday that he will be doing your Christmas shopping," referring to the selection to be made from the ten names on the council ballot.

The Week's News

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Painfully, step by step, Britain and France this week mapped a retreat from Egypt.

What conditions, if any, the two allies would be able to attach to their withdrawal was uncertain.

London spokesmen talked in terms of a "phased withdrawal," meaning a comparable batch of British or French troops would be pulled out each new contingent of the UN force moved in.

But along Britain has availed—as the price of withdrawal—a guarantee that the UN force would stay on the Sinh in Egypt until a general settlement could be worked out.

But pressure mounted for immediate, unconditional withdrawal by British and France. And the Secretary-General Hammarskjold already had accepted the condition of Egypt's Nasser that Egypt has the right, once the allies leave, to tell the UN force, how to get going.

If that happened, it would restore what the diplomats call the status quo ante—the situation that pervaded the area before the intervention began. Except that now the Soviet Union has made friends and relations between Britain and the United States severely strained.

U.S. PRESSURE

Last Saturday the UN General Assembly meeting in New York renewed its demand that the British and French forces withdraw—"forthwith" was the word used—and by this time.

Britain and France will be toning to that demand. But the biggest factor in their decision is the failure to win the support, apparent in Washington, for their intervention policy.

The U.S. not only voted with Soviet Russia against Britain and France in the UN General Assembly, but made it known no U.S. obligations would be considered until plans for complete withdrawal were definitely announced.

That was economic as well as political pressure, because the threat against the Sterling Area cut off Europe's normal oil supplies. Already gasoline rationing is in effect and industrial slow-down in prospect.

Washington's hostility stirred up a wave of anti-American sentiment in Britain and France. But London has abandoned its overriding importance of the Anglo-American alliance.

CANADIAN PARLIAMENT

Parliament met in special session in Ottawa on Thursday. The Commons debated Canada's role in the crisis. External Affairs Minister Pearson defended Canada's independent course and said Canada will not be a "chore boy" either for Britain or for the U.S.

The chief speaker on foreign affairs for the Conservative opposition, John Diefenbaker, said Canada should summon a new Quebec conference of the Western powers "to heal the wounds of disagreement."

The House voted confidence in the government's handling of the crisis and approved the expenditure of $1,000,000 for Hungarian relief. Then the members went home—until the regular session opens Jan. 8.

Flushed by apparent victory, Egypt's Nasser set in motion a Hitler-like mass deportation of Jews. Large numbers of British and French nationals also were expelled from Egypt. Other Jews were seized as hostages and interned, and their property and businesses confiscated.

NEW TROUBLE SPOT

Tension developed between Syria and Iraq to add another trouble spot to the Middle East turmoil. Large quantities of Soviet arms were reported in Syria, with a strong non of the Nasser type. Col. Hamid Saraj, said to be anxious to play ball with Moscow. Soviet influence in Syria would be a threat to Turkey as well as Iraq, the latter two partners in the Baghdad pact.

Seymour Lacks One Councillor To Fill Slate

CAMPBELLFORD — Seymour Township lacks one councillor for the 1957 council. A situation which is probably unique in the history of Seymour Township elections has developed. There are four of three candidates for council failed to qualify, which leaves only two to go to the polls again the following week to choose their councillor.

Originally, five men were named to fill the four seats, a hotly contested one. Two of them, Alex Linn and George Elmhirst decided to run for the position of deputy reeve. With three nominees to fill the four seats, it looked like an acclamation for council. However, one member of last year's council, Jack Bennett, failed to qualify at the deadline, which left only two names to go on the ballot.

Sam Diamond, last year's reeve, received a nomination for reeve again this year, along with Kenneth Farr, last year's deputy. Mr. Diamond has been out of politics this year, and so Mr. Farr was elected by acclamation. Two members of last year's council, George F. Elmhirst and Alex Linn will contest the position of deputy reeve, and these will be the only names on the ballot on Monday.

Ford, Chevrolet Setting Pace For Production

WINDSOR (CP) — Ford and Chevrolet are setting the pace in 1956, production Ward's Automotive Reports said Friday.

Passenger car completions this week was the best since July and slightly over the 8,575 units produced last week. The year's peak output is 115,000.

Since Jan. 1, Ford has produced 63,500 cars and Chevrolet has 62,800 car completions. Combined, the two have taken 38 per cent of the industry's 1956 production following 38.9 per cent in 1955 and 45.1 per cent in 1954.

Mr., Mrs. Norman Wannamaker Mark 60th Wedding Anniversary

FRANKFORD, — Riverside community, friends and neighbors and relatives gathered at the—community hall, Frankford, on Tuesday evening, to honor Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wannamaker of Frankford, on their 60th wedding anniversary.

The honored couple have resided at their present home all their lives with the exception of five years at Hoard's Station.

Mr. Jack Rose was "master of ceremonies" and welcomed everyone and called upon the Rev. G. Pierce to open the gathering with prayer.

Community singing was enjoyed. A "Mock Wedding" was next on the program.

Guests were ushered to the platform by Messrs. Bob MacDonald and Bob Hearns. The guests were, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Forge and daughter, Beverley; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rose; Mrs. G. Howie and daughter, Patsy, Miss Sheila Macaulay and Mr. Kenneth Rose.

The bride, Mr. Sandy Morris, given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Nicholson, was attired in a long white gown and veil and carried a bouquet of gay flowers. The bridegroom was Miss Florence Heath. The bridegroom's parents were, Mrs. Blake Heath and Mr. Clayton Rose and the bridesmaids, Mrs. D. McConnell and Mrs. Sandy Morris. The minister was Mrs. A. Asseline, who performed the wedding ceremony. The trio choir was: Misses Barbara Hearns, Catherine and Barbara Bradley, with the pianist, Mrs. Bob Hearns.

Community singing was enjoyed. A vocal duet by Misses Helen Patrick and Beverley Wannamaker "A Wedding Prayer", two accordion duets were rendered by Misses Barbara Curry and Beverley Wannamaker "When the Saints come Marching In" and "There is a Fountain Filled with Blood." Mr. Gary Wallace sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The honored couple were called to the platform where Mr. Jack Rose spoke briefly and read a telegram from Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent. A telegram was also received from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth.

Four grandsons, Messrs. Art Bamber, Gordon Hubble, Berton Wannamaker and Everett Anderson, on behalf of the family, presented the honored couple with two platform rocker chairs. The Riverside community friends, Messrs. John Hood, Bob Hearns, and Bob MacDonald presented Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker with a tri-light lamp, bassock, magazine rack, and a scatter rug. Other gifts were also presented. The couple each responded. Rev. G. Pierce then led in prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker and their children gathered at the table which was decorated with yellow streamers and a white wedding bell, azales, "mums, a white linen cloth and three tier wedding cake. The granddaughters served.

Pictures were taken of five generations. Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker have six children, 24 grandchildren, 30 great grandchildren, and two great, great grandchildren.

Guests were present from Oshawa, Madoc, Campbellford, Crookston, Hoard's Station, Belleville, Trenton and Stockdale.

"Jest a Secon.!"

"Wonderful things, these electric blankets."

SERO—GREEN

White chrysanthemums and ferns adorned the sanctuary in St. Thomas' Anglican church, Belleville, on Saturday, November 24, at 2:30 p.m. for a lovely late autumn wedding when Jeannette Green of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Howard Storms, and the late Andrew Green, became the bride of Pilot Officer Cyril Sero of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Howard. The Rev. Canon A. S. McConnell, rector of the church, officiated in the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by Mr. Howard Storms, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over satin, with fitted bodice and full skirt. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a Grace Kelly headdress, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Sheila Green, as maid of honor, attired in yellow lace accented by matching satin trim. She wore a matching headdress and carried a bouquet of 'mums.

Mr. Cyril Merritt of Belleville, attended the bridegroom and Mr. Garry Whalen also of Belleville, and Mr. Charles Barriage, uncle of the bride, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the Kiwanis Centre, Dundas Street, where the bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask, centred by a three-tier wedding cake, and flanked by the bridal bouquets. Pink and white streamers added a nuptial accent.

The bride's mother wore a brown gown trimmed with white, white accessories and corsage of white 'mums. She was assisted in the receiving line, by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in brown satin, with accessories and white 'mum corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Sero are residing in Belleville.

Guests were present from Belleville and Toronto.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower with her aunts, Mrs. Wale, Mrs. St. Pierre, Mrs. Nellie Harris, Mrs. L. Barriage, Mrs. L. Bentley and sister, Miss Sheila Green, as hostesses.

HILL—GEORGE

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Christ church, (Anglican), Tyendinaga on Saturday, November 17, when the Rev. W. Smith united in marriage Marena George of Loudon, Ontario, to Clinton James Hill of North Tonawanda, New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Isaac Hill of Deseronto, Ontario.

Miss Georgina George of Buffalo, New York, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, wore dark blue with matching accessories and corsage of red roses.

The young couple will take up residence in North Tonawanda, New York.

St. Joseph's CWL Hears Reports

The November meeting of St. Joseph's subdivision of the Catholic Women's League was held on Thursday evening in the school hall.

Mrs. J. Hanley presided and the meeting was opened with prayer led by the Rev. J. V. Buckley. The president welcomed the members and the visitors from Point Anne C.W.L.

The minutes were read by Mrs. A. Gibbons and the financial report by Mrs. T. Hopkins. Mrs. P. Halloran reported on the membership. Mrs. C. Murphy reported on the Bowringo. Mrs. T. Kelly gave an itemized report on correspondence. Mrs. H. Carr-Brainn reported on the Hallowe'en tea and bake sale and thanked everyone for their co-operation and assistance in making the tea a success. There were 80 hospital visits made during November. Mrs. V. Muldoon reported on the November euchres which she had convened and thanked the ladies who had assisted her at the euchres. Mrs. J. C. Baker reported on visits made to new families in the parish.

Spiritual convener, Mrs. G. Whalen, announced that study clubs are functioning in each district. In her general remarks on study club meetings she stated that each meeting should open and close with prayer and that active discussion is most important for the success of these meeting. Mrs. Whalen read a report of a study club meeting which had been submitted by Mrs. D. Duminie. The members of this group are studying "The Altar and Sanctuary" and find the meetings most interesting and informative.

The president announced that the next meeting will be held on December 10th. Each member was asked to bring an exchange gift for the tree. She called for volunteers to make doll clothing to dress dolls for Christmas.

Mrs. D. Duminie, Mrs. J. Baker, and Mrs. O. Dufour volunteered to canvass the parish for Canadian Register subscriptions. Father Buckley asked for the co-operation of every family in this drive as our objective must be met.

Mrs. Genereaux, on behalf of the Point Anne visitors thanked St. Joseph's C.W.L. for their kind invitation to the meeting.

After the business meeting, the Rev. J. V. Buckley showed a colored film "The Frustrating Fours and Fascinating Fives."

Refreshments were served by Mrs. P. Halloran and her committee and a social time spent.

This --- and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Since Belleville citizens will be casting their votes between now and the next column, T & T will repeat for its weekend thought the words of Ogden Nash, which we used last year.

"They have such refined and delicate palates
That they can discover no one worthy of their ballots,
And when someone terrible gets elected
They say: There, that's just what I expected!"

It is never trite to join a chorus that is honest and serious; T & T repeats earnestly "Vote for whom you wish, but vote."

If we use words lightly we ask for trouble, but that is just what we are forced to do. Cavalcade means a "company of riders" and it is forgivable to visualize knights on horses. When we were driving into Belleville for our program, we witnessed, for want of a better word, a most unusual and a most beautiful cavalcade.

Along Dundas Street East, near Queen Alexandra school this unique cavalcade met its gallant way. You will remember how bitterly cold it was Friday morning. There was a chariot being wheeled along slowly and there was a group of outriders, maybe a dozen. The chariot was a wheel chair. The outriders were boys and girls, little boys and girls. We simply had to stop.

Riding in the chariot was a little girl, a victim of polio. The proud outriders, and they were so proud and brave, were pushing with care and were grouping about their little queen of the cavalcade. We wondered why they were so quietly grouped and tightly packed about their charge. Suddenly, it dawned on us, the outriders were bravely protecting the little girl in the chariot from the bitter, bitter cold wind.

Unashamedly a tear came and, if this was feminine, we were so proud of the youthful cavalcade as it wended its way towards school along a Belleville street. With a side glance we wondered if the guard on duty felt as we did. It was a little thing, a lasting experience and a permanent memory. It is the sort of thing that makes the reflective person wonder in a world that boasts so many cavalcades of destruction, but these are grown men and women, adults, if you prefer, who believe it is always wiser to throw away all that is in a world of children. Is the child always wrong? Are adults always realists? Anyway, we wished the little girl in her chariot and her outriders a silent prayer which simply was a "God bless and a Happy Christmas." It was a scene which could be flashed across the year and, movie screens of the world.

On Thursday of this week we walked into a Belleville store recently beginning into the mercantile who was a busy bee with hammer and tacks. Laughingly, he explained "Christmas has caught us with our—decorations busy behind this year." He went downhearted because he explained that business has been so brisk, he just had not had the time to get at his decorating. Further inquiry indicated that the trend was general. It was coincidental, but later the same day we were in in Picton and saw the whole town seemed to be a lamp post, festive. It seems that being decorated with the traditional evergreens attached to the lamp posts. It seems that by this day, December 1st the spirit of Yuletide is beginning to take its annual hold on the imagination and anticipation of us fortunate Canadians. It really is a wonderful season, isn't it?

Have you had occasion to drive through the Bay of Quinte countryside since Monday? Although many of us may wish that we were in California, there can be no denial of the white beauty of nature on every side. It could be that it might be a good Chamber of Commerce propotion to declare a horse and cutter week. Dobbin and the crunching runners would slow us down to a speed where patience is divine, tempers are soothed and tow trucks unnecessary. Also we might have the precious time to look about us and appreciate the awful but beautiful snow in all its glory. Twice within twenty hours we had to be hauled out of the snow by a tow truck and in our minds we could not help wishing that Dobbin was back in the barn. Yet, it is lovely. It seems that we simply cannot have everything.

Contact Club Holds Season's Last Study Group

On Monday last the members of the Contact club of Christ church met, for their last study group of the year.

The president, Betty Morrice, was introduced and welcomed to the club. After a short business meeting, Archdeacon A. H. Creggan conducted a question and answer period. The members had been asked to hand in questions which they would like Mr. Creggan to answer. This he did in a most clear and interesting manner.

ELECTRICITY AND MEDICINE

Today's Living is measured in Kilowatt-hours

Medical science continues to advance till beyond the far-sighted concept of even the most optimistic prophets of a few years ago. Electricity makes much of that progress possible. Today, doctors use electricity in a variety of ways, from diagnosis to treatment. Specialized lighting and electrical aids to surgery make possible intricate operations undreamed of half a century ago. The X-ray, perhaps electricity's greatest single contribution to medicine, has itself assisted in saving thousands of lives.

Electricity's role in medicine is certain to become increasingly important and its potentialities greater as more electronic aids come into general use. It is another important way in which electricity, the silent co-worker in so many projects, is continually being used to help provide higher standards of health, living and prosperity for us all.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE YOUR MOTHER NEEDS MORE INTERESTS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 20 years old and engaged to a fellow who is 30.

My mother, who is a widow of 57, likes my fiance very much, too much, in fact. Whenever he comes to my house, my mother gets all his attention and he does not pay any attention to me. When I ask him about it, he says he still loves me, but that my mother is a very charming person. It has even got to the point where he comes to my house even when I'm not home, in order, he says, to get better acquainted with his future mother-in-law.

My mother always wants me to tell her everything my fiance and I say and do when we go out, and keeps asking me to have him over more often. I love my mother very much, but I also love my fiance.

Would you please advise me what to do in this situation, as I'm at my wits' end? L.C.

Dear L.C.:

Certainly you are caught in the middle of a very awkward situation and one that calls for all the poise, tact and diplomacy you can possibly summon up.

Do you think your fiance might perhaps be subconsciously that an older woman like your mother would take so much interest in him? Or, as you analyze the matter, does it strike you that he and your mother are trying to get closer together, in their interests, than you and he are? If he happens to be especially mature for his 30 years, it is just possible that the seven years between you and your mother seem less to him than the ten years between him and yourself.

I suggest that, when he is at the house and paying so much attention to you lies carefully to the things they talk about and what you do, think about this.

It would be a mistake of course, for you to show either your mother or your fiance that you're jealous. Rather, get together, in their interests, than you and he are, if he happens to be especially mature for his 30 years, it is just possible that the seven years between you and your mother seem less to him than the ten years between him and yourself.

I suggest that, when he is at the house and paying so much attention to you lies carefully to the things they talk about and what you do, think about this.

It would be a mistake of course, for you to show either your mother or your fiance that you're jealous. Rather, get together, in their interests, than you and he are, and

For Alderman

ROBERTSON COLLINS

A member of the local law firm of Collins and Collins, Mr. Robertson Collins is again offering himself as an alderman candidate.

A native of Belleville he received his schooling at St. Michael's Academy and high school, the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall.

For a number of years he practised law in Tweed but returned to the city five years ago. While in Tweed he was a member of the Centre Hastings high school board and is past president of the Kinsmen Club in that village. Locally he is a member of the Boy Scouts' Association.

He is married and has two sons and a daughter.

LESLIE W. DIGBY

Again seeking office in the municipal field is Leslie W. Digby, 49-year-old Northern Electric sales engineer who came to Belleville nine years ago.

A native of Winnipeg, he has lived in England most of his life until 1946 when he returned to Canada. Since coming to Belleville he has been an active figure on executives of several community organizations and has also been active on sport organizations, including the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, the Quinte Football Association and the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club.

He has served as vice president of the local branch of the Canadian Legion and as overseas liaison officer of the RCAF Association. He saw war service with the RAF from 1939 to 1946.

He is president of the local Norelco Employees' Credit Union and is director of Quinte District Chapter of the Ontario Credit Union League.

Married, he has a son and a daughter and is an elder at Holloway Street United Church.

RALPH L. GRAHAM

An alderman with two years' experience on council, Ralph L. Graham, 33, 170 George street, is offering himself for re-election in Monday's election.

A life resident of Belleville, Mr. Graham attended public and high schools here and later attended University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall.

A veteran of World War II with service in the Canadian Army in Italy and Holland, he completed his education following his discharge from the service and returned to Belleville in 1949 to practise law and is now conducting his own law practice.

During the past year Mr. Graham has been chairman of the city council traffic and light committee.

A keen sports enthusiast, Mr. Graham is particularly partial to hockey and baseball. He is a member of the Belleville Kiwanis Club and also a member of the Moira Lodge, No. 11 A. F. and A. M.

He is a member of Bridge St. United Church, is married and has two sons and a daughter.

FRANK VICTOR GRANDAME

Frank Victor Grandame, 47, an employee on Northern Electric Company is offering himself for re-election to city council after a two year term in that office. In both years in council he has acted as chairman of the fire committee.

Associated with Northern for the past 33 years, he is a native of New Brunswick but lived for most of his life in Montreal from where he came to Belleville nine years ago.

A veteran of World War II, he served five and a half years, starting with the RCOC and ending up with the RCMP as WO 1.

An active community worker, he has served as public school trustee and also on the recreation commission. He is a member of the Belleville Parks Board; a member of the Canadian Legion; and the Quinte District Foremen's Club.

Interested in sports, he helped to organize minor baseball in Belleville and is past president of the association. A member of Tabernacle United Church, he is an elder there. Married, he is the father of a son and married daughter and is now a grandfather.

GERALD B. HYDE

One of the youngest members of city council, Gerald B. Hyde is offering himself for re-election after two terms, the figure in two years of which he has acted as chairman of finance.

Born in the city 32 years ago he attended school here and attended two years at the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario. He served two years on the board of education and in 1954 was chairman of the Arena Commission.

An active worker in sports clubs and lodge circles he is former district governor of the Y's Men's Club and is past president of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club.

He is a director of the Chamber of Commerce and The Belleville Lodge, 123, A. F. and A. M.; Benjamin Lodge, L. O. L. 274. He is vice president of the YMCA. Manager of the firm C. L. Hyde and Son, plumbing and heating, he is a member of Bridge St. United Church.

He is married and has a son and a daughter.

FRANK HUSON

Again offering himself as an aldermanic candidate is Frank Edward Huson, 59, prosecuted local real estate agent, operating under the name of Frank Huson Real Estate.

A native of Ottawa where he received his education he served with the Royal Canadian Navy during World War II and took up residence in Belleville in 1946. Formerly in the contracting business, he is now in real estate.

He is married and has one daughter and is a member of Christ Church.

DOUGLAS MOXAM

Offering himself as candidate for election to city council after an absence of one year from city hall, Douglas Moxam served as alderman in 1955.

Born in Belleville 55 years ago, he is a former garage operator but now working as a building contractor, he has lived in the city all his life where he received his education at city public and high school and at Ontario Business College.

A member of the United Church, he is an active figure in lodge circles being a past master of Eureka Lodge and a member of Moira Chapter No. 7. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Married, he has two children, a son and a daughter.

MRS. EFFIE McCABE

Resident of the city for the past 22 years and active community worker, Mrs. Effie McCabe is offering herself for re-election to city council on which she has served for the past two years. Last year she was chairman of the council welfare committee.

Formerly of Napanee where she received her education, she served three years on the Board of Education before being elected to council. She is chairman of the disaster committee of the local Red Cross and vice-president of the local Children's Aid Society. She is a member of the Women's Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital; a member of the hospital board of governors and is acting chairman of the advisory committee of the hospital nursing staff.

An energetic campaign worker, she is an executive member of the Red Shield campaign, Salvation Army, and is also a member of the Community Chest.

She is the wife of Herbert McCabe and is the mother of one son and three daughters.

MELVILLE RICHARDS

Seeking a seat on city council for the first time, Melville Richards, 47, has lived in the city for the past 11 years, coming here from Elmvale where he attended public and high schools.

An employee of the Houston Lumber Company, he takes a keen interest in sport, being especially interested in minor hockey. This year he is manager of the Lambert Junior Hockey Club. He is also a bowling enthusiast.

Mr. Richards is married and has two sons.

DONALD J. WHALEN

Lifelong resident of the city, Donald J. Whalen, of Whalen Real Estate, is offering himself for the first time as candidate for alderman.

Educated at St. Michael's Academy and high school, Don served four years with the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals and took part in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns and also served on the European front.

He is a member of the Knights of Columbus and of the Belleville Club.

He is married and has four children and lives at 165 Bleecker Avenue.

MRS. THEO WHEELER

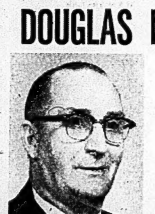
Offering herself for the first time for municipal office, Mrs. Theo Wheeler is one of two women in the aldermanic field.

She has lived in Belleville most of her life, coming here from Griswold, Manitoba, at an early age and attended Queen Mary public school and Belleville collegiate. She worked three years as a dental nurse and three years in accounting and was the first woman in Military District No. 3 to serve in World War II.

She was attached to the Canadian Dental Corps, and also served in the audit office of the Regimental Funds Board and in the pay corps at Fort Frontenac. She spent a year in the treasury department at Ottawa with the unemployment insurance commission.



Following the war she operated a millinery business in Belleville for seven years.

She is a member of the Women's Canadian Club; the Community Concert Association and is a past director of Soroptimist International of Belleville. She is a member of the Prince Charles Home and School Association, and is public relation officer for the Belleville Civil Defence Organization. She is a member of Bridge Street United Church.

PRISONER ARRESTED

COBOURG (CP) — Provincial police here said Thursday they are holding Donald Mounesay, 20, who escaped with four other prisoners from Regina jail Nov. 24. Mounesay was arrested with Kenneth Marcino, 22, after the car they were driving was stopped for a routine check by Constable S.W. Judson. Investigation showed the car had been stolen in Regina and that Mounesay was wanted for breaking jail.

TEXT OF THE ADDRESS GIVEN BY ALDERMAN GERALD HYDE

AT THE RATEPAYERS' MEETING HELD THURSDAY EVENING IN QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL.

Mr. Chairman, Fellow Candidates, Ladies and Gentlemen,—

Two terms ago, I appeared before you as a candidate for the office of alderman and in soliciting your vote I made one pledge to you, namely, "To serve to the limit of my ability in the best interests of all our citizens at all times." This pledge I have endeavored to conscientiously carry out as a member of your council.

At the inaugural meeting of the 1955 council a majority of the members of that council honored me with election to the position of chairman of the Executive and Finance Committee. During a year fraught with difficulties culminating in the necessary assumption of dealing with administrating the problems due to the sudden and untimely passing of our senior city official, Mr. Harold Bateman, I endeavored to provide the necessary guidance and leadership which the financial and administrative sections of our civic government demand. When the 1956 council met in its inaugural meeting the members thereof honored me with a unanimous selection this time to the same chairmanship, an honor for which I am humbly grateful and have endeavored to fully merit.

This year our committee was charged with numerous responsibilities. The chief of which was the search of a competent city manager and the setting up of a council-manager form of government. At this date the first part of this job has been accomplished but I believe that it will be sometime before the full benefits of this more efficient system will be felt by our citizenry. With the co-operation of your council and with an informed sympathetic citizenry I feel confident that council-manager government will prove to be the beneficial force that so many hundreds of us maintain it can be and so many hundreds of you have demanded for years.

Now a word about your finances. At this date a higher percentage of current taxes has been collected than was collected one year and two years ago. At this date we have in the bank overdraft or loans on current account. At this date our total funded debt less sinking fund and unissued debentures stands at $4,094,137.36. One year ago the figure was $4,040,000. This means an increase of $80,332.74 over that of a year ago, BUT there is an amount of $225,000.00 included in that total covering the erection of the new water tower and attendant work for the Utilities Commission which, while issued and guaranteed by the city of Belleville, will actually be paid by the Utilities Commission out of water profits and will have no effect on the tax rate whatsoever. Taking this amount from our indebtedness at this date and you would have a decrease in total indebtedness of $144,667.26 effected during the 1956.

During the next 4 years you can look forward to the retirement of many old debentures totalling at this date over $363,000.00 thus covering such public works as the Gas Plant, the Belleville Collegiate, the Industrial Site, Fire and Public Works Equipment, Construction of Sewers and Sidewalks, Arena Renovations and others.

As these old debentures are retired it will materially assist your council and your mayor in any endeavor they may be, to maintain and stabilize your present rate of taxation and at the same time give you the services a growing city demands.

At this date I do not foresee any increase in tax rate for 1957 barring the remote possibility of unexpected major appropriations over which your council has no direct control but, thanks to the co-operation of the property owned citizens on your school boards, your council is fully apprised of their budgets.

Three weeks ago I presented to your council a detailed, factual picture of your current financial status and I hope that all of you either listened or read that report. I was highly heckled by the facts as I know them that the city of Belleville is in a sound state financially and while future councils must act with discretion and caution no major public works are contemplated we are far from a position of bankruptcy and contrary to what has been said elsewhere we are far from being at the head of the list in this province with regard to per capita debt.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

My name will appear on your aldermanic ballot again this year. You have several votes for aldermen and I would greatly appreciate one of those votes and if returned to your council I pledge to you that I shall continue to forthrightly deal with all matters coming before your council and to maintain my efforts to serve to the limit of my ability in the best interests of all our citizens.

Thank you!

GERALD B. HYDE

In 1943, my wife and I, while on our honeymoon made a stop in Belleville. As it was our first time in this city we decided to delay our trip and spend a little while looking around Belleville. We were completely won by the general feeling of friendliness we found here. We extended our stop-over to a nine day visit and in that time Belleville and the people appealed to us so greatly that we decided, then and there to make Belleville our home.

When the war was over and I was demobilized from the navy that is exactly what we did and during the past ten years we realize more and more how fortunate we are to have made such a decision.

I have presented myself for Alderman for the past three years because I feel that Belleville has been very good to me and my family and I would like to do my share in helping to make a good city even better.

As you know at this time last year I opened another real estate office in our sister city of Trenton and in the past year have watched with envy the number of industries, which is the blood stream of every city open up in Trenton and by-pass our city of Belleville.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I have taken time and opportunity to inquire of certain industry why they had not located in Belleville and have been given numerous substantial and sound reasons for their decision to locate elsewhere. These reasons I feel if elected as an alderman with proper co-operation can be rectified and industry can and will be brought to our city of Belleville.

Please remember that without the tax from industry to subsidize for necessary city expenditures the only other source of revenue is from us the tax payers, without further industry we can and must prepare ourselves for a continuous increase in taxes due to the growth and expansion caused by modern times.

You the voters, whether landowners or tenants, are affected financially and will continue to be so unless steps are taken to increase our city's industrial growth.

I offer myself as your alderman because I feel that my occupation as a real estate broker can and will be an aid in bringing industry to Belleville.

Remember, more industry means more spending power for us, the worker, more selling power for you the merchant, and more people to make this friendly city a better place in which to live.

Vote for Frank Huson, a person willing to offer his time and experience in bringing industry to Belleville.

Vote for Frank Huson, a person who would like to try to repay this fine city of Belleville for the opportunities it has given him.

Canadians Being Well Treated In UN Force

LONDON (CP)—United Nations official Ross Ewan Smith, back from a visit to Egypt, said today Canadian troops there are in good shape and have no complaints about the way they are being treated.

Smith, chief UN information officer in London, returned from the Abu Suweir transit camp, now being run by Canadian officers.

Smith said there are only a few Egyptians around, and none of them have been unfriendly in any way. His impression was that Egyptians were friendly and helpful to Canadians.

Smith strongly denied a report published today in the News Chronicle saying that Canadian UN forces were being treated by the Egyptians as though they were hostile troops.

Stirling

STIRLING. — River Valley Women's Institute sponsored its second euchre party Friday evening, at the schoolhouse with nine tables in play. Four guests were in attendance from Stirling and Sidney.

The prizes were donated by Mr. and Mrs. John Kane and were awarded as follows: ladies' high, Miss Marion Carlisle; low, Mrs. Ida Heasman (playing as a lady); men's high, William Reynolds; low, J. L. Donohoe.

Mrs. Ed. Heasman and Mrs. John Kane and their assistants, served refreshments. These two ladies will convene the next party on November 30th. The last party will be held December 14th when the draw for the turkey donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Kent will take place.

Little Benny's Notebook

I wanted to tell ma something by easy degrees, and I said, Ma, ma, which would you rather have me brake if you had your choice, that old cracked tea cup with blue flowers, or that old brown saucer with nicks around the edge?

Neither one, they are both useful in their small way, and now without any further hems and haws, which one did you brake? ma said, and I said, Neither one, ma, they're both still as good as new, I mees as good as old. What makes you think I broke one, ma? I said.

Never mind what, and now I want to know, specifically and in plane language, exactly what you broke? ma said, and I said, Nothing, ma, Jimminies, I didn't even scarcly brake anything. I meen I didn't even drop anything or hit anything with anything, I said.

If you dont want something smacked with something, I advize you to tell me what you did on, subject.

ma said, and I said, Well, do you know that narrow bathroom draw where you have for let of little things like tweezers and stuff? Well, I happened to pull it all the ways out instead of just part ways, and the whole bunch of little things went all over the floor, but I quick got them all back again, only maybe not exactly in their same positions, so dont be too surprized if they're not, I said.

Thank you for the warning, and why did you open that draw at all for land sakes? ma said, and I said, I was trying to see how easy it pulled.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

Many Reasons For Hard Starting Of Car Engine

By EUGENE MILMOE

Most hard-starting complaints are traced to carburetor, choke, battery, spark plug or ignition point troubles—but this doesn't mean you can ignore other possible causes. There are quite a few to keep in mind.

For example, a defective ignition coil may be denying needed high voltage to the spark plugs (lets the distributor cap sweat), or a loosely connected high tension lead could be encouraging heavy corrosion and thus excessive resistance at the terminal socket. Don't minimize the effects of a clogged distributor cap vent either. It will trap moisture and start a corrosive action which eventually results in a weak spark.

A faulty starter switch, heavy engine oil or badly corroded battery terminals are also troublemakers. Sometimes, in a car with automatic transmission, starting trouble is due to the neutral safety switch is defective.

• • •

C.R. asks: "I have a 1955 model car, with automatic transmission. When turning right with the brakes applied, there is a loud scraping noise. I have had it to the garage several times with no results. What is your opinion?"

(A) It's possible a dry or loose brake shoe absorber is responsible for this noise.

• • •

W.J. WRITES: "I have put in new plugs and points but when my 1953 car is warm it does not want to start. It starts very easily, though, when it's cold.

(A) This is usually due to flooding—i.e., too much fuel in the manifold. An automatic choke—incorrectly adjusted or not working properly — is the most common cause; with carburetor trouble a close second.

• • •

From D.R.: "My car has lost some of its pep at high speed and on hills, and there's also a smell of raw gas noticeable. A month ago, a new carburetor plus new plugs and points were installed. The ignition was also timed by machine. For a few weeks, everything was perfect until these troubles began. I suspected carburetor flooding, but the outside of it is always completely dry and unstirred."

(A) A defective fuel pump diaphragm may be allowing gas leakage at the pump breather hole. Check the fuel lines, too, for signs of seepage.

• • •

A.E. writes: "I bought a second-hand 1953 model that gave me good oil mileage for the first 32,000 miles. Now, it needs a quart with every tankful of gas. I couldn't find out what type the former owner used, but I put in H-D oil. If the original owner used a detergent oil, could that be the reason for oil consumption?"

(A) A sudden big drop in oil usage is usually due to leakage, but it could possibly be due to a change in oil grade. High detergent oil will pick up so much sludge and carbon in a dirty engine that it's return holes and other oil passages can be quickly clogged. To avoid trouble, two or three oil changes within the first few hundred miles are generally recommended when a switch is made from a nondetergent to H-D oil.

Bulbs Make Nice Yule Gifts

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The true gardener would rather plant a small brown bulb or seed and watch it grow from a minute green speck into a blooming plant, than receive as a gift the handsomest of plants in bloom, brought to perfection by another hand. Knowing this, you can safely pick bulbs to give to your gardening friends. They will be truly welcome.

Dutch Amaryllis are the finest of these easily grown hybrids. American growers have not yet been able to produce the same results as the master bulb growers of Holland. Van Tubergen, Van Meeuwen, and Warmenhoven offer the best. Look for these at your local seed house or florist.

The Dutch Amaryllis blooms measure from seven to ten inches across and each stock bears several flowers. White striped pink, soft rose red, scarlet, salmon, dark red and orange with red stripe. Planting directions come with the package. These hybrid bulbs are priced at $2.50 to $8.

If you would like fast results in a bulb which will produce blooms in 60 days buy Herald Amaryllis by Van Meeuwen. They are treated by a secret process at the laboratory of plant physiology for early bloom. They are priced from $2.50 to $5.00. Good Amaryllis are grown in California, and while not as spectacular as the Dutch hybrids they do produce fine big blooms. Scarlet or crimson blooms are $1.25.

For those who admire callas there are several types to choose from, Arum pictum is called "The Black Calla." The flowers are a deep purple and the leaves are heart shaped. Each bulb is priced at $1.00. There is a yellow with spotted leaves, a dwarf pink and the well-known white calla. Prices for these are eighty cents down to forty.

Miniature, or specie gladiolus are from Asia minor and are for pot culture. You can have a whole dozen bulbs of these for 65 cents to $1.25. Each bulb or corm will produce two to three spikes of bloom. They are planted several to a pot, and the colors range from red violet through to white with carmine flakes. They make fine cut flowers.

There are types of iris that make fine pot plants too. One of the best for forcing is Wedgewood a lovely variety in Wedgewood blue. This is a cross between a Dutch iris and one from Morocco. This is $1.30 a dozen.

Iris Reticulata may be planted out doors in a sunny spot in the rock garden or as a border in the sun. But, they can bloom happily in a pot in early winter. They are early in the spring.

Cape bulbs from South Africa are well known in England, but most of them are strangers in Canada. Many of them are very lovely and easily grown in the garden or as pot plants. Ixias are known in England as "Corn Lilies." They have long loose racimes of brilliant blooms from white through to deep orange with lovely dark centre. The plants may grow to 18 inches high, and are usually planted six or seven to the pot. They are a bargain at one dozen for thirty-five cents.

Cape hyacinths send up spikes of pendulous bells, some what like hyacinths. They require three months to bloom, but require no special planting care and can be placed in the light as soon as planted. These are usually 25 cents for each bulb, or $2.25 a dozen.

Oxalis, or wood sorrels are small bulbs which have leaves like small shamrocks. These are often grown outdoors, but they make good house plants. There are several members of the family. One named Grand Duchess Lavender has red stems, deep green leaves and plenty of light purple blooms. There is also a pink, and a yellow type. They cost 60 to 90 cents a dozen bulbs.

A little late for Christmas but a very welcome gift in January are lily-of-the-valley pips. They will bloom within two to three weeks. Number one grade is sold at $2.40 a dozen.

A gift certificate from a bulb agent will allow the gardener to choose his own bulbs. Ask the agent to mail a bulb catelogue back with the gift certificate.

Now just in case there is one or two more mild weekends before the end of the year you might plan to take a few spare small and dry parts of perennials from your planters. Buy an extra Christmas tree, if you do not have evergreens on your property that may be pruned a little. Dig down into the soil and make holes to plan the evergreen branches. Add some barberry, holly, or other berried branches if available. These will add a cheery note and take away that drab look of dead plants, or bare planters.

As long as the ground is not frozen too hard it is possible to move most deciduous shrubs and trees. It is best to mulch newly-moved plants to conserve the moisture, delay penetrating frost, and help provide extra food to be available in pot is early winter. They are early in the spring.

14 POINTS TO REMEMBER...

1. REPAIR & MAINTENANCE OF STREETS

(a) The streets and roads of our city have been kept in repair in a sensible and orderly manner, at a minimum additional cost of $2.25 per capita.

2. NEW DEAL AT CITY HALL

(b) I promised a new deal at the City Hall. We have it. We have co-operation and respect for one another and the working climate that makes for efficiency in the carrying out of city business.

3. HOCKEY TEAM SAVES YOU MONEY

(c) The operation of the winning McFarland hockey team will no doubt reduce the cost of operating the arena, and should save the city money. All this besides the tremendous amount of favorable publicity the city is receiving, as well as the entertainment for the citizens.

4. ANIMAL SHELTER IN OPERATION

(d) Belleville has a humane animal shelter already in operation, manned by public-spirited and warm-hearted volunteers.

5. RELIABLE INFORMATION GIVEN TO CITIZENS

(e) My policy is to hide nothing and to make available to you, all information regarding city affairs. We published a report of the budget. We had all departments report on the Town Crier radio program, and we now even broadcast city council meetings "live". We have nothing to hide from you about your own affairs.

6. INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY AT LITTLE COST

(f) We are experiencing some very favorable industrial activity and should have some valuable accomplishments to report soon. In fact there is an industry operating in Belleville today, obtained during this year for a 35c telephone call and a little leg work. No high priced trips to United States were necessary. When my predecessor was asked at the Ratepayers' meeting on Thursday night what his expenses were during his term of office, he inferred he had none. The fact is, that AFTER last year's election, and just prior to leaving office, my predecessor submitted three expense accounts totalling almost $1500.00, which were completely unitemized. Coul, in their desire to pay all legitimate expenses ofo civic representation on civic business, twice requested an itemized account, the second time by registered mail. To this date, no reply, no itemized account of the approximate $1500.00. Who's talking about extravagance?

7. EDUCATION COSTS

(g) The bulk, 75% to be exact, of this year's increased taxation was as a result of higher education costs OVERWHICH YOUR COUNCIL HAS NO CONTROL.

8. SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT

(h) My predecessor infers in his advertisements that Belleville will have to pay through taxation for a new sewage disposal plant. This is not so. The Ontario Water Resources Commission has ORDERED the new sewage disposal plant as a MUST and we have no choice but to plan for it. THIS ITEM DOES NOT AFFECT TAXES AT ALL.

9. PARKS & RECREATION ACTIVITY

(i) The Parks Board and the Recreation Committee have had several meetings together, and are jointly planning their activities. Just another example of the co-operation of civic departments in the interests of a better Belleville at greater economy.

10. STRAIGHT FORWARD APPROACH

(j) During my term of office you have had a straight forward approach to revenue and expenses. At the beginning of the year, taking into consideration the increased education costs, I predicted a tax increase of 5¼ to 7¼ mills. It was slightly less than my prediction. This year, I feel that the total assessment should meet all foreseeable expenses without any increase in taxes.

11. SEASONAL UNEMPLOYMENT

(k) Last year we embarked on a plan for a DO-IT-NOW project, taking up a great deal of available manpower in off season. This saved the city a considerable sum of welfare money, and the plan is under way again for this year.

12. REPRESENTATION TO PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT

(l) As a Vice-President of the Ontario Mayor and Reeves Association, I will be in Toronto within a matter of days, presenting a brief to the Provincial Government, together with the executive of this Association, asking for greater relief to the municipalities from increased costs for education and welfare.

13. TRUTH ABOUT TAX REDUCTIONS

(m) My predecessor has stated publicly that only he has reduced taxes in the past ten years. The fact is that the only two tax reductions in the past ten years were in 1948 and 1951, AND MY PREDECESSOR WAS NOT IN OFFICE. During his two years in office, there was NO TAX REDUCTION IN EITHER YEAR.

14. DEBT HAS BEEN REDUCED

(n) Despite statements by my predecessor that our debt has increased, the city treasurer reports that at the end of December, 1956, the city's total debt will be DOWN by $144,674.26.

Four Women Seek Re-election As Mayors as 33 Ont. Centres Going to Polls on Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Voters in at least 28 Ontario cities are to cast ballots Monday in the election of new municipal governments getx under way throughout the province.

Although most of the major centres have scheduled elections for Monday, several others have been held off until later in the month.

Many communities have organized to get out-and-vote drives, a Canadian Press survey showed. Several have expressed fear that this year's percentage vote may be lower than last year, when only a few centres had more than 50 per cent of their eligible voters cast ballots.

One newsworthy figure will be missing from the mayoralty candidates. Charlotte Whitton, mayor of Ottawa for the last five years, did not stand for nomination this year. This left the way clear for George Nelms, a 51-year-old politician who has served as controller for two years, to be acclaimed mayor-elect of the capital city.

FOUR HAVE WOMEN

Of 33 Ontario centres surveyed, four have women contesting the mayoralty. Three are seeking re-election.

Mrs. Bernadette Smith is seeking her sixth consecutive term as mayor of Woodstock, an unprecedented success story. Mrs. Forrester, Belleville's first woman mayor, is aiming for her second term.

In Sudbury, Mrs. Grace Hartman is being challenged by Joseph Fabbro, Wife of a retired International Nickel employee, is final.

Mrs. was Sudbury's first high controller and first woman elected mayor.

Port Arthur's Mayor Mrs. Elsie Wilson is seeking re-election against R. Wilmot.

Financial matters rank high in several centres. Toronto is to vote on a proposed $13,500,000 city hall and civic square and plans for a $3,500,000 sewage disposal plant are a major issue in Sarnia, although no plebiscite is involved.

HOSPITAL GRANTS

In Crowland Township, an unlimited area around Welland, a plebiscite is to be held which will affect a $2,000,000 grant to a local hospital. Voters also are asked $1,000,000 to the hospital—providing the township will give a like amount.

Two-year terms for council are to be voted on at Sault Ste. Marie and Kitchener.

In Windsor, a broad proposal which could change the basic shape of its municipal government is to be voted on. A three - way election asks voters if they favor abolishing the office of control for a council form of government doing away with wards, or keeping the present system and appointing a business administrator.

Hamilton is to vote on Dec. 5. Centres voting on Dec. 8 are Owen Sound, St. Catharines and Timmins. Port Arthur, North Bay and Kirkland Lake have their elections Dec. 10.

SOME HIGHLIGHTS

Belleville—Janie Forrester opposed by Jack Bolh whom she defeated last year. Eleven candidates for seven aldermanic posts. Sewage disposal an issue, but no plebiscites.

Thirty-four candidates — Mayor unopposed—seeking 10 council seats. All offices for two years.

Chatham — Mayor Archie Gilling in for third term by acclamation. Four candidates for three council seats.

Cornwall—Aaron Horovitz, major 18 years, opposed by Emile Menard, receive of Cornwall Township, 12 square miles of which is being annexed Jan. 1 by Cornwall. Twelve aldermanic posts contested by 21 persons.

Fort William—Mayor Hubert Badanai opposed by Ald. Joseph Young. Eleven persons seeking six council seats. Plebiscites on proposed $40,000 lighting system in McKellar Park, and a $960,000 nurses' residence in McKellar hospital.

Galt — William Anderson acclaimed mayor for fourth straight time. Eight candidates for five council seats.

Guelph—Mayor Harold Sulter opposed by Ald. Thomas Wilson, a native of Sault Ste. Marie. Fifteen candidates seeking 12 aldermanic posts in what observers call a dull election.

Kingston—Frank Boyce, Fred Parker and Dr. Harry Stewart seeking mayoralty left vacant Dec. 7 by death of George C. Wright, 71. Voters to pick 21 of 34 aldermanic candidates, decide on new bus franchise and whether to reduce council to 14 members next year.

Kitchener—Six of 20 candidates for 10 council seats in calling for lower taxes and opposing plan to build police headquarters on market square. Mayor Fred Dreger re-elected by acclamation. Plebiscite to decide on two-year term for council members.

London—A by-law to spend $400,000 on passenger equipment for the 25-mile London to Port Stanley electric railway; idea opposed by present council. Nine candidates in three wards seek six seats for two-year terms. Acclamation in fourth ward. Mayor R. A. Dennis elected last year to two-year term.

Niagara Falls—No public meetings arranged because of public apathy. Controller Hinkins acclaimed mayor for seventh time. Eight candidates for seven aldermanic posts.

Orillia—Mayor Wilbur Cramp opposed by Stuart Coyne, 30-law to subsidize privately-owned town hall theatre by $8,500 next year to be voted on.

Ottawa — Opticlan a George Nelms, 51, acclaimed mayor, succeeding Charlotte Whitton, who retired after five years as chief magistrate. Nelms opposed by four-man board of control, and 42 competing 10 aldermanic posts in 10 wards.

Peterborough — Mayor John Derrom, sailing city civil defence program, opposed by Arthur Burrows, promising to cut unnecessary spending to 4 candidates for five council seats. 11 candidates for 10 seats on board of dermen.

Port Arthur—Mayor Mrs. Elsie Wilson Wishart opposed by R. Wilmoj. Fifteen candidates for the 10 council seats.

St. Thomas—Mayor Peter Laing opposed by Aldermen Hamilton Moore and Jack Stirling. Twelve candidates for seven council seats. Plebiscite on $1,000,000 debt.

Sarnia—Issues are a proposed $3,500,000 sewage disposal plant, harbor development, industrial expansion and drainage. Mayor W. Watson re-elected by acclamation. Eight candidates for four aldermanic posts. Plebiscite concerning the reduction of the day-light saving period during 1957.

Sault Ste. Marie—Mayor C. H. Smale opposed by Walter Harry, Eight-civil theatre candidates seeking 10 seats in five wards. Two plebiscites—establishing a two-year term to council, and whether or not to change to daylight saving time next summer.

Stratford—Aldermen Victor Polley, 60, and Fred Cox, 50, seeking mayoralty. Twelve candidates for 10-seat council. Plebiscite on collegiate addition tentatively down by council.

Sudbury—Mayor Joseph Fabbro, 40, appointed a few months ago after L. Landreville named to Supreme Court of Ontario, opposed by Mrs. Grace Hartman, Sudbury's first woman controller. Seven candidates for four board of control seats and 16 seeking nine aldermanic seats, three in each of three wards.

Toronto—Mayor Nathan on $13,500,000 city hall and civic square. Mayor Nathan Phillips opposed by Ross Dowson, 35. Eight candidates for four board of control seats; 41 candidates for 18 aldermanic seats in nine wards. Also vote on whether or not the franchise should be extended to all voters who have lived in Toronto for a year, are over 21 and British subjects.

Windsor— Mayor Michael Patrick, 58, opposed by Controller Arthur Reaume, 49, Controller Thomas Brophy, 49, and Edward Charrois, 49, of Hall, Spec. By-law votes on Friday night shopping, adoption of board of control to establish council form of government, abolition of wards, keeping present council system and appointing a business administrator.

Woodstock—Mayor Mrs. Bernadette Smith, seeking unprecedented sixth consecutive term, opposed by Ald. Charles Tatham. Seven candidates for five aldermanic posts.

Winter Outlook Pretty 'Dismal' Says Amateur Forecaster

Neal is an "amateur" long-range weather forecaster. He operates a 22-a-year forecast service for farmers, resort owners and lumbermen.

His sole equipment is a scientific barometer, "hunches" based on government reports and a newspaper record dating back about 100 years.

Neal has the confidence of a bank manager in his system. He claims 85-per-cent accuracy in his predictions, but says his calculations are thrown out of kilter by nuclear blasts.

"If I know in advance that there's going to be a blast, I change my forecast," he says. "If I don't then I'm just out of luck."

"Aside from this, nothing is unpredictable if you have all the information and know how to use it," he adds.

Employed as a technician by a Montreal aircraft and tool manufacturing firm (Canadair), Neal has a typer of "appliances." Most of the treatments are "repairs." There are about 100 new amputation cases a year in peacetime.

The nucleus of the service is the prosthetic centre in Toronto's Sunnybrook Hospital, which supervises as the main manufacturing and distributing centre for the 11 other branch factories. Some 16,000 appliances, including 800 artificial limbs, and 17,000 repair jobs are produced annually by these facilities.

The Toronto centre has special shops to produce artificial limbs, braces and splints and orthopedic boots. An artificial eye section turns out plastic moulded eyes, nose and facial restorations.

A special research section is continually experimenting in the improvement of design and the use of new materials, such as fibreglass, dacrons, nylon and various light metals and steels.

81 BY CENTRE

There are some 1,100 patients a month at the Toronto centre alone. Its first dramatic work at the supply and manufacture of artificial limbs.

Some 3,500 Canadian soldiers lost limbs in the First World War, 2,000 in the Second World War and 28 in Korea. The great majority have returned to civilian life to resume normal lives with tailor-made artificial arms and legs.

Veteran amputees are engaged in nearly all forms of employment, including professional, executive, clerical, farming, fishing, repairs, etc.

"Even double - arm amputees have been given their ability to carry on successfully. Most amputees enjoy recreational sports — swimming, hunting, fishing, gardening, golf—common to the physically fit."

About 21,000 non - veteran amputees in Canada benefit indirectly from the research of the centre. "We're not finished yet," says Maj. Bell. "We are always investigating new materials and metals; adapting new devices and improving on old ones."

Fine Record Is Established By Veterans' Affairs Dept. In Making Artificial Limbs

OTTAWA (CP)—The man walking ahead of you may have no legs—yet he's walking as fast as you are. He is on artificial legs and to catch a streetcar may have had a big shot off in the First World War.

You might not be able to tell the difference.

Thousands of veterans who lost limbs in the two wars and in Korea have unobtrusively returned to civilian employment to do a job as best they can before, or better, thanks to a government prosthetic service which does a seemingly impossible task some times.

EXCELLENT SUBSTITUTES

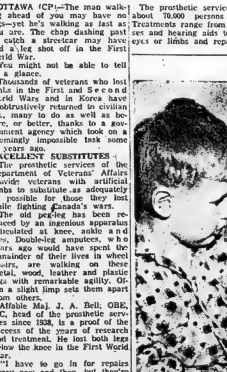
The prosthetic services of the Department of Veterans' Affairs provide veterans with artificial limbs to substitute as adequately as possible for those they lost while fighting Canada's wars.



The old peg-leg has been replaced by an ingenious apparatus articulated at knee and ankle joints. Double-leg amputees, who years ago would have spent the remainder of their lives in wheelchairs, are walking on these metal, wood, leather and plastic legs with remarkable agility. Often a slight limp sets them apart from others.

Alfable Maj. J. A. Bell, OBE, MC, head of the prosthetic services since 1938, is a proof of the success of the years of research and treatment. He not both legs below the knee in the First World War.

"I have to go in for repairs every now and then, but they're fine," he said in an interview.

The quiet-spoken, grey - haired veteran would be the last to admit he is a living example to the thousands of men treated by the service.

Maj. Bell tries to visit the 12 centres of the services across the country at least once a year. He personally oversees the activities of the vast organization.

Lenore Bicknell, 20-year-old Toronto model, is reunited with her two children after she was acquitted of murder in the shooting of her husband nearly two years ago. Police originally classified the death of her husband, Bruce Bicknell, 21, as accidental after Mrs. Bicknell said she shot him while he was teaching her to load a .22 last July. Mrs. Bicknell was made a statement to police that she had murdered her husband. Later she repudiated the statement. (CP Photo).

ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE

Farmers to Get Forecasts for '57 At Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal experts will attempt to give Canadian farmers a glimpse of things to come in 1957 when the annual federal - provincial agricultural conference opens Monday.

And the picture they will unfold likely will be a little rosier than that outlined in the last three or four years. The outlook for ridding Canada of a near-record wheat surplus is still bleak, but for most farm products prices are considered to be on the rise and that may mean more money in the farmer's pocketbook.

The 18th annual session, a three-day affair dubbed by some observers as the farmer's parliament, will open in parliamentary committee chambers with John A. M. Shaw, veteran chairman of the federal agricultural products board, presiding.

Federal and provincial agricultural ministers, flanked by their deputies and advisers, are scheduled to attend along with spokesmen for all of Canada's major farm organizations.

The conference is designed to indicate to farmers the trends in the coming year, in the way of agricultural prospects, farm prices and production, to help producers in crop planning.

Provincial ministers and other farm spokesmen are given the opportunity to comment on the federal forecasts and Agriculture Minister Gardiner usually voices the first.

For example, he may touch on the problems of sale - marketing farms. Prime Minister St. Laurent, on Nov. 20, announced an organized some sub-marginal farmed in Eastern Canada should be taken in forest and water conservation uses and farmers resettled in "more rewarding surroundings."

Miners Get Big Raise if New Contract Accepted

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP)—Nova Scotia coal miners will get their first pay increase in four years next month if approve a company-union working agreement announced here early today.

The proposed contract would boost about 10,000 miners an immediate pay boost of $1 a day, another $1 if they meet certain production quotas, and an additional 80 cents effective Dec. 1, 1957.

The announcement was announced in a joint statement by Harold Dodge, United Mine Workers (Ind.) district 26.

The union membership will vote on the agreement Dec. 5. The present basic pay is $9.74 a day, unchanged since 1952.

Miners affected include employees of the Dominion Coal Co. and old Sydney collieries in Glace Bruton, Acadian Coal Co. in Pictou County and Cumberland Railway and Coal Co. in Springhill. All are Dosco subsidiaries.

Nasser Steadily Eliminating British-French Influences From Egypt's Economic Life

EDS Note: This dispatch is by an Associated Press correspondent who has just arrived in Rome from Cairo, where he was stationed during the British-French landing in Egypt. Egyptian censorship prevented transmission of their revealing dispatch from Egypt.

By EDWIN SHANKE

ROME (AP) — An Egyptian police ukase rolled down the shutters of a French bookstore in the heart of Cairo one day soon after the British-French assault on Egypt began. It symbolized how the attack on Egypt has backfired on the British and French in a country where their influence has been dominant for decades.

"Expulsation" is the new watchword of President Nasser's drive against the hoop heedlines about Port Said and the UN emergency police force, a thorough purge of all British-French influence and interests is taking place, from the business world to many of the professions, schools and cultural activities of every description. Even history is being rewritten to, as Stalin did it in Russia.

Today, by day, the government-controlled Egyptian press is rewording this upheaval — unprecedented in Egypt's long history.

The process goes ahead steadily. Egyptian military authority orders numbered 4 and 5, issued Dec. 11, after the Anglo-French-Israeli assault began.

These orders classed the British and French as "enemy nationals," provided for the confiscation of their property and prohibited transactions with British and French citizens.

EXPLOIT EXECUTIVES

Egyptians appointed by the minister of finance replaced the managers of firms controlled by the British and French. A number of banks and wholesale and retail firms were affected. Sheri Ola, one of Britain's biggest enterprises in Egypt, was among them.

Responsible informants said "no one, apart perhaps from a few authorities, really knows what is going to happen pending some final agreed settlement. Tentatively, the Egyptians could do practically anything with the businesses mentioned. They are way or even reorganize the firms and run them themselves."

One dilterent factor is the fact that 1 British bus driven more than 2,100,000,000 — 2,220,000,000 Egyptian assets. Meantime, British-French business are in the hands of Egyptians.

The nationalization was announced in a joint statement by Harold Dodge, United Mine Workers (Ind.) district 26.

The union membership will vote on the agreement Dec. 5. The present basic pay is $9.74 a day, unchanged since 1952.

Miners affected include employees of the Dominion Coal Co. and old Sydney collieries in Glace Bruton, Acadian Coal Co. in Pictou County and Cumberland Railway and Coal Co. in Springhill. All are Dosco subsidiaries.

shares of "enemy" companies under sequestration to ensure that they are "speedily expropriated." The government has ruled that British and French firms no longer can sue in any Egyptian court.

British and French doctors, dentists, lawyers, pharmacists, engineers and architects have been dropped from their professional associations. This means they can no longer work in Egypt.

Egyptian auditors have replaced their British and French colleagues in business firms. The newspaper Al Ahram charged the British and French with monopolizing this profession "because firms feared their secrets would become known to the Egyptians."

The ministry of communications dismissed all its British and French technicians.

Reinsurance operations by foreign companies, formerly handled through London, are being lifted by other markets, especially Switzerland and West Germany. An Egyptian authority claimed Britain's net annual profit from the business had been approximately £50,000,000.

REWRITE TEXT BOOKS

Deputy Education Minister Hamed Watik announced severance of all cultural relations with Britain and France. He told reporters his ministry was "reviewing all English and French books and syllabuses used in schools and universities throughout Egypt with a view to removing from them all that is connected with Britain and France and their history."

"Books used in schools, or those given readers for their general reading, must not contain the horrible facts now exposed by the British and French aggression against Egypt, which prove that their claim to civilization and influence of human progress is nothing but pretense. The course of education must be made to conform to nationalism."

Arabic will be taught in schools, he added, "from now on will be 100 per cent Egyptian in every respect."

French cultural penetration was particularly strong in Egypt and the educated classes commonly used the French language until they recently began learning more and more 16 Arabic.

HISTORY REWRITTEN

Ahmed Khaki, new head of Victoria College, one of Egypt's oldest English schools, was appointed head of a commission to "expurgate" more than 150 foreign textbooks and courses in the country. He told the weekly Al Tahrir: "We'll teach the students about the Egypt of the revolution. . . . Teach them to hate the English. . . . Teach them the history of Port Said resistance and explain to them why we are the enemies of England and that innocent children like them have been killed in battle and that we should take revenge for them."

Federal Veterinarians Launch Seasonal War Against Rabies

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal veterinarians have launched their seasonal war against rabies — the killer virus that spreads from Canada's wild life to domestic animals.

They are focusing their attention on Northern Ontario, where the province's worst outbreak in a decade occurred earlier this year.

Some 20 free immunization clinics for dogs have been set up in the Parry Sound area, which federal vet Ille says indicates there is a possible danger area. Thousands of dogs are expected to be vaccinated against rabies.

TO PROTECT HUMANS

"It's strictly a precautionary measure, but a necessary one to prevent the virus from reaching humans," said K. F. Wells, federal veterinary director - general.

There have been only 14 deaths among humans in Canada, the last in 1944, but rabies can spread like wildfire among animals once it gains a foothold.

Other provinces have been relatively free of the disease this year. Alberta reports a mild one and Quebec 15, mostly near the Northern Ontario border. N.W.T. Northwest Territories reports one case and other provinces none.

Ontario is the only province where we have any indication there may be another outbreak this year," a federal veterinarian said. "We want to get in there in advance and prevent the disease from becoming', established in dogs."

The mobile clinics set up in the Parry Sound area are ready to move to any other trouble spot as the need arises.

"What we'll be getting will be young dogs, puppies born last spring and dogs missed in vaccinations during the last outbreak."

Of the 180 rabies cases reported in Canada from April 1, 1955, to March 31, 1956—the year of record veterinarians — 137 were in Ontario.

Since then, another 64 cases have been reported in the province, most of them last April and May at the tail-end of the outbreak.

Only seven cases were reported in the last three months but the large dog population in the Parry Sound area has prompted the early fall vaccination program.

Federal officials want to vaccinate as many dogs as possible that are likely to come in contact with foxes—main carriers of the disease in wild life.

Meanwhile, they are keeping a check on the rest of Canada. Specimens, from across the country arrive at the health of animals branch of the federal agriculture department regularly for tobacco pipestem at laboratories in Hull, Que.

"The disease centre varies from year to year," an official said. "Next year the trouble may be in Quebec or Nova Scotia. Somehow we have no way of knowing."

Meanwhile, federal veterinarians are collecting brains from any animal that acts unusual. If they find rabies, it is quite easy to be certain what the trouble is."

GETS ART TREASURE

LONDON (AP)—New York art dealer Harry Spiering Wednesday paid 17,000 ($62,000) for a large painting of the Crucifixion with the Virgin and St. John by the Flemish master Hendrick ter Brueghen. Spiering outbid London dealers at an auction at Solheby's.

Rawdon

HEAVY SNOWFALL

RAWDON — Rawdon township was snowed under on Monday. The roads were almost impassable and several cars were sitting in the ditch. A number of the public schools were unable to operate on Monday and were closed for the day. There was no mail delivery on Stirling R.R. 2, so the Saturday daily will be rather late when it does arrive in the mail box.

A number of autos tried to travel over the town line between Rawdon and Sidney townships, but found the heavy snow too difficult to navigate.

Until 2 p.m., Monday afternoon only a few trucks travelled over the main road from Stirling to Hoards. The snowplow made a trip up and down and then several cars were seen on their way to Stirling.

During the evening fewer cars and trucks travelled west than on former Monday evenings. The snow was several inches deep on the level and snow shovelling was the order of the day. It has been several years since such a heavy fall of snow arrived as early as this. The whole countryside was a mass of white early Monday morning.

New Trend in Decoration

Canadian Murals in 3-D

Blackburn Public School outside Ottawa, Ontario, boasts one of the first 3-dimensional murals to grace a public building in Canada. Designed and executed by the well-known Canadian artist Arthur Price of Cyrville, Ontario, the mural is a happy combination of Canadian copper, aluminium and manganese bronze, mounted on an 8-foot slab of purple slate.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Irving Doak

Ideas and inspiration for the mural came from the drawings of the artist's young children: Helen, 11, Caroline 8, Rene, 7, and Nina 3, shown above with their attractive mother, Delilah. The right side of the mural was designed to point up the 3-fold function of education to train the hand, the heart and the head while the left side symbolizes nature in the water (fish) on the land (leaf) and in the air (butterfly).

..tist Price discusses the use of symbols with his father-in-law, Dr. Marius Barbeau whose many books on the customs and crafts of the Canadian Indians have been illustrated by Price's dramatic drawings and paintings.

Nina watches intently while her father carves the grace-ful bird which will later be cast in aluminium and perch in the mural's "tree of knowledge". In keeping with his theme, the tree has a gay, Christmas quality about it.

The wooden patterns receive a coat of shellac before they are cast. This halloween-faced sun is a great hit with school children. The mural also attracts the attention of motorists travelling down the quiet rural road.

After the form has been molded in sand, molten metal is poured into the mold. As soon as the metal is cooled, it is removed, ready for mounting. Mr. Price is experimenting with many new ideas for the use of metals in future murals.

Exercise Said Best Treatment For Oldsters

SEATTLE (AP)—Fatigue is the greatest obstacle to a happy, use-ful life for oldsters and its best antidote is physical activity, even when one feels tired, a specialist in the treatment of the aging as-serted today.

It takes a lot of will power to get going when one feels the need of rest, but rest usually is not the best medicine, said Dr. Theodore Klumpp of New York City.

"Over and over again," he said, "it has been demonstrated that any activity at the end of a tiring but sedentary day brings a degree of refreshment and re-newed energy that nothing else can equal."

The activity should by some-thing a person likes, such as golf, swimming, hiking, gardening or tennis, Dr. Klumpp added, and should not be overdone.

BUILD NEW JET

BERLIN (AP)—The Soviet Un-ion is building a double-decker jet airplane capable of carrying 180 passengers, an official Commun-ist East German newspaper said today.

Russians Using Tanks to Stop Refugee Flow

VIENNA (AP) — The Russians Friday were reported using tanks in their fight to stop the flow of refugees from revolt-torn Hun-gary but the total number of fu-gitives to reach free Austria passed the 100,000 mark.

Austrian security officials re-ported that Russian tanks came within one mile of the frontier during the night in the area west of Sopron, Hungary. Shortly after, the Austrian guards reported, groups of refugees were fired on. Soviet troops also continued to mine the border area, and refu-gees who made it over reported some of their friends had to be left behind after they stepped on mines and were injured. Frontier police said they also heard heavy machinegun fire which they be-lieved turned back many refugees.

But despite the shooting and the mines, another 2,700 refugees made it to safety between 8 p.m. Thursday and — A.M. Friday.

There was no fanfare for the 100,000th. He—or she—was not identified in the human stream that slipped across frozen fields or through the wintry forests.

Wooler

WOOLER— The heavy snow-storm on Sunday night caused a blockade of the roads. Many business men were detained on their way through to Trenton.

The night school, sponsored by the Department of Agriculture, was opened in Brighton High school on Wednesday night and a number from here are in at-tendance. Mrs. G. R. Putnam is teacher of a sewing class and Mr. Homer Leavitt, teacher of leath-er work. There are other classes for typing and nursing and art.

Mr. Ralph Banbury of Bright-on, is the agricultural represen-tative for Northumberland Co.

Mrs. Charles Nelson has re-turned home after being in King-ston Hospital for a check-up.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gooding returned home from England, and spent seven weeks sight-seeing and calling on relatives. Mr. Gooding was a representative to the International Plowing match. Mr. Herb Wessels and his hunt-ing party brought home two deer and a moose.

Hammarksjold Unable to Get UN Men into Hungary

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) Secretary-General Dag Hammar-skjold reported to the UN General Assembly Friday that he still is unable to get observers into Hun-gary. He said this had compli-cated his task of investigating the situation in that revolt-torn coun-try.

In a special report to the 78-nation assembly the secretary-general said the possibility of a visit by him to Budapest re-mained open although he had had no direct reply to his offer to go.

In Moscow Thursday, the Soviet party paper, Pravda, quoted Hun-garian Premier Janos Kadar as saying he blocked UN observers because he feared Hungarians would mistake them for American troops and be thrown into confu-sion.

Floyd Patterson Knocks Out Ancient Archie To Win Heavyweight Crown

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

AGE HAD IT!

The referee looked at a pathetic old man clad in boxing trunks in Chicago last night after nearly five rounds of brawling and said "That's all there is, there ain't no More." That was it. The easiest prophet who found his pre-fight predictions were all wrong was he is to be next wicket. Probably one occupied by one Hurricane Jackson and punching folks of his ilk.

It was the end for Ole Arch. The experts were practically all caught with their predictions down — and a new heavyweight champion taken over. A young 'un, too, by crackey, who is liable to cling to the buckle for some time, although as a limb crawler we believe this Californian, Eddie Machem will be looking around for dates pretty soon.

So fades out of the heavyweight picture at least, a colorful old figure. Archie talked a good fight—and fought many during his career of 161 brawls, a lot of them for peanuts. Now he might console himself with his light heavyweight title which nobody wants anyway—and so ill ends.

Meanwhile the DeFartsmen biked themselves into a firm hold on second spot in the Eastern Ontario Senior "A" standing, whipping their old "pals" from Kingston by a 7-3 score. Down east o' here, Pembroke nudged Cornwall in a close fray and tonight our olde gees back in Reddersville in an effort to whammy the Hurricane twice in a row. Should do it too.

Highlight of the piece last night, in this opinion, was "Turk" Barclay's fine effort in the Kingston nets. "Turk" was pressed into action after Bert Brooks, the Kingston goalie, stopped one of Maurice Benoit's sizzling drives with his noggin and had to be taken to hospital for repairs.

Now if the Pembroke Lumber Kings can take Whitby in Blairville this evening . . . .

* * *

A NICE GUY!

Rudy Schaffer, the genial manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs Baseball Club, rates in this corner's opinion as one of best ambassadors-at-large an athletic organization has sent to this city in some time.

Rudy spoke to the Y's Men's Club the other night, where the starry midget baseball team, which carried the club and city colors to the Ontario Baseball Association finals, only to be ousted by Chatham, were among the special guests.

The self-spoken Leafs' manager has a delightful sense of humour and he uses it to very good effect in a mild sales talk about his favorite professional baseball club. He voiced the generosity of boss-owner Jacks Cooke in extending an invitation to the youngsters and the clubmen to attend one of the Leaf games next summer. The Toronto club did not lose any friends here that night.

What struck this department forcibly was the fact the ML management is not confining itself strictly to the training of a baseball personnel. Rudy said the club is showing an active interest in young talent in Ontario and will do all that is possible to encourage and develop young players who may have dormant major league possibilities.

He said five youngsters from various parts of Ontario will accompany the Leafs to the spring training quarters next spring. That is evidence enough of the Leafs' interest in the youngsters of the province.

He recalled the day his father took him downtown in Milwaukee to buy a suit of clothes. He needed a new one in a burlesque show. Rudy stopped and asked his father to take him in to see the performance. Said dad, "no son, you will see something in there you shouldn't see."

The next week or so Rudy cut grass and did odd jobs to earn enough money to go in the show. "Dad was right," he said, "I went inside and saw something I should not have seen. It was dad."

He recalled an incident when he was associated with the Cleveland Indians. Bob Feller started on the mound and the bases were loaded by Hapid Roberts, Mickey Vernon and Al Rosen, lead and nobody out. The Cleveland manager called to Jim Hogan, the Tribe catcher, and asked if Feller had anything on the ball. "How would I know," retorted Hogan, "I haven't caught one yet."

Schaffer was with the Indians the year they defeated the Boston Braves for the world championship. After the series was over the Indians' management tossed a wingding for the boys in their hotel. Corks popped all over the place. About 2 a.m. Ole Satch Paige was strolling down a corridor when he was stopped by a colored bellhop.

"Marse Paige," quoth the lad, "does you-all think any of those Indians will be enshrined in the Hall of Fame?"

Satch rubbed his chin, "Ah don't know too much about 'em being enshrined in any hall, but they's a powerful lot of 'em embalmed in those rooms 'bout now."

Rudy spoke to the Belleville Kiwanis Club here last summer and extended an invitation to the clubmen to bring a number of Belleville youngsters to Toronto to see a ball game. Later, the Kiwanians did just that and 35 boys embumped and enjoyed outstanding hospitality, thanks to Rudy and the Maple Leafs. It was a fine gesture, one not readily forgotten by baseball-minded youngsters. Maple Leafs' fan membership in Belleville increased by at least 35 after that enjoyable outing.

Venerable One Is Eliminated Near End of Fifth Round; Fight Was Quick Slaughter

CHICAGO (AP)—Floyd Patterson made Archie Moore act his age Friday night and whether it is 39 or 100 doesn't make much difference anymore.

"I knew I had him in the third," said the sleepy-eyed, calmly confident former Olympic middleweight titlist. "It hit him with a left to the stomach and he said 'ugh' — or something like that. Then I knew I had hurt him and I knew I could beat him."

TO VISIT DAUGHTER

He wanted to get to the bedside of his teen-age wife, Sandra, who gave birth to a 6½-pound girl in a Brooklyn hospital not long before Floyd stepped into the ring against Moore.

Patterson was told in his crowded dressing room that he was a father. His eyes lit up and he said he guessed his first born probably would be Seneca.

Then, remembering she was going to add about the baby, he drowned out in a barrage of questions.

"You know," he said in his low voice, "Archie dropped off a lot before this fight about how he was going to win. I really think he did it because he was trying to build himself. I know it gave me a world of confidence."

GLOVES MADE DIFFERENCE

Patterson said the left hook that floored Moore for a nine count in the fifth before a packed house put him away, was not the hardest punch he has thrown.

"I think the extremely light six-ounce gloves made the difference," he said. "Against Hurricane Jackson I proved I could go the distance. Against Moore I proved I could punch—something a lot of people were not sure about. Frankly, I thought the fight would go the full 15 rounds."

Moore said in his dressing room, "I came to fight. I took to the road, but when I got there I found the door closed and locked."

"But I don't think the referee should have stopped it," he added. "I was not hurt and I heard the count of eight, then he raised his hand."

PRAISES FLOYD

"I felt Floyd hit a really improved fighter," Moore said afterward, as if searching for something consolatory. "I felt the potentialities of a great fighter when he put me down. For instance, I felt like I could beat him, but I also learned that youth can be too much for experience. I guess, and he cut me, like had a gash on the bridge of his nose in the third round). That's the first time I've ever been cut."

Archie was very complimentary of Patterson, saying "I always have my left hook everybody knows how to fall back on, but I'd like to fight Hurricane Jackson next."

Patterson was floored by Moore in 12 rounds before taking on Moore. Moore thought he hit before he replied to a question as to whether he would like to fight Patterson again.

"Yes, I'd like to fight him again but there's no return clause in the contract," he said.

CHICAGO (AP)—Floyd Patterson, youngest ever heavyweight champion in history, today neared over the wreckage of a pathetic Archie Moore to a golden future against a mixed-up crowd of conflicting tastes.

Eddie Machen, Hurricane Jackson or Willie Pastrano head the anxious challengers but the 21-year-old Patterson may not defend his newly - won title until June.

THE WINNER

This bout was not a fight. It was a quick slaughter. The 39-year-old Moore entered the ring a 5-to-1 favorite, resplendent in a black velvet robe, trimmed in gold. That was the only time he dazzled the crowd of 14,000 in Chicago Stadium.

CUT FOR FIRST TIME

Moore pawed hopefully for four rounds but he had no defense against the quick - punching, relentless former Olympic middleweight champion. Archie, hoping to become the oldest heavyweight winner ever, was slashed over the bridge of his nose in the third round. This was the first time Moore, a veteran of 157 fights over 20 years, was ever cut.

Patterson moved in like a butcher.

RULED A KNOCKOUT

A left propped up Moore, then Patterson whammied across a right and dropped Archie again. This time he struggled to his feet as referee Sikora counted nine or 10—it never was clear which to ringside observers. At any rate, Sikora waved a finish to the fight and the bell sounded. For a moment, it looked as though Archie Patterson had scored a TKO or a knockout. The officials finally said it was a knockout.

This was no moment supreme for Patterson. He was informed after the fight that he was a father, his wife Sandra gave birth to a 6½-pound girl in a Brooklyn hospital before Floyd stepped into the ring.

Old Archie still holds the light heavyweight title. He came in at 187¾ against 182½ for Patterson. He still can cash in more chips by defending his 175-pound crown against the No. 1 contender, Chuck Spiegel.

Attendance was announced as 14,000 with gross receipts of $228,-145 and a net of $114,000. The radio-TV fee was $180,000. The two fighters took a 30 per cent slice of $367,585.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Sonobody stole the Windsor Bulldogs' hockey sticks Friday night as the team was preparing to leave for a game in Chatham.

Police said the bundle of 40 sticks was leaning against the Windsor Bulldogs' team bus when boarding their bus. The team left for Chatham after a sport store agreed to lend new sticks obtained.

Varsity Edges Redmen 4-2

MONTREAL (CP) — The University of Toronto Friday night spoiled McGill's debut in its new Water Gardens, winning its second Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League game in as many nights with a 4-2 decision over the Redmen.

Brian Anderson with a goal and two assists, Ken Linesman, with a goal and an assist and Clare Drake with 2 assists formed the damaging Blues big line. Bud Kerney and Larry Stacey got the other Toronto goals.

Fifteen minor penalties were handed out in the free-wheeling contest before about 800 fans in the $500,000 gardens for its inaugural.

New Champion Has Had Benefit Of Good Handling

CHICAGO (AP) — Olympic boxing fans who watched Floyd Patterson win the middleweight title at Helsinki in 1952 were not surprised on Friday night to see him become the youngest heavyweight boxing champion in pro ring history at the age of 21.

Even four years ago, Patterson bore the "can't miss" label. It was only a question of the right handling and the opportunities to advance.

Manager Gus D'Amato provided the proper handling and Rocky Marciano's retirement opened the door earlier than had been expected.

Raised in Brooklyn, where his father moved from North Carolina when Floyd was only one, Patterson started boxing and finished off one Olympic foe in 20 seconds. He turned pro.

Carefully handled by d'Amato, Patterson moved into the main event class by small clubs in 1953 and won all five starts. One of his victims was Gordon Wallace, current British Empire light heavy titlist from Brantford.

With 13 straight in late spring of 1954, d'Amato signed an eight-round bout for Patterson with Joey Maxim in Detroit. Although the decision was given to Maxim, the former light heavy champion, the newspaper men all ringside voted unanimously for Patterson.

D'Amato finally agreed to a 12-round elimination bout with Tommy Harrison Jackson June 8, the winner to fight Moore for the title.

Patterson beat Jackson, although he had to settle for a split decision.

"Save Wings" Drive Goes Over The Top

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)— The drive to "save the Red Wings" and keep International League baseball here went over the top Friday night with $20,880 pledged for 1957.

Red Wings general manager George Sisler Jr. estimated that about 5,000 baseball fans have promised to buy season tickets.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ralph Backstrom and Bob Turner, with two goals each, Friday night paced Ottawa Canadiens to a 5-2 victory over Shawinigan Falls Cataracts in a Quebec Hockey League game.

It was the Junior Canadiens' third victory in six games played in their home rink, Lansdowne. They have lost twice and tied once.

The other Canadiens' goal was scored by Claude Ruel.

Not too Far off

Toronto Major League Centre Says Maple Leafs' Manager

It may not be too many years before Toronto is a major league baseball city.

Rudy Schaffer, general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs Baseball Club, made the prediction at an address to the Belleville Y's Men's Club last night.

The clubmen honored as special guests their sponsored minor baseball club, the Y's Men's Midgets, who went through to the OBA finals before being eliminated by Chatham. Also included were club officials, Joe Cox and Charlie Jeffs, and Bill Brennan, president of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association.

Blocking the way temporarily to Toronto's ambition to become a major league club, Mr. Schaffer said, are a suitable stadium, parking facilities and an odd additional problem.

"However," he said, "it will eventually come. The outlook is most encouraging."

He was surprised, he said, to note the lack of development of boys' baseball teams in many communities in Ontario. His club, the Maple Leafs, are making it a point to help develop Canadian youth, in fact, it is taking five Canadian youngsters to spring training camp next spring. He said he felt there was good talent in Ontario and the club would do its best to develop it.

"We are going to encourage and help these boys all we can next year," Mr. Schaffer told the clubmen.

He regaled his audience with many humorous stories of life in the major baseball during his 30 years' participation. He has been associated with Milwaukee, Cleveland and other clubs and he recalled many interesting things during his regime with these teams.

He extended an invitation to the Y's Men and the baseball team to be the guests of the Maple Leaf management at some of their home games next summer. "We have a good ball club and have just received a better lined up for next year than we had last season. We have one of the greatest owners in baseball, Mr. Jack Cooke, who is doing his best possible in providing a fine calibre of baseball for Toronto and Ontario."

He paid personal tribute to the young ballplayers on their fine showing last season and pointed out the terrific difference a single game makes on the championship trail. "Take the Dodgers," he said. "They won the National League pennant after playing 154 games, went on to tie the Yan-

TORONTO. (CP) — Service clubs were criticized Friday by Mayor Nathan Phillips of York City youth leader, for being the "greatest offenders" in the "false philosophy" of urging boys and girls to become champion athletes.

"Too many people think we are trying to make our youngsters champion athletes or dramatic actors," he told a youth training course. "One of the worst things that can happen to a youth is to give him athlete's foot — far worse than athlete's foot."

Basic values of playing sports must be stressed, said Mr. Solomon.

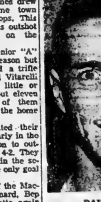
McFarlands Consolidate Second Place With 7-3 Win Over Kingston

Don Barclay Substitutes For Injured Foe Goalie Turns in Fine Performance

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

A hometown goalie turned foeman, who gave his best, failed to hold the offensive onslaughts of the Belleville McFarlands here last night and the Bep Guidolin crew went on to defeat the Kingston CKLC's 7-3 before nearly 1800 fans.

The victory consolidated the Belleville team's second place spot in the Eastern Ontario Senior "A" League standing. The clubs clash again in Kingston tonight.



Don "Turk" Barclay, the Macs' second-string goalie, was called into action for the Kingston club when Bert Brooks, the CKLC regular, was injured by a blasting slapshot from the stick of Lloyd Denoli early in the first period. The game was delayed some 20 minutes before play was resumed. It was apparent the Kingston club brought no spare goalie.

The Kingston defeat could not be laid at Barclay's door. The Macs rub-goalie played an outstanding game and at times drew the applause of the home town fans for several stops. This despite the fact the Macs outshot the Kingstonians 35-25 on the night's play.

It was not the best senior "A" game played here this season but at times it was fast and a trifle furious with referee Ned Vitarelli of Peterborough having little trouble. He handed out eleven time penalties most of them costly with six going to the home town club.

The McFarlands spotted their ancient foemen a goal early in the first period when Denoli put the score the Douglas crew 4-2. They held a 2-1 scoring edge in the second heat and scored the only goal of the third chapter.

The top-scoring line of the Macs-Farlands of Minnie Menard, Bep Guidolin and Paul Payette again copped the points headline, with Payette and Menard scoring twice and Guidolin drawing three assists. Payette drew two helpers and Menard one.

DAVY JONES
Good for One

Londry got the gate early in the second period and again the Macs took advantage of the extra manpower with Keith MacDonald driving the puck home from Murechich and Jones.

Floyd Crawford got the heave-ho and the CKLC's drove hard to the attack with Bellringer tipping home Moore's pass. Bob Hilronen to whittle the count to 3-3. Minnie Menard spearheading the Macs first line got that one back on a neat three-way effort with Payette and Guidolin.

Payette scored the only goal of the third period tipping Macdonald's pass with the clock ticking off the seconds to make the count 7-3.

Minnie Menard was named the player of the week with Barclay getting the player of the night award.

The line-up:

Kingston — Goal, Brooks; defence, Hilronen, Londry, Toppazini, Thomason; forwards, Moore, Murray, Senior, Macey, Chiarelli, Bellringer, Larose, Therrien, Howarth, Levandoski, Richardson, Barclay.

Belleville — Goal, Bell; defence, Read, Crawford, Desmonde, Bolley; forwards, Payette, M. Menard, Guidolin, Murechich, Jones, MacDonald, Gilbert, W. Menard, D. Jones.

Referee—Ned Vitarelli, Peterborough.

Linesmen—"Red" Carson, Bill Hurst, Belleville.

Barons Ride Seven-Game Winning Streak

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons, riding a streak of seven games without a loss, are in first place in the American Hockey League today and one of the big reasons is their potent forward line of Bo Elik, Fred Glover and Jimmy Moore.

Members of the line—comprising a Cleveland veteran and recruits from Quebec and Northern Ontario — were responsible for three goals Friday night as the Barons defeated the Buffalo Bisons 4-2 in Cleveland.

In the Cleveland game, Glover, 28-year-old Toronto - born right winger, scored two goals in the 14th and 52nd minutes and another. Moore, Montreal-born centre, scored one and Elik, 28-year-old rookie from North Bay Trappers who leads the league in scoring with 31 points, had two assists.

Europeans Sweep Canoeing Events At Olympic Games

BALLARAT, Australia (CP)—Europe showed its dominance in the traditional Canadian sports of canoeing with sweeping victories in the Olympic competition which ended today on Lake Wendouree here.

The Canadians were badly outclassed, with a seventh placing Friday for Don Sinnar of Sudbury as their best showing. In today's 1,000-metre races they were eliminated at the outset in both the kayak singles and pairs and the canoe singles for monohulls and in the two Canadian-class races.

Gert Fredriksson, a 32-year-old Swedish paddler, won the 1,000-metre kayak singles for the third straight time and Russia took one gold medal today and scored heavily in the canoe races. Romania took two events today and Germany the other.

WON' HIS FIFTH

Fredriksson's fifth Olympic gold medal for the Swedish veteran who won the 10,000-metre kayak race Friday. He won gold for the 1,000 and 10,000 singles at London in 1948 and the 1,000 at Helsinki in 1952.

The Toronto pair of Bill Dahl and Ron Turcotte somehow were the only Canadians to win a qualifying spot in the canoe pairs. The Montreal-Montreal was in the final of the Canadian singles which had 36 pairs preliminary and Smith failed to qualify in the first heat.

Collins and Olderhaw, who placed fourth in their qualifying heat, were the only disqualifications of the Danish entry which ran out of its lane.

They virtually well behind the winning Romanian team of Alexandru Ismailciuc and Simion Ismailciuc who beat out the favored Russian team of Pavel Kharine and Grachikov Nikolai. Kharine and Nikolai were the 10,000-metre Canadian pairs Friday.

AWARDED SEVENTH

The Romanians' 1,000 - metre time was four minutes, 47.4 seconds. The Canadians were timed in 5:11.6 and were awarded seventh place.

Bezzy was eighth in the Canadian singles with only the American entry behind him, as Romania's Leon Rottman repeated his Friday victory in 5:05.2 metres. Rottman won in 5:05.3 more than half a minute behind with a time of 5:05.8.

The kayak pairs went to the German team of Michel Scheurer and Meinrad Millenberger, who won that event in 3:48.6. The women's event, on the day, the 500-metre kayak singles in which Romania did not compete, was won by Russia's Elisavenia Demeneva in 2:18.3.

Cleaning Guns, Storing Ammunition

This is the time of year when gunners, having served their purpose during the past hunting season, should be cleaned, unstuptured, and put away. Remington Arms Company has some suggestions for this annual job. Being makers of guns, they know wherefof they speak.

First off, unless the gun must be dismantled to do so, always clean a gun barrel from the breech end. If you must push the cleaning rod, be sure to use a cleaning rod of wood or soft metal such as brass. Steel cleaning rods are apt to damage the rifling or the smooth, polished inside wall of a shotgun.

With rifles, push a dry brass brush or the first cleaning patch into the barrel from breech to muzzle and completely out, before pulling the brush back from the muzzle to breech. Two strokes each way usually will do the job. Then the loose particles can be wiped out with a couple of dry patches.

Next, push cleaning patches soaked with powder solvent through the barrel the same number of times and clean. Then fill another patch with gun grease and work this back and forth short strokes until the entire bore is coated.

Next step is thoroughly, the bolt or breech block with powder solvent. Wipe dry and then wipe thoroughly with an oily rag. Last, work off excess oil with a dry rag. The remaining film will prevent any rust for a long time.

Before using the gun again, pass a couple of dry patches through the barrel to remove grease. Remember that a greased barrel is dangerous and should be stored in a cool, dry place, well away from any possibility of excess heat or moisture. Dry storage is best when coated today on Lake Wendouree here.

Shotguns can be cleaned in much the same way as rifles, but since the gun is closed in the rear, excess oil drains down into the breech mechanism, sometimes clogging it so that the gun will not fire. Too much oil is all that is needed.

Ammunition should be stored in a cool, dry place, well away from any possibility of excess heat or moisture. Dry storage is best when coated today on Lake Wendouree here.

Quite apart from the fact that the state of Maine (Ontario also) evolved an easy method for the stocking of fish in inaccessible waters, such as in the Maine wilderness, far from anything resembling civilization, they have presented difficult stocking problems. Not only are cans of heavy fish hard to carry for miles on long trips the wardens are faced with the constant problem of keeping the fish alive until the destination is reached.

So they are dumping cans of fingerling trout from an airplane flying low over the lakes. Ice investigation showed that the little fish survived the fall with almost no loss. That, indeed, was a great day for work-weary wardens.

Now, according to Maine Sunday Telegram, the Montreal Canoe Club's pair of Bob Smith and Les Mella have eliminated the 10,000-metre pairs preliminary and Smith failed to qualify in the 1,000-metre singles.

Collins and Olderhaw, who placed fourth in their qualifying heat, were the only disqualifications of the Danish entry which ran out of its lane.

They virtually well behind the winning Romanian team of Alexandru Ismailciuc and Simion Ismailciuc who beat out the favored Russian team of Pavel Kharine and Grachikov Nikolai. Kharine and Nikolai were the 10,000-metre Canadian pairs Friday.

AWARDED SEVENTH

The Romanians' 1,000 - metre time was four minutes, 47.4 seconds. The Canadians were timed in 5:11.6 and were awarded seventh place.

Bezzy was eighth in the Canadian singles with only the American entry behind him, as Romania's Leon Rottman repeated his Friday victory in 5:05.3 metres. Rottman won in 5:05.3 more than half a minute behind with a time of 5:05.8.

The kayak pairs went to the German team of Michel Scheurer and Meinrad Millenberger, who won that event in 3:48.6. The women's event, on the day, the 500-metre kayak singles in which Romania did not compete, was won by Russia's Elisavenia Demeneva in 2:18.3.

Mickey Owen Seeks Job As Leafs' Manager

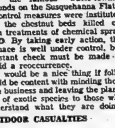
TORONTO (CP) — Mickey Owen, famous baseball catcher, is among six applicants for the manager's job with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, it was announced Friday.

General manager Rudie Schaefer said he received a letter from Owen, 40, who is managing the Mayaguez-Aguadilla club in the Puerto Rico winter league.

Owen, a coach with Boston Red Sox of the American League the last two seasons, was suspended from baseball in 1945 when he jumped to the Mexican League. He was reinstated in 1949.

He was a major league catcher for 13 seasons with Brooklyn Dodgers, St. Louis Cardinals, Chicago Cubs and the Red Sox.

Taxes May Mean Elimination Of Minor Baseball



WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress was told Friday baseball and horse-baseball may disappear from the United States unless the federal tax on admissions to professional exhibitions is repealed.

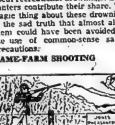
George M. Trautman of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, baseball league organization, told a house subcommittee tax relief "might be the difference between survival and liquidation."

Trautman said minor league ball is caught in a vicious circle of declining attendance, competition by what he called "free entertainment offered by television" and inability to raise admission prices without losing even more fans.

One hundred of the 123 minor league clubs that answered a questionnaire from Trautman's association, Trautman said. The total of $7,022,391, he said, compared with a profit of only $2,962,647 for the teams that did operate in the black. The average admission tax paid was $5,962, he said, and if the net loss were spread among the operating clubs, the average would be $12,759.

Trautman said the subcommittee minor league paid attendance dropped from 41,872,102 in 1949 to 17,031,002 last year. In the same period the number of minor league clubs dropped from 59 to 28 and the number of clubs from 448 to 213.

OUTDOOR CASUALTIES



Repeated and persistent hammering away at the public about the dangers of inept gun handling has had its effect in reducing hunting accidents that seem to be inevitable each season. While we still have our share of hunting casualties, and always will have, the percentages actually are being reduced.

But what about drownings? Not too much has been said or written about water safety. To be sure, the Outdoor Boating Club of America has been conducting an intensive campaign, instructing the public in water safety. Yet drownings persist.

Natural figures are not available on totals of deaths by drowning. They should be. Now comes word from Tennessee, reporting a total of 152 drownings in that state last year, for outnumbering the hunting casualties.

Never does a summer holiday pass that we do not see these dismal reports in the newspapers of accidental drownings. Duck hunters contribute their share. The tragic thing about these drownings is that in the vast majority all of them could have been avoided by the use of common-sense safety precautions.

GAME-FARM SHOOTING

Hunting pressure being what it has had been for these many years, long ago I gave up competing with the frenzied throng of shotgun fans who invade the woods and fields of the nation each year in search of rabbits and ever-popular ringneck rooster. When I happened to shoot anything, a few ringneck for the table, the game farm or, in more refined areas, the "controlled shooting ground" takes care of the situation nicely, thanks.

In the first place, game-farm shooting is fun. Modern game farms are laid out with walking for miles through unproductive cover in order to afford the bird a chance. There are plenty of birds. The dog is busy constantly as you can be about and find that gets up, rooster or hen.

In addition, at a game farm you have definite territory assigned to you and you alone. There is little danger of being shot at by other gunners, something that cannot be said for open-country shooting, and the whole combination makes for a pleasant day afield. At the end of the day you pay for the birds you have shot and that is that.

Some folks take a dim view of game-farm shooting because of the cost of the birds. Well, if fish and game, on a cost-per-pound basis, were figured in dollars per pound as compared with market prices, the fish and game would be "overpriced" and have been retired for good long ago.

Most of us go hunting for the sport we find in the pastime. The size of the bag is incidental. Game farm prices are reasonable and the game departments provide a good every day's sport. For my money, they are great institutions, infinitely superior to the "shoot 'em up" concept country. If you haven't shot at a game farm, try it sometime and see if you don't think it's a good investment.

TAKE DOUBLES TITLE

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Australians Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall won the men's doubles final in the South Australian tennis championships Friday by defeating Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and Sam Giammalva of Houston, Tex., 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Wings Have Chance Tonight To Pull Even With Bruins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins' stay in the beauty atmosphere at the top of the National Hockey League may be short-lived as Detroit Red Wings begin tonight to make up the three games they have in hand, but it will be no less sweet, or puzzling, for all that.

Wings have a chance to tie Bruins as they play the fifth-place Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto tonight while Chicago Black Hawks meet Canadiens in Montreal. Sunday Chicago is at Boston, Toronto at New York against the Rangers and Montreal Detroit.

Before the season began, Bruins, who finished fifth last year, were called to finish anywhere from fourth to last. But they began to win games in bunches and a 13-out-of-14 stretch left them in first place, two points ahead of Wings.

The general feeling is that the collection of castoffs and has-beens are playing well over their heads, but how long they are managed to do so for so long is a mystery.

Perhaps the answer is coach Milt Schmidt, who seems somehow to have got the most out of formerly mediocre collection some knowledge—and just as important, the desire — that made him one of the NHL' greatest centres during his long career with Bruins.

Schmidt's genius is exemplified in Doug Mohns, Bruins' leading point-getter and tied for sixth in the league with 30 points.

Mohns, a 22-year-old defenceman, had three seasons on the wing for Boston. He never did better than 32 points and last year in 64 games scored only as many points as he has this season in 22 contests.

Schmidt moved Mohns back to defence to see whether his blazing shot would work to better advantage there, and it has. Of his 18 points, 13 are assists, as the forwards have been plunking home the rebounds.

Bruins' big « line performers, Real Cherrelle, Don McKenney and Leo Labine have 24, 18 and eight points respectively and a third of the Bruins' 60-goal production. Other 1st factors are Vic Stasiuk and Zellio Toppazzini with 17 and the latter is a rookie in their first season with Boston.

Netminder Terry Sawchuk may be at the heart of Bruins' success. The former Detroit great has allowed but 56 goals in 22 games, or perhaps it is veterans Johnny Peirson and Ed Gardner's seasons between them.

Whatever the reason for Bruins' eminence, rival coaches would do well to learn it.

Ontario Senior A Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds appear to be falling into an unhealthy habit. They are not only losing games in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, they are being swamped.

Friday night Hounds increased their second 7-1 shellacking in as many nights. In two games on the count were second-place Sudbury Wolves.

The Eastern Division of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, Windsor Bulldogs stayed in the lead by downing fourth-place Chatham Maroons 4-0 while runner-up Stratford Indians set down Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen 3-2 in overtime.

In the Eastern Division, Belleville McFarlands moved into Kingston CKLC's 7-3 and took over sole occupancy of second place. In another game, Peterborough Petes Kings managed a 4-3 win over Cornwall Cornets and tied Kingston for third place.

GET TWO EACH

At Chatham, Bobby Brown, Joe Klukay, Gord Haldy and Johnny Sleaver found the mark for Bulldogs while Jim Morrison of Port Head was slamming the door on Maroons to hold his second shutout of the season.

At Stratford, Indians made up for a two goals in overtime to lock up the win. Billy Flick fired two for the locals, the second going to Mickey Roth, who shot the winner in overtime. Dingy Flanagan, Bobby Mader, Bobby Mader, Ken Laufman, Don Rope and George Scholes scored for Dutchmen.

Paul Payette and Minnie Menard each shot two goals for Belleville, with Lucien Gilbert, Denver Jones and Davy Jones each netting one. Hank Therrien, Ted Toppazini and Don Bellringer paced Kingston lumbermen.

At Pembroke, Lumber Kings connected for the winning goal only one minute and two seconds into the first heat of overtime. Jim Maxwell scoring. Jack Giesbrecht and Stan Simonds fired the other Pembroke goals. Moe and Real Savard and Ron Murphy were the Cornwall marksmen.

Frank Robinson, Luis Aparicio Baseball Rookies of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson, power-hitting outfielder of the Cincinnati Redlegs, and Luis Aparicio, slick fielding Chicago White Sox shortstop, today were named major league rookies of the year for 1956.

The choice was a unanimous selection for National League honors. He received all 24 votes in the balloting by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Aparicio got 22 votes in winning the American League award. Tito Francona of Baltimore and Ricky Colavito of Cleveland, both outfielders, each got one vote.

The 20-year-old Robinson batted .290 last season while driving in 83 runs. He also equalled the major league record for first year players by hitting 38 homers, a mark set by Wally Berger of Boston Braves in 1930.

Aparicio, a native of Maracaibo, Venezuela, batted .257 last season. His over-all performance exceeded the most optimistic hopes of White Sox fans who last fall traded star shortstop Chico Carrasquel to Cleveland. Carrasquel batted only .243 for the Indians.

Robinson's selection ended a two-year National League reign of St. Louis Cards' players. Wally Moon won in 1954 and Bill Virdon in 1955. Both outfielders of Herb Score copped the American League award last year.

Aussie Girl Triple Winner In Olympic Track, Field Epics

MELBOURNE (CP)—The 1956 Olympic Games passed the half-way mark today in another great blaze of track and field records that finally died out because there was nothing more for the flames to feed on.

The world's best athletes who run and jump and throw swept aside three world records—Olympic records among them—and established a fourth Olympic record.

World records were broken by Australian girls in the 400-metre relay, by the United States team in the men's 400-metre relay, and by a 23-year-old Atlanta, Ga., girl in the women's high jump.

The glamorous marathon was won by a tireless Algerian by France—Alain Mimoun—and the brilliant 1,500-metre race ended as the metric mile was won by a Dublin Irishman, Ron Delany.

LANDY IS THIRD

Delany won in Olympic - record time, and the little balding Australian miler—John Landy of Australia—had to take third place in a photo finish that showed Klaus Richtzenhain of Germany second.

The United States captured its third old medal in the final big show in Olympic Stadium when its 1,600-metre team sped to victory in triple gold winner in the men's relay.

It was in this hair-raising spectacle by crack quarter-milers that Canada picked up two points with a fifth place.

In all, Canada scored only four points in the unofficial standing at the week-long track and field show. Ken Money of Fernie, B.C., scored a fifth in the high jump on the opening day of competition.

The four points were one more than Canada achieved in 1952 at Helsinki, when the 1,600 relay team placed fourth good for three points—and worked a complete blackout.

The Canadian record of both 1952 and 1956 compares miserably with the 14 points scored at London in 1948. Although the highest placing at London was a third—in the women's 400-metre relay.

Betty Cuthbert, Australia's golden girl, became a triple gold medal winner by anchoring the winning Australian team today. She previously had won both the 100- and 200-metre sprints.

Australia's winning time of 44.5 seconds tied the world record of 44.5 held by Russia. In the flashing finish Great Britain placed second and the United States third, both in times that beat the former record.

Bobby Morrow, the United States' ace sprinter from San Benito, Texas, also became a triple gold winner in the men's 400-metre relay. The U.S. sprinters swept in ahead of Russia and Germany in 39.5 seconds, breaking the old world mark of 39.8 that had stood since 1936.

Mildred McDaniel, tall willowy college girl from Atlanta, outclassed her field in the women's high jump. With the Olympic title safely in her grasp, she went for a world mark and made it.

She won the Olympic title with a jump of five feet, 6¾ inches—for an Olympic record. None of the other competitors got past five feet, 5¾ inches. Then the Atlanta girl went on. She cleared five feet, seven inches, for her new mark of 5-9¼. While the huge crowd watched perspiringly, Miss McDaniel cleared the bar on her second attempt.

That leap broke the world mark of five feet, 8¾ inches held by Romanian Yolanda Balas, who took fourth place. Thelma Hopkins of Great Britain and Maria Piacenteva of Russia were officially declared a tie for second place.

Ron Delany, the Irishman who is a student at Villanova College in Pennsylvania, was timed for the 1,500 metres in three minutes, 41.2 seconds. That time bettered the Olympic record of 3:43.2 made by Luxembourg's Joey Barthel in 1952 and was only two-tenths of a second slower than the world mark.

At the finish of the spectacular metric mile only about seven feet separated first from last in a lineup that included four men who have run the mile under the once despaired-of four minutes.

Herb Elliott, 20, and Landy, who have been troubled by sore tendons much of this season, were second in 3:42.8. Delany's world medal was the first in track and field for Ireland since the Games of 1932.

As anticipated, the race was a duel between the best runners in speed from the start. Delany won by clutching Richtzenhain and Landy down the last bitter 100 metres after taking the lead from Britain's Brian Hewson, who was coming off the last curve.

In the terrific finish the first six runners all finished well under the Olympic record. Delany, at 21, is the youngest of the world's 10 milers who have cracked the four-minute mark.

The victory of Mimoun in the marathon had its unique aspects. France hadn't won an Olympic track and field event since 1928, but Mimoun had no particular difficulty in ending the famine.

He led all through the later stages of the long tour of 26 miles, 385 yards, and finished strongly in two hours and 25 minutes flat to the acclaim of cheering spectators.

Mimoun crossed the finish line before the second finisher—Franjo Mihalic of Yugoslavia—had entered the stadium, Mihalic finished in 2:26.32.

ZATOPEK IS SIXTH

Vikka Karnoven of Finland was second, followed by Chang Hoon Lee of Korea, Toshiaki Kawashima of Japan and, in sixth place, the great Emile Zatopek of Czecho Slovakia who scored a sensational triple at the 1952 games by winning the 5,000 and 10,000-metre runs and the marathon.

Mimoun, who is from Algeria but now lives in Paris, became a father only Friday. He told no one about it until after the race.

The great Landy, who holds the world record for the mile at 3:58, was all praise for Delany. He said the young Irishman is the greatest 1,500 - metre runner in the world and a man who could easily break the record.

Landy also said he was pleased with his own placing. He said he didn't expect to get in the first six, "but once I got so close I was disappointed in not winning the silver medal."

Landy said he spent so much time in preparing for the race it would be "a shame to waste my condition on one race," and he plans in running perhaps five more before quitting.

Ti-Cats Expect To Retain Coach Trimble

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union are expected to announce the re-signing of coach Jim Trimble within the next two weeks, it was reported tonight.

"While he has not signed yet, we expect his decision to be favorable," Gaudaur said from Philadelphia. "Jim will be in Hamilton following the all-star game in Vancouver next weekend and we should know definitely at that time."

Minor Hockey

The Canadiens rolled to another victory this morning in the peewee section of the B.M.H.A. while Black Hawks, Browns and Rangers won the other games.

Rangers had the closest fight, shading the Barons 1-0. Geoff Pinder scored the lone goal with Allen Mott assisting.

Canadiens also racked up a shutout, downing the Bruins 4-0 The goals were divided among Briant Skinner, Tony Potts, Barry Dafoe and Fred Spafford. Assists went to Jimmie Richardford and Skinner.

The Black Hawks rode to a 4-3 decision over the Maple Leafs on the three-goal hat trick of Rickard Eves. Alan Cleary had their other goal. Bruce Seams, Art Lucas and Jay Riser scored for the Leafs.

Browns shaded the Red Wings 3-2. Gordon Pollard led the winner's attack with two goals,while Doug Boyle also scored. Jackie Boyle had one assist. Dwight Rathwell and Dennis Buckley tallied for the Wings with Garth Stephanson earning a helper.

Gripping Suspense Highlights Romantic Adventure Hit, "Lisbon."

A dynamic story of international intrigue, filmed in Republic's new wide-screen Naturama and in Trucolor on actual locales in Portugal, is due at the Park Theatre Monday with the opening of "Lisbon," for its first Belleville showing, starring Ray Milland, Maureen O'Hara, Claude Rains and Yvonne Furneaux.

Marking the first feature film production to be made in Lisbon since the ancient city is to be one of the outstanding supense pictures of the year.

Tense action centres around an elderly millionaire American industrialist, who has been held incommunicado by the Reds for two years in the efforts of, not only his wife, but an international smuggling ring to do away with him and get in on his fortune.

High adventure features the struggle between Milland and Rains for domination of the smuggling racket while romance in the colorful Lisbon setting involves a triangle centering on Milland and the Misses O'Hara and Furneaux.

Lewis Allen, in addition to starring, was also associate producer and director. The screenplay was by Jonathan Latimer from a story by Martin Rackin.

The number one hit song, "Lisbon Antigua," has been incorporated into the background score with its composer, Nelson Riddle, conducting the studio orchestra.

On the same program an exciting detective story, "Track the Man Down," starring handsome Kent Taylor.

Dinah Shore Doing Nine One-Hour Shows This Year

By BOB THOMAS

She does a quarter-hour songfest every week. And she's doing nine one-hour special shows on NBC as well. These are not kinescope spectaculars, but they might as well be. They are high-powered, all-star hours that have set a high standard for TV variety shows.

"Sometimes I think I must be crazy to undertake all this work," sighed Dinah in a rare moment of relaxation.

TOUGH GRIND

"The hour show has been particularly tough for several reasons. Since we don't do them every week, each one has to be something special; the public expects it.

Does her family ever see her? "Oh, yes," she replied. "I don't have home until 9:30 in the morning, and I'm home for dinner except on the week I'm doing the hour show. We have lunch every our family life much the same."

Dinah admitted that her husband, George Montgomery, has indicated he'd like her to slow down the furious pace. Perhaps next year.

Bilts Continue Winning Romp

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's no great mystery why Guelph Biltmores are romping along in first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series. They have scored 26 goals more than any other team.

Biltmores won their 16th game, against two defeats, Friday night and extended their lead to 10 points over runner-up Toronto Marlboros by downing Marlboros 5-3.

In another game, Barrie Flyers moved from seventh to sixth place by shading the last spot, Peterborough Petes 4-3.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Monday, December 3, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Be sensibly careful in all things. Do not hurry thoughtlessly, thus making mistakes and using poor judgment. Seek day's schedule wisely, then proceed. There's no need to fear; be careful.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Not exactly an easy day, but you can improve by clever management and by keeping track of essentials. Avoid extravagance, foolish errors. Do your best and you will have happy results.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Familiar daily tasks, study and searching for useful knowledge will put you on the path to benefits. Financial matters may not be best but some gains are indicated.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Moon's position suggests that you overlook little annoyances. Look to the bigger and better things that can be helpful. Your usual routine interests can advance.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Maritime and shipping activities are slated for gain. Hold emotions in control and move cautiously, moderately to avoid mistakes. So-so influences.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — It would be opportune now to sit down and confer, study, analyze and plan before making changes, decisions. Routine work, household arts can prove satisfactory if you keep cheerful.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — As the day progresses so will favors — if you handle your tasks with patience and steady application. A good period for study, trying new materials, methods, equipment. Be astutely careful but the same.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — You are especially efficient at the very times when things aren't too propitious and when you have to work harder for objectives. Today may likely be one of those times. Show results!

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Cautios advised in finances, new transactions, investments, spending generally. Do your best but don't force ideas or opinions. You can have a reasonably good day if considerate, astute.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Handle urgent matters first and with patience. The less difficult and not too essential should then fall into line. Familiar work and activities should run smoothly.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Heed advice to Sagittarius now; Best results should be achieved in familiar matters and where defiiness, steady application are employed. Don't undertake more than you can handle; don't strain. Your best!

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Your Neptune is the only planet in really auspicious aspect this tricky day. Be eager to get on with your schedule but also careful not to fall into any of the day's pitfalls: carelessness, etc.

You born today are ambitious, self-reliant, persevering, outspoken, kindly, not given to pettiness or gossip. Blessed with diversified talents and ability, it is up to you to develop, rightly use these fine as...ets every day. You can make a name for yourself and earn happiness and comfort for loved ones. Once set on objectives, you will, if true to your better self, strive until you have obtained them. You can work in many fields: in trade, industry, art, science, research, all with excellent results. Ask God's guidance; keep improving constantly. Birthdate: Gilbert Stuart, painter; Sir Rowland Hill, author of the penny postal system.

STIRLING

St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid Tea, Bazaar Most Successful Event

STIRLING — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Ladies' Aid sponsored a successful bazaar and tea in the church parlors on Thursday afternoon.

The room was decorated in Yuletide colors with electric candelabra in the windows and rows of blinking Christmas lights in many strategic points. A lovely decorated Christmas tree occupied the platform, while a similar tree held guard over the tea room. Both held dozens of round, colorful globes that scintillated in the sunshine. Baskets of evergreens and cut flowers were used as special decorations. Christmas wreaths hung in the windows and added a cheery welcome.

The many guests were received by Mrs. W. H. V. Walker, Mrs. Louis Rodgers and Mrs. Duncan Montgomery, as they entered the church parlors.

Miss Gwen Spry was the financial treasurer and Santa and his reindeer enhanced the table where she sat.

Mrs. Vernon Mathews contributed a Christmas carol and other appropriate music during the afternoon. The piano was decorated with a vase of cut flowers.

PRETTY TEA TABLE

The tea table was covered with white linen cloth and centred with a silver bowl of red and white carnations. These were interlaced with tall silver candelabra with red and white lighted tapers. The silver tea service graced each end and here tea was poured by Mrs. A. Bannerman, Mrs. W. G. Fletcher, Mrs. Lawrence Munroe and Mrs. H. C. Secker.

Those who served were: Mrs. James Johnston, Mrs. Robert Cooke, Mrs. Don McIntosh, Mrs. Ed Bateman and Miss Martha Wright.

The tea room was convened by Mrs. Don Rodgers, while Mrs. Earl Fox invited the guests to this cosy setting.

The kitchen conveners were: Mrs. Gordon McIntosh and Mrs. A. Greenley with Mrs. Ernest Cain replenishing the plates.

The tea room was surrounded with a white fence accented with Christmas tree lights along the top, making an ideal arrangement for the quartet tables.

The pastor, the Rev. W. H. V. Walker, was also in attendance to add a gracious welcome to all the guests.

A long table was nicely decorated and the visitors were kept busy with customers.

The grocery store displayed garden produce, pickles, jellies, and a miscellaneous assortment of saleable articles. The conveners were: Mrs. James Campbell and Mrs. Harold Fargey.

The touch-and-take table was in charge of Mrs. John Keuning. Here were parcels of all sizes and shapes ready for the buyers.

The home baking was conveyed by Mrs. Lloyd Dafoe with Mrs. Blanche Reid and Mrs. Harold McGee as assistants. There were fresh baked buns and rolls, angel cake, iced layer cakes, pies, marmore, iced cup cakes, rolled and dropped cookies and a nice assortment of home cooked foods.

MANY APRONS

The apron and fancy work booth was convened by Mrs. Norman Ray with Mrs. Roy Eggleston and Mrs. George Sarles as assistants. The aprons were artistically displayed along the wall. The table was covered with children's knitted mitts, fancy pot-holders, embroidered pillow cases, towels and crocheted articles.

Outside the tea room numerous chairs were placed for those who wished to spend the afternoon in this cheery atmosphere and have a visit. It was a friendly tea and the guests from other church homes were given a gracious welcome.

The afternoon was a success financially and the St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid express grateful thanks to all who assisted in any way in this Yuletide event.

Danish Members Of UN Force In Buffer Zone

PORT SAID, Egypt (Reuters)—Danish members of the United Nations Emergency Force moved into a Suez buffer zone Fri. afternoon, after they had been temporarily by Egyptian troops who refused to let them cross the front lines.

A United Nations observer at the frontline said the Danes had begun moving into the no man's land between British and Egyptian forces along the Suez Canal.

Brig. Amin Helmy, Egyptian liaison officer at Abu Suweir air base, told reporters earlier that the Egyptians actually had facilitated the Danish movement to the cease-fire line.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — The whole community was moved to tears on Monday morning. Several people could not get to work and many school children did not venture out. Both district schools were open though with small attendance. There was no mail delivery.

The teacher of Union School, Mrs. Cara Reid and her pupils will hold their annual Christmas concert on Thursday evening, December 13th.

The S.S. Line School and teacher, Ron Leonard, will hold their Christmas concert on Wednesday evening, December 19th.

The girls' club, "Tidy Tillies," held its regular meeting on Friday evening at the home of their leader, Mrs. Don Chatman. The secretary's report was read by Carolyn Wright. The home assignment is to work on Record Books and Practise Patching. The next meeting will be held at the same home.

Those from here who attended the Sheard—Spencer wedding from Petherick's Corners and Campbellford on Saturday were: Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, Patsy and Sherry, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Jones.

Mrs. Bill McKee, matron of honor, performed her duties at the wedding under difficulties as she had suffered a compound fracture of the right arm in an unfortunate accident on Friday.

Mrs. Geordie Sutherland, of Stirling, spent Saturday with her mother, Mrs. Lizzie Thomson.

Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, Mrs. F. Milliman, Mrs. Arnet Irwin and Mrs. Jim Gray of Rylstone Institute, attended the short course sponsored by Seymour West Women's Institute at Menie, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Melklejohn and children visited her brother, Mrs. Scott, in Marmora, Sunday afternoon.

BLOCK FREEDOM

VIENNA (AP)—Frontier police said Thursday night Russian troops are mining the Hungarian-Austrian border with the apparent aim of stopping refugees from crossing into Austria. Laying of mines about a mile inside Hungary across from the Austrian border town of Lutzmannsburg has been confirmed, police said, and added they assumed mine-laying was being done at other crossing points.

Rossmore

ROSSMORE. — Nothing could be more fitting than to start the news as a tribute to the late Mrs. Helen B. Anderson, whose prose and poems have been enjoyed by many throughout the past years. This correspondent has never missed them and clipped most of them. Those that had been written in the sunset of her life, have been an inspiration to many.

As a school teacher she always found time to use her talent and her writings found their way into the hearts of many and Rossmore community extends sympathy to those left to mourn.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Osterhout of this village, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Osterhout of Burr's, motored to Weston, recently, and attended the funeral of their cousin, Mrs. Bill McKibbon.

Rest and Sun Agree With Eden

Sir Anthony's only visitor since his arrival Saturday, Gov. Sir Hugh Foot, said the prime minister's health is responding to rest and he already is getting a suntan.

The prime minister came here for a three-week rest ordered by his doctors because of overstrain.

In London, a government spokesman denied rumors that Eden may fly home early because of growing concern over Syria.

The Daily Sketch had reported rumors among members of Parliament that the prime minister was planning to cut short his Jamaican convalescence.

Pickersgill Visits Border Of Hungary

VIENNA—(CP) — Immigration Minister J. W. Pickersgill of Canada here to oversee arrangements for transporting Hungarian refugees to Canada, Sunday made a brief visit to the heavily guarded Hungarian border.

Russian and Hungarian soldiers watched with interest as the Canadian Embassy car flying the Red Ensign drove up to the barriers.

The guards stood well back at first and then a group of rifle-toting Hungarians moved up to chat in a friendly way with guards accompanying the Canadian minister.

Pickersgill and his party spent about 10 minutes at the border near Klingenbach, almost due south of here. Also at the border as he arrived were a group of Hungarian citizens who were headed back after delivering food parcels from friends on the Austrian side of the border.

GIVE SENDOFF

Earlier Pickersgill was on hand to give a sendoff to 61 young Hungarians who left by air for Montreal. The people of Canada, he told them, "are waiting to make you feel welcome."

In each of the refugee camps he visited, scores of Hungarians pressed around the Canadian party asking what were the chances of getting to Canada. And, in every camp there was moving evidence of the harrowing experiences refugees had gone through during the revolt.

At Wollersdorf, where the British Red Cross Camp is doing an excellent job, a woman sobbed bitterly in the arms of her husband. One of the some 3,000 who had crossed the border into Austria the night before had brought her word that her father was shot and killed in Budapest.

One of the most heart-rending sights was a sad-faced boy of nine at Eisenstadt Camp who crossed the border early Sunday. With his father, the child had walked over 30 miles from Budapest to the border.

DAD WENT BACK

"Father told me to walk straight ahead," he said blinking back tears. "He went back to see my mother and they stayed in Hungary."

Carefully he opened a canvas bag tied around his neck and pulled out a slip of paper on which was printed the name of his grandmother in Sydney, Australia. Camp officials said they hope to get the boy off to Australia within a week, but they did not give the names of the youngster or his grandmother for fear of reprisals on his parents.

Accompanying Pickersgill on the tour was Scot MacDonald, Canadian ambassador to Austria, Gordon Cox, first secretary at the embassy, and D. H. Fry, attache in charge of the visa section.

Today Pickersgill was to meet Interior Minister Oscar Hermer and other Austrian officials and officials of the inter-governmental committee for European migration, the group which will handle arrangements for the transportation of more refugees to Canada.

Later Pickersgill leaves by train for Bonn to discuss refugee problems with West German officials. He also is to visit The Hague, Brussels and Paris.

Today's Chuckle

The yokel, on his first visit to the city walked out of his hotel and approached a cab parked at the curb.

"Taxi?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," the driver replied brightly.

"I thought so," mumbled the yokel, as he walked back into the hotel.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Snow fell over Eastern and Northern Ontario this morning with temperatures ranging from 15 to 24, while the Lakehead region it was mainly cloudy with temperatures in the mid-30s. The edge of a warmer air, which is over southwestern Ontario, can be indicated by a line running from Toronto to Sault Ste. Marie and Port William, thence to Duluth and Montana. To the northwest of the line from Fort William to Montana the air is much colder, with temperatures below zero in many localities. The leading edge of this colder air should push south of the province before Tuesday morning.

Only four of the 10 occupants crammed into the late model sedan escaped death as the diesel-hauled CPR freight slammed into the car which from one side shows but little damage. All 10 persons were thrown from the car with six dying instantly. Stretcher bearers are shown carrying away one of the injured, while another, Mr. Don Robertson, believed driver of the car, is seen covered with a coat in the lower right foreground.

EIGHT LOGGERS FEARED DROWNED IN ICY B.C. LAKE

Believe Boat Capsized In Middle of Lake

CRESTON, B.C. (CP) — Little hope is held for any of eight loggers flung into icy Kootenay Lake when their small boat capsized Friday night.

The bodies of two were found during the weekend. A search for the other six was resumed today.

Dead are Cecil Stoughton, father of eight children, and Hugh Eldred, owner of a logging firm which employed the other men.

All were dressed in heavy logging clothing.

Hopes for the men were considered slim by RCMP in view of the coldness of the water and the fact that the boat apparently overturned approximately in mid-lake. Water temperature in the lake averaged 40 degrees and the atmospheric temperature dropped to 22 Friday night.

The accident occurred while the men were crossing a five-mile expanse of the lake from Tye on the west shore to Twin Bays on the east, about 15 miles northwest of this community which lies a few miles from the U.S. border.

Their 18-foot boat, driven by a 25-horsepower outboard motor, was found floating upside down in the middle of the lake Sunday. Six lifebelts were lashed inside.

RCMP believe it struck a submerged log in the darkness. A "spongy bruise" rearred the right side of the boat and planks at the stern were sprung open.

More than 200 men, 40 boats and two aircraft took part in the search Sunday.

Britain, France to Withdraw Their Forces Without Delay

LONDON (CP) — Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said today Britain and France have decided they now can withdraw their forces from Egypt "without delay."

Lloyd told a tense session of the House of Commons that the two governments "have instructed the allied commander in chief, Gen. Sir Charles Keightley, to seek agreement with the United Nations commander, Gen. E. L. M. Burns, on a timetable for the complete withdrawal, taking account of the military and practical problems involved."

He said:

"The French and British governments have come to the conclusion that withdrawal of their forces in the Port Said area can now be carried out without delay."

Lloyd said amid Opposition jeers:

"Given good faith by all sides it (the withdrawal) can be carried out in a short time."

Lloyd said UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold will promote negotiations as quickly as possible on three matters:

1. The six requirements set out in the UN Security Council resolution of Oct. 13 which would keep the Suez Canal out of national and international politics.

Hungary to Let Hammarskjold Visit Country at Later Date

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The Hungarian government today accepted the offer of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to visit Budapest but specified that the visit should be "at a later date appropriate for both parties."

At the same time, the puppet Communist regime again rejected the demands of the General Assembly for the entry of UN observers into Hungary to investigate the situation there.

The position of the government was set forth in a telegram from acting Foreign Minister Istvan Szebes to Hammarskjold.

The Hungarian message was circulated to delegates as the 79-nation assembly met to consider a resolution, sponsored by the United States and 11 other countries, providing once more for the entry of UN observers. The resolution noted with deep concern the failure of the Soviet Union to withdraw its troops from Hungary and to cease deporting Hungarian citizens.

The new proposal asked the government of Hungary and the Soviet Union to communicate with Hammarskjold by Dec. 7 their consent to receive UN observers.

In the communication to the secretary-general Szebes said "the Hungarian government is, as before, at the disposal for the permission for United Nations observers to enter the territory of Hungary would violate the sovereignty of Hungary and would be in contradiction with the principles of the United Nations Charter."

Szebes reiterated to Hammarskjold's offer to go to Budapest personally to look the situation over on the spot and for UN relief machinery, the acting foreign minister said:

"In order to make it possible for Your Excellency to conduct direct negotiations with the Hungarian government, the revolutionary workers and peasants government of the Hungarian people's republic is ready to welcome your excellency in Budapest at a later date appropriate for both parties."

FREEDOM BANDS STRIKE NIGHTLY AT RUSSIAN UNITS

Guerrillas Stage Raids From Forest Hideouts

VIENNA (AP) — Bands of Hungarian freedom fighters, well armed and striking by night, are reported still inflicting heavy casualties on Soviet forces in southern Hungary.

From their forest hideouts the guerrillas, particularly in the Mecsek Mountains and around Lake Balaton, are said do be attacking the Russian units nightly. The Russians are reported to have assigned one of their most energetic commanders to the region to track down the holdout insurgents.

BLACKOUT ON ACTION

A news blackout has screened the Russian sweep against the partisan bands. Telephone connections between Budapest and Pecs were unaccountably broken today, and one report said the fighting had seized the line for their own use.

In snow-flecked Budapest thousands of Hungarians plodded wearily through the cemeteries trying to identify their dead among the unclaimed bodies from the Soviet-crushed revolt. Hundreds of black wooden coffins, their lids open for identification purposes, were scattered about the graveyards.

Budapest Radio, controlled by Premier Janos Kadar's Soviet-supported government, has acknowledged that "almost 200,000 Hungarians have left the country for Austria." The radio tried to paint a grim picture of the refugees in Austria, deploring them as living in pitiable conditions in concentration camps surrounded by barbed wire.

4 Others Critically Injured When Freight Train Plows Into Car At Shannonville

Victims Were From Tyendinaga Reserve, Deseronto and Kingston

In what was described by police as the worst car-train crash in the Belleville area in many years, six residents of the Tyendinaga Mohawk Indian Reservation died horribly and four others were critically injured early Sunday afternoon as a speeding CPR freight train plowed into their crowded car on a concession road north of Shannonville.

Killed instantly in the crash which sent bodies flying through the air were Harry Hill, 60, farmer and fisherman from the Reserve near Deseronto; his wife, Geraldine, 52; their daughters, Marian, 12, and Audrey, 8; Archie Maracle, 44, Deseronto carpenter, and his son, Robert, age 7.

Injured were Mrs. Thelma Robertson, 28, of Kingston, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hill; her husband, Donald, and their two children, Ted, 5, and Rita, 7.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

All of the injured were taken to Belleville General Hospital by Pinkston's Ambulance with Mrs. Robertson and her son later being rushed to Toronto for emergency brain operations.

All ambulances in the city were called but two were already out on calls and only Pinkston's arrived to take the injured to hospital. A taxi night Bus's Ambulance took two of the injured on to Toronto.

The dead were taken to White's Funeral Parlor in Deseronto, where complete identities were not definitely established until almost six o'clock.

The accident occurred about two o'clock on the first concession of Tyendinaga Township north of Shannonville and a short distance east of the Shannonville Gravel.

Both the diesel, drawn freight and the death car were westbound.

The concession road cuts across the railway track at an acute angle and the view of the track is partially obscured by a line of trees on the north side of the line. The road was snow covered and icy. There is no sign at the track.

NO WITNESSES

With the exception of the train crew apparently no one saw the crash, two farmers living near by the crossing stating they heard both.

Gary Sine, 21, and Walter Biles, 33, of Shannonville, both working in the area away when they heard a sound which they described like an exploding bomb and raced along the track to find the wrecked car and bodies strewn in the snow.

Two other Shannonville men, Kenneth Holland and Percy Vivian were northbound on the Shannonville gravel when they saw the train they were stopped by the train crew and told of the accident. They notified police.

Train crewmen, area farmers and passersby arriving at the scene offered protection in the raw December weather, did what they could to keep the injured comfortable and covered them and the dead with overcoats and blankets.

Engineer on the train was Roy M. Hilton, Toronto, M. J. Hilton, and brakeman Robert McCrum, all of Smiths Falls, Ont.

THROWN FROM CAR

Bodies of the dead and injured were found scattered along the railway right-of-way, in the case of Harry Hill a fence for a radius of 150 feet. The right side of the car in which they were riding was crushed as were thrown clear. One woman was decapitated, while the body of one of the men was found in a culvert opening beneath the track.

The car was owned by Mr. Robertson and it is believed he was driving at the time of the accident.

Ronald Hill, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hill and brother of the dead girls, who remained at home said he had a premonition that something was going to happen.

"I had an idea something like this would happen," he said.

Diana, 15, a sister of Ronald's, missed being a passenger in the death vehicle only by a stroke of luck. The girl's parents were looking for her to take her along but she happened to be visiting a friend and could not be found.

Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto, attended the injured at the scene while Dr. John Sinck, and Crown Attorney John A. Principe of Belleville, also went to the scene.

MANY FATAL ACCIDENTS

The accident brought to at least 18 the number of persons killed in crossing accidents in the municipal Belleville area within the past 13 months.

The spring three persons were killed at Sidney crossing on the second concession of Sidney township, two were killed in early July on the CPR-Foster Ave. crossing.

One man died last week north of Bonarlaw after his car was struck by an NB wire train, and last winter three were killed almost in the same area.

Two miles north of Corbyville, three Thurlow township men on their way to a hunting camp were fatally injured when their car was struck by a train.

SISTERS DIE IN CRASH

Two of the six victims of a level-crossing crash near Shannonville on Sunday are shown above. Top is Marian Hill, aged 12, and bottom her sister, Audrey, aged 8. They were the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill of the Tyendinaga Reserve, both of whom died along with their children and their car was struck by a CPR freight train north of Shannonville.

Prospector's Widow Says Viking Relics Not Deliberately Planted

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — The widow of a 59-year-old prospector who died here adopted son's story that her husband deliberately planted Norse relics on his mining claim in Northern Ontario.

Mrs. James Edward Dodd says she had never seen the Viking weapons until her husband brought them home from Beardmore, near Lake Nipigon, in the summer of 1930 and 1931.

For nearly 25 years the relics, a sword and axe head, have been accepted as probably genuine by most archaeologists, but the rumor of a hoax had always surrounded the find.

THEATRE GUILD WILL NOT SPONSOR SPECIAL PRODUCTION

Despite a reluctant decision not to sponsor a Canadian Players production here on January 9, members of the Belleville Theatre Guild hold high hopes of the company staging a performance here next year.

The decision not to sponsor the production followed a discussion in which it was decided there was not sufficient time to promote the proper ticket sales.

Mrs. Tom Patterson and Miss Laurel Crosby of the Canadian Players addressed the Guild pointing out that their first venture three years ago was an artistic success but a financial failure. They decided that local sponsorship was the most satisfactory method of insurance against playing to small audiences.

They related their experiences in arranging appearances of the company which has just completed a successful tour playing "Hamlet", and Ibsen's "Peer Gynt."

Following the address and discussions an enjoyable workshop production "Murder at Mrs. Loring's" directed by John Ryan was offered. This play was entered in the Peterborough one-act festival on December 1st. Following the award for the best production went to the Peterboro Little Theatre for "A Marriage Has Been Arranged", the adjudicator Mr. Miller of Toronto commending mention to three of the Belleville cast, Helen Sulman, Betty Sadler and Joy Wonnacott.

This, it is felt, is a distinct honor for the Belleville Guild since no other entry had that many players selected for complimentary mention.

FINE SPECIMEN OF HOUND DOG IN CITY POUND

Just about the finest specimen of a black and tan hound dog as ever wandered over wash to ner rendered into town on Saturday, judging from the evident lack of a collar and license and his fear of traffic, this handsome fellow had been doing some port season deer hunting and had lost his master or view verna at the approach of the game warden.

A local resident, who liked the way this handsome intruder stood off a combined attack by his indignant cat and dog, asked his friendly fellow in for breakfast before bringing him down to the police station where he will on time until picked up by someboby looking for a first class hunter and a good companion for the children. Interviews by appointment. His phone number in 2-3456.

CUSTOMS RETURNS SHOW INCREASE

Customs returns at the Belleville office for the month of November showed an increase of $200,352.66 over the same period last year, it was reported today by customs collector Gordon Millar.

The Trenton Camera Club members have been invited to attend.

Five of Sextet Plead Guilty, Fines $44 Each

Five of six Belleville boys arrested by city police on Hallowe'en night and charged with causing a disturbance by shouting pleaded guilty to the charge at a special court session here Saturday morning.

Found guilty on the evidence the five each were ordered to pay a fine of $23 and $19 costs, or spend 15 days in jail. They were given time to pay.

One of the convicted youths will appear in Magistrate T. V. Wills' tomorrow charged with breaking, entering and theft. He is alleged to be a member of a gang rounded up recently by city and provincial police.

The sixth boy pleaded not guilty to causing a disturbance and is being defended by Belleville lawyer Ronald Cass. His case was enlarged to December 10.

In passing sentence on the five, Magistrate Wills said they were to be an example to the near-300, who escaped police on Hallowe'en night. He said he would not stand for any more such offences, especially when public property and the safety of people are endangered. The magistrate warned the youths against being involved in any more offences.

The group was arrested by city police on Hallowe'en night on Bridge Street, near the entrance to the armouries. An estimated 300 youngsters were in a crowd milling around on the street and setting up a terrific din. City police called for the assistance of O.P.P.

Lake Township Youth Killed By Shotgun Blast

Kenneth Nicholson, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Nicholson, Lake township, 10 miles northwest of Madoc, was instantly killed Saturday afternoon when the shotgun he was carrying accidentally discharged when he slipped on a piece of ice.

The Nicholson youth, along with his uncle Clayton Thompson, also 17, was tending traplines near Dickey's Lake, when he slipped and fell. The farmer type double barrelled shotgun he was carrying discharged, as the butt struck the ground, the charge ripping through into his chest.

Provincial Constable Ronald Devey of the O.P.P. detachment here, 71 Madoc, investigated. Coroner Dr. S. R. Beatty of Madoc said there would be no inquest.

Morning Vote Lightest in Many Years

Six polling divisions had recorded no more than 50 votes at this hour. The deputy poll clerk 83 voters deposit their ballots, an increase of three over last year.

The weather was anything but conducive to morning polling, forcing out to exercise their franchises. The scene were rough-threatening snow while streets were spiippery in spots.

Candidates and their representatives were out bright and early readying for the expected heavy rush of the afternoon.

The city electorate depolited 6,083 votes last year, or approximately 53 per cent of the voting population. The record vote was established in 1954 when 6,310 votes or roughly 55 per cent of the electorate turned out to cast their ballots.

Austria Needs Help to Care For Refugees From Hungary

VIENNA (CP) — Austria needs help—lots of it—in the mammoth task of putting camps into shape for the thousands of refugees fleeing Russian domination in Hungary.

There now are 10 main refugee camps in Austria and about 30 smaller ones. Many are former army barracks unused since the Russians withdrew from Austria more than a year ago, and not in shape to shelter the army of homeless.

The fear that other lands must come to Austria's aid was stressed by Mr. Pickersgill, Canadian immigration minister who visited refugee camps during the weekend to size up the situation for his country.

"Austria and the Red Cross are doing a wonderful job in the camps," he said, "and other countries have given lots of help providing things like food and clothing.

UNDER STRAW

"But the Austrian government is under tremendous financial strain from the cost of making the camps liveable."

More than 190,000 Hungarians have crossed into Austria. They are still coming. Pickersgill said it is evident that large numbers of refugees now in the camps will have to be kept there through the winter. Facilities must be improved and "Austria can't be expected to pay the job alone."

Pickersgill said he will take up the problem with the cabinet on his return to Ottawa in about a week's time. Possibly part of the $1,500,000 Parliament voted for Hungarian aid could be used "but it was assumed when the money was voted the greater part would be used for providing food for people in Hungary."

Several times the minister reiterated his belief that Canada must concentrate ont aking refugees from Austria.

"We must concentrate our priority efforts here because this is where the pressure is greatest," he said. "But Hungarian refugees in all countries will be given priority. We'll take them from there first and from the other countries later."

FIND CANOEIST IN OCEAN

ROTTERDAM (Reuters) — The Dutch ship Hilda has reported sighting a German, Hans Lindemann, paddling a canoe in the middle of the Atlantic, her owners said here. Lindemann said he went on his way from the Palmas, the Azores, to St. Thomas in the West Indies and that he was well.

Bayanna Held Up by Ice in Bay of Quinte

First reports were that she was stuck in the ice, but the Bayanna, outward from Rochester with a load of salt, was merely slowed up this morning as she plowed her way up through two inches of ice in the Bay of Quinte. The ice was due in at 10:30 but did not arrive until noon.

Yard manager for Moira Schooner said the mild turn of the weather helped the Bayanna considerably. "If it had been colder, it would have been tougher going," he said.

The way up through two inches expected the boat "will make two more trips this fall before navigation closes."

November Little Warmer Than Month Last Year

Fifteen inches of snow and 114 inches of rain making a total precipitation of 2.64 inches, were received in the Belleville area during November, according to Hydro Electric officials.

On the whole it was not a bad month to the motorist with a mean temperature of 37. During the latter part of the month the mercury did dip down to a low of seven degrees while the high recorded was 67.

A year ago the high was a mere 45 degrees with a low of 10, and a mean temperature of 25 degrees. There was 1.14 inches of rain, 1.08 inches of snow, making a total precipitation of 1.32 inches.

Four Armed Men Rob Supermarket Of $25,000

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)—Four armed men Saturday night robbed a Toronto supermarket of $25,000 and leaving the store's manager to open a safe.

John Marmon, 34, said he and his assistant, 36-year-old Peter Dyck, were leaving the store when the bandits forced them back inside. Dyck was taken to the back of the store and Marmon was forced to open the safe.

U.S. Air Force Devises Weapons For Atom Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Air Force, apparently confident of successful building an atom-powered bomber, has started organizing a complete weapons system for the operation of what amounts to it.

The same deep secrecy which has surrounded the nuclear propulsion project for developing an atomic airplane engine also cloaks the new weapons program.

Atomic-powered bombers will impose operational requirements and make possible strategic capacity different from those for present aircraft weapons systems. Available information indicates the air force already has let contracts for development of some of the equipment needed.

The Atomic Energy Commission recently completed a big nuclear aircraft propulsion test facility, including a reactor as well as static test equipment, at its national reactor testing area in Idaho.

SEVERAL YEARS AWAY

In an obvious reference to atomic-powered aircraft, Air Secretary Thomas Quarles said during an ABC-TV interview Sunday that "we have the development of such a plane in the research and development' stage, but that it is several years away from realization."

His reply was to a question whether the air force is working on a plane which could make a flight to Russia and return without aerial refuelling.

At Least 22 Die As Safe Driving Week Opens

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Safe Driving Week opened in Canada with at least 22 persons dead as a result of accidents on the highways.

The purpose of the campaign was a grimly obvious from weekend statistics on Canada's accidental death toll—at least 22 dead, all other causes — fire, drowning and hulling mishaps—were responsible for seven deaths.

Ontario and Quebec each had seven killed in traffic accidents, a Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time until midnight Sunday showed. A car-train collision near Belleville, Ont., which killed six persons and left two others near death was the largest single highway killer.

More than 100,000 Hungarians have crossed into Austria. They are still coming. Pickersgill said it is evident that large numbers of refugees now in the camps will have to be kept there through the winter. Facilities must be improved and "Austria can't be expected to pay the job alone."

Police Blotter

Police said that juveniles had broken into the Foy and Irwin bottling plant where they broke a window pane, and smashed soft drink bottles. Police said it was a case of vandalism.

A car reported stolen from the C.N.R. yard office area but was recovered a few hours later, while another vehicle, the property of George Bailey, Corbyville, was also found in a service station on Dundas East. The vehicle was found at a service station several blocks away.

Thomas Plane, 40, of 418 MacDonald Ave. suffered a cut over the eye when his car went out of control on Bridge St. and crashed a hydro pole. Damage to his car was estimated at $350 and to the pole $125.

JAILED FOR "AB-OR"

BOLGZANO, Italy (AP) — German tourists Hans Strassner and George Klausner, annoyed when an Italian car crowded ahead of them at the Brenner Pass, let the air out of the tires. They were given 16-day sentences in a Bolgzano court for "depriving an automobile of its liberty of movement."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Senior base metals led the Stock market to a solid advance today during moderate morning trading. The upward trend was a continuation of the rally which began late Thursday and stepped up Friday.

Gains ranged to 2¼ points among senior mines with International Nickel the lead. Hudson Bay was ahead 1½ and Noranda 1¼.

The movement of the higher-priced mines influenced the junior and also spirited industrials and western oils. Junior advances raged to 30 cents. United Asbestos being the leader. Nickel Rim added 20 cents and Maritimes 13 cents.

Trans Mountain jumped three points among industrials. International Paper was up 3½ and Goodyear four, but both stocks traded only a few shares.

Pearson Had Asian Members In Mind in Making Statement

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Sunday night that he had the Asian members in mind when he stated in the Commons last week that the Commonwealth was on the verge of dissolution at one point in the Middle East crisis.

He clarified his original statement on the CBC television program News Magazine in which spokesman for both Australia and Ceylon disagreed with Mr. Pearson's views.

Mr. Pearson said Sunday night that if the fighting had gone on in Egypt, he feared it would be difficult for India to have remained in the Commonwealth.

And if India withdrew, he believed, Pakistan and Ceylon also might have withdrawn.

NEVER ENDANGERED

But there never was any danger that the association of the older members of the Commonwealth such as Canada, Australia, Britain and New Zealand would have broken up.

Even if Canada didn't see 100 per cent eye to eye with Britain her relations with the U.K. remained close and friendly.

Mr. Pearson added that he thought it was time now not to dwell on the past but to look to the future. The work to be done now was to heal the division and prevent it from recurring. The Commonwealth was an invaluable association to get the need now was to straighten the matter of friendship among its members.

The statement discussed on the previous day was made by Mr. Pearson in the Commons last Tuesday on the Middle East debate.

"At one stage after fighting on land began, it the Commonwealth was on the verge of dissolution and that is not an exaggerated observation."

Interviewed at the United Nations, Australia's External Affairs Minister Richard Casey said he didn't believe the situation was as tragic as all that.

Australia was being guided by President Eisenhower's statement that he was determined to maintain traditional friendships, Mr. Casey said he believed it would take more than the situation in Egypt to shake Australia's friendship with Britain.

Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike of Ceylon, also interviewed at the UN, said he thought Mr. Pearson's Commons statement was "rather an exaggeration." He said that there is more than mere sentiment linking the Commonwealth countries together as they were linked by a common way of life, the democratic way.

If Ceylon was thinking of withdrawal from the Commonwealth, that would have to be a matter for careful consideration. There would be no rash or impulsive action.

The Commonwealth, he believed might well continue. There was no reason to fear any sudden dissolution.

Russia Treats East Germany Like a Pawn

TORONTO (CP) — Russia has treated East Germany like a pawn in a game of chess and not like a satellite as it has treated Hungary and Poland, German church leader Martin Niemoeller said Sunday night.

"Conditions (in East Germany) have never been as bad as in Hungary," said the controversial political figure who spent years in concentration camps for opposition to Hitler. "East Germany has never had to do without many of the things Premier Gomulka sought for Poland."

Mr. Niemoeller, a U-boat commander in the First World War, told a congregation at Bloor Street United Church that "Many advocate the idea that only violent means can rid mankind of communism. But war has become impossible; it will not solve anything."

Tighter Squeeze On Steel Products Is Forecast

CLEVELAND (AP) — A tighter squeeze on steel products, resulting from rising U.S. government requirements stimulated by the Suez crisis, is forecast by Steel magazine today.

The publication says U. S. military requirements in the first quarter of next year will go up slightly, with alloys and stainless steels, wire products, nickel alloy and aluminum being chiefly involved.

The trade weekly says that steel plates and shapes are certain to become even more stringent as the weeks pass.

Steel mills operated at 100 per cent of rated capacity last week, a drop of one-half point from the preceding week. Production totalled 2,461,893 net tons of steel for ingots and castings.

Bandit Takes $10,000 After Trussing Manager

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—A bandit wearing the mask of a grinning clown robbed a bank of $10,000 Saturday, but he proved himself a gentleman of sorts.

The bandit, armed with a revolver and a club, was awaiting inside the Rockville Centre Savings and Loan Association when Harry A. Schmidt, 50, executive vice-president, entered to finish some work. The bank usually is closed during the weekend.

Then the bandit announced he was borrowing Schmidt's car, he added: "I'll phone your wife and tell her to untie you. I'll tell her where to find your car."

Firemen Blame Two Young Boys For $20,000 Fire

OTTAWA (CP)—Firemen blame two young boys for a $20,000 fire that gutted an apartment building at 702 Bank Street in midtown Ottawa Saturday, leaving 18 persons homeless.

Acting Chief Inspector Phil Lankin said the boys—six and seven-year-old brothers—told him they had traded in two empty bottles for a box of matches at a store. They said they stuffed some comic books down a third-story hot-air register and set them afire.

Unable to stop the blaze, they stuffed them out of sight with an iron poker. The books smouldered in between floor and ceiling, the fire erupting about an hour later.

Paper Accuses West of Plotting Hungarian Revolt

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Communist party newspaper Pravda today accused the West of plotting and inspiring the revolt in Hungary. A long dispatch from the newspaper's special correspondents in Budapest contained the most detailed charges by Russia so far of alleged Western instigation of the uprising. Pravda named Gen. Pal Maleter as the leader of the revolt and charged he intended to set up a military dictatorship, with Cardinal Josef Mindszenty as premier.

Maleter, a hero of the revolution, was named defence minister in Premier Imre Nagy's short-lived government. The Russians arrested Maleter when he went to negotiate with them and presumably still hold him. Cardinal Mindszenty was freed from Communist imprisonment by rebel forces and now is in the U.S. Embassy in Budapest.

SWITCHING BEDFELLOWS IN MIDSTREAM

Don't look now, but if some politicians in Britain are caught poring over past pronouncements of one Aneurin Bevan, the odds may be five to one that they are Conservatives.

Nye's cry from the wilderness of the Opposition has long been a denunciation of many things American, and particularly anything bearing the hallmark of John Foster Dulles.

For his palms in the past he has been able to choose between catcalls and stern rebukes.

Now, however, he might be able to make a fortune in royalties if he has had the foresight to copyright his utterances. For, according to British newspapers, there is a rising tide of anti-American feeling amongst Conservative members of the British Parliament. We can think of no one where an anti-American could gather more ammunition than from reprints of Bevan's speeches.

Bevan, however, has fallen suddenly silent on this subject.

The reason for this switching of bedfellows in midstream, this rush to acquire strange horses, this - - -

Say, we are a little mixed up there, aren't we?

But no wonder than the Conservatives and Mr. Bevan.

The cause of the mix-up, of course, is this Suez affair and the United States policy regarding it.

Suddenly an American policy suits Mr. Bevan just fine and doesn't suit the Conservatives one little bit.

And so the anti-American voice is stilled and those who so recently applauded a stout ally try to remember Mr. Bevan's former love affair.

Mr. Bevan, meanwhile, is trying on an entirely different role for size.

According to "Brutus" in the London Recorder, Bevan has been "calm and tolerant, even judicious" in discussing the Government's Suez policy.

"He adopted the role of the statesman and it became him," reports Brutus.

Trying to help Eden out of a tough spot? By no means; rather trying to help Gaitskell out of a soft spot, that of Labor Party leader.

Mr. Gaitskell, according to Brutus, has played a rabble-rousing role. Whereupon Mr. Bevan elected to play statesman. "Brutus" figures Bevan has nothing to lose. His statesmanship right makes a vote-winning contrast to Gaitskell's attempt to be a "rumbustious politician." And it Mr. Gaitskell decides to change his style and soft-pedal for a while, Bevan can again "turn on the heat.

Strange doings—American-hating Conservatives, calm and tolerant Bevan, "rumbustious" Gaitskell. It would be funny - - if one did not suspect that hidden here, somewhere, might be the seeds of tragedy.

SAFE DRIVING WEEK

This is Safe Driving Week in Canada. It opens a month-long effort, throughout Canada and the U.S., to reduce the toll of highway accidents during this most dangerous month of the year. In the United States the drive is sponsored by the National Safety Council, in Canada as a whole by the Canadian Highway Safety Conference and in this province by the Ontario Safety League.

Since Safe Driving Week is part of a month-long campaign, it opened on Saturday, December 1 and will conclude on December 7. The objective is for every community to reduce December traffic accidents to the traffic accidents for the 168 hours of the week. This is a test which all communities cannot hope to pass—but all can endeavor to do so.

So much has been written and said about safe driving, with apparently negligible results, that one might despair of any real benefits accruing from this campaign were it not for the encouragement afforded by Canada's week. The National Safety Council reported an amazing 12 per cent decline in the U.S. traffic death toll during October. The slump halted a rise in deaths which had continued for 10 consecutive months. Perhaps, at long last, motorists are starting to listen to appeals to drive safely. Let us hope that Canada will be able to match the U.S. achievement. A good time to start is right now.

Remember that there are several factors which make December the most dangerous month on the highways. It is the month when the hours of daylight are shortest. Here in Canada motorists frequently have to contend with slippery roads, at a time of year when they have not yet become accustomed to the vast differences between summer and winter driving. During the latter part of the month children are out of school. It is holiday time and travel is heavy. Many drivers are offered a drink by friends on whom they call at Christmas and New Year's. All these factors make it imperative that drivers double their caution.

"BY ACCLAMATION"

This word "acclamation" is being dangerously abused. Only in rare cases is the return of a mayor or reeve, councilman or school trustee, a true acclamation. Turn to Webster and you will find that "acclamation" implies a degree of enthusiastic approval by the populace — an element quite lacking in most of our municipalities at nomination time. ### DESTINY

It may be you have never met;
A stranger he, a stranger, you;
Just man and woman now, and yet
God may have planned your lifetime through.

And call it whatsoe'er you may:
Fate, destiny, or merely chance,
Your paths will cross some [illegible] day
[illegible] and wish

And both will fashion a romance.

And he will take you by the hand
And lead you on the lanes of life;
And it could be that God had planned
That you should live as man and wife.

Disappearing Cultures

By Georges Fradier in UNESCO Features

After years of unrewarding effort, scholars and linguists are still trying to decipher the mysterious script of Easter Island which has been the cause of so much speculation. In 1914, there was still one very old man who could read and write this script. But he died before anyone could question him and take down his detailed information. With him died a tradition reaching back centuries and perhaps a few years later, when Kafiristan was conquered and islamized by the Afghans, the Kafir religious practices and religion disappeared for all time.

In 1902, two Swiss anthropologists travelling in the Southern Celebes discovered, in the caves and cave-dwellers, the Toala, who appeared to be the last survivors of the island's most ancient aboriginal population. The anthropologists' brief report on their "discoveries", he said, "would have sufficed to finance a number of costly ethnological expeditions exceeding even our wildest dreams. It is difficult to imagine that the last few hundred feet to the summit was of such great profit to science that it really justified the expenditure. But even if this were so, the Toala would still remain so that mount Everest will be there in a thousand years, while the disappearing civilizations and languages will have vanished thirty or forty years hence."

This appeal will surely be heard, for we cannot afford to neglect the cultural heritage of any part of humanity, even of illiterate tribes, without seriously impoverishing our own civilization.

Criticizes High Speed In Escorting Winters

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer.

In your edition of October 28th, there appears a report of the visit of Hon. Robert Winters for a packing engagement here in this city.

I am particularly interested in this report, in these days when highways are not at their best and not suited for speedy travel, and we read that O.P.P. H. Barker reached a speed of 100 miles per hour while escorting the honorable gentleman to Belleville.

What I am particularly interested in, is who would be responsible should an accident take place under those circumstances.

Realizing the time element was a big factor in the case, I, in my own humble opinion do not feel it was necessary at all, to take the risk the life of the speaker and those associated with him and the very unfortunate who might be crossing the highway at that time.

W. M. Fowler.

December 3rd., 1936

At a largely attended nomination meeting which was held at Madoc to fill the vacancy caused by the death of James F. Hill, who represented the East Hastings Riding as a Conservative in the Ontario Legislature for several terms, the following were selected. Dr. Harold E. Welsh of Roslin to contest the seat and Dr. Liberals selected Dr. Harold A. Boyce of Deseronto to carry the Liberal standard. The chair was occupied by Mr. Floyd Ashley of Foxboro who is the Provincial Conservative. Liberal Premier, Mitchell Hepburn, and Conservative leader Earl Rowe were present and addressed the meeting. The meeting was held in the armouries and it was filled to capacity and a large crowd gathered outside and heard the addresses over the loud speakers. The election is to take place on December 9th.

Mr. J. A. Christie has returned home from San Francisco, California, where he spent a vacation.

Ownership Of Arctic

Montreal Gazette

While there are many conflicting claims, based on various principles of possession, to the south polar area, sovereignties in the Arctic have been generally accepted. By far the greatest portion of the area is owned by two countries, Canada and the Soviet Union.

In the north, the "sector theory" of ownership is backed by effective occupation by the adjoining country. Under the sector theory, a country claims all land which is included in a triangle whose base is the country's northernmost Arctic boundary and whose apex is the North Pole.

Canada's territory in the polar regions then is a triangle based on the Alaska-Yukon boundary at the Arctic Ocean and the eastern tip of Ellsmere Island.

The Soviet areas, both in the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions are immensely greater. The subarctic Lena Basin is the richest and about half the entire country lies above the 60th. About four million Russians live above this line, with the old capital of Leningrad, population 2,000,000 existing itself at 60 degrees north.

With the ruthless drive of forced industrialization and by the widespread use of slave labor, the Soviet Union has developed mining and lumbering, ports, weather stations and research farming centres right across her Arctic regions.

Canada does not share the complusions which have animated Russian progress in the Arctic. Nor does she propose to use the means Russia has used in Arctic development. Yet the vast developments are directly linked, not by Russian competition, but by the Canadian determination to hold the pole.

The building of radar lines, air strips to support them, navigation aids, all these are opening up the Canadian North at a speed which may soon outstrip Russia's slave-labor progress.

As newly before, the North Is Canada's challenge and Canadians are moving to meet it.

Winter In A Better Climate

Lest some wise one demolish my teaching by cracking that it is easy enough for me, basking in the sunshine and balmy air of this paradise all winter long to tell people up north to go out without overcoat or overshoes and take a brisk walk to get warmed up, let me say that I served many years in Upper New York before I ever gave a thought to change of climate. Even though I like it here, I still say living in New York State is not half bad.

Anyone with a little ingenuity or gumption can assure an ideal climate in his home all winter or at least for that part of the season he spends in his home, apartment, or room, many part of the country. I did so through the last few winters we lived in New York. We lived in a three-story twelve-room house overlooking Delaware Park bowling greens in Buffalo. The house was heated by radiators circulating hot water. On two floors of seven or eight radiators was a humidifier about as long and wide as the radiator, painted to match the radiator.

The humidifiers were boxes or tanks made of galvanized metal, the width of the radiator and as deep (8 to 10 inches?) and of various lengths to fit the radiator. They were about 6 inches high and were equipped with flat top covers with flat top sides and edges to allow free circulation of air. The tank was fitted with a wire S frame to support many loops of twisting or Turkish towelling suspended over the water and dipping into it.

Each tank filled to capacity with from one to three or four gallons of water, evaporating a gallon or more of water daily. The humidifiers were marketed by a Minneapolis firm, but the firm discontinued making them. I'm no handyman but I'm sure anyone with what I said should be able to make his own and perhaps establish a local sideline making and selling them to the people who suffer the vitiating effects of wintering in the great Indoor Sahara.

We found the use of such humidifiers during the season when artificial heat was necessary kept us as comfortable with a household temperature of 68 as we felt with a temperature of 72 or higher without humidification.

Winter air, heated up to or above 70 by any means loses most of its natural moisture, becomes excessively dried out, actually as dry or drier than the driest desert air. No matter it is hard on furniture, book bindings musical instruments, growing plants, and the delicate mucous membranes of occupants.

I confess I am pretty tired of toting water up and down the house every day to keep those tanks humidifiers filled, but my bitter complaints elicited only contempt. "Why don't you have it to install humidifiers, in the first place?" I used to dream of having some automatic filling system installed, something like the humidifier with tender loving care (gas heated) so well that we had only to turn it on in the fall and turn it off in the spring. But I suppose the only solution would be to have it built in and build in humidification when you plan and build your home. I've heard of such things — but just hearing about them frightens me off.

CONSCIENCE

A quiet conscience is a great blessing and anyone who has ever had a guilty conscience will say bad conscience knows this. But if a guilty conscience is a punishing conscience, it can do infinite harm. The great Albert Schweitzer, conscious of the enervating power of a complacent conscience, declared that the most dangerous kind of conscience is an invention of the devil.

Yes, it by quietness we mean complacency; and very often we do. Some of the worst people in the world have a completely quiet conscience. The word conscience really means "with knowledge," and a person who has a good and healthy conscience is one whose knowledge of right and wrong constantly rises up to rebuke anything in his life which is unworthy. We keep awake at night for anything but a quiet conscience. It ought to be a conscience disturbed, which keeps one in continual distress. If one has sinned, he needs to be deeply troubled at the repents of that sin and makes him one of the compassionate may arise from the fact that one's moral powers are benumbed or hardened.

So don't ask yourself whether or not you have a quiet conscience. But whether you deserve to have a quiet conscience. The Bible never speaks of a quiet conscience — only of a good conscience, a pure conscience, a conscience devoid of offense.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SPEAK GENTLY—AND KINDLY

The most sensitive instrument in all this world is the human heart. An unkind word will cut deeper within it than the sharpest knife. It is wholly unnecessary for anyone to hurt another through the medium of speech. We can say nothing without our adding to it?

It is easy enough to meet with one who always seems to have an extra smile or a behind good word, as though the light in the whole world had suddenly been turned out! Walt Mason, the poet, wrote a poem about such a character whom he called "The Welcomed Man." And how welcomed he is at almost!

In all my visits to a hospital have been reasonably happy, and recovery has been fast—for there have been many of the many merciful nurses rendering kindnesses. There is a sunshine about a nurse's smile when any of us experiences the contact with those who give out quietness and reinforced hope.

Whenever I have been given the opportunity to minister to another, I always feel that I am the big winner. I am the most blessed. I think that must be the compensation for any kindly thought or deed we perform for another human. It is a fine thing for each one of us to be thinking of the welfare of others. What would we do without the privilege of giving hope and a kindly boost to someone else?

She says she asked him why he didn't bring them home, and "he said they weren't worth carrying. He told me he might they were Indian things." Two or three months later he did return with them.

"They just looked like old scrap metal to me," Mrs. Dodd said. "He wrapped them in an old cloth and put them on top of the piano. I kept taking them off and got fed up with them."

"I threw them out in a shack at the back where they stayed all winter. Finally, he brought them in again and said he was going to find out what they were."

PICKERSGILL

In a brief speech Sunday to the group of men headed for Canada, Pickersgill said some of them would probably see strange sights "far away" but they should not worry if they do not locate jobs immediately.

"The most important thing is for you to start to learn to speak English or French as soon as you arrive," he advised them.

At a military barracks which has been turned over to refugees, Pickersgill saw striking evidence how aid is flowing into Austria from around the world. There was a large storeroom piled high with

REMINISCENT OF WARTIME LONDON

Reminiscent of wartime London is this scene showing motorists lining up for gasoline while it has been rationed by the British government to 200 gallons a month for the private motorist. floor from Canada, margarine from Norway, tins of soup from the United States and Venezuela — and fruit from Japan.

A German Red Cross official commented that "We haven't "not enough flour." Said Pickersgill: "Well, we'll be only too glad to send you all you want. We've got too much."

Pickersgill chatted with four Hungarian youths who said they want to go to Canada as soon as possible.

Their eyes lit up when Pickersgill said the Canadian immigration team would be visiting the camp shortly and "You are just the type of fellows we want." They appeared even more impressed when the minister, speaking through an interpreter, said Canadian truck drivers earn about $60 a week.

Beds in most camps were well supplied with blankets, but several had no mattresses. Austrian officials asked Pickersgill if Canada could send "straw mattresses," he said.

"We've got lots of straw but no covers to put the straw in. We need 10,000 mattresses."

The majority of prospective immigrants want to go to Canada and other overseas countries and get right away from Europe and Communist domination.

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised if the movement out of Hungary continues," Pickersgill said. However, the heavy refugee movement was "going to present serious problems, including one of accommodation in Canada."

"I am sure there is the same goodwill in Canada as in other countries, "but I am not at all sure there is as yet the organization and detailed, meticulous planning necessary for a job of such magnitude."

"This cannot be done by the immigration department. It is entirely outside our sphere. It will require the fullest co-operation by the people throughout Canada to meet it successfully."

Referring to plans to send upwards of 6,000 refugees to Canada by the end of the year, he said it wouldn't be realistic to talk about any larger figure."

"It wouldn't be in the best interest of the refugees to run into bottlenecks in Canada."

ANGLO-FRENCH

troops which LL-Gen. Sir Hugh Stockwell has demanded as a precaution to maintain internal security before his Anglo-French forces can withdraw.

Major backing for the early withdrawal report was the surprisingly fast rate of progress made by the Royal Navy in reopening this northern end of the Suez Canal.

A channel wide enough for passage of vessels of 10,000-ton size already has been cleared. At least three major wrecks sunk by the Egyptians just before the Anglo-French invasion four weeks ago are just about ready to be lifted.

As for the southern end of the canal, intelligence reports indicate that the damage done there by the Egyptians is not as effective as was believed at first.

Egypt has turned thumbs down on a British-French offer to help clear the southern end of the canal. The UN has begun negotiations with private west European firms.

On the east bank of the waterway, Israel announced it had cleared a 30-mile-wide area of Egypt's Sinai Peninsula for the UN troops to occupy.

A company of 120 Indian troops, arriving by train from the Egyptian lines, Sunday took over the 1,000-yard-wide no man's land between British-French and Egyptian forces.

BRITAIN, FRANCE

3. Hammarskjold's proposed basis for negotiating a new regime for the Suez Canal based on the six requirements of the Oct. 13 resolution.

NO WITHDRAWAL TIMETABLE

Lloyd added:

"I believe we shall reach an agreement providing adequate guarantees that the six requirements will be met. Her Majesty's government of course adheres to their view as expressed in the resolution voted on by the Security Council on the 13th of October with regard to the 13-power proposals."

The 13-power proposals were formulated in London soon after Egypt nationalized the canal and would set up a system for international control of the waterway.

Lloyd did not give details of a timetable for the complete withdrawal of the British-French forces.

But he said that Keightley and Burns would draw one up together and report it as quickly as possible in Hammarskjold.

The foreign secretary then added:

"In preparing this timetable the Allied commander has been told to ensure that adequate regard should be had in the maintenance of public security in the area now under Allied control. . . ."

ISRAELIS SHOULD LEAVE

Lloyd said Israeli forces should withdraw from Egyptian territory and from the Gaza strip, which he said should be made a United Nations responsibility.

"Lastly," he said, "there is the question of a long term settlement of all the problems in the area.

"I believe our action has done a great deal to improve conditions in which progress can now be made."

The stationing of UN troops in the area will contribute to a final settlement, the foreign secretary said.

"I claim therefore that we have stopped a local war. We have prevented it from spreading. The extent of Soviet penetration has been revealed.

"We have caused the United Nations to take action by the creation of an international force. We have alerted the whole world to the situation of great peril."

Lloyd sat down to loud Conservative cheers and Labor counter cries of "resign!"

After Lloyd's speech, the House will have 48 hours to think things over before beginning a two-day foreign policy debate. This will culminate in a vote of confidence on Thursday night.

There is a chance—but only a chance—that a revolt among his own parliamentary followers at that crucial point could turn the vote against Eden and force him to resign.

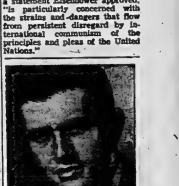
MADOC — Mrs. Pearl Herrington was hostess to the Goodwill Community Club for the November meeting. A good representation of the members was in attendance.

After the regular business and program the election of officers took place:

President, Mrs. Elvie Bronson; vice-president, Mrs. Marta Wellman; secretary, Mrs. Beatrice Herrington; treasurer, Mrs. Estelle Bailey; convener of birthday committee, Mrs. Lavolins Lavender; convener of sick committee, Mrs. Katharine Fahey; assistant convener of sick committee, Mrs. Beatrice Storms; current events, Mrs. Donelda Foley.

Peace Prospects Reasonably Good Believes Dulles

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles believe prospects for peace in the world are "reasonably good."



Dulles, returning to the job after a month's convalescence from intestinal surgery, put it that way at the conclusion of a two-hour review of the general picture with the president here Sunday.

"Certainly I think anybody must be indeed far gone in pessimism if he thinks the danger of war in the area today is as great as it was a month ago," Dulles told a press conference.

But both Dulles and Eisenhower believe steps are necessary to bolster the North Atlantic alliance, which they agree has been strained as a result of differences between the United States on the one hand and Britain and France on the other in the Middle East crisis.

They also agree that need for "unity and strength" of that alliance fashioned to check the threat of Communist aggression has been a "tragically demonstrated by Soviet actions in Eastern Europe, "particularly in Hungary," Dulles said.

The president," said Dulles in a statement Eisenhower approved, "is particularly concerned with the strains and dangers that flow from persistent disregard by international communism of the principles and pleas of the United Nations."

Cooking Still Regarded as Fine Art in France

PARIS (Reuters) — Cooking is still regarded in France as a fine art even in these days of snack bars and sandwich counters, of frozen and prepared foods, reducing diets, synthetic substitutes and vitamin pills.

In a world where the old maxim "to know how to live is to know how to eat" is a dying tradition, the Cordon Bleu, the well-known school of cooking in Paris, defies the advance of the atom age and helps to maintain the highest epicurean standards.

This is no run-of-the-mill cookery school where the youthful bride can learn simplified cooking on a budget. It is rather an advanced post-graduate course for experienced professional and amateur chefs.

Any afternoon, one may find the chef from one of the well-known Paris restaurants brushing up on the technique of making a crepe suzette. At the next stove, a bejewelled matron may be perfecting a béchamel sauce, while further along a young fiancee, who is taking the entire three-month course, is anxiously wondering whether her souffle will rise to the proper height.

A magazine issued by the school each month sets out to complete meals which are scheduled for preparation each day. Thus a woman can send her cook to the school at a given time to learn how to make a particular dish which is on the list for that day.

While the school specializes in delicate gourmet cooking, involving many expensive ingredients like fine wines and exotic species and herbs, no waste is permitted. Part of the skill lies in exact calculation.

The tradition of good cooking does not consider the time involved. Nothing is too much trouble to achieve epicurean perfection. Bouillon cubes or artificial flavoring are never used. Sauces are blended by hand—never with an electric mixer.

The story is told of a girl who "cheated" with a Cordon Bleu cake at home. The recipe was miscalculated for a specific number of baadhesian strokes. She substituted an electric mixer — and was stunned to find that her cake rose nearly three feet.

Designed for Juniors

BY YRACY ADRIAN

This smooth costume was created with the junior size figure in mind. However, that does not mean that anyone, regardless of age, who wears this size would not find it a most flattering choice.

The dress is made of eight ounce wool jersey and has a square neckline, sleeveless bodice and features an Empire silhouette. Over it is worn a bulky knit, jersey trimmed jacket that has a cardigan button-down front and three-quarter length sleeves.

18 Explorers Receive Their Black Ties

The Bridge Street United church Canadian Girls in Training gathered at the church on Tuesday for their initiation service. All was silent as the 60 girls and their leaders took their places.

Miss Jean Boswell, the new director of Christian Education, conducted the Explorer graduation service. Eighteen girls had their red ties replaced with the traditional black tie for CGIT.

Miss Margaret Hillis welcomed these graduates to the CGIT department and invited them to share in all phases of the Canadian Girls in Training program. The president of the department, Joan Lewis and the secretary, Gwethy Cathers presented the CGIT pin and purpose cards to all the new girls being initiated.

Mrs. Freeman Burrows, leader of the senior group, called the following seven girls to the front of the church and during an impressive service, they were presented with their white lanyard by Mrs. Berry, chairman of the Belleville Girls' Work Board. Mary Howie, Jeanne MacKenzie, Cheryl Eaton, Jean Buchanan, Gwethy Cathers, Dianne Banting, Ann Blakely.

The group was honored in having the Rev. H. M. Davis present to install the officers of the department as well as those of the five groups. Maple leaves were presented to the girls who were entitled to wear them.

After the singing "Take My Life and Let It Be", the girls reassembled in the church hall in the Friendship Circle, with lighted down lights, as the ceremony of lighting the red ties took place, which was symbolic of the Explorer program. As the flames were kindled, soprano voices were heard singing "Taps."

FINES BIG BUSINESS

NEW YORK (AP)—Police have struck gold in the streets of New York. From January to October last year they tagged 1,332,292 traffic violators who paid $7,615,223 in fines. For the same period this year, 1,670,437 tickets have been issued and $10,113,634 collected.

Parkdale W.I. Plans New Year's Party

The November meeting of Parkdale W.I. was held on Wednesday night in the new recreation hall with 19 members and 10 visitors from south Parkdale present.

The president, Mrs. Gordon Palmer, opened the meeting. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were given.

Mrs. Reg Morrey read an address of welcome to the new girls trusting that they will all be members in the near future.

A short sing-song was followed by a considerable amount of business. Volunteers were wanted to help set tables for the New Year's Eve dance and supper that is to be held on New Year's night. Talent for the next meeting and also for the Christmas party for the children was taken care of. It was decided to donate dishes, silverware and chairs, that have been purchased for the hall.

Mrs. Cooper gave a demonstration of a coffee urn that the girls may have for the hall by selling 50 bottles of vanilla and 50 cans of pepper. This was agreed upon as a worthwhile task.

Mrs. A. Bannon conducted a most interesting auction sale of homemade articles that were donated by the girls.

The motto prepared by Mrs. J. F. Jones was read by Mrs. C. Keeble.

Hostess, Mrs. Reg Morrey and co-hostesses, Mrs. E. Gray, Mrs. W. Forgie, Mrs. V. Allen and Mrs. J. Wilson served refreshments and a social half hour brought the meeting to a close.

PLAN HUGE SHELTER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration is reported considering a mass shelter building program for civil defence which ultimately might cost billions of dollars. Officials in position to know said Thursday that several different proposals are under study which contemplate asking Congress for upwards of $200,000,000 to launch the program next year.

Coronation Club Presents W.A. With Gift of $200

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Bridge Street United church, was held in the Sunday school rooms, Friday afternoon, with Mrs. Arthur Clare, presiding and opening the meeting with prayer.

During the business meeting, a successful bazaar was reported and a special vote of thanks was given to Mrs. J. Demeza, who had charge of the tea room; also a vote of thanks to Mrs. Hadley Wray for her most artistic and beautiful tea table and flower arrangements.

It was voted to hold the December Christmas meeting on December 14, instead of the usual date.

Mrs. E. Sutton presented a gift of $200 to the W.A. from the Evening Coronation club.

Mrs. C. L. Hyde and Mrs. W. D. Gilbert and their group had charge of the program. Mrs. Hyde gave a few words of welcome and a reading "Now and Tomorrow."

Mrs. Ken Bird pleased with a piano solo "The 2nd Mazurka" by Goddard.

A devotional service based on the 46th Psalm was given by Mrs. F. Pringle, Mrs. J. W. Sherry, Mrs. K. Bird and Mrs. H. Lee.

Mrs. M. Boyd was guest soloist, accompanied by Mrs. C. H. Rennie.

A most amusing playlet entitled "The Trials and Tribulations of a New Saleslady in a Hat Shop", was given by Miss Helen Sulman as "Mlle. Bellaire" and Mrs. N. O'Neil as "Miss Mudge".

After the meeting was closed, Mrs. Hyde, on behalf of the group in charge, invited the ladies to stay for a social half-hour.

Women's Activities

WESLEY W.A.

The regular meeting of the Wesley W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Deslke.

The president, Mrs. E. Bulmer opened the meeting.

Mrs. E. Windover took charge of devotion and read, "A story of a Hymn", followed by prayer.

The Scripture lesson was taken by Mrs. G. Frost. A Christmas story "No Room in the Inn", was given by Mrs. E. Windover. This part of the meeting was closed with a hymn and a prayer.

The ladies were reminded of the Christmas W.M.S. meeting at the parsonage, December 5th. It was also decided that Mesdames Stewart, Wright and Frost buy gifts for shut-ins and candy for Sunday school children.

Mrs. Bulmer thanked all the members for helping to make the bazaar a success. Proceeds from the bazaar were $184.42.

All members were returned to the same offices for the next year.

The treasurer's report was given with $249.71 on hand.

The flower fund report was given with $19.91 on hand.

A donation of $100 will be given to the church board.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and lunch committee.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

HOW TO SIGN LETTERS ASKING FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For general use I have printed sheets of paper, my formal name (for example, Mrs. John Alan Lane) and address at the top of each sheet. I have accepted the request that I contribute to or do something for a national charity or organization, and I have been given lists of the names of all the families I'm to contact in this section. I am using the letters I've to send out with the small double fold leaflet and addressed envelope.

1. I want to be courteous but I use the correct form for my signature in these appeal-letters. Is this correct?

Sincerely yours, Mary B. Lane

2. Should I sign with my formal name (Mrs. John Alan Lane) under my signature? — Reader

1. Yes, this is a correct form. Also correct (and quite customary) is to use my first name. Don't is the use of the full name for your mailing envelope, instead of the letter.

Mary Baldwin Lane

(This is another means of identification, which in some cases might be advantageous in your collecting-appeals.)

2. No . . . not necessary to write your name twice. Simply sign your signature because your formal name is printed on the top of the sheet.

CHRISTMAS IS A HOLY DAY . . .

INSPIRING MESSAGE OF RELIGIOUS CARDS

The significant news about Christmas cards this year is the gloriously significant news, is the predominance of religious cards — cards that emphasize in their appearance and in their messages the true spirit of Christmas. I can provide a reverent means of "putting Christ back into Christmas."

You will be amazed at the number of religious cards you will see this year. Last year there were only one in twenty cards sold had a religious theme, and this year such a limited sale of religious greetings will be unthinkable for the many fine artists who offer creations that were equal in quality to the more popular types of Christmas greeting cards. But now all this has changed, and there has been a tremendous upsurge in the sending of religious Christmas cards. This year one card out of every four has a religious theme.

More and more people are looking to the true idea of Christmas—the Holy Day, rather than the holiday. Many hearts and spirits, reaching for the inspiration and comfort of religion, want to share that inspiration and spiritual comfort. Many people now are determined to express the true spirit of Christmas in their Christmas cards.

There is a very active and thriving and tremendously important Brotherhood program to encourage wider use of Christmas cards that express the real significance of the Christmas season. The National Council of Churches and The Greeting Card Association (which represents a majority of the leading greeting card firms throughout the country) are closely cooperating on this plan, which is being promoted locally through a nationwide network of state and local councils of churches and the greeting card publishers. Church leaders of many denominations, and also religious publications, are pointing up the availability of a greater number and variety of appropriate and reverent Christmas cards that ever before. From many pulpits throughout the land comes the appeal to "put Christ back into Christmas."

Many cards shine with the glorious wonder of the Nativity, the Blessed Christ Child, the gentle Madonna, scenes at the Manger, the Holy Family, the Adoring Angels. A shepherd "watching his flock by night." The Three Wise Men with their thoughtful, searching faces. Bibles and Rosaries. The Star and the Cross. Many, many reproductions of famous and beloved paintings of the Madonna. Lovely cards featuring serene church steeples, church bells ringing melodiously, worshippers reverently entering a church for the Christmas services, choir boys singing Christmas hymns, carolers with their dedicated faces.

And so many beautiful cards glow with the "religious light" of stained glass windows . . . many of them reproduced in the original colors of famous windows in famous churches and cathedrals. This year's treasury of cards with religious themes and religious messages . . . what a tribute to the blessed spirit of Christmas!

MAY SHE HAVE "REAL" BRIDAL CAKE AT SECOND WEDDING?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm 26 years old, have been a widow for three years, and am engaged to be married shortly. A small, informal church wedding, followed by a small, informal reception at the home of my fiancee's family, with whom I live. I'd love to have a bridal cake, a real bridal centerpiece for after my first ceremony, we had no reception and no cake. But now several of my friends have told me that having a bride's cake is incorrect for a second wedding. True or false, Mrs. Beeckman? — Teresa W.

I'm so happy to tell you that indeed it is entirely proper for you to have a bridal cake at your reception, a "real" one, as handsome and decorative as you wish. It can be iced in a delicate pink as are so many bride's cakes today. It can be elaborately garlanded or otherwise decorated, and, if you wish, you can have a wedding bell or other wedding symbol on top. Have a happy time cutting that cake (sharing the first slice with your bridegroom)!

DISTRICT WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

UNITED CHURCH W.M.S.

FRANKFORD — The W.M.S. of the Frankford United Church met at the home of Mrs. W. Moorrow on November 22nd. Quiet time was played before the meeting opened. Mrs. F. Charlesworth presided, and after welcoming everyone, turned the meeting over to Mrs. C. D. Powell, who conducted the Scripship service.

The secretary's report was given by Mrs. C. D. Powell, in the absence of Mrs. C. Reid, and the financial report by Mrs. H. J. Madill, treasurer. Correspondence was read by Mrs. J. A. Lott and Mrs. G. Spencer, supply secretary, gave her report.

Mrs. C. Hanna consented to conduct the Study Book for the coming year. Roll call showed 13 members and 18 visitors.

Rev. C. E. Clarke took charge of the election of officers and conducted the 1958 officers for 1957.

Mrs. W. Morrow took charge of the program. Our Scripture was read in two parts by Mrs. G. Sine and Mrs. Casey, followed by prayer by Mrs. W. Morrow.

Mrs. M. Grills rendered a vocal solo and Mrs. M. Morrow gave a reading, "Recipe for Today." Mrs. Upman and Mrs. W. Morrow gave a piano duet.

Mrs. Morrow introduced Mrs. Budge, who was the guest speaker for the afternoon, speaking on "The Messenger With Gifts."

Mrs. Morrow thanked Mrs. Budge for her fine thoughts and message.

Three new members were welcomed into the society.

Mrs. P. Upman and Mrs. Morrow rendered a piano duet.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. W. Morrow, Mrs. G. W. Sine and Mrs. Casey.

UNITED CHURCH E.A.

FRANKFORD.— The members of the Evening Auxiliary of Frankford United church held its November meeting in the Perkins room of Rose Lowery Hall with Mrs. H. Rowe presiding.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. H. Rowe who read the poem "Building a Cathedral".

The secretary, Mrs. R. Jewell, gave the secretarial report and Mrs. R. Rowe gave the financial report. There were 34 members present.

Mrs. H. Slingerland read correspondence and the forming of CGIT was discussed.

The slate of officers for 1957 was read and the Rev. C. E. Clarke conducted the official business.

Mrs. H. Vosbourgh and Mrs. E. Carson conducted the worship service and Mrs. C. Moran gave the study book on "Tawan of Formosa." Slides were also shown on this subject.

Mrs. J. Beach and Mrs. R. Morran sang wedding, Mrs. C. Moran rendered a vocal solo. Mrs. J. Beach was in charge of the contest prepared by Mrs. E. Carson.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. H. Vosbourgh, Mrs. E. Carson, Mrs. K. Roole and Mrs. C. Moran.

GIRLS SHOULD TELL ESCORTS ABOUT CLASS DECISION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My new vows to ban the sending of corsages by the boys to the freshmen class at our coming dance (and it is probable we will vote that way), we would like to know if we should inform the boys we are inviting about this, or just let them find out for sure? What is your advice? — Lisa D.

Not to let all the boys know of the decision your class would be decidedly unfair, from all angles. Some Senior boys might hear about it . . . and some boys might not, and it would be embarrassing for the boys who have been told not to send corsages to arrive at the dance and find that some boys had sent corsages. So each girl, when she invites a boy, should tell him that the class has voted that corsages are to be omitted. This will mean to him that the decision is an official one, not a personal one. And this would be the latest of the vote.

LIBRARY BENEFITS WOLVERHAMPTON, England (CP) — Television is making people read more, says the chief librarian of this Staffordshire town. He has acknowledged caused a demand for books on that subject," he said. "Ballet viewings led to requests for ballet books."

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE SOME OF THIS IS YOUR OWN FAULT

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married almost 10 years, and in all that time he has never taken me to visit any of his folks or gone anywhere with me, not to a show, or the store, or even to the doctor's. He's the 7th of 11. I was married before and have raised five children altogether.

We have a little boy eight years old. I take him to the drive-in and to roller skate in the park. We always ask my husband to go, but he never will. My little son always asks me why Daddy doesn't go out with us sometimes, and I don't know what to tell him. I never go anywhere to enjoy myself, and in all my 47 years I've never had a vacation.

I get so disgusted sometimes that I wish I were dead. It's as though I were just a maid or a housekeeper for my husband. He makes good money, and if he gives me even a little bit it usually has to go for the house.

Now we have our home up for sale. Do you think I should tell my husband, or take my part of the money and start all over again somewhere else? Everyone says I'm crazy to stick to him any longer. — BLANCHE.

Dear Mrs. M.M.S.: What was it about this second husband of yours that made you think disappointy him? Did he have qualities, then, that made you hope that you were not just looking for someone to support you and whatever children you had at that point? Or did you thought it worth putting up with his bad points?

If he did have qualities that endeared him to you, could those qualities have disappeared entirely? Isn't there anything about him now that makes you want to be with him, even though there are many things that make you unhappy? And if, nearly 20 years ago, you found him attractive enough to marry, wouldn't you like to try and see what you could do to reawaken that old interest?

On the other hand, if you married this man for no other reason than to get someone to support you and the children, perhaps you have no real justification for resenting the way he behaves. For in that case, he certainly would soon have discovered that you had simply made a convenience of him, which could hardly make him feel very loving toward you.

It seems to me you need to think these things over very carefully and very honestly, and make up your mind just what it was you married him for, before deciding what you should do next.

For example, if you married him because you really loved him and believed you'd be happy together, then there must have been something about him worth loving. If you find this was the case, then, perhaps, if you made a real effort to do so, you could win back the love of loving him, in all sorts of loving ways, that you haven't forgotten how to express in the beginning, and that you long for them to be like that again.

You might look at it from his side, too, and try to recognize what it was about you that made him want to marry you; then examine yourself to see if you have always lived up to those same characteristics.

Finally, if honesty forces you to admit that you married just to make a convenience of him, then you'll have to realize, first, that you yourself may be responsible for his neglect of you and, second, that it's up to you to be the sort of person he deserves for having taken care of you and your children all these years.

By this time, I'm sure you understand that I think there is considerable for you to decide before asking for the money that would be due you on the sale of the home and walking off with it.

I should like to hear from you again, after you've thought things over and come to some definite conclusions. For when you do come to those definite conclusions, you'll need some advice on how to proceed from there.

Diversified Living by Helen and George

By Mary Moore

On a fur farm with a trout stream and a beaver dam and a watercress bed and a sugar bush and walls panelled in pine by the owner—that's where I've been. Any one of those features would make it worth the trip—but added was a homecooked meal by Helen to satisfy the soul of an epicure.

Helen is a reader correspondent of many years and George is her farmer-builder, jack-of-all-trades husband. I had never met either of them before, but I'm going back and Marianne and Gary and Pete are invited too, at sugaring-off time.

When I drove up, by coincidence Helen was standing in the open doorway and George was on the garage roof. Quite a reception line-up I thought. While I had planned to stay for tea they had different ideas, and so had I before many minutes had passed. I stayed for dinner and invented and having time to sleep in the 19th century bed Helen had ready for me.

Helen is happy to share with me and you some of her treasured recipes, all of which I sampled. What do I mean "samples"?! I had man-sized portions!

HELEN'S BANANA NUT BREAD

(Helen adds a note to the recipe: "This bread had been made two days previous to your visit, and put in the deep freeze, being brought out the morning of your visit and thawed out. It seemed to stay fresh indefinitely.)

One cup granulated sugar, 1-2 cup butter, 2 eggs, 1 1-3 cups mashed banana, (about 3), 2 1-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup chopped nuts. Cream sugar and butter. Add eggs whole, and bananas. Sift together flour, soda and salt. Add to mixture, along with walnuts. Pour into 1 large or 2 small greased loaf pans. Bake 1 hour (for large), 45 to 50 minutes (for small) in moderate oven of 375 degrees.

HELEN'S MAPLE SYRUP PUMPKIN PIE

Three cups pumpkin, 3 level tablespoons flour, 1 scant cup sugar, 1 cup brown sugar, 1-2 teaspoon each mace, allspice, cloves, salt, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon and ginger, 1 tablespoon maple syrup, (home produced in this house), 1-2 cup sweet cream, 3 cup thin cream, 6 beaten eggs. Mix together liquid ingredients, then add dry ingredients, beating until smooth and free of lumps. (Pour into deep pastry lined pie plate and bake at 450 deg. 10 minutes, reducing heat to 375 deg. for 45 minutes.)

HELEN'S MAPLE MOUSSE

(This Helen served on the pumpkin pie!) Three-quarters cup maple syrup, 4 beaten egg yolks, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon vanilla, 1 3-4 cups chilled evaporated milk. Combine maple syrup, egg yolks and salt. Cook over boiling water until thickened. Beat until cool; add vanilla and chill. Whip chilled evap. milk (standing bowl in ice water), and fold it into the maple custard. Freeze until firm.

While George gave me a personally conducted tour of the farm by Packard car, Helen put the finishing touches on a fresh batch of bread. I'll never forget. These hospitable folk sent me away laden with food for thought and book, and generous gifts of maple sugar and syrup for Pete—a measure that was heaped up and running over! Bless them.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

GOOD GROOMING GIFTS FOR THE MEN IN YOUR LIFE

—When you choose toiletries gifts for a man, be sure they're elegant as well as masculine.

If you could buy that "perfect" gift for each man on your Christmas list all in one stop, think of the valuable time you'd save for your many other Christmas last minute chores.

A simple way to do just this is by selecting all your masculine gifts from one category. This also has the advantage of avoiding any possible embarrassment when the fellow compare notes—as they're sure to do.

What category? Well, first, what are "gentlemen's" toiletries? Quick? Well agree that it should "fit the particular man—should be something he would like to get for himself, and will, therefore, use. It should be "gifty" attractively packaged, in a masculine way. And finally, of course, it should be available at the price you want to pay.

You'll find that men's toiletries score tops on each of these counts, and the great many range of these gifts is almost endless. One line which especially pleases the men you know, however, is packaged in an exceptionally attractive manner, its various lotions, colognes, and talcs, etc., coming in gleaming gold flasks and flagons, each with a handsome stopper sculptured in the shape of a knight's helmet. But despite the elegance of the packaging, the prices are extremely reasonable.

Picking the right toiletry gift for a particular man is no problem nowadays because men from every walk of life use good grooming, and this is clearly confirmed by the manufacturers of this line, it has been found, in consumer research every occupation listed by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, including truck drivers and corporation presidents, college freshmen and college faculties.

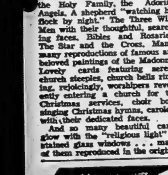
The man who works in an office all day—usually with many women—the salesman calling on customers or the student in a crowded classroom will each appreciate a spray deodorant for all-day protection.

Rugged individuals such as professional athletes, trial lawyers, practising politicians and similar hard-driving males (and this may come as a surprise) are regular users of men's colognes for that refreshing feeling after a shower. Thoroughly masculine scents, such as those that capture the vigorous freshness of the Scottish Highlands, are among the most popular.

For the brisk, get-thing-done type, the sales manager, business executive or "man of distinction" whose clean look clean shaven all day—pre-electric shave is ideal. It reduces razor drag and makes beards stand up for the closest-possible and long-lasting shave.

The steady, dependable-as-a-rock man, such as the doctor visiting patients, and day or the platform lecturer, will appreciate luxurious scrotal balm that helps its convenience and kindness to his face no matter how close the shave.

The man-about-town, who is at ease no matter what the occasion, will find that indispensable combination in an after shave lotion, luxury hair-dressing and talc kit.



You can be sure that today's toiletry item or kit will be used and enjoyed—not put away—and passed along as an "it" gift." Give the men on your Christmas list masculine grooming aids and you'll be the "lady fair" of each.

QUIET CHRISTMAS

DUDLEY, Eng. (CP) — Some 200 innkeepers in this Worcestershire town have applied to municipal officials to close pubs on Christmas night. They say they want Christmas off for a change.

N.Y. Garment District Called Fashion Capital of World But Is Most Uneconomical Place

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether it's fashionable or functional custom made or ready-to-wear; unionism as its best or labor racketeering at its worst, they can get it for you wholesale in New York's bustling, boisterous garment industry.

Many of the world's great dress designers have done business here. So has Murder Inc., designers of another sort.

The garment district has often been called the fashion capital of the world, but, more often the most uneconomical place in the world to do business. As befitting a fashion center, it deals in contrasts by the yard and in a variety of colors.

Bounded on the north by the Metropolitan Opera House and the glittering lights of Times Square, and on the south by Macy's department store, Penn Station and the massive General Post Office, the 30 square blocks of mid-town Manhattan that comprise the garment district are a congested and confused jungle of loading and unloading trucks, scurrying sample-men, dress racks flowing fashion like through the surging crowds, sidewalk business conferences and occasional picket lines.

Above the narrow Eastside streets between 35th and 41st, and the wider avenues between Broadway and Ninth, rise in drab rows of uniproof architecture the thousands of cluttered factory lofts where the cutters, pressers, spongers, button hole makers and other skilled craftsmen produce nearly 80 per cent of the women's clothing sold each year in the United States.

FASHION IS QUEEN

This is the business—and it's New York's largest—where fashion is queen, where the whim of a woman can mean an overnight fortune or a Monday morning bankruptcy.

Annually, it's a $6,000,000,000 industry, but it has yet to produce one $25,000,000 corporation. There's no General Motors or Westinghouse in the garment district, and there probably never will be.

"How you gonna' mass produce individuality?" ask a dress manufacturer in the $35 wholesale or medium priced field. "A woman's not a Ford or Cadillac."

Of the shops, 25 per cent will go out of business every year in good times, and as high as 45 per cent in a depression. The same number will start up again under new or regrouped management with a loan from the bank or, if necessary, from a shylock at 5% for 5% interest rates.

Competition is cut throat and the margin of profit slim, sometimes less than one per cent. Since much of the work, particularly in the low priced lines, is contracted to "outside" plants in the suburbs, the factors can make or break you. So can an unseasonable change in weather, a sudden drop in prices or a radically new style change.

RIPE FOR CRIME

Crime investigators have known for a long time that fickle fashion, tight profit margins, loose credit and all around dependency on the trucking industry can make a fertile field for extortion, intimidation and shakedown.

The racketeers have known it even longer—Arnold Rothstein and Jack (Legs) Diamond in the 1920s, Louis (Lepke) Buchalter (later executed; and Murder Inc., in the 1930s. Thomas (Three Finger Brown) Luchese, and "Scarface" Locis Lieberman in the 1940s and John (Johnny Dio) Dioguardi (now awaiting trial in the acid blinding of labor columnist Victor Riesel) and Anthony (Tony Ducks) Corallo in the 1950s.

Though subject to certain refinements and now limited mostly to the lower-priced dress lines, the old shakedown has not changed appreciably through the tumultuous years. It still retains the classic outlines of influence peddlers offering unscrupulous, or intimidated manufacturers an "edge" over their competition by having their work done for less, for a price, in non-union shops. Racketeer truckers act as the go-between.

The theory behind the system is simple arithmetic—a dress manufacturer might prefer paying $100 a week to a racketeer to burdening his payroll with union scale wages. Since it is not against the law to operate a non-union shop, this type of connivance is hard to prove.

LUCKY COMPETITOR

FOIL RUSTLERS

IPSWICH, England (CP)—Thousands of Christmas turkeys, ducks and chickens in flatfish are being tattooed with a secret mark to foil poultry thieves. Each farmer has his own registered mark.

Why then has it been unable to cope with racketeers operating in non-union shops and sometimes in violation of union contracts? One answer is that an industry of many small shops, with sub-contractors scattered through the suburbs, is hard to police.

One-Man Strike Ends

PUC chairman Dewitt Miller said Friday that meter-reader Elwyn Chamney had returned to work and that the National Union of Public Service Employees (Ind) has called off picketing. Mr. Miller went on strike a few days ago on a union recognition grievance and organized a small picket line.

Mr. Miller said that no concessions have been made either to the union or to Mr. Chamney.

Contract Awarded To Build Bridge

MONTREAL (CP) — McNamara Construction Company, Ltd. of Toronto has been awarded a $1,240,350 contract to build the substructure of a high-level suspension bridge at Cornwall Island for the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, it was announced Friday.

McNamara's, lowest of three bids, calls for the work to be completed by Aug. 31, 1957.

The bridge is to be over the south St. Lawrence channel, linking the United States from a point eight miles northeast of Massena, N.Y., to Cornwall Island. It will provide for double-lane traffic.

The superstructure is to be built by the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation of the United States, the Canadian authority said.

SOFTLY DOES IT

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A customer entered Fred P. Skill's shoe repair shop, took off his shoes, and asked Skill to put on new rubber heels. The cobbler took the shoes to the rear of the shop Friday, fitted the heels and returned to the counter. The customer was gone. So was $130 from the cash register.

Beaver Plentiful In Kenora Area

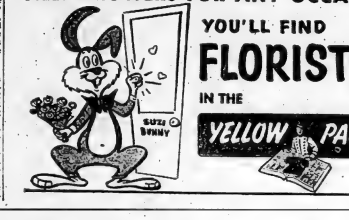
KENORA, Ont. (CP) — Twenty years ago the sight of beaver in the surrounding district here was an oddity, but today discussion centres around the questions of control and trapping.



The Department of Lands and Forests estimates the present beaver population here at 62,000 animals. During the 1955-56 season trappers reported 9,463 beaver houses compared with a 1946-47 count of 1,962. An air survey this year shows there has been another considerable increase.

Trappers have been advised by the department it would be more profitable for them if this rapid increase was controlled by trapping pressure rather than by natural means.

Experts say 30 per cent of the total beaver population can be taken without harming the breeding stock. Using this as an index, trappers this season can collect 18,000 beaver from an area almost devoid of beaver a few seasons ago.

2ND THURLOW —

Neighbours' Aid Elects Officers

2ND THURLOW. — The November meeting of the Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Corah Howard on Wednesday afternoon. About 25 members and visitors were present.

The president, Mrs. M. Mitchell, opened the meeting in the usual manner, welcomed all and thanked the hostess for opening her home for the meeting.

The secretary, Mrs. M. Dent, read the minutes and correspondence.

As this was the business meeting the treasurer, Mrs. H. Thomson, gave the financial standing for the year, which proved most gratifying with donations to many charitable causes through the year, Salvation Army, Institute for the Blind, and needy families.

The auditors' report was given by Mrs. E. Vivian. The president called on Mrs. Douglas Atkins to conduct the election of officers. The offices werereall declared vacant with the following results: president, Mrs. M. Mitchell, (second term); 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. Chumbley (second term); 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Gerald Stratton (second term); secretary, Mrs. M. Dent, (fifth term); treasurer, Mrs. H. Thomson (fifth term); pianist, Mrs. George Ashley (second term); assistant, Mrs. Robert Atkins (fourth term); flower committee, Down Road — Mrs. Corah Howard, Mrs. B. Pratt; Up Road— Mrs. Cecil Keene, assistant, Mrs. Don Leeming; press reporter, Mrs. Douglas Atkins; auditors, Mrs. E. Vivian and Mrs. A. Crestrix.

Mrs. F. Mitchell, and Mrs. D. Whalen wished to be relieved of the office on the Up Road flower committee. Mrs. Mitchell has served very efficiently for over 30 years and Mrs. Whalen for about 10 years. Both capably filled their offices with many boxes of fruit, plants, cards for the sick, boxes for shut-ins at Christmas time being packed and delivered over the period of years.

The meeting was turned over to the president, who took charge of the program, prepared by Mrs. F. Mitchell, who was unable to attend on account of illness.

Guitar solo, Mrs. B. Pratt; reading, Mrs. Bill Leeming.

The speaker, who had been arranged for, was unable to attend. A "Snow" contest with the ladies forming in groups of four, was enjoyed with Mesdames H. Grills, R. Chestrix, O. Stratton and S. Stickney having the most right. Mesdames D. Leeming, H. Leeming, J. Iddon having the least. Each group received a gift.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. J. Chumbley on December 12. Mrs. A. Mitchell is to arrange the Christmas program.

A euchre party with Mrs. H. Thomson and Mrs. Chumbley to look after arrangements for Friday night, December 7 at S.S. No. 4 Thurlow.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. C. Howard and Mesdames G. Keene, Clinton Grills, B. Pratt and M. Dent.

START NEW LINER

PARIS (Reuters) — The keel of the 55,000-ton liner France to be built for the French Line for the Le Havre-New York run, will be laid at the St. Nazaire-Penhoet shipyard next October, Antoine Mazier told the French National Assembly Friday night. The ship will be completed in October, 1961.

Thomasburg

Congratulations are extended to the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Thompson of Moira, who were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Holbert on Saturday, November 24, at 7.30 p.m.

Mrs. W. A. Morton is visiting her sister, Miss Emma Porter at present.

Mrs. H. E. Thompson spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Thompson of Belleville.

Streets are slippery, the result of the snow, which fell on Sunday night and Monday.

PRESLEY HAIRCUT SHORN

ROMEO, Mich. (AP)—The last "Elvis Presley" haircut in Romeo bowed to a barber's shears Thursday. Now Robert Pierneiten, 14, can go back to high school for the first time since Nov. 8. After two edicts from the board of education he was expelled, then lost a court fight for the right to keep the curls above his ears and still attend classes. The boy's mother said the family came to the decision to cut so Robert could get an education.

American Public Bamboozled Out of Millions Each Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pie-in-the-sky promoters are bamboozling the American public out of more than $150,000,000 a year in the biggest explosion of wildcat stock ventures since the roaring 1920s.

Officials of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC)—the federal "watchdog" agency over securities—are broadcasting that warning as complaints from victims of get-rich-quick stock schemes pour in from all parts of the country.

The SEC's big headache is that thousands of investors, caught up in the fever of a stock market boom, are cashing in gilt-edge "blue chip" stocks to buy risky or worthless securities sold to them over the telephone by total strangers.

SELL MOOSE PASTURE

Why do they do it?

Tim Callahan, SEC special investigator, shook his head wearily.

"It's incredible," he said, "just incredible what people will fall for."

The 61-year-old Callahan said "boiler room" gyp artists masquerading as reputable brokers are peddling frozen Canadian moose pasture and Rocky Mountain goat runs for tens of millions of dollars—and inflicting widespread heartbreak and tragedy.

"Telephone pitchmen, called boilers or dynamiters, put the pressure on victims to find out what securities they own and then switch them out of good, sound stocks and bonds into cheap unlisted securities," Callahan said.

Pitchmen get the names of prospective victims in a variety of ways including the purchase of lists from disgruntled former employees of reputable investment houses. Others may advertise investment advice. Then there are operators who specialize in drawing up lists and selling them to pitchmen for two cents a name.

Physicians, prime targets of the fast - buck brigade, rank high among the easiest marks—apparently because many of them have sizable incomes and are too busy to investigate the claims of bluesky stock peddlers.

FOREIGN STUDENTS

LONDON (CP) — Some 1,200 persons have come to Britain during the past six years under the Colombo Plan technical cooperation scheme, officials report. Among subjects studied are health education, ophthalmic nursing and the work of the operating-theatre nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. William Steele, also Mr. and Mrs. Norman Scott, spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grondde, in Kingston.

Mrs. Gladys Loyst called on friends in Kingston, Friday.

Mrs. Christopher Hawes and Mrs. Clarke Barker called on friends in Perth, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Edwards, also Mrs. William Loyst called on friends in Tweed, on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Clancy, of Henderson, spent Friday evening with friends here.

Mrs. Nora Gendron visited her father, Mr. Garett Shorts, at Henderson, last week.

Mrs. Stanley Loyst has returned home after visiting her daughter, Mrs. Gerald Inglis, and Mr. Inglis, at Tweed.

Famous Trichologist Will Demonstrate How To Grow Thicker Hair . . . And Guarantees It!

DEMONSTRATIONS TO BE HELD HERE

This new method of home treatment for saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Belleville, Ontario, on Wednesday, Dec. 5th.

These private individual demonstrations will be held at the New Queen's Hotel on Wednesday only.

LONDON, Ont. — In an interview here today, William L. Keele, internationally famous trichologist and director of the Keele Hair, said "there are 18 different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense a person must realize no one tonic or so-called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

Guaranteed

"The Keele firm, recognizing that most people are skeptical of claims that hair can be grown on balding heads, offers a guarantee. "If your hair is not completely satisfied with your hair progress at the end of 30 days your money will be returned."

Hopeless Cases Discouraged

First, the trichologist is quick to tell hopeless cases that they cannot be helped. But the "hopeless" cases are few. Only if a man is completely, shiny bald is he in this lost category.

If there is fuzz, no matter how light, thin or colorless, the Keele treatment can perform wonders.

Free Examination

This examination is very thorough and highly technical, it requires 20 to 30 minutes. The trichologist makes no charge for this examination and no appointment is necessary. After the examination the person is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost.

After starting treatments, the person makes regular reports to the Keele firm in London to check the progress of the home treatment.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, independent trichologists are visiting various cities to conduct examinations and start home treatments.

No Cure-All

"We have no cure-all for slick shiny baldness," Keele emphasizes. "If there is fuzz, the root is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."

There is one thing Keele wants to tell each every man and woman knows. If a recession appears at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

Hair For Lifetime

If clients follow our direction during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Keele said "our firm is definitely behind this treatment, it all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."

How's Your Hair?

If it worries you call Trichologist Ernest A. Lezzie at the New Queen's Hotel in Belleville, Ont., on Wednesday Only, December 5, 12 noon to 5.00 p.m. The public is invited.

You do not need an appointment. The examinations are private and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Both men and women are welcome.

Session Produced Declaration Of Independence in National Affairs by Canadian Govt.

OTTAWA, (CP)—Whatever else may be said of last week's special session of Parliament, it produced a strong declaration of independence in international affairs by the Canadian government.

They were obviously stung by Progressive Conservative charges that in the Middle East crisis the government had followed a course of "gratuitous condemnation" of the Anglo-French armed intervention, and that in foreign policy generally it was "the United States' cheer boy."

CHARTER MISTREATED

In his reply, Mr. St. Laurent said he had been "scandalized more than once" by the attitude of the larger powers which all too frequently treated the United Nations Charter as a means of registering smaller nations.

The big powers disregarded the charter when their own so-called vital interests were at stake." They "could not allow this crowd of smaller nations to end decisively" on questions concerned with these vital interests.

But, the prime minister said, the peoples of the smaller countries are "not sheep." He went on to say that "the ers when the supermen of Europe could govern the world has and is coming to a pretty close end."

Mr. St. Laurent said the UN had placed, "and I think rightly so," some blame on the British, French and Israelis for "taking the law into their own hands."

TORY ATTACKED

The Conservatives hammered away at the prime minister's statement accusing the government of casting Britain and France in the role of aggressors and of hitting in the back Canada's mother countries.

The "back" reference was made by a senior Conservative, Howard Green of Vancouver Quadra, who said the Canadian government was "so busy currying favor with the U. S. that it did not have the "backbone" to vote against the U. S. in the UN.

Mr. Pearson replied sharply that Canada never had and never would perform such a role.

"It is bad to be a chore boy of the U. S." he said, "but it is equally bad to be a colonial chore boy running around shouting 'ready, aye, ready.'"

SETS OUT POLICY

Referring to the attitude of Canada's delegation in the Middle East crisis he set out this policy:

Booklet Warns Servicemen Not to Try Polar Bear Liver

OTTAWA (CP) — Boiled or stewed rodents and even roasted insects will help keep Canadian soldiers alive if they are lost in the Far North.

But a new army booklet entitled A Soldier's Guide to the North warns servicemen not to try polar bear liver. It's poisonous.

The 122-page booklet, released here Friday by army headquarters, is designed to help soldiers to survive if they become lost while on duty at northern defence outposts.

The booklet says all animals in the North, including rodents, and even insects can be eaten. Meat should be slowly boiled or stewed but insects are best roasted.

All plants in the Arctic can be eaten.

The most readily edible plants are berries which may be eaten raw or stewed.

The greens of most plants, including leaves, seaweed, lichen and moss, also may be eaten raw or boiled. Needles of spruce, fir and pine trees make stimulating beverages.

The opening paragraph of the booklet warns soldiers that they must be prepared to live and fight in the Arctic.

Separate chapters are devoted to methods of keeping warm, caring for clothing, sleeping bags, weapons and camping equipment, loading, lashing and hauling toboggans and constructing shelters, including igloos, snow caves and snow trenches.

The booklet is written in a serious straightforward vein. However, it is brightened by some 30 cartoons drawn by Capt. J. S. (Stu) Stratton of Ottawa, now serving as quartermaster at Eastern Ontario Headquarters, Kingston.

Other tips in the book:

Shave before going to bed to allow the hair to grow and prevent the skin from becoming sore in the cold.

WASHINGTON (AP) — One Washington tree service advertises:

"A tree removal 'do it yourself' kit. One rented chain saw, one set of splints can be used on either arm or either leg, one stretcher, one ambulance on stand-by basis. "Or let us do it for you, safely."

Davie Fulton Critical of Blanket Increase

HALIFAX (CP)—Davie Fulton, candidate for national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, said here Saturday that "blanket increases" in bank interest charges discriminate against the not-so-rich areas of Canada.

"I don't know whether rates should be set regionally," he said, "when rates are applied to a Central Canadian economy then areas like the Maritimes are bound to suffer."

During a press conference he commented on the Privy Council of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council, which he attended in Saint John, N.B., on his way to Halifax.

He said the council, which fights for regional development, should be supported all across Canada and the federal government should take more interest in furthering the organization's cause.

This could be done, he suggested by backing provincial bonds and taking a direct part in provincial development, he included bank rate adjustments in this development.

voting. That seems to me to be the only possible course for a Canadian delegation to follow. . . ."

He said of this policy:

"It was an objective attitude, it was a Canadian and an independent attitude."

St. Laurent spoke in a more conciliatory tone on the last day of the session, but emphasized the government's stand. The prime minister considered views frankly to all our friends, in no blustering terms . . . but in frank terms."

PRESENT AWARDS

TORONTO (CP)—Safety awards were presented Saturday to 64 boys and girls from Ontario counties and to six police officers. One silver police award was made posthumously. Each of the children received a safety certificate and a crest at a presentation ceremony before Attorney-General Roberts and Highways Minister Allan of Ontario.

WAR-TORN FAMILY IS FINALLY REUNITED

Happy indeed are Mr. and Mrs. Marian Pietrzak of London, Ont., following recent reunion with their 17-year-old daughter, Mary, in centre. Mary had never seen her father and was only a baby when her mother gave her to an aunt before she left Poland for a labor camp in Germany. While fighting with the Polish army Marian Pietrzak was captured and sent to a prisoner-of-war camp in September of 1939, three months before his daughter was born. When the war ended, the Pietrzaks reunited in Germany and went to Belgium where Mr. Pietrzak worked as a miner to save enough money to come to Canada in 1952. Since then they had been negotiating with the International Red Cross to get their daughter out of Poland. (Central Press Canadian).

Delegation Asks Representation In United Nations

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of the Canadian Hungarian Federation Sunday called on Canadian cabinet ministers to ask that Canada demand replacement of the present Hungarian delegation in the United Nations by representatives of the "free Hungarian nation."

The delegation also expressed thanks for Canada's quick and humane action to relieve Hungarian suffering.

Finance Minister Harris, acting for Immigration Minister Pickersgill who has gone to Vienna to facilitate movement of Hungarian refugees to Canada, received the Hungarians in the Parliament Buildings. Several other cabinet members were also present.

The Hungarians read a statement expressing gratitude for the opening of Canada's doors to Hungarian refugees and for the $1,000,000 approved for Hungarian relief by Parliament last week.

A mere trickle of oil in the Mediterranean area now flows through the Saudi Arabian pipeline to Sidon, 40 miles from Beirut, Lebanon. There, ships are waiting to accept all the oil from the pipeline which is first put into the huge storage tanks, left, then piped into the ships by gravity feed. The engineer, left, regulates the flow from tank to ship, which is accomplished with a 12-inch hose leading hundreds of yards from shore to ship. No British or French ships are being filled at Sidon because of the anger of the Arab peoples at the attack on Egypt. Blocking of the Suez and the blasting of oil pipelines has cut off 550,000 barrels of oil a day, most of which was shipped to France. (Central Press Canadian).

Adventure Playground Is New Sort of Open Air Youth Centre To Keep Children off Streets

ROMFORD, England (AP) — The two small boys and one girl who shivered in coats that looked too thin almost at the cold wall-gazing—at the two and then into a homemade house for their birds and animals.

"We don't mind the weather ourselves," said the blue-eyed girl. "It's the pets we're worrying about. We've got no warm place to house them and winter's coming on."

There three children were but a part of the population of Romford's Adventure Playground, an experiment in a new sort of open air youth centre to keep children off the streets—and to keep them amused.

A year ago the playground was a weedy dump heap 10 miles from London's teeming and tough East End.

Alter 12 months it has become a happy meeting place for 300 high spirited British youngsters who may be mischievous, but seldom bored.

MISCHIEF ALLOWED

"These children," said their supervisor, Mrs. Amy Cowell, a 46-year-old grandmother, "can get into mischief, but they don't get into trouble. That's the difference."

Alderman F. C. Bell, an ex-sailor and former mayor, said to Chairman of Romford Council:

"The borough council doesn't care what you do there. Instead of breaking Mrs. Cowell's windows here and try to take that steam roller apart."

Mrs. Crockford pointed to a brightly painted steamroller, the huge wheels of which stood in solid cement.

"Next to birds and animals," she said, "the steamroller is the most popular attraction and, did you know, it hasn't cemented to the ground, they would take it apart."

SATISFY URGES

Behind the steamroller stood two tractors. Their wheels also were anchored in cement. And off in one corner was a clump of open-mouthed sewer pipes.

"We just turn the boys and girls loose," said the supervisor, "one of the greatest urges in youth is to climb into sewer pipes. We've got the pipes here, but no sewers running through them. The mothers appreciate the difference."

In another corner of the lot a group of children were building a fire. And with real matches too.

"That's something else we let them do," explained Mrs. Crockford, "build fires. A year and we've had no burned fingers. In fact, a year and not a single accident."

SOME OPPOSITION

Starting Romford's Adventure Playground was not easy. There was angry opposition from some officials and townspeople.

"Children between the ages of 6 and 18, who do not find it easy or congenial to join organized clubs, the Scouts or the Girl Guides, present a challenge that so far has not been realistically met in Great Britain.

"Adventure playgrounds may be the answer."

It is Mrs. Cowell's duty to see that the Adventure Playground gets a lot of mail. Most of it is complimentary, but a few complaints still come in. The prize letter is from a woman who complained bitterly about the wild goings-on at the once vacant lot.

She wrote that she and her husband drove down one day to complain in person. They just happened to bring their eight-year-old son along in their automobile.

"We parked beside the lot," wrote the woman. "My son took one look and yelled, 'Wow, a steamroller.' He scrambled out of the car before we could stop him —and ran to join the children playing on it."

TO BECOME STORE

OPENS NEW HOSPITAL

WINNIPEG (CP) — Lieutenant-Governor J. S. McDiarmid of Manitoba officially opened the new Winnipeg Children's Hospital Sunday. The $3,000,000, six-level hospital is the only one of its kind between Toronto and Vancouver. The cross-shaped, brick building contains 245 beds and cribs.

WINDSOR BOASTS OF ITS TEEN-AGE TYCOONS

The city of Windsor is alive with teen-age tycoons these days, as the First Youth Achievement program in Ontario gets into full swing. Some 2800 teen-agers, comprising 17 "mini companies"—each with its own board of directors, constitutions, etc.—are turning out all sorts of useful things which they sell themselves from door-to-door, or through a dealer. They made shoe-shine stands, toaster covers, knick-knack stands and house numbers, which 16-year-old Maureen Norwood is seen working on during the two hours a week the "employees" meet. The idea behind "Youth Achievement" is to teach high school students by actual experience, what goes into the planning, manufacture and distribution of products. (Central Press Canadian).

Conservatives Assail CBC 'Discrimination'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party today charged "discrimination" by the CBC for not planning television network coverage of the keynote speech on the first evening of the Conservative leadership convention Dec. 12.

A statement from party headquarters said the CBC's "final decision" not to televise any part of the evening's proceedings "has come as a distinct disappointment to members of the Conservative party."

A keynote speech by Nova Scotia's newly-elected Premier Stanfield is scheduled for the evening of Dec. 12, first day of the three-day convention to choose a successor to Hon. George Drew.

The speech will be carried on a CBC radio network but not on television.

NINE-HOUR COVERAGE

The party statement said the CBC now plans to cover nine hours of the three-day convention on network television, six hours of it in the afternoon. It added the CBC TV network carried a total of 19 hours of nighttime broadcasts on this year's two Liberal-Labor party conventions and U.S. election. It had carried keynote speeches of both U.S. conventions.

The party said on the U.S. election night the CBC had canceled two revenue-earning programs to give television coverage of election returns, Premier Stanfield's speech Dec. 12 was scheduled for 9 p.m., when Kraft Theatre, a sponsored program from New York, was scheduled for TV.

"The Conservative party is thus forced to conclude that the CBC considers television coverage of an American convention, or a dramatic program originating in the United States, to be of more importance than coverage of a convention of one of Canada's two major political parties."

Despite Split in Anglo-U.S. Relationship Each Recognizes Need One Has for the Other

WASHINGTON (CP) — Anglo-American relationships are at their lowest ebb in decades and it may be years—certainly months —before they return to any semblance of normality.

For the moment, the alliance between the two great powers which share the gifts of a common tongue and a common heritage, appears to be on a day-to-day basis. One day, the gulf between them seems to widen; the next day it narrows.

Here, as at the United Nations, the comfortable sense of trust that once characterized the easy-going relationships between the two countries no longer exists. The diplomatic atmosphere is cordial but cool.

HEALING NEEDED

At the same time, there is a deep realization in responsible quarters here that a tower is in London and Paris, that quick steps must be taken to start the healing the breach between the United States and her old Western allies —Britain and France—before the estrangement work too greatly to the advantage of the Soviet Union.

Official Washington, despite anything it may say for public consumption, still has deeply hurt by the Anglo-French decision to intervene in the Middle East militarily without consulting the United States beforehand. That, one questions prior consultation is considered to be the thing that sticks int be administration's craw.

Slate department officials will tell you that they are not aware of what prompted the diplomatic bridge and that the thing now to do is to forget about the past and help they still hark back to the Anglo-French attack on Suez.

It is all-very well to talk about cluse and intimate relationships but "you can't carry on over the street," one senior official said. She wrote that the army and navy to the British about Formosa and what we would do in a similar situation. Now we are told we can't expected our close allies to do the same."

In the United Nations, the United States stands in strange isolation, lining up one day with the Soviet Union, voting the next with the Afro-Asian bloc against her old comrades-in-arms.

ALLIANCE SAFE

Officials are more unhappy about their position in the UN than the American people realize. They also assert that the situation is not of their choosing, that it has been forced upon them by the British and the French.

As a result, all his, there is no thought in Washington, as there obviously is none in London or Paris, of any damage to the grand alliance is irreparable and that the alliance will emerge from the present storm.

There still is the common menace of Soviet imperialism and an acute recognition here that the U.S., if she is to meet that threat, needs her old allies as much as they need her.

Even three countries still are closely linked in the 14-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization and, should Russia move against any of them, there is not a shred of a doubt here that the U.S. would be in the back of the fighting.

American government policy in the Middle East crisis does not enjoy full support in the United States—certainly not full editorial or columnist support. Many of the country's seasoned commentators and political writers have blamed the crisis on the vacillations of American foreign policy and have supported the criticism of its self-righteous attitude towards Britain and France.

U.S. OVERTURES

Responsible American newspapers have been calling on the administration to take steps to restore unity with the British and the French. Some suggest the first overtures should come from Washington.

President Eisenhower already has moved in that direction with his statement noting that the differences between the three allies concern only a single incident and should not be construed as a "weakening or disruption" of the great bond linking them.

Quietly, and in the diplomatic background, Canada has been working both here and at the United Nations to help patch up the Anglo-American relationship. Her mission has been to pass her own views on to the U.S. government and, at the same time, try to interpret the British viewpoint to the Americans. All this is apart from the Canadian contributions to the UN police force.

Anglo - American relationships, in Washington at least, seem to have gone through three phases since that fateful October day when the British and the French announced jointly that they would move into Egypt if the Israeli-Egyptian fighting did not cease.

There first was shock and be-

Words From Past Cool Council's Esteem for King

WINCHESTER, England (AP) — The city fathers have given the cold on a plan to erect a statue of King Henry III in Hampshire County's new council building.

The project went into the deep freeze as a result of some historical research by Councillor H. M. King, who found that the 13th-century monarch—who styled himself "Henry of Winchester" — once remarked:

"The city and the district stink. I was born in this city and yet nowhere have I been so disgracefully treated. There is no county so infamous in England, none stained so deep in crime."

wilderment and then anger at the Anglo-French failure to consult Washington. This was followed by a softening attitude when the British and the French agreed to the UN call to withdraw their forces from Egypt. Washington now appears to be in the process of a slow burn because the forces are not being withdrawn quickly enough.

FAMILY QUARREL

But in these stages does there appear to have been any appreciable acceptance of the British explanations of their military intervention was a form of "police action" nor any recognition of the British claim that the action might have averted a full-scale eruption of fighting in the tinder-dry Middle East.

Instead, the old friends quarrel, there are exaggerations about the degree of warmth or coolness in their relationship.

One such incident occurred recently when British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd came down to Washington from the United Nations on a rainy Saturday afternoon. Some American newspapers reported he had been rebuffed when he tried to see Eisenhower at the White House to talk over the crisis.

British sources say Lloyd was here on an entirely friendly and private visit and had no thought of trying to button-hole the president.

Beer-Drinking Elephant Happy With Some Suds

HALIFAX, Eng. (AP) — A beer-drinking elephant showed up outside the door of the Halifax Hotel and stuck a long, hairy trunk into the pub keeper William McNamara's window.

"Bring her some beer," said Albert Kean, the elephant's keeper.

The barman rubbed his eyes. Two customers blinked. He quickly dished like a rear door, McNamara drew a gallon of beer in pints and slid the suds in front of Jumbo. She drank it all.

New "Two Crop Economy"
Twice as Many Pay-days

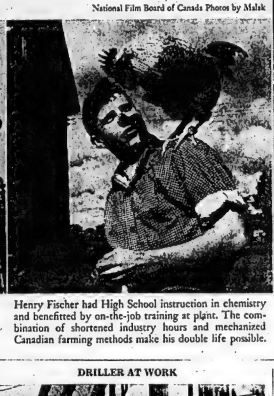
Double incomes are possible now for many Canadians, thanks to shorter working hours and the decentralizing of industry. Henry Fischer, a new Canadian, 22 years old and married, leads a double life. He came to Canada from Czechoslovakia in 1939, and is now a laboratory worker in a Nylon plant near Maitland, Ontario. In his off-hours he is a successful farmer. Such double contribution to Canada's economy is changing social patterns in rural communities.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Malak



Lawrence Dutfield, a tool crib attendant at factory, raises beef cattle as successful side line. He finds that even double occupation does not overtax his physical resources, and is active in Church and boys' work.

The examples of Dool, Fischer and Dutfield are typical of the lives of other Canadians in all ten provinces, and economists look with optimism to the future. The new Canadian "two crop economy" is here to stay.

Lorne Dool, a construction worker most of his life, in 1950 bought 200 acres of land, and now enjoys double income and increased security. His industrial day ends with the blowing of a whistle, and his farm day begins.

Henry Fischer had High School instruction in chemistry and benefitted by on-the-job training at plant. The combination of shortened industry hours and mechanized Canadian farming methods make his double life possible.

Following a time-honoured custom, neighbours join the Dool family at haying time. Dool grows both grain and hay, has seven milking cows and poultry. Rural communities benefit equally with individual part-time farmers, because the consequences of possible industrial shutdowns, while still serious, no longer mean disaster. Double pay cheques have brought most modern farm equipment within reasonable reach.

Canadian Devonian Petroleums Success Story in Oil Business Of Southeastern Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP)—Ask for a local oil-success story around Regina and probably you will be referred to Canadian Devonian Petroleums Ltd.

It is a snug company, operating with a staff of six from smart but compact Regina offices.

In 1953, and several times before, it was near failure and its stock could be bought for 42 cents a share. This year it touched $9.35 and is currently selling around $6.25. It estimates its known reserves at 20,000,000 barrels.

Southeast Saskatchewan — current oil sensation—spelled the difference.

It all started in 1949 when a small group—mainly young Reginans in their 30s who could put up $10,000 to $15,000 apiece—decided to get into the oil business in some way.

They knew relatively little about oil, and decided on a drilling company. So they bought a rig, got Charles Hawke of Calgary as drilling superintendent and called their venture the Hawke Drilling Company.

They nearly went under almost right away when a lost tool in a well they were drilling in Alberta cost them $125,000 in a "fishing" job.

In late 1950 and early 1951, however—in contract with California Standard Company — they drilled the discovery well in Manitoba's Daly Field which set off the whole present Manitoba-southeast Saskatchewan "play."

They made some money on that and formed Devonian Petroleums Ltd., a Saskatchewan company.

BIG OIL LEASE

More important for their future, they acquired an oil lease on 100,000 acres in southeast Saskatchewan under crown permit 351.

Then, under Dominion charter, they formed the present company, Canadian Devonian, which acquired Devonian Petroleums and Hawke Drilling; and the new company raised $1,800,000 on a stock issue offered at $1 a share.

Early in 1952 R. A. Cruickshank, a young lawyer with legal experience in oil, turned his back on a 10-year law practice to join the company as manager of lands and administration. He was its first full-time employee and he hired 17-year-old Clifford Feisel, graduate of Regina's Balfour Technical School, as his only assistant.

The succeeding period was rough. About a dozen deals with other companies ended in dry holes. An American subsidiary—Northern Plains Petroleum Company—drilled without success in Oklahoma, Michigan and Wyoming and lost money.

So, in 1953, the company had no oil, no income, and its stock, which had reached $1.85 in 1952, was down to 42 cents.

FARMED OUT PERMIT

Then it farmed out on a 50-50 basis its 100,000 - acre permit in southeast Saskatchewan to Canadian Gulf Oil Company—now part of British American Oil Company — in the hope that Gulf's great success in Alberta would hold out in Saskatchewan.

It did. On March 11, 1954, Gulf brought in Quinn No. 9 well at Frobisher—the Southeast's discovery well.

Canadian Devonian stock went to $2.35 and it raised $600,000 by issuing rights to shareholders to buy additional stock.

Since then, 74 producing wells have been drilled on the Saskatchewan acreage. Devonian also has eight producing wells in Manitoba, a small interest in three Alberta wells, and considerable other oil acreage in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Income is running around $100,000 a month.

Mr. Cruickshank now is general manager and a director. His first employee, Clifford Feisel, at 21, is land man, oil - scout, draftsman and, when needed, pinch hits at typing and dictation.

OTHER STAFF MEMBERS

Jean L. Lee, an Oklahoman who thinks Canada is the greatest show on earth and intends to stay here, is its geologist. He has done work for the company since 1951. J. A. S. Gibson manages the land department; and Mrs. Kathleen Hall and Mrs. Dorothy Fleman, secretaries, round out the staff of six.

"There were times when we didn't know enough to quit."

Others in the original or early groups included: Fred W. Hill, real estate and insurance man; W. H. A. Hill, his father; G. E. Ross Smith, hotel operator; J. V. King, contractor; G. M. Forbes, lawyer —all of Regina; and H. C. Pinder, drugstore owner, Saskatoon; Dr. F. Yandel, Humboldt, Sask.; and W. H. Strickler, Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Of the early participants, Messrs. Leishman, Cruickshank, W. H. A. Hill, Ross Smith, King, Forbes, Pinder and Strickler comprise the directorate, along with Gordon Lawson of Winnipeg. Mr. Pinder is vice-president, Mr. Ross Smith treasurer and Mr. Forbes secretary.

DRILLER AT WORK

This British-American Oil Co. photo shows driller T. Todd at work at the foot of one of the big oil derricks that dot the prairie in the Steadman oil field of southeastern Saskatchewan. The Southeastern part of the province is a current oil sensation and one seven-year-old company, started mainly by young Reginians, now has an income of around $100,000 a month. (CP Photo).

CAMPBELLFORD
175 Attend Lions Club 'Ladies Night'

CAMPBELLFORD — About 175 persons attended the annual charter anniversary banquet of the Campbellford Lions Club on Thursday evening in the Masonic Hall. The event was held in the form of "Ladies Night."

The ladies of Rebekah Lodge catered to the group.

Lion president Bruce Connor opened the dinner meeting by welcoming all guests. He then turned the meeting over to chairman Lion Bruce Wallace, who conducted as chairman for the evening.

A draw for a $100 bill was won by William McComb, of Campbellford, and a draw for a dollar covered with $1. bill was won by Mrs. John Ross, of Belleville.

GUESTS

After introducing the guests, who included United Counties Warden and Mayor elect of Campbellford, Douglas R. Mayhee and Mrs. Mayhee, representing the town of Campbellford; Leo Doherty and Mrs. Doherty representing the Campbellford Rotary Club; Dante Pace and Mrs. Pace representing the Kinsmen Club; Donald Meyers and Mrs. Meyers representing the Chamber of Commerce; Bud Ayrhart and Mrs. Ayrhart representing the Canadian Legion; Lion James Jones and Mrs. Johns, District Governor of district A3; Lion Roy Spencer and Mrs. Spencer, Deputy District Governor of district A3, and many other distinguished guests, chairman Bruce called on Lion Marshall Sills to render a few selections on Marimba. He was accompanied by Miss Donna Sharp. Donald Baldwin sang a solo, also accompanied by Miss Sharp.

Lion Harry Bradley introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Richard Jones, Mr. Jones is secretary of the Christian Association of Jews and chose his topic, "Brotherhood". He stated that "to have true brotherhood, we must all be friends, both at home and abroad." He asked everyone to help "National Brotherhood Week", which will be held next year in February.

Deputy District Governor Lion Roy Spencer thanked the speaker.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing to the music of Peter Bateman and his orchestra.

Albury

ALBURY — The Rednersville W.I. was entertained by Wellington W.I. on Tuesday evening in Wellington hall with 20 ladies enjoying the evening.

The Rednersville W.I. entertained Mrs. Armstrong of the Extension Course and the Mountain View W.I. on Wednesday. The meeting started at 10.30 and the Rednersville ladies served a delicious dinner. Mrs. Armstrong was a lovely speaker and told everyone many points every institute should know.

The Rednersville W.I. held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Harmon Montgomery, on Thursday evening with 42 being present. The 1st vice president, Mrs. Harmon Montgomery, took charge of the meeting, conducting the business. Mrs. Douglas Redner and Mrs. Hubert Townsend were conveners for the program. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brooks, of Frankford, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Weese.

Mr. Douglas Williams spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Williamson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Russell spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Peck.

St. Mike's Winger Scores 7 Goals Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

On the strength of his amateur record, Bob Boucher appears destined for great things in the National Hockey League in years to come.

The Toronto St. Michael's College right winger scored seven of his team's 11 goals in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A Series during the weekend.

A heavy scorer with Montreal Junior Canadiens last season, Boucher fired an amazing six goals Saturday night, but Majors lost 10-9 to Teepees at St. Catharines.

Boucher added another goal Sunday as Majors won 4-1 over Hamilton Cubs. On another occasion this season, Boucher came up with a five-goal effort.

In all, Boucher has scored 20 goals in Majors' 16 games this year and is probably the best reason why Majors are still in the running for upper-bracket honors.

At St. Catharines Saturday, it was anti-goaltender night. Teepees directed 33 shots at St. Michael's goalie Bob Savage, and St. Catharines' netminder Roy Edwards handled 36.

Adding to Boucher's six-goal outburst were Frank Mahovlich, Darryl Sly and Jack McMaster with a goal each.

Sunday at Toronto, however, Teepees found themselves on the other side of the tracks. Bob Nevin netted three goals for Marlboros. Brother John Nevin shot two and Wally Boyer, Gord Haughton, Henry Marczak and Ron Casey scored one apiece.

It was Len Broderick's third shutout of the season. He made only 12 stops. The relatively shotless game saw rookie St. Catharines goalie Gene Dostie let in nine of the 37 drives directed his way.

In the first game, Majors' marksmen were, in addition to Boucher, Gino Ubriaco, Mahovlich and Lorne Angotti. Brian Smith tallied Hamilton's only goal.

Osterhout Shells increased their league lead in the Industrial loop over the weekend by whipping National Steel 8-1. In the other contest, Don's Delivery overcame a three-goal deficit to tie Corbin Lock 3-3.

John McCrory tallied twice for Shells with the others split among Bud Payette, Cam Buskard, Bob Brooks, Bill Muirhead, Jim Spafford and Phil Correll. Pat Assistine spoiled Don Dolan's bid for a shutout.

Jerry Desjardin netted a pair and Genereaux one as Corbins' took an early 3-0 lead. Don's Delivery fought back however with Frank Cris, Bob Burrows and Bill Greatrix scoring in that order.

Belleville Minor Hockey Association

Canadiens, Barons, Browns and Black Hawks were winners Saturday morning in the bantam section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

Canadiens took the Bruins by a 3-1 score. R. Lee, B. Sutton and Weston fired the Hab goals with Reid getting one assist. Bill Cooney was the lone Bruin goal scorer, Jim Maund drawing an assist.

Paul Brown starred for the Black Hawks, firing both goals as they edged the Maple Leafs 2-1. Jim Chase set up Brown on both occasions while Peter Armstrong tallied for Leafs. Gerhestui was the Leaf assist.

Browns racked up a 5-2 victory over the Red Wings. Stu Muirhead scored twice with Claude Turner getting one and one. Ray Gaffney also scored while Hull had a goal and assist. Doug Doyle scored once and assisted on the other for the Wings. Bob Michaud also scored and Zakos had a helper.

Barons defeated the Rangers 4-3 with Blaker scoring a goal and an assist, Jeffery, Ted Rowland and Bill Rushlow fired a goal each with York and Follwell earning assists. Jerry Jones and Bill Wood had the Ranger goals and each helped on the other's goal.

Melbourne Will Set All-Time Attendance Mark

MELBOURNE (AP) — Olympic Games paid admissions reached almost the 1,500,000 mark Saturday which means Melbourne will set an all-time record with one week of the events still to go.

Never before have such throngs seen the Olympic track and field events—capacity crowds of 100,000 every day.

More amazing still, often half or more of this crowd came early each morning to watch events like the women's qualifying efforts in the high jump, in which only one girl was eliminated, or the men's qualifying in the shot put and javelin, in which good throws do not count in the finals, so no one extends himself.

Only the stadium at Los Angeles in 1932 was bigger than the Melbourne Cricket Grounds and this was little more than half full on many days.

The stadiums at Berlin in 1936, London in 1948 and Helsinki in 1952 often had big blocks of empty seats.

What's the reason for it? The Australians are simply crazy about sports.

Here are the unofficial figures for the various sports so far: opening day—ceremonies, 100,000; track and field 800,000; swimming 36,000; boxing 30,000; basketball 35,000; wrestling 20,000; fencing 20,000; rowing 50,000. Total 1,144,000.

Al Balding Finishes Third

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Al Balding of Toronto shot a 68 Sunday to take third place in the Invitational Open golf tournament here and win $1,000.

Top money of $2,000 went to Gardner Dickinson Jr., of Panama City, Fla., who finished with a five-underpar 67 to snatch the victory from Sam Snead.

Snead carded 73 on the final day of the 54-hole, three-day event and won $1,400.

Balding's fine performance moved him up from 12th spot at the start of Sunday's play. It Friday's round he shot a 74 and Saturday he had 71.

SEND ENCOURAGEMENT

BRANTFORD (CP)—A total of 1,092 Brantford citizens Sunday called their "best wishes for your triumphant victory" to Sara Barber, 15-year-old swimming star representing Canada at the Olympics in Melbourne.

Olympic Notes

MELBOURNE (AP) — Overseas correspondents here for the Olympic Games were treated to a giant outdoor barbecue Sunday at the famed Kooyong tennis courts.

Herds of beef and lambs and pigs by the hundreds must have been slaughtered to provide the endless supply of sizzling steaks, chops and sausages. Heady Australian beer flowed from spigots like a minor Niagara Falls.

And to make everybody happy, 400 beautiful Melbourne models were brought in to act as hostesses for the occasion.

The first real show of temperament of the Games was displayed by Alain Mimoun, slightly built Algerian-born Iron man who won the marathon for France. After struggling into the stadium at the end of the grind of 26 miles, 385 yards, Mimoun shook off efforts of Olympic officials to give him blankets and sweat-clothes. He refused to talk to the press. He went to the Olympic village where he remained unavailable to anyone for 24 hours.

He generally can, too, but this afternoon I was going to sock him just for luck, I didn't give a darn what happened. And then I thought I better count to 10 first, and by the time I got up to 7 I remembered he's got delicate shins, because one time I saw him get kicked in them, So I gave him a swift kick in the shin and he yelled and grabbed his leg and wanted to know why I thought I was, and I told him I was the world's champion kicker and I never missed and he didn't try to do anything else about it, I said.

So far so good, but the next time I advize you, for additional heth insurants, to walk fern away while you are counting, pop said.

SUNDAY DINNER

As a social custom, Sunday Dinner is not as common in the metropolitan centres as it used to be, but in Hometown Ontario, it's a thriving institution. Families are closer knit and get together more often. It's the exception when you find less than three generations sitting down to dinner on Sunday. And talk flows freely because of shared interests. Different age groups are less inclined to live in the watertight compartments that separate teen-agers from parents, and parents from grandparents in the Big City.

The family is still the key to the hometown way of life — what interests the family, interests the community. High in the scale of family interest is the Hometown Ontario daily newspaper and its generous quota of local news.

Ontario's 27 local daily papers thrive, despite powerful competition, because they belong. And because they belong, no media primarily aimed at metropolitan audiences have either the authority or the readership of the local daily. To get positive sales results, fast — use the Hometown Ontario newspapers. They're a sure entry into the "billion-dollar-plus" provincial market. Ask your advertising agency.

During 1955 local retailers purchased for in excess of 200,000,000 lines of advertising in Hometown Ontario daily Newspapers.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GOING STRONG

The McFarlands showed without a shadow of a doubt over the weekend that the Kingston senior hockey club is sold over Trenton this city in the past has been broken. "Tis many a weary year in this corner's memory since a Belleville club whomped a Limestone City over here, then turned around and whomped them by a bigger score in their own Reddenville ballwick.

Bep Guidolin's crew never played better balanced hockey than they did on Saturday night in Kingston after shellacking the Doughnuts 7-3 here Friday night. Led by Minnie Menard, who holds the pace-setting lead in the league race and Johnny Muretich who is rapidly coming into his own, the Macs unleashed a sustained offensive that netted them a pot of goals. Both Johnny and Minnie scored the hat trick with Lucien Gilbert, Bep Guidolin and Johnny Whalen connecting for the others with Johnny collecting a couple of helpers. "Bouncing Bernie" got into the points act, too, and registered his first assist of the season.

The defence corps of the Macs came up with one of its best collective efforts of the year. Maurice Benoit, in our opinion, one of the topflight defencemen in the league, led his stalwarts in a well-finished effort. Botley, Crawford and Bouncing Bernie Lamonde formed solid bulwarks in front of the reliable Gordie Bell.

Meanwhile, the Whitby Dunlops fattened their scoring averages at the expense of the Pembroke Lumber Kings up in Blairville, winning 11-3, with Attersley topping the parade with a hat trick and three assists. Pembroke's trip went to Verdun yesterday where they hooked up with the Ottawa Canadiens in a "home" game and the story Saturday night was the CKOC directors were going along with the hope of bringing back three or four players from the Canadiens' farm system.

In any event the Douglasmen lost their fourth game in a row, bowing to the Canadiens by an 8-6 score.

We may be putting an unintentional jinx on the Macs, but the records show they haven't lost a game since Gordie Bell took over the goalie post in the pipes. They have won four and tied one in their last five starts, and while it may be a coincidence, the entire club has been playing better hockey since they became the team for whom the-Bell tolls.

The Belleville Juniors, who meet the Kingston Frontenacs in an important Junior "B" tussle here tomorrow night are holding a practice this evening. The Mel Richards kids have been playing good hockey than far and they face a tough test tomorrow night against the Kingston club. And a little box-office support won't hurt either.

Wings, Habs, Hawks Blanked In Battles of Goalkeepers; Beliveau Leads Pack by Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The amazing Jean Marc Beliveau stood atop the league hockey's individual scoring race today, once again threatening to capture one of the most prized awards in the game.

The 25-year-old centre with the Montreal Canadiens, who has all the earmarks of becoming the greatest of National Hockey League greats, picked up five points during the weekend to extend his point lead to seven over left winger Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings.

Beliveau registered one goal and four assists when Canadiens clobbered the last-place Chicago Black Hawks 7-0 in Montreal Saturday night. Sunday Canadiens were shut out 3-0 by Wings at Detroit.

The five points gave Beliveau, who was the league's individual scoring crown last season with 47 goals and 41 assists, a total of 33 points for 18 games. He has 16 goals and 23 assists.

LINDSAY LAGS

Lindsay, meanwhile, couldn't muster a point during Detroit's two games. The second - place Wings dropped from a tight two-way decision to the fifth-spot Leafs at Toronto Saturday.

In other Sunday engagements, Leafs were slapped down 4-2 by the fourth-place Boston Bruins 11,585 fans at New York and the leading Boston Bruins edged Hawks 3-2 at Boston.

At Montreal, 13,857 customers saw Canadiens' Jacques Plante outperform his rival Hawks under their biggest scoring barrage of the season. Goaltender Jacques Plante counted his fifth shutout of the campaign, stopping 18 Hawk drives.

The scoring was handled by Doug Harvey, who had two goals, Beliveau, Bert Olmstead, Bernie Geoffrion, Jackie Leclair and Don Marshall.

DINEEN SCORES WINNER

The Habs were shackled Sunday. Bill Dineen, playing his third game since being injured in the season opener Oct. 11, scored at 5:16 of the second period to give Wings the win.

A crowd of 13,637 was on hand to see Glenn Hall's 23 shutouts tied the NHL in that department last season, finally ended this first of the 1956-57 campaign. Hall made 18 stops.

The Detroit crew were outclassed by a crippled but spunky Leaf squad Saturday Leafs, producing their most spirited game in weeks, grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first period and scored single goals in the last two sessions before 13,025 fans.

It was the first Leaf victory over Wings this season. The Toronto scoring was done by Sid Smith, Dick Duff, Tod Sloan and Marc Reaume. Goalie Ed Chadwick, who made some sensational stops, logged his second shutout of the season.

TABLES TURNED

Andy Bathgate led Rangers with two goals Sunday, coming in the empty net after Chadwick had been benched in favor of a sixth attacker.

Dave Creighton and Larry Popein were the other Leaf marksmen. Duff and Brian Cullen tallied for Leafs.

A turnout of 12,588 fans were on hand at Boston to see Bruins snatch their first victory since Vic Stasiuk, Fleming Mackell and Don McKenney scored for Bruins. Eddie Litzenberger and Glen Skov were the Hawk snipers.

Stasiuk's goal early in the third broke a 1-1 tie at 16:16 of the first period, was hotly disputed by Hawks. Stasiuk drifted in from close in front of the Chicago net. Referee Eddie Powers blew his whistle after the red light was flashed by goal judge Tony Nota.

Hawks pulled around Powers claiming the puck hit a post and bounced out. They said the puck hit the post, angled off and hit the other, crossing the red goal line in its progress. As reminders Al Rollins left the ice after the game he made a threatening gesture at Nota.

Providence Reds Back on Top In American Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds are back in first place in the American Hockey League with a pair of weekend victories and most of the credit must go to their big pro-duction line of Camille Henry, Paul Larivee and Zellio Toppazzini.

Members of the high-scoring threesome had a hand in 10 of the 12 goals scored by the Reds as they defeated the fifth-place Rochester Americans 4-1 Saturday night and whipped the last-place Springfield Indians 8-2 Sunday night.

Cleveland Barons, who held first place going into the weekend, lost 4-2 to Hershey Bears at home Saturday night and dropped a 3-2 decision in Rochester Sunday.

In other games, a goal by Ken Wharram at 1:28 of the overtime period gave the Buffalo Bisons a 5-4 victory over the Indians at Springfield Saturday night and the Bisons beat Hershey 5-1 in Buffalo Sunday.

FOUR FOR HENRY

Saturday, Larivee got two goals and Henry and Toppazzini one each while Earl Balfour got the single Rochester goal. Sunday Henry, league-leading scorer with 30 goals, had assists behind Larivee and Larivee got two. Toppazzini assisting on three. Other Providence scorers were Bandy Cyr and defencemen George McAvoy, Defencemen George Bouchard and left winger Jim Anderson got the Springfield goals.

At Rochester Saturday night, Gary Aldcorn dropped off by Toronto Maple Leafs on their way to New York, scored a goal and assisted on another. Bronco Horvath and Mike Keane were the other Rochester goal-getters while Jim Elik, leaguer's leading scorer, got both Barons goals.

Elik also got both Cleveland goals Sunday while Wilf Veleran, Dune Fisher fired two and Willie Marshall and Floyd Smith one each for Hershey.

Wharram's overtime goal was one of two he scored in Buffalo's Saturday night win. Others for the Bisons were Ron Stewart, Chuck Blair and Pete Babando. Springfield scorers were Buddy Moore, Jimmy and Dale Anderson and George Bouchard.

Moore Must Defend Title By March 18

CHICAGO (AP)—Archie Moore must defend his light heavyweight boxing title by March 18 or forfeit it, the executive committee of the National Boxing Association decreed Saturday.

"Moore's last title defence was against Yolande Pompey in London June 18," said George Barton, NBA committee member and boxing commissioner in Indianapolis. "Under our regulations, he was to defend it again within six months time, or by Dec. 18. But because of the physical beating he took from Floyd Patterson he was granted a three months extension for a defence against a recognized NBA contender.

Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler was ordered to undergo a thorough physical examination no later than Dec. 10. If found in shape, he must sign by Jan. 15 for a title defence. Saddler is on the mend after an auto accident.

Whitby Whips Pembroke 11-4 Ottawa Nudges Kingston 8-6

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Owen Sound Mercurys, consistent losers this season, are still in last place, in the Western Division of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A series, but they should not be ignored.

Mercurys came up with a great game Saturday and blanked Windsor Bulldogs 1-0, delaying for a few hours Bulldogs' ascension into first place. Tommy Wilson scored the lone goal, at 11:32 of the first period.

It was goalie Bob Cillisen's first shutout of the year and marked the first time Bulldogs had been shut out.

Windsor came back with a vengeance Sunday moving into first place by dumping the erstwhile leaders, Stratford Indians, 5-2 at Windsor. In the only other game, Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen doubled Chatham Maroons 4-2 Saturday.

Dunlops whipped Pembroke Lumber Kings 11-4 at Whitby, and Mars defeated Kingston 6-3 at Kingston Saturday.

Sunday, Pembroke dropped a 6-2 verdict to Cheviles at Cornwall and Ottawa Junior Canadiens nudged Kingston 8-6 at Kingston at Verdun, Que.

Geo Conacher is refereeing games in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Southern Group, back at it after an absence of was 4-3 in the Ontario centre Saturday, and 4-3 in Michigan Sunday.

Timmins Flyers and Kapuskasing Hushkies split a Saturday-Sunday doubleheader, Huskies won 6-3 Saturday, then Timmins came back for a 5-2 win.

At Windsor, Reg Abbott led Bulldogs with two goals before 4,297 fans, biggest crowd of the season. Gord Haidy, Frank Battaglia and Lou Bendo were the other Windsor scorers, Tommy Walker and George Aitken counted for Stratford.

George Scholes had two for Kitchener, single going to Jack McKenzie and Jerry Theberge. Al Cleary and Alex Viskelis were Chatham scorers.

At Whitby, Fred Etcher led the Dunlops with four goals. Gordie Myles had three and Bob Attersley two. George Samolenko and Tom Kramer shot singles.

Belleville was paced by Johnny Muretich's three goals and one assist, with Minnie Menard counting three times as well. Bep Guidolin, Lucien Gilbert and Jack Whalen scored one each. Don Murray, Hub Macey and Peetti Hiironen scored for Kingston.

GETS THREE FOR LOSERS

Gerry Wilson and Bill Carter each fired two for Canadiens. Barry Balfour, Claude Carroll, Claude Ruel and John Annable had singles. Don Bellringer had three for Kingston, while Frank Chiarelli, Bob Macey and Don Thomson each scored once.

At Cornwall, Guy Henri scored two goals for Canadiens. Mort Belmore, Ron Muir, Gerry Plamondon and Pete Conacher got the others. Bert Giesebrecht and Ken Campbell found the mark for Pembroke.

Olympic Manager Says Governments Should Take More Active Role in Sport

MELBOURNE (CP)—Jim Worrall of Toronto, general manager of Canada's team at the Olympics, said today that the federal and provincial governments should take a more active role in providing sports facilities and setting up "a workable national physical fitness scheme" if Canada expects to produce better showing at future Olympics.

Canada's showing in the first week of the Games "produced one or two pleasant surprises but on the whole the athletes performed according to my expectations," said Worrall in an interview.

"I have no word of criticism for the athletes themselves or for the officials who have handled them here. All the athletes have performed to the best of their ability under the circumstances.

"There is no question in my mind that Canada has the potential in young men and women to produce athletes in all sports as fine as those who have won gold medals at these Games. But there are many factors which so far have prevented Canada from making a better showing in Olympic competition."

MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS

Among these Worrall listed mass participation in sport in Canada, a national coaching scheme to develop coaches from various provinces who would, in turn, help train other coaches in their own areas; increased sports facilities and more international competition for Canada's athletes.

"Our athletes do not get sufficient international competition of high calibre," he said. "They are thrust into Olympic competition without the proper attitude, which is derived only from high competitive experience.

"Tough experience, sheer hard work in training and a national spirit that achievement in sports is important, these develop the type of dedication to victory in the Olympics that we have witnessed time and again in all the competitions last week.

"While I personally do not consider that the government should control and administer all participation in sport, from my observations here and discussions with representatives of many other countries, I have to conclude that the government in Canada—on both federal and provincial levels—will have to take a more active role in providing sports facilities and setting up a workable national physical fitness scheme."

It appears to me that national physical fitness is a very necessary element in the national health program of our country.

"Without, therefore, a change of attitude towards sports and recreation on the part of the people of Canada and without participation of government in a national fitness program, Canadians will have to be content with the standard of performance in the Olympics that we achieved last week."

Lions, Giants Top Divisions

NEW YORK (AP) — Detroit Lions swept into first place in the National Football League's Western Conference Sunday while New York Giants clinched the Eastern title.

The Lions ran roughshod over Chicago Bears 42 - 10 on the strength of Bobby Layne's fine passing and the effective rushing of other Detroit backs. The victory gave the Lions an 8-3 record and dropped the Bears half a game back with 7-3.

New York's 28-14 win over Washington Redskins coupled with a surprising upset victory by Chicago Cards shot the Giants into a commanding 1½-game lead in the Eastern Division.

Green Bay dumped the Cardinals 24-21 on Thanksgiving Day to knock down in the final minute. New York can clinch the divisional championship by beating Cleveland Browns next Sunday.

In other games, none of which affected the top rung of the standings, the Pittsburgh Steelers edged Philadelphia Eagles 17-14, San Francisco 49ers beat Baltimore Colts 20-17 and Pittsburgh Steelers walloped Los Angeles Rams 30-13.

The Cards now have won six of 10 games, Washington is 5-4 and the surprising Eagles are 4-5-1. Even if New York loses both of its remaining games, it could not be title if the Cards or Skins lose one more.

HOW TO BUY A GOOD USED CAR

WHAT THE RADIATOR REVEALS

Although hidden behind a fancy chrome grill, the radiator still serves the same purpose as ever . . . keeping the engine cool. When — through neglect or damage — the radiator becomes clogged or leaky, the engine is bound to soon reach the danger point and result in serious damage.

By opening the hood you can see most of the radiator behind the fan. Any sign of moisture on the rad. is a sign of a leak. With the engine running (and warmed up), squeeze the radiator hose. When the radiator's not plugged and the water is circulating properly, you can easily feel the water pulsing through the hose.

Muretich, Menard Spark McFarland's 2nd Straight Win Over Kingston

Each Good for Three Goals In Sparkling 9-3 Victory; Tighten Hold on Second Spot

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Unleashing a nine-goal attack Belleville McFarlands consolidated their grip on second place in the OHA Eastern Ontario Senior "A" hockey loop on Saturday with a 9-3 whipping of a weak and ill timed, disorganized Kingston Frontenac team before 2714 fans.

The McFarland defence returned to its early season form. The winners spotted Kingston the first goal before opening up a 4-1 lead in the first. They completely dominated the second period to go ahead 7-1 while the clubs split four goals in the final twenty minutes, Kingston's best period.

Johnny Muretich and Minnie Menard were the chief snipers as the latter had their biggest scoring count of the season. Muretich fired three goals and assisted on another in a fine all-round performance. Menard stretched his goals lead to 21 by also scoring three times, his second hat trick of the year. Jack Whalen was credited with a goal and two assists while Paul Payette assisted on three. Bep Guidolin and Lucien Gilbert had the other goals.

Bert Brooks, sporting an 11 - 1 stitch cut in his forehead from Benoit's shot the previous night, was ineffective in the loser's goal but in all fairness his defense was almost as ineffective. The consistent checking of the entire Belleville squad stopped potential Elece rushes at their beginning. Bell scorned them back when they did get through while Crawford, Benoit, Bolley and Lemonde blocked shots and cleared well all night.

Referee Jack Shropshire assessed 11 penalties in all. Hub Macey drew a minor and misconduct at the 3.14 mark of the first while Senior was thumbed for high sticking with Whalen in the second. The remainder of the penalties went to the victors including a misconduct and minor to trainer Donny Murray potted the initial goal at the 3.33 mark of the first, lifted his own rebound high over Bell's shoulder, Payette setting up the play. Pentti Hilronen and Hub Macey had the other Elece goals.

Whalen was credited with the tying goal at 8.33 but the puck bounced off the body of Keith MacDonald as the flying winger crashed into Brooks. Keith had another goal called back later when he tipped in a pugilistic drive with his foot. MacDonald was given credit for the first goal but the official later changed it to Whalen.

Muretich scored his first goal of the night to put Guidolin's boys in front at 13.04, sliding the disc into Brooks after loose play by the Kingston defence set it up. Minnie Menard on Payette's assist made it 3-1, scooping home the rubber at 14.04 of the fourth. Minutes later Macey carried to Bell's doorstep but shot wide by a fraction of an inch.

A McFarland penalty set up a beautiful goal at 17.20. Just a minute earlier Davey Jones was caught tripping and Payette and Guidolin came out to kill the penalty. Guidolin circled near the Kingston bluelins with the puck, skated out and passed to Payette. The flashy centre foiled a defenceman, carried in and fed Bep the puck with Guidolin dyking Brooks perfectly.

Forty-seven seconds had elapsed in the second when Muretich made it 5-1. The winners continued to play the opportunists and Muretich completed his hat trick at 7.34 with MacDonald and Whalen assisting.

Minnie Menard closed the period scoring at 14.56, rifling in on a goal unmolested after perfect passes by Whalen and Crawford. Menard's team mates mobbed the winger, the league's first 20-goal man of the season.

Davey Jones drew a hooking sentence with 58 seconds remaining in the period but the Elecez could do nothing until the last minutes of the third session. Muretich appeared to have goal number four in the first minute but Brooks outguessed him on the breakaway.

Kingston came to life briefly and Ted Toppazini led a strong rush only to be thwarted by the calm, collected Bell. Hilronen finally cut the margin to 7-3 at 5.17, blasting one home from the right side. Crawford was called for charging at 8.33 and had a misconduct tacked on for questioning the decision.

Belleville netted another while playing a man short at 13.09, Benoit scoring after a hooking penalty when Minnie Menard knitched his third, stealing the puck off Toppazini's stick near centre ice, racing in alone on goal and tucking it in the corner.

Lucien Gilbert added another at 18.58, stickhandling around several helpless defenders before whipping it in the short side, also an unassisted effort.

Belleville—Goal: Bell; defence, Crawford, Benoit, Bolley, Lemonde; forwards, Guidolin, Payette, M. Menard, Gilbert, Muretich, MacDonald, D. Jones, Whalen, W. Menard.

Four Teams Take Bowl Bids; Navy Refuses

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennessee, Baylor, Syracuse and Georgia Tech accepted bowl bids Saturday while Navy, held to a 7-7 tie by underdog Army, rejected an invitation to the Cotton Bowl.

Notre Dame ended its season ever—two wins and eight losses—by losing a 28-20 decision to Southern California.

For the second straight year Army's cadets surprised Navy by doing the unexpected. Last year they defeated the favored midshipmen 14-6. This year, Army outbought Navy until the last quarter when fullback Dick Dagampat of the middies finally scored to provide the deadlock.

Immediately after the game, Rear-Admiral W. R. Smedberg of the naval academy turned down a Cotton Bowl invitation. He told his team he did not think it was in the best interest of the Navy to accept a bowl bid after the dead lock.

OTHERS ACCEPT

Tennessee and Baylor accepted bids to the Sugar Bowl after decisively drubbing their opponents Saturday. The Volunteers defeated Vanderbilt 27-7 while the Bears slaughtered Rice 40-13.

Georgia Tech ended its season by trouncing traditional rival Georgia 34-3. Another old rivalry, between Oklahoma and Oklahoma A and M, ended in a crushing 40-0 victory for the Sooners, their 40th straight win.

In other games, Mississippi edged Mississippi State 13-7, Clemson crushed Furman 27-7, Texas Christian defeated Southern Methodist 21-6 and Holy Cross upped Boston College 14-7.

Here's the way the bowl situation shapes up:

Rose Bowl—Iowa (8-1) vs Oregon State (7-2-1)

Cotton Bowl—Syracuse (7-1) vs Texas Christian (7-3)

Orange Bowl — Colorado (8-1) vs either Clemson (7-1-2), Duke (5-4-1) or South Carolina (7-3)

Gator Bowl—Pittsburgh (6-2-1) vs Georgia Tech (9-1)

Each of the bowl games, except the Gator, will take place New Year's Day. The Gator Bowl game will be played Dec. 29.

One bowl game already is out of the way. Sam Houston State downed Middle Tennessee 27-13 in the Refrigerator Bowl game at Evansville, Indiana, Saturday.

Other Saturday scores:

Lady Bowlers Compete in Molson Classic

With five rolling four-figure aggregates, thirteen lady bowling teams have become committed for participation in the annual Molson Bowling Classic.

Anne Pullman topped the Belleville "baker's dozen" at the Bowl-Mor on Saturday, with a five-game total of 1339. Gwynne Rowe was second with 1327; Selma Wodzak third with 1122; Grace Clapp next with 1111 and Joan Kolb fifth with 1010.

Then came Marion Mundrey with 988; Doris Menard 983; Babe Hardwick 968; Margaret Fairbairn 951; Peg Ronalds 915; Madeline Andrews 890; Marie Power 869 and Jodi McRobert 807.

Lady bowlers from the district took part in the competitions in their own centres with scores being submitted to regional headquarters at Kingston. The girls with the highest 25 scores will take part in the region eliminations; the top six representing the district meeting other regional winners in Toronto at a later date. The men's competitions will be held in various district centres next Saturday.

Canadian Girl Athletes Do Well in Swim, Diving Events

MELBOURNE (CP) — Irene MacDonald, crop - haired blonde from Hamilton, outclassed all but brilliant champion Pat McCormick today in the first round of the women's Olympic springboard diving championship.

Irene's team-mates in the swimming division of the Olympic aquatics were not to be outdone. Little Sara Barber, 15-year-old Brantford girl, qualified in heats in both the 100-metre backstroke and the 100 - metre butterfly events. Beth Whittall of Montreal, entered only in the butterfly, also qualified.

Heat winners in both events set records—one a world mark. Then Australia's sensational team lowered the world record in winning the men's 800-metre relay, only final of the day. The United States placed second and Russia third.

HELPED RIVAL TRAIN

Only the great Pat McCormick, the defending champion who has helped Miss MacDonald train at her California home, ranked above Irene in the over-all points for six dives completed today. Twelve of the 17 contestants who entered qualified for the preliminaries in the finals Tuesday night.

"I was thrilled and surprised at my showing," said Irene with a big smile. "I had my mark of fourth place before the competition started. Now I think I can win a medal."

She had only one poor dive—her fourth—but she came back strongly in the next two and received more points from the judges than any allotted throughout the whole competition.

Her points scored by dives were 11:04, 10:80, 12:72, 8:19, 14:74 and 15:19.

The first five dives were chosen by the competitors from specified groups. The sixth was at the competitor's option.

But Pat McCormick's well executed dives in all six trips to the springboard brought her higher over-all ranking. In third and fourth places were two other American girls, Barbara Golden with 71.47 points and Jeanne Stunyo with 71.02.

Irene celebrated her 22rd birthday Nov. 23, the day the Olympic Games opened. She went to California last January to train under Glenn McCarthick, Pat's husband. He is coach of the American diving team here. Irene, who scored a third for Canada at the British Empire Games in 1954, was second to Pat in the U.S. championships earlier this year in Dallas, Texas.

In both the women's backstroke and butterfly heats, the fastest eight swimmers in each advanced to the finals.

The world records were toppled fast. Margaret Edwards of Britain clipped off the fastest time in the backstroke with one minute, 19.3 seconds. Sara Barber finished a second behind the British girl in 1:14.3 and the fourth best time among the eight qualifiers.

The Olympic record had already been toppled in the first heat, and that also by a British girl, Judy Grinham in the time of 1:13.1 against the old record of 1:13.8 made by Holland's Geertje Wielema in 1932.

Lenore Fisher of Ocean Falls, B.C., failed to qualify with her time of 1:17.5. She was seventh in her heat.

BEATS BUTTERFLY MARK

Shelly Mann of Arlington, Va., swam to a sensational world record in the women's 100-metre butterfly event. Her time of 1:11.2 bettered the improved mark of 1:11.3 made by Ain Voorbig of Holland earlier this year, but it has been lowered several times since, without official recognition yet.

Beth Whittall qualified in 1:16.9 and was fourth in her heat, won by Beverley Bushridge of Australia in 1:14.1.

Finals in both the backstroke and butterfly will be held Wednesday.

In winning the 800-metre freestyle final Australia's great swimming team of Kevin O'Halloran, John Devitt, Murray Rose and Jon Henricks swam away from the field and set a world record.

The Australians were timed in 8:22.6, wiping out the old mark of 8:24.1 made only last month by Australia. It was also a big bruise the Olympic record of 8:51.1 set by the U.S. at the 1952 Games in Helsinki.

ALMOST EIGHT SLOWER

In placing second to the Australians, the American team was timed in 8:31.5, almost eight seconds slower. Russia's team was clocked in 8:34.6.

Another Olympic record fell soon after the finish of the relay when Ali Masaru Hayashida won a heat of the men's 200-metre breast stroke in 2:46.5. This broke the old record of 2:42.5 set by Tetsuo Hamuro of Japan in 1936.

In the women's butterfly competition this year—new to the Olympic program—the best time automatically becomes an Olympic record.

In cycling competition today Fred Markus of Toronto was eliminated from the 1,000-metre time competition. In yachting, Dave Howard of Toronto piloted his Thistle-211 to a third place in today's Dragon-class race. He is still well down in over-all points.

Canadian Wins World Checkers Championship

HAARLEM, The Netherlands (Reuters) — A 51-year-old Canadian won a "now or never" victory here Saturday night to become the 1956 world champion checkers player.

Marcel Desjaurlers of Montreal, a serious checkers player since he was 14, won the championship at the end of a month-long tournament. The last round was played in this western Holland provincial town.

Desjaurlers said afterward he was especially happy about his victory because I am now 51 years old and in 1960 the next time the championship is at stake I shall be too old to repeat this success.

"So this time it meant now or never," the Montrealer added.

He first learned the game in a Canadian army. By the time he was 15 he had joined an official checkers club and by 18 he won the Canadian championship.

Senior A Hockey

EASTERN DIVISION

Whitby's Bob Attersley regained undisputed possession of first place over the past week when he potted three goals and assisted on four more in three games. He now has a point total of 33, including 21 assists, tops in that department. Minnie Menard of Belleville had two goals and an assist in his only game of the week and is tied with Bus Gagnon at 29 points each. Menard has 18 goals to lead that department.

The idle Gillis Bolsvert of Ottawa, hung on to the goalies' average lead but Gerry Dewsnip of Cornwall and Gord Bell of Belleville, passed Whitby's Donlevy. Donlevy had held second place for some weeks but his average dropped to 4.36 while Dewsnip has come from 3.50 to 3.94.

Toweel Beats Howard Again

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — South Africa's Willie Toweel had too much class for Richie (Kid) Howard of Halifax and won a clear-cut decision over the Canadian lightweight champion in a 10-round boxing bout Saturday night.

Toweel, who successfully defended his British Empire 135-pound title against Howard a few weeks ago, over the 15-round distance, this time warded off the Canadian's strong attack in the early rounds and, boxing coolly, was able to pile up the points by his classical straight lefts and the swift rights to the head.

Toweel scored 152, Howard 134.

Howard tried desperately to get the jaw but the South African blocked the blows effectively and punished the Canadian with his brilliant counter-punching.

Former Cripple Breaks Record In Olympic Swimming Event

MELBOURNE (AP) —Three months ago Margaret Edwards of Middlesex, England, was told she might as well give up her dream of competing in the Olympic Games.

Margaret, who had been a standout backstroke swimmer, suffered a slipped disc. She was put into a cast and told to take it easy for two months.

Today Miss Edwards, a plucky 17-year-old school girl, led the Olympic qualifying trials in the 100-metre backstroke with a clocking of one minute 13 seconds, beating the old Olympic mark of 1:13.8.

"I was afraid I wouldn't make it here," she said in an interview. "But I was determined to make the trip if at all possible and I worked hard, so here I am."

SIX WEEKS IN CAST

Margaret suffered the back injury while vaulting at school. The accident happened in March. She was in a cast six weeks and was unable to continue training for September.

"I decided to keep the rest of my muscles in shape," she said. "I set up a gymnasium in an old garage we had at home and I exercised every day. When I was able to start swimming again I found I was not in too bad condition."

Miss Edwards won her heat after a teammate, Judy Grinham, had won a previous heat in 1:13.4. Then Margaret made it in 1:13 flat.

"Judy and I are from the same county," she said. "We have been swimming against each other ever since we started. She beats me one day and I beat her the next."

"When we left England I think I was a little ahead but not much. That is the quickness me. It may be her turn next."

Both Margaret and Judy are 17.

Ezzard Charles Hangs up Gloves for Good

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ezzard Charles said Sunday he has hung up his gloves for good to devote his time to family and business interests here.

At his home, the former heavyweight champion said, "I've just got too many irons in the fire now."

Charles said he sent his manager, Tom Tannas, a telegram telling him, "I don't want to fight anymore."

He said the only match pending was one in Houston, Tex.

"I told my wife the other day I was going to get started training for another fight," she said, "and it was like I had hurt her with a gun or a rubber hose.

"She asked me again then to give it up. And I've got three children now. I've got to give them some consideration."

Charles said he is preparing a restaurant he has purchased here for opening late this month.

Floyd Patterson's destruction of Archie Moore, an old foe of Charles in a professional career which lasted 16 years, is said to have prompted the decision.

The New York Journal American says Charles retired officially Saturday morning while training the beating Moore took Friday night in Chicago in the boot that gave the youthful Patterson the heavyweight championship.

Charles, 34, won universal recognition as heavyweight champion when he defeated Joe Louis Sept. 27, 1950. Before that he had National Boxing Association recognition as champion, gained Sept. 22, 1949, when he defeated Jersey Joe Walcott in 15 rounds. The bout with Walcott followed the retirement of Louis and, later, Charles scored up the title when Louis tried a comeback.

He lost but almost as often as he won in recent bouts, many of them against mediocre opposition.

Officials Answer Snowball Attack With Penalties

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Browns scored a 17-14 National Football League win over Philadelphia Eagles Sunday despite two penalties imposed because the fans booed and threw snowballs at officials.

The officials came in for protracted booing in the third quarter when fans thought a penalty should have been assessed against the Eagles for knocking a Browns pass receiver to the ground before he could get the ball. So vociferous was the booing that officials penalized the Browns five yards for delay of game to give the Eagles a first down.

Later coach Paul Brown of Cleveland stepped to the microphone and asked for silence. But the crowd of 20,834 answered with a roar.

The score was deadlocked 14-14 and after Curley Morrison had booted out of bounds on the Eagle three the fans showered the officials and the Eagles with a barrage of snowballs.

Referee Tommy Tinlin went to the microphone and warned the crowd that further snowballing would result in a penalty. He then marched off the 15 yards giving the ball to the Eagles on the 18.

OLYMPIC TRAGEDY

MELBOURNE (CP)—The first tragedy of the Olympic Games occurred Saturday when Arrigo Maniconi, member of Italy's eight-oared shell, was killed along with his Australian friend, William McKay, as they were driving back from Ballarat where they had been watching the canoeing events. Their car left the road and smashed into a tree.

BORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The Titans of our modern world of bridge play are far from being in agreement on bidding policies. Even pairs of the same team may be split in their ideas. As many as members of the same pair.

From the world championship you see here again deal number 16:

| | NORTH | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠A 8 7 6 | |
| | ♥K 7 6 3 | |
| | ♦A 9 | |
| | ♣A 10 3 | |
| WEST | | EAST |
| ♠5 | | ♠J 4 |
| ♥2 5 | | ♥Q 7 4 |
| ♦K Q J 8 5 3 | | ♦10 6 |
| ♣J 7 2 | | ♣K Q 9 7 6 |
| | SOUTH | |
| | ♠K Q 10 2 | |
| | ♥A J 10 8 | |
| | ♦K 7 4 2 | |
| | ♣8 5 4 | |

In room one at the east and west pair of the American team (representatives of the United States). Against them was the north-south pair of the Swedish team (champions of Europe).

The bidding there went like this:

| North | South |
|---|---|
| 1 ♦ | 2 ♣ |
| 2 ♥ | 4 ♥ |

North bid the suits that his south partner should have been the first to name. Because the hearts and the major suits were shaded and the same suits in south were truly biddable.

The European team was using a system in which the lowest suit bid in response forces partner to bid again. It may be a suit with less than four cards. This explains the two club response.

This method might well be dubbed the confusion system. But the laws of bridge permit it only when announcement is explained in advance to opponents. So, it will confuse mostly its users.

It may be well to mention here that many European players are experimenting with variations of out-moded ideas. Whereas, American players are fiddling with variations of improven new ideas.

So, if you hear of bids that experts say, do not take and nurse them as your own. Better use methods that you can understand and remember. You could then be a better bidder than some experts.

Since my running off at the mouth like this used up our space for today, you will next be told how it was bid in the other room.

Duke Dines Athletes From Commonwealth

MELBOURNE (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh spent three hours with Commonwealth athletes at the Olympic village Sunday and 18 Canadian athletes and general manager Jim Worrall of Toronto were among those dining with him.

The Canadian athletes were chosen by lot. Jackie MacDonald of Toronto, Canada's blonde shot put specialist, who has been tagged "glamazon" girl by Melbourne newspapers, sat at the duke's table with Betty Cuthbert, Australia's sensational girl sprinter, and Dave Sime.

Other Canadians at the luncheon were: Dean Smith of Vancouver, of the track and field team; Diane Matheson of Moncton and Toronto, speed skater; Beth Whittall, of Montreal, swimmer; Bill Slater, Vancouver, swimmer; Bill Boa, Toronto, member of the shooting team; Jean Russell of Windsor, Ont., gymnastics team; Adrien Gilbert, Port Alfred, Que., weightlifter; Jim Davies, Vancouver, cyclist; Jim Stuart and Bob Hartwell of Vancouver, from the basketball team; Bruce Ochman, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., wrestler; Jim Macdonald, Montreal, boxer and oarsmen Archie MacKinnon, Lorne Loomer, Walter O'Hoedt, Don Arnold and Laurie Mist, all of the University of British Columbia crews.

Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec Hockey League race is becoming a two-team affair with Chicoutimi Saguenecs holding an edge over Quebec Aces.

The Saguenecens stretched their lead over Quebec to three points Sunday by edging the Aces 3-2. Meanwhile Trois-Rivieres Lions pulled into a tie for third place by downing Shawinigan Falls 6-3 at Trois-Rivieres.

Shawinigan Falls, Montreal and Trois-Rivieres are deadlocked in third place with 16 points, 12 behind Quebec and 16 behind Chicoutimi.

"Lisbon", Spectacular Drama of International Intrigue and Adventure

Brilliant Cast Enhances Handsome And Exciting Traveler-Na-turama Production

Republic has produced a spectacular thriller dealing with an international smuggling ring and played against the breath-taking splendor of the ancient seacoast town of Lisbon in the picture at the Park Theatre for its first city showing.

"Lisbon" which stars Ray Milland, Maureen O'Hara, Claude Rains and Yvonne Furneaux, was actually filmed in Portugal and Technicolor has been captured by Republic cameras on this contemporary sensational new wide-screen 'process, Naturama, and in Trucolor.

This handsomely mounted production is a gripping, swiftly-paced tale of intrigue, the story revolving around an American millionaire industrialist who has been held incommunicado by the Reds for two years. His wife's (Maureen O'Hara) efforts to have him murdered so that she may realize the entire fortune forms the basis of the spine-tingling story.

MURDER PLOT

The master-mind behind the murder plot is Claude Raines, who enlists the services of a competitive smuggler, Ray Milland, a Boston sea captain. His purpose is two-fold. He will not only eliminate Milland, who is cutting into his smuggling revenue, but will also accomplish his murder plans for a substantial piece of the American millionaire's fortune, in association with Miss O'Hara.

Milland, who also directed "Lisbon," builds his story to a terrific peak of suspense with sea chases, desperate flights through the narrow streets of Lisbon and a romantic triangle which places Milland between the Misses O'Hara and Furneaux.

Milland is ultimately marked for assassination by Rains, but in a climax he turns the tables on his sadistic enemy and thwarts the plan for murdering the American. Instead he rescues the prisoner and is able to supply evidence which bring Rains to justice. There is an unusual story twist in the finale which brings Milland and Miss Furneaux together.

The star cast performs brilliantly with the supporting players, Francis Lederer, Percy Marmont, Jay Novello, Edward Chapman, Harold Jamieson and Humberto Morena, all turning in outstanding performances.

Film audiences are in for a rare treat in the photographic values achieved by cameraman Jack Marta on the Naturama process complemented by the Trucolor hands of Jerome Thoms.

On the same program a thrilling detective story starring handsome Kent Taylor.

Civic Election results will be given from the stage.

TOPS RECORD

HILVERSUM, The Netherlands (AP)—Dutch swimmer Mary Kok Sunday night bettered the world 400-metre individual medley record. Her time was 5:38.8.

The previous record, 5:40.8, was established in Budapest July 13, 1955, by Hungarian Eva Szekely.

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, Dec. 4, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A amenable day for practical and useful, also delicate and artistic matters. Your personal attitude and how you pay attention to things generally is important to success now. It's social.

April 21 to — (Taurus) — Fine influe... y self — efficient you... add finesse and artistry... you do, and give them ... boost, greater impetus. Sl... ners the way to bigger ach... ent.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — This can be a responsive, productive day, especially if you control your emotions and are careful in money transactions. Mars and Jupiter aspects suggest that you avoid recklessness, extravagance, work and other interests. Be cautious in finances, spending but day like one encourages your full efforts to achieve. Control emotions.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Building, manufacturing, handling produce and items for the table and personal use under benefic Moon, Saturn and Venus rays. Don't shirk duties and do be considerate of others.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Laborious trades, handling farm products, cattle, household goods, medical equipment among many interests favored now. Avoid contention and you will gain benefits more quickly.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Avail yourself of beneficial offerings. While your Mercury does not stimulate purely mental work, laborious tasks, household matters and industry are honored.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Teaching, nursing, farming, entertaining domestic interests, special service work and adding charitable organizations among highly sponsored activities. Be careful in money matters and control the emotions.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — This should be a progressive, fruitful period for your work and other interests. Be cautious in finances, spending but day like one encourages your full efforts to achieve. Control emotions.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Organization work, economics, dealing in useful commodities, scientific discoveries, accepting new methods and implements among stimulated activities. Solidify holdings, credit.

COUGAR WOUNDS MAN

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Deer-hunter Kirby Allen escaped with a scratched neck, torn coat and damaged gun Sunday when a wounded cougar jumped him in the mountains southeast of here. Allen said he shot and wounded the cat, which then dived for Cottonwood Canyon. He stalked the animal for a short distance when it turned and tore into him, then fled.

JOHNSTOWN

Young Couple Feted With Many Fine Gifts

JOHNSTOWN — Around 80 friends, neighbors and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Harry on Saturday evening in honor of their son, Douglas and his wife, Betty, a recent bride and bridegroom.

Mr. Basil Brooks was chairman for the occasion. The program opened with a fine violin solo by Master Jimmie Cormac. Mrs. Don Sandercock entertained with an hilarious reading, "The Snoring Husband," a take-off on the meant; Mrs. Joan Vanderoort favored with a song "Love Is My Tender"; a reading, "Cold Feet" was presented by Mr. Byron Harder. This was a take-off on the women.

Douglas and Hazel were asked to take seats at the bride's table with the bride's parents' sitting at one side. The table was beautifully trimmed with white and pink streamers and a large white bell over all.

Mrs. Harry Vanderveort read an address to Mr. and Mrs. Harry asking them to accept the gifts which were on the table, brought in by their many friends to wish them well on their way to a long and happy life. Douglas and Hazel thanked the givers for their thoughtfulness and invited all to come and see them.

The gifts were many and lovely, not many being alike.

Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN — Mr. W. R. Grant arrived home on Sunday morning from the west, where he had been holidaying with his wife and baby. As the baby has been sick, Mrs. Grant decided to stay on for a while.

Several of the neighborhood attended the funeral of Mr. W. Hamilton at the Thompson Funeral Home in Belleville, on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bush motored to Toronto on Saturday and spent the night there, going on to Toronto on Sunday, meeting Mr. Bush on the train from the west.

Mr. Gerald Harry was home for the weekend and is being transferred from Kingston nylon plant to Brockville this week.

Mrs. W. Vanderveort is staying for a week with her friend, Mrs. Mullett of Bancroft.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Brooks and Wayne spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. Black, of York Road, Trenton.

The sympathy of this neighborhood is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Alva Dunn of 6 R.D. road on the loss of their son Roy, who was killed on his way home from school on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Ingram held a birthday party in honor of her sister, Miss Joyce Smith, entertaining Joyce's friends that week.

Mr. and Mrs. Junior Brooks spent Wednesday evening with W. Black of York Road, Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Brooks and Wayne spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. Black, of York Road, Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock.

U. S. OIL ARRIVING

SETE, France (AP)—The first of the United States oil shipments promised to France in the Suez crisis arrived at this southern port Sunday from Texas aboard the American tanker Silvan Arrow. The ship carried 28,000 tons of oil. Three other American tankers, carrying a total of 82,500 tons are expected.

ACCIDENTALLY ON PURPOSE

BOMBAY (Reuters) — A welcome arch erected in honor of visiting Prime Minister Chou En-Lai of Red China collapsed here Sunday one hour before he was due to pass through it. Police immediately began an investigation to determine whether the collapse was accidental, but they declined to comment.

Stirling

STIRLING.—Mr. Bruce Bell spent Wednesday and Thursday in Toronto and attended the first fall annual meeting of the Independent Accountant Society held at the King Edward Hotel.

During the sessions, Mr. Bell was appointed to the Board of Directors with duties to begin at once and continue on through 1957.

There were representatives in attendance from all over the province of Ontario.

Mr. Bell is to be congratulated on his appointment as he was a stranger in the city and his nomination came as a delightful surprise.

Mr. Clarke Rodgers is undergoing treatment in the General Hospital, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pitcher were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Holland, Brighton, on Thursday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Hayward, Brantford, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Stapley and attended the funeral of Mrs. Arnold Wannamaker.

A number of men and trucks were busy Tuesday and Wednesday shovelling the snow from the village streets and disposing of it.

Russia Building Up Her Forces In Bulgaria

ISTANBUL, Turkey (Reuters)—Reliable reports reaching here from Edirne Sunday night said Russia has been building up her forces in Bulgaria, landing men and arms at the Black Sea port of Varna.

Edirne—also known as Adrianople—is 12 miles south of the Turko-Bulgarian frontier.

These reports said that Russians have told the Bulgarian people they have landed to reinforce troops along the Turkish frontier. But informed sources believe the troops were sent to increase pressure on Bulgaria following the Hungarian uprising.

Executive Sales Manager Required to co-ordinate the sales efforts of the various divisions in this internationally known, well established company. Experience essential but will be without the necessary reserves of capital. Unusual salary and bonus plan to look suitable for this key man. A top calibre specialist, he will already be firmly established in the industry and should have considerable knowledge of spoil duplication systems. To attract the type of man we require, we offer a top salary to meet the requirements and in addition, pay particular attention to fringe benefits. There are also very great development opportunities and interesting comprehensive employee benefits. Those interested and eligible are requested to contact:
Mr. Warren E. Rothwell,

Airmen Have Private Rooms And Telephones
NAPLES (CP)—This is the air force, Mr. Jones, with private rooms and telephones.
Certainly the Grand Hotel Grilli on Via Vittorio in old Napoli has advantages found in few barrack blocks.
This is the new address of some 450 Canadian airmen, members of 435 Squadron, ferrying troops and supplies to Egypt for the United Nations.
The RCAF took over the six-storey hotel, all but one floor, to house and administer the squadron. It was once used by the Germans during the war and they left its own kitchen and mess hall. The airmen have their own messing but right now things are somewhat topsy-turvy.
Some airmen have private rooms with telephones, although officers will get them eventually. There's a bar in the lobby, which only officers can use. The airmen used to go into the hotel dining room and order a piece of bread and beer or wine for the evening, so an airmen's bar was opened on the mezzanine.
Probably the strangest thing is that the hotel proprietor, Signor Grilli, will be in charge. The officials recommended Italian civilians. Probably never before have civilians—that means women, too — ever lived in an all-male RCAF barracks.
Some airmen will be cramped. Eight will be in some rooms and in others. Even then, they'll be less crowded than the U.S. Navy was when it used them about twice as many.
The second floor will be used mainly for squadron offices, such as the medical inspection room, pay and accounts, supply, commanding officer's office and adjutant's office.

FINE DISPLAY

VICTORIA (CP)—A permanent display of B. C. timber products will be erected in Canada House in Columbia House in London, England, Agent-General W. A. McAdam said here Friday. The exhibit will be built in co-operation with the B. C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

NEHRU TO LONDON

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Prime Minister Nehru will spend two days in London at Christmas time on his way home from talks with President Eisenhower. He is expected to meet British government leaders and then fly to Cairo for talks with Egyptian President Nasser.

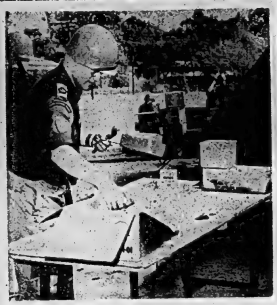
REPORTER BRINGS BACK HIS STORY



Reporter Robert Maher returned to the newspaper office in Detroit with more than a story one morning. In addition to a few scribbled pages in his notebook he brought back the enormous golden eagle with which he's shown. Apparently the eagle made a misstep in the Detroit river and got dunked with cold water. Zoo authorities said the big bird probably was blown off course in its migratory flight south. Maher's feathered friend boasts of eight-foot wing spread and talons as large as a fielder's glove. The eagle apparently was near exhaustion from cold weather and hunger. (Central Press Canadian).

HIS 82nd BIRTHDAY REMEMBERED BY MANY

CANADIANS ARRIVE IN EGYPT TO JOIN UN TROOPS

Transported to Abu Suweir in "flying boxcar" above, Major L. R. Green of Ottawa helps himself to food in a field kitchen set up by the Canadian contingent to the United Nations Emergency Force. Newly arrived Canadian soldiers, totalling 15 officers and 115 men, are described as "mostly technical experts" who will handle signal, engineering and medical assignments for the U.N. command, under fellow-Canadian Major-Gen. E. L. Burns. Some 4,000 officers and men have been accepted from eight of the 23 countries which have offered military units to UNEF. The provisional target of the force is 6,000 men. (Central Press Canadian.)

4TH SIDNEY

Stone Church W.A. Sponsors Fine Bazaar

FOURTH SIDNEY — On Wednesday afternoon the Stone Church Women's Association held a bazaar and tea in the Community Hall. Despite bad roads there was a good attendance.

Mrs. R. McMullen, the minister's wife received the guests at the door assisted by the president, Mrs. O. Chisholm.

Mrs. C. Knight, Mrs. S. Lloyd, Mrs. J. Detlor and Mrs. H. Twidale presided at the silver services on the prettily arranged tea table decorated with Christmas flowers and red candles.

Those serving were: Mrs. F. Vermilyea, Mrs. H. Knight and Mrs. C. Lane, assisted by some of the junior girls.

Mrs. G. Evans was saleslady at the candy booth where maple cream, seafoam and chocolate fudge candy was temptingly displayed.

At the fancy work table were beautiful pin cushions, baby wear, pillow cases and many other useful and novelty articles. Mrs. F. Jeffrey, Mrs. A. Wait and Mrs. M. Cockerill were in charge of this display.

The country store featured potted plants, vegetables, eggs, jams and jellies which all sold well. Mrs. Ed. Phillips was the convener.

The apron and children's wear booth was in charge of Mrs. E. B. Phillips and Mrs. W. J. Tufts as salesladies, had a fine assortment of aprons in prints, ginghams and organdy in half style, all-over and cobbler style. There were children's aprons and dresses.

As usual, the homecooking table was a spot of great attraction with its fine display of pies, date loaves, fragrant homemade buns, tarts and cookies. Mrs. C. Vermilyea, Mrs. F. Tucker and Mrs. H. Gray were the conveners.

Mrs. George Tucker was in charge of a table of mysterious packages and "white elephant" articles.

Mrs. O. Chisholm was convener of the tea and bazaar to whom appreciation is tendered for a most successful and delightful afternoon.

Tension Eased

OTTAWA (CP) — International tension here eased a bit Friday with word that Kushi has a two-week reprieve.

Kushi, a Scottish terrier owned by Israeli Ambassador Michael Comay, has been sentenced to death by city police for biting an Ottawa youngster. But external affairs department officials said Kushi won't be executed at least until the return of the ambassador from a trip to New York. They want to talk things over with the ambassador.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was taking a walk with pop before dinner for the good of his appetite, and we started to pass the bank, and pop said, That reminds me, I need some money. The bank stays open late on Fridays, so the next step is to take advantage of that fortunate coincidents, he said.

Meaning by going in and writing himself a check, which he did, and he counted the money when we got out on the sidewalk again, saying, Yee gods, that teller gave me one 10 dollar bill too many.

G, pop, does that make it belong to you? I said, and he said, I'm afraid not, I'll have to take it right back.

Well back, pop the bank has so much money, it would be a cinch for them to give themselfs another 10 dollar bill, I said, and pop said, That's a simplified way of saying that the bank would ballents its books with a debit of 10 dollers unaccounted for, but unfortunately the 10 dollar bill would still be legally and morally their property. Say, by gollies, it's my bill after all. I originally intended to make out a check for 40 dollers, but I made it out for fifty, he said.

Then G, pop, you got 10 dollers more than you expected, just by writing yourself a differed size check in your own favor, so oh boy, pop, that makes you still luckier, I said, and pop said, By the rules of banking proceedure, if your write yourself a check for an amount larger than you think you'll be obliged to pay yourself, you'll have another think coming, of a less pleasant nature. And that concludes the lecture on practical economics, he said.

Meening it was time to change the subject, which we did.

9 Die, 247 Hurt In Brooklyn Dock Blast

Loss 10 Million As Raging Fire Sweeps Big Pier

Shock Is Felt for 35 Miles As Explosive Cargo Ignites

NEW YORK (AP)—A furious fire and an explosion like a block busting bomb blasted a Brooklyn pier Monday and shook the city for miles around. Nine died in the disaster and 247 suffered injuries.

Flames still flickered in the red-hot ruins of the pier today as fire officials launched a full-scale investigation of the $10,000,000 blaze.

A dock worker said the fire started about 3:15 p.m. in a pile o' foam rubber on the big pier, longest deep-sea terminal in the port of New York. Minute by minute the flames ate through a mountain of explosive cargo — paint, kerosene, rubber cement, chemicals and fuels.

A fuse was burning toward disaster, But firemen, dock workers, schoolboys and other spectators rushed to the scene, unaware of the impending peril.

DEADLY BALL

In an instant a sheet of flame shot skyward. The blast ripped off the pier shed's metal and glass roof and showered the area with a deadly hail of fragments.

The shock rocked 35 miles from the explosion. The swoosh of air shattered windows five miles away.

Chunks of white-hot steel weighing as much as 50 pounds arched over the waterfront.

The blast killed three boys in their teens. It left a towering sight of smoke and flames had lured them to the scene before the shattering explosion. Three dock workers and three other men were also killed. One was decapitated.

JAM HOSPITALS

Screaming ambulances raced away with the survivors of injured, many of them spectators. Hospitals were soon jammed.

The pier—long as six football fields—juts into New York harbor, with the towers of lower Manhattan's financial district a short way across the water.

Edward F. Cavanagh, New York City fire commissioner, said the fire, FBI, police and other agencies are "investigating the possibility of sabotage."

The explosion also knocked seven men off a city ferryboat. Rescuers fished them from the water. Flames scorched nearby piers. Five ships were towed to safety.

BECAME INFERNO

An eyewitness, William Langrusker, 51, described the explosion this way:

"All we could see was black smoke, when suddenly it turned into an inferno. A solid sheet of flames at least two city blocks long and 100 feet high and the Empire State Building roared up."

For a time, police said, they worked on investigating a call to a newspaper earlier in the day in which an unidentified man said something would happen on the Brooklyn waterfront. But another call to the same paper Monday night, presumably from the same man, said the earlier call had referred to a dispute aboard a British ship and had nothing to do with the fire.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Arctic air from the Prairies is pushing into Ontario and temperatures are falling steadily behind the leading edge of the cold air. All of Northern Ontario is below zero.

In the cold air skies are mainly clear, except near the southeastern sides of the Great Lakes.

A new low is developing over southern Montana and rapid eastward motion is indicated briefly cloudy skies and snow in southern sections late Wednesday, but temperatures will remain cold.

Consumer Price Index Climbs To New Record

OTTAWA (CP)—The consumer price index rose to a record 120.3 in October, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The bureau reported that the index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, advanced 0.4 per cent in the month from 119.8 in September, the previous high. The October figure represents a gain of 2.4 points, compared with November, 1955, when the index stood at 117.9.

The increase of .5 points in the index in October was mainly caused by increases in the "other" commodities and services sub-index and to a lesser degree in the food index.

The bureau said the rise in the "other" commodities sub-index was caused by higher prices for 1957 models of passenger cars, together with increases in the cost of theatre admission, haircuts, some drug items and liquor.

Higher prices in bread, milk, most canned fruits and vegetables and some fresh imported vegetables resulted in the food subindex rising to 117.9 from 117.4.

Will Seek Increases

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton firefighters indicated Monday they will seek substantial pay increases next year.

A brief setting out the demands of Hamilton firefighters Local 288 was presented to board of control. John Longworth, city personnel director, said the firemen are seeking weekly increases ranging from $12.50 for first class men up to $16 for deputy chief, as well as reduced working hours and improved pension and hospital plans.

Substantial Increase in Turkey Production Will Result in Price Cuts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Turkeys, traditional centre piece of Canadian boards at Christmas, may be the housewife's best food buy this Yuletide season.

A survey by The Canadian Press indicates that a substantial increase in turkey production this year will result in price cuts ranging up to eight cents a pound across the country, compared with last Christmas.

While the main buying rush isn't expected before Dec. 15, retailers are well stocked and extra large numbers will be selling at a range between 47 cents a pound in Toronto to 61 cents in Vancouver.

Smoked meats and hams however may be as much as 10 cents higher than last year in some areas.

Ducks and geese, once rivalling turkeys as the main Christmas fare, have virtually dropped from the market in most places.

Ducks and geese are the forgotten item in Christmas food lists," one Toronto poultry dealer said. "Prices last year were well above turkey prices, making consumers turn away, stopped producing ducks and geese in any quantity."

Like the duck and goose, home prepared hams, cakes and puddings show signs of fading from the Yuletide scene, rapidly being replaced by ready-to-eat varities. Though more expensive, the ready prepared goods seem more popular with housewives, coast to coast.

In case the ladies want to bake their own puddings and cakes, ingredients — raisins, currants, candied cherries, peel and suet—will be selling in most places at prices slightly higher than last year.

A recent increase in sugar prices will mean the cost of candies in most centres, while imported biscuits, smaller in size, is also a feature, also will cost more.

Vancouver retailers report prices generally the same as last Christmas, though imported Japanese oranges will be slightly lower on the coast. Further inland they will be more expensive.

There is an increase in demand for the traditional Christmas combination of expected supply in every country, while some centres, notably Calgary, report shopping already under full steam.

Newfoundland grocers, expecting visitors are banking on more money being in circulation, a say they are making sure they won't be run out of grapes, raisins, oranges, cakes and puddings, as they did last year.

Besides normal home consumption, visitors are looking to meet buying by New Canadians, in preparing Christmas parcels for relatives in the old country, to swell the market.

Some western Canadian grocers, however, say they are worried about the mild weather at the end of December.

People don't start buying the Christmas food in quantity until the weather feels more like Christmas, they say.

5 MAYORS TURNED OUT OF OFFICE IN ONT. ELECTIONS

Some Have Served For Long Tenures

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five of the 14 Ontario cities electing mayors in Monday's province-wide municipal elections turned out the old and welcomed in new—some after long tenures of office.

All together, 23 cities had elections, but acclamations kept the number of mayoralty races down.

Ratepayers across the province approved spending more than $20,000,000 on various capital works projects. Two cities — Waterloo and Sault Ste. Marie — accepted a two-year term. Kitchener turned it down.

Generally adverse weather cut into the number of voters, but in some centres battles of personalities, especially for the mayoralty, set up close fights for election.

The five turnovers came in widely separated cities—Cornwall, Woodstock, Sault Ste. Marie, St. Thomas and Brantford.

HOROVITZ LOSES

Cornwall is to annex 12 square miles of mostly-populated land of the township Jan. 1, and the urban township dwellers were old-time friends of Mr. Monday's election.

Woodstock's mayor, Mrs. Bernadette Smith, lost out in her bid for a sixth consecutive term—four more than any previous mayor has held. She was defeated by Archie M. Latham, 61, who has served on city council for two years.

MOVE ON DIPHTHERIA

DETROIT (AP) — Doctors' nurses teams inoculated hundreds of children at six schools Monday in a drive to protect 30,000 children against diphtheria before the start of the Christmas holidays.

Joseph G. Molner, city health commissioner, ordered the drive after an outbreak of diphtheria in Detroit last month brought the city's total for the year to 129 cases.

ISRAELIS ALERT ON SYRIAN BORDER

Israeli soldiers man a machine-gun post, top, at the Syrian border, latest sore spot in the explosive Middle East. Russia has accused Israel of planning an attack on Syria and has reportedly sent heavy arms shipments into the Syrian port of Latakia, a Soviet-inspired Syrian attack. ### Railways Announce Approval In Principle of Welfare Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's railways have announced approval in principle of a plan to provide sick and accident insurance and hospital, medical and surgical benefits for 140,000 non-operating employees and their families.

Details of the plan, announced Monday, were approved earlier by the 15 non-operating unions.

The scheme will cover approximately 200,000 persons and will cost $13,500,000 annually. It is estimated that $1 million of this will be shared equally by employees and employer.

The biggest rail employer—CNR —announced today it will establish a voluntary contributory plan for non-operating employees not covered by wage agreements. It was estimated unofficially that 10,000 employees would be eligible.

CPR and the three smaller lines involved are studying similar action. It was learned. An estimated 20,000 employees would be eligible on all five lines.

The railways had indicated earlier that non-union employees in similar categories would receive comparable benefits to those provided in the eventual contract plan.

The plan, biggest of its kind in Canada, is to be applicable in all provinces.

Those affected by the plan include sleeping car porters and employees in shops, freight sheds, yards and offices. It was learned the railways are studying the possibility of extending it to non-union employees too.

The CNR announced it will establish such a scheme for its Canadian employees not covered by wage agreements starting Jan. 1. The announcement said the plan for these employees will be voluntary.

The master agreement covering non-operating employees specifies $4.25 a month be deducted from employee pay. The railways will match that. Represented at Monday's meetings were the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Ontario Northland, Algoma Central and Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railways.

Highlights of the plan:

1. Provision of $500 group insurance and weekly compensation for loss of income through sickness or non-occupational accident up to a maximum of $40 a week for employees only.

2. Hospital and surgical benefits are made available to employees and dependents.

3. Surgical benefits cover operations, treatment for fractures and dislocations and maternity allowance.

4. Non-operating union members with 60 days service by Jan. 1 are eligible. Employees injured on the job will come under workmen's compensation as before.

2 DIE, 2 MISSING AS FIRE SWEEPS GODERICH HOTEL

Impossible to Identify Bodies of Two Adults

GODERICH (CP)—Two persons were burned to death early today when fire destroyed the 113-year-old British Hotel, landmark in this Lake Huron town, 55 miles north of London. At least two other persons were reported missing.

Firemen said they would have to wait for the ruins to cool before they could properly search for other victims. The bodies of two adults burned beyond recognition, were removed.

IN SAME WING

Police said the blaze apparently started in the basement of the three-storey structure on Goderich Square and spread to the east wing at 3 a.m. About 30 guests were in the hotel, owned by Harry Leviie of Toronto.

Witnesses said some were carried down ladders from upper-storey windows and one was seen to climb out on the roof and jump.

Loss was estimated at $75,000.

Police said the two bodies were removed from the hotel's only narrow corridor. Mr. Leviie said he believed there were four guests in the old wing Monday night.

The hotel register was destroyed. Identifying and locating all guests. Two persons admitted to Scott Alexandra Hospital were released after treatment.

One guest, Gordon Ryan of Goderich, said he was on the second floor of the hotel when the blaze was discovered. He attempted to rouse a friend but was overcome by smoke.

Mr. Ryan owes his life to an unidentified sailor who carried him to safety.

DIED IN SMOKE

The fire was first discovered shortly after 3 a.m. by Mr. Ryan, who smelled smoke. He said he immediately started to kick on the doors on his floor attempting to awaken other guests. Twelve travellers, booked in at the hotel overnight, were registered in the 30 guests.

He and the guests fled in night attire losing their clothes and luggage. Mr. Nolan escaped from a window and lowered himself to safety by means of a rope in the fire escape.

According to manager Harry Leviie, the hotel was in order at 2 a.m. when he was aroused to book a room for a traveller. Police chief Ross of the Goderich and Clinton fire departments kept a watch throughout the hotel.

Efforts of firemen saved nearby homes on the street to the rear of the hotel.

'How Soon Can We Start Work' Ask Hungarian Refugees Reaching Dorval

MONTREAL (CP) — Sixty-seven Hungarian refugees, largest group yet to reach Canada and forerunners of a huge incoming flood, landed at Montreal's Dorval airport today with hardly enough clothing to cover them and asking quickly: "How soon can we start work?"

The ebullient Budapest was the first to arrive by Canadian government-chartered craft. It was seen off from Vienna by Immigration Minister Pickersgill and met here and taken to Dorval by Veterans Affairs Minister Lapointe.

"We hope that in this freedom-loving country you will not be like the Russians. Everywhere they have had to live through in the last years they have found that Russians impressed the Canadian people," Mr. Lapointe said in French and English.

These first arrivals by airlift spent Monday night in an immigration department hostel. Immigration authorities in Vienna completed today. Ages ranged upward from 17. Many told of their freedom fighting during the revolt against Communist suppression.

His wife and child were killed in a Russian bombardment of the Hungarian capital in 1945, said he hired them himself.

Mr. Laszlo said he had his own hardware business which was nationalized and he had to return to factory work.

He told reporters through an interpreter that the revolt began merely as a demonstration of independence. The Hungarians did not intend to fight the Russians.

A number of the younger men said in interviews that they believed the West had intervened the Russians' bluff would have been called and it would not have caused a world war.

But all expressed satisfaction at medical help received and with the speedy action of Canadian immigration authorities in Vienna. In some cases visas were received only one hour after application was made to Canadian authorities.

Weeping Women Defy Guns To Honor Dead in Budapest

BUDAPEST (AP) — Thousands of weeping, shouting Hungarian women defied Soviet guns to honor Hungary's unknown soldier dead.

The women paraded Russian soldiers who tried to push them back. They placed red, white and green bouquets on the large white stone honoring the Hungarian dead of the First World War.

It was clear to all who watched that the women were honoring not the dead of 1914-18 but the thousands who fell before the Russians in the rebellion of October and November, 1956, particularly on the Black Sunday of Nov. 4.

The demonstration, announced only by leaflets handed out on the dispest streets Monday, started at 11 a.m.

Singly, in groups, and finally in hundreds, the women converged on the square with their bouquets.

At least two dozen Russian armored cars and scores of Russian soldiers with sub-machine-guns were at the square. Their guns pointed at the women. (Reuters news agency reported that one woman was shot in the leg.)

The women passed the Soviet Embassy on former Stalin Street, heavily guarded by tanks and troops. About 300 feet from the square they ran into the first Russian roadblock manned by armored cars and troops.

Russian soldiers, in some cases, shoved the women back. But the women shouted defiantly "we are not leaving."

Gets Over Double Opponent's Vote For Easy Victory

Four Seeking Re-election As Aldermen All Win

Mayor Jane Forrester had little trouble sweeping back into office for her second term at the civic elections yesterday, defeating former Mayor Jack Bolt by an overwhelming majority.

The mayor crescendoed her majority from the first return, scoring victories in all of the 38 polling divisions. She was given 3,628 votes as against 1640 for her opponent. Her overall majority was 1988, an increase of 835 over that of last year.

Faced with Mayor Forrester's steadily-mounting majorities, Mr. Bolt conceded the election at 8.49 after 18 polls had given the mayor a 972 lead.

It was Mayor Forrester's third major electoral triumph since her entry into municipal government in 1954. That year she led the aldermanic polls within a record-breaking 3,252 votes. Last year in her first bid for mayoralty honors she swept aside Mayor Jack Bolt's quest for a third term with a decisive 1,483 majority.

Yesterday she polled but 56 votes short of her total in 1955. This can be regarded as another triumph since the total vote recorded yesterday was nearly 900 short of that of a year ago.

ALL ALDERMEN RETURNED

Four of last term's aldermen paid an ex-alderman were returned to the seats of municipal mighty with two newcomers making up the seven necessary for the council quota. Four candidates met with defeat.

Public Utilities Commissioner Harry Rollins was given an enthusiastic vote by civic constituents in narrow corridors. Mr. Levine said he believed there were four guests in the old wing Monday night.

The hotel register was destroyed. Identifying and locating all guests. Two persons admitted to Scott Alexandra Hospital were released after treatment.

One guest, Gordon Ryan of Goderich, said he was on the second floor of the hotel when the blaze was discovered. He attempted to rouse a friend but was overcome by smoke.

County Council Asks Govt. To Assume Greater Share Of Administration of Justice Costs

Concurrence in a Peterborough resolution asking the province to assume a greater percentage of administration of justice costs featured this morning's session of Hastings county council as councillors convened for their final meeting of the year.

Peterborough resolution stated that many of the fees of various offices were taken over by the province with county officers still being left to purchase their own supplies and equipment.

The communication said all jail costs should be taken over by the province.

Reeve Charles Buskard, as chairman of the council committee on administration of justice, commented that the substance of the resolution was much that Hastings county council should contact.

County Clerk Treasurer Eric S. Denyes, noted that the county provided division court supplies for both Trenton and Belleville and received nothing in return.

Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora Village moved concurrence in the resolution. "The government has all the say but does not pay the bills," he noted. "This council should be 100 per cent behind the resolution."

Reeve Buskard seconded the motion, noting that there was need for revision.

MORNING SESSION BRIEF

The morning session was a brief one with Warden Elmer Wood welcoming councillors to the session and on behalf of council members especially welcomed Police-elect Frank Peters of Monteagle and Herschel township, who is replacing the late Thomas H. Smith.

The matter was brought up through reading of a communication from Ontario Highways Minister James Allen who noted that his department had decided against a request for the province to take the bridge over from the county.

Reeve Brown noted that the bridge in question could only carry one-way traffic and that due to development and new construction along the street a two-way bridge was required.

"The bridge has got to be replaced," he said, "and if the county cannot or will not replace it, Bancroft would like to get out of the county road system and we will build it ourselves."

The reeve said that a new post office and liquor store was being built on the street, while the arena and a Canada Packers mill was also located on the artery with result the bridge was a bottleneck.

To a question from Reeve Lloyd Price of Elzevir, the Bancroft reeve replied that improvement of the highway bridge in the village had been promised by the Highways Department. With the removal of a sidewalk the present bridge had recently been made into a two-way bridge," he said.

Anne Pullman Has High Score; Nine Qualify

Belleville's lady bowlers came through with flying colors in the first round of the Molson Classic for the Eastern Ontario region.

Not only did a Belleville bowler Anne Pullman roll the highest score of the 170 entries, but eight others out of thirteen won places among the qualifying fifty.

These are: Lorna Shields, Selma Wodzak, Grace Clapp, Joan Kolb, Marion Kinsella, Doris McLean, Babe Hardwick and Margaret Fairbairn. Pin boy Maledine James, Marie Power and Lois McRoberts barely missed out.

Mrs. Pullman's high score of 1339 highlighted the round while she and her six teammates finished second to Kingston in the number of qualifying bowlers from a field of eleven centres in the district. Kingston furnished 18 in the top 50.

Napanee and Gananoque each had six. Deseronto, Tweed and Picton had three each and Brockville one.

Mrs. Pullman along with the 48 qualifiers and last year's regional champions Betty Matthews of Gananoque, will now vie for the singles crown and five spots on the all-star team at the regional roll-offs scheduled for January 13 at the Capitol Lanes in Kingston.

The top bowler from the other centres were Madeline Cunningham, Napanee, 1366; Pearson Graham, Tweed, 1131; Edith Hill, Gananoque, 1096; Dorothy Gannon, Deseronto, 1089; Effie Gilbert, Napanee, 1076; H. Harvey, Picton, 1031 and Margaret Dunn, Brockville, 987.

Anne Pullman Has High Score; Nine Qualify

Belleville's lady bowlers came through with flying colors in the first round of the Molson Classic for the Eastern Ontario region.

Not only did a Belleville bowler Anne Pullman roll the highest score of the 170 entries, but eight others out of thirteen won places among the qualifying fifty.

These are: Lorna Shields, Selma Wodzak, Grace Clapp, Joan Kolb, Marion Kinsella, Doris McLean, Babe Hardwick and Margaret Fairbairn. Pin boy Maledine James, Marie Power and Lois McRoberts barely missed out.

Mrs. Pullman's high score of 1339 highlighted the round while she and her six teammates finished second to Kingston in the number of qualifying bowlers from a field of eleven centres in the district. Kingston furnished 18 in the top 50.

Napanee and Gananoque each had six. Deseronto, Tweed and Picton had three each and Brockville one.

Mrs. Pullman along with the 48 qualifiers and last year's regional champions Betty Matthews of Gananoque, will now vie for the singles crown and five spots on the all-star team at the regional roll-offs scheduled for January 13 at the Capitol Lanes in Kingston.

The top bowler from the other centres were Madeline Cunningham, Napanee, 1366; Pearson Graham, Tweed, 1131; Edith Hill, Gananoque, 1096; Dorothy Gannon, Deseronto, 1089; Effie Gilbert, Napanee, 1076; H. Harvey, Picton, 1031 and Margaret Dunn, Brockville, 987.

Mass Funerals For Six Victims Of Accident

Mass funerals for the six accident victims of Sunday's automobile-train collision in Marmora will be held Wednesday afternoon at two Anglican churches on the Madawaska Indian Reservation.

It will be a day of mourning for members of the Indian reservation with schools at which the children attended to close.

The funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill, and their two daughters, Marian and Audrey, will be held at All Saints Anglican church on the Indian reservation with interment in All Saints' Cemetery.

Funeral services for Archie Maracle and his son Robert will be held at 2.00 o'clock Wednesday at Christ Anglican Church with burial in Christ Anglican Church cemetery.

Rev. Walter F. Smith, chaplain for the reservation, will conduct both services.

The victims were six of ten persons riding in a late model sedan which was struck by a C. P. R. freight on a concession road a mile north of Shannonville.

Four persons Donald Robertson, Kingston, Mrs. Thelma 28, and their two children, Ted and Rita, 5, were critically injured. Mrs. Robertson and her son were taken to Toronto where they underwent emergency brain surgery while Mr. Robertson and his daughter are in Belleville General Hospital.

The condition of Mr. Robertson and his daughter Rita, confined in Belleville Hospital, is given as "satisfactory" by attending physicians.

Yugoslav Troops Move Into Desert

PORT SAID (CP) — Yugoslav troops, first international soldiers to serve with the United Nations Emergency Force, headed today for positions in the Sinai Peninsula, scene of desert war clashes between Egyptian and Israeli forces last month.

Movement of this Egyptian port where Scandinavian UNEF men began their first policing duties Monday, British soldiers cheered the news that they are to be withdrawn from Egypt "without delay."

The news spread rapidly from the city of the canal zone front line, where allied forces are separated from Egyptian forward positions by UNEF Indian paratroopers.

British soldiers are convinced that they are going home for Christmas, and for most as they heard the news there were key celebrations, including singing, cheering and the consumption of carefully boarded drinks.

Arts and Crafts Club Show Most Successful in History

History has proved that no community or undertaking is complete without a cultural background. The pursuits of the creative arts and crafts is an important part of the heritage of any race. One of the groups in this district who works on this theory — and works eagerly — is the Belleville Arts and Crafts Club. Now a familiar part of the local community scene, the club has just concluded one of its most successful history.

Sponsored by the Recreation Committee, the club presented its first exhibition of arts and crafts to the public here recently.

On display were exhibits of all the arts and crafts now being practiced by many people — who find in them an avenue of expression for creative urge.

The display was held at the Kiwanis Centre. An added attraction to the exhibition was that many of the exhibits also were offered for sale. The art display met one of good variety.

In charge of this section of the exhibit were Mrs. Harold Whalen and Mrs. Audrey Bersolt, assisted by Mrs. Vera Wetmore, Mrs. Andrews, Coral Mastine and Mrs. Hugh Murray.

The display included still life, landscape and impressionistic art in oils and water-colors.

One of the original crafts shown was the silk-screening display. Products of this craft were done by this method included Christmas cards, table clothes and "thank-you" cards.

Mrs. Cora Cronkwright was in charge of this exhibit, assisted by Mrs. Mary Cronk, Mrs. Alma Aylting and Mrs. Godden. Helen Sulman and Mrs. Watson assisted in the preliminary work.

The entire show was opened officially by Mayor Jane Forsyth, who brought greetings from the city.

Mrs. Eric Whitfield, president of the Arts and Crafts, received all guests at the entrance to the display. Mrs. Gladys Parker, treasurer, was in charge of admission.

In charge of the tea was Lea B. Williamson, so'nf convener. Tea-room convener was Mrs. Edna Emery; kitchen convener, Mrs. Peggy Eagle; receptionists to tea room, Mrs. Ethel Andrews and Mrs. B. Williamson.

Assisting in the kitchen were — Mrs. J. J. O'Connor, Mrs. Agnes Curry, Mrs. M. Quirt and Miss Murphy. Others serving were: — Mrs. Dorothy Brown, Wilma Sandercock, Mrs. Verna Wetmore and Miss Nora Hales.

Highlight of the evening was the draw on the painting donated by Mr. Psavo Airola. In charge of ticket sales was Coral Mastine. The draw was made by Mr. Lloyd G. Bogart, auctioneer director. The painting was won by Mrs. Galpin of 64 Alexander Street, a patient of the Belle Haven Rehabilitation Club.

James Holt Elected Reeve Of Stirling

STIRLING, (Special) — James Holt was elected to the village reeveship in the municipal election here yesterday defeating Murray Philp after a close contest. Reeve-elect Holt was given 292 votes with his opponent getting 281. Holt's majority was 31. .

It was estimated that approximately 60 per cent of the village electorate went to the polls.

It was the only election this year all other municipal offices being filled by acclamation.

The hydro commissioner is Harold Bird.

Acclaimed for a two-year term on the school board are Edwin Warren, Hamilton Donnan and Ray Mallory. Glen Whitehead was given an acclamation for one year, filling out the vacancy caused when the former incumbent Everett Ketcheson moved from the village.

IN MEMORIAM

EMPEY. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Fred Empey, who passed away December 4th, 1954.
Now our world is lonely,
And the hearts are sad and sore,
Nor ever will you be,
Out of our memory last.
We will remember then,
As ever remembered by brother Arthur and family.

EMPEY. — In loving memory of a dear daughter, Iva Empey, who passed away December 4th, 1954.
We are sad within our memory,
Lonely days and lonely years,
For the one we loved so dearly,
Is not forgotten by her dears.
Sweet is the memory she leaves us,
That lies within the heart concealed,
Never remembered and loved,
Pearl.

HARRISON. — In fond memory of a dear husband, Harrison, who passed away December 4th, 1954.
Sweet is the memory he leaves us,
Deep within our heart concealed,
And with farewells unspoken,
He departed from us,
—Ever remembered by mother.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market advanced for the third straight session today in morning trading but the upward trend was not as determined as in the two preceding sessions.

A little profit-taking became evident among some of the stocks which marked up solid gains since the present recovery started late last week. But gains outnumbered losses more than two-to-one across the board.

Industrial advances ranged to 1½ points, Imperial Bank in the lead.

Senior base metals were strong for the third straight session. Hudson Bay and Labrador added 1¾ points while Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel were ahead ¾.

Canada and U.S. Asked to Waive Loan Payments

LONDON (CP) — A sharp slump in gold and dollar reserves jeopardizing the value of the pound was disclosed today in a British appeal to the United States and Canada to waive interest on post-war dollar loans due this month.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Harold Macmillan told the House of Commons that the reserves — shared by all sterling area countries — fell by $279,000,000 last month.

The slump brought reserves to $1,985,000,000 — below the $2,000,000,000 mark which economists consider the essential minimum for the safety of the pound.

Parliament was told the U.S. is putting the British request for waiver of payments before Congress.

WOULD BE AUTOMATIC

A Canadian decision to grant a parallel waiver will follow automatically if the United States agrees, Macmillan said.

The two waivers, if granted, would mean a saving to Britain of $104,000,000.

The application for waivers apply to the interest due on the loans only.

Redemption on the loans will be paid in the amounts of $36,000,000 to the United States and $15,500,000 to Canada.

Interest on the loans is due in the amounts of $81,800,000 to the United States and $22,200,000 to Canada.

EMERGENCY ACTION

Macmillan announced a series of emergency actions designed to "maintain the rate for the pound sterling at its present parity" of $2.80.

These include immediate application to the International Monetary Fund for permission to buy up to $325,000,000 in the next 12 months. Britain has the right to buy these dollars with sterling.

The chancellor said the agreement with Canada provides for a waiver only if one has been granted by the United States.

He noted that the British government owns between $750,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 worth of American securities.

"These can be a substantial reinforcement to the reserves and I am prepared to use them for this purpose," Macmillan said.

TAX GASOLINE

Macmillan announced that as an emergency measure customs duty on gasoline will be raised by a shilling (14 cents) a gallon. This will be in addition to an increase of 7½ pence a gallon in wholesale and retail prices of gasoline which oil companies were announcing today.

The new gasoline tax will be a temporary measure during the present oil shortage. It will come into effect from tonight and is expected to bring in £30,000,000 ($84,000,000) to the treasury in the remaining four months of the financial year ending March 31, 1957.

The price of gasoline before today's increases averaged four shillings six pence (63 cents) a gallon, of which just over half was tax.

Macmillan said he did not propose to take any immediate steps to increase income tax.

NO HESITATION

"But I must warn the House and inform the world that the government will not hesitate to use this weapon if needed when the time comes," he added.

Hugh Gaitskell, leader of the Opposition, suggested that the chancellor should call a conference of Commonwealth finance ministers to consider the economic situation.

The chancellor undertook to consider this idea.

Blast Wrecks Boston Tavern

BOSTON (AP) — An explosion early today blew apart a one-story tavern adjoining the Boston naval shipyard and injured at least six persons asleep in their homes nearby.

Put on the injured list in hospital were two women, three infants and a young girl.

Witnesses said the blast "completely disintegrated" the brick building housing a place known as Doherty's Tavern, only a few yards from the naval shipyard in the Charlestown district waterfront.

The force of the blast blew out windows in homes several blocks away and showered debris half a mile away.

Cause of the blast could not be determined immediately.

Carmen Scott Elected Reeve Over W. Blakely

PICTON. — Carmen Scott was elected reeve of Picton defeating Woodrow Blakely by 96 votes. Scott polled 720 votes and Blakely, who is reeve this year, 624 votes. Last year, Blakely defeated Scott by 69 votes.

In the Public Utilities Commissioner race, William Henley defeated the sitting commissioner, H. G. Blakely. Henley had 748 votes and Blakely 726.

In Hallowell township D. O. Reynolds polled 475 votes to 367 for Bruce Hyatt to give him a majority of 108. Councillors elected were John Fox 536, Palmer Huff, John May 390. Defeated were Harold Fawcett 235, Gerald Goode 317.

In Bloomfield village —for reeve, Arthur Moore had a majority of 33 over J. Donald Baxter; Moore polled 178 and Baxter 145.

Police Blotter

Slippery street conditions resulted in several auto accidents in the city yesterday and last night which resulted in considerable property damage but no injuries were reported.

At the corner of Homewood and Southview, an unguarded intersection, cars driven by Donald Stanton, 220 Dufferin and Carl W. Cox, Point Anne, collided early this morning doing a total of $400 damage.

Also early this morning patrol officers spotted a young girl hitchhiking on Dundas St. She turned out to be a 16-year-old Cobourg girl who was detained at the police station until the arrival of her mother who took her home.

A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Belleville citizens like their 1956 council.

That fact was clearly shown yesterday in the sweeping victory of Mayor Jane Forrester and the re-election of all four of the retiring aldermen who were seeking re-election.

Mayor Forrester's victory over ex-Mayor John Both was not unexpected, in view of the fact that she had defeated the same opponent a year ago, when she was a comparative newcomer to municipal politics, with only one year's experience as an alderman. Her margin of victory, however, may have proven surprising to many observers, who had anticipated that Ex-Mayor Both's campaign, based largely on criticism of financial policies, would have had considerable appeal for many taxpayers in view of the seven-mill increase in the tax rate this year. The majority of Belleville citizens, however, apparently realize that steadily increasing tax rates are not a phenomena confined to this city and that a growing city, like a growing family, can place a severe strain on the budget. Monday they showed, by their votes, that they are prepared to pay the price for this growth.

The impressive vote amassed by Ald. Gerald Hyde who headed the poll in a field of eleven aspirants for seven aldermanic seats, was a well-deserved tribute to his work as chairman of the finance committee of the city council during the past two years. From the earliest returns his re-election, like that of Mayor Forrester, was never in doubt.

Early in the voting the personnel of the 1957 Council could be forecast with considerable confidence. The final standing of the successful candidates in the aldermanic race, however, was not quite so easy to predict. Changes in the standing were the rule, rather than the exception with each new report. When final returns were in, however, the first four places on the ballot were filled by the four 1956 aldermen seeking re-election, Gerald Hyde, Ralph Graham, Frank Grandame and Mrs. Effie McCabe, with the other three places being shared by an ex-alderman, Douglas Moore, a comparative newcomer to civic life, second attempt, Robertson Collins, and a new-comer to municipal politics, Donald Whalen. The 1957 Council will thus have an admirable mixture of experience and new blood.

EXCELLENT INDUSTRIAL BOOKLET

A short time ago we received a copy of the tourist booklet published by the Lake Ontario Development Association. We were forced to criticize it.

We have now received a copy of the industrial brochure prepared by the same Association. It is a pleasure to be able to praise it unreservedly.

The brochure itself is as attractively designed as was the tourist booklet. This time, though, something new has been added. Our criticism of the tourist booklet was that it failed to provide specific information about various communities in the large and varied area served by the Association. Nobody can make this complaint about the industrial brochure.

Specific information about each urban municipality in the area has been supplied by providing a pocket into which have been inserted some fifty typewriter-sized sheets printed in small type.

The information on these sheets has been made easy to locate and to compare by dealing with each municipality separately.

Municipal and Chamber of Commerce officials are listed. Location of the municipality is clearly stated. Transportation facilities are outlined. Population trends are shown graphs.

One paragraph outlines briefly the housing situation. Another deals with labor supply and rates of wages.

The ability of industry to expand and their cost is given. Facts about utilities services are stated. Figures on tax rates and assessment are provided.

Banking facilities are listed and additional pertinent information is provided under the heading of "miscellaneous."

Then the information on the centre is concluded by a description of present industries, their products and the number of their employees.

Any industrialist seeking a site for a new plant can obtain a wealth of information from these documents, easily and quickly. He can also obtain, and make comparisons, can select a half dozen or so communities in the area which appear to most nearly meet his needs and can then arrange to visit those communities personally. The information provided him by the Lake Ontario Development Association can thus save him much trouble and expense.

Because the Association offers this service, it greatly enhances the chances of him inspecting communities in this district, rather than in some other part of Ontario which is not equipped to assist his search in this manner.

This is an excellent job of promotion and the Association and its manager, Donald W. Kingdon, formerly Chamber of Commerce secretary here, deserves our congratulations and have earned our thanks.

DON'T

The handkerchief pile at the moment is low,
Patients are faded and frayed,
The rack for the neckties (and each one is low)
Is in need of immediate aid.
The gloves have a worn-out appearance,
But no man should purchase such articles now.

The robe may be showing the hardship of wear
And the slippers be tattered and flat;
You may have, as the women say, "Nothing to wear,"
Perhaps you may need a new hat.

It may be there's nothing worth while on the shelf,
But this is no time to buy things for yourself.

It may be your toes have pushed through all your socks,
Or a belt or suspenders you need,
But don't you be swayed now by merchandise stocks
Or trouble at home you may breed.
This is no time for a man to acquire
The small things he needs to complete his attire.

U.S. Once Took a Leaf From Canada's Book

By Robert W. Smith in the Minneapolis Star

In days gone by, often when our British cousins were irked by American "meddling" in their colonial policy, they would retort — though never in such explicit, undiplomatic language as the — "What about the way you took Panama?"

Once the exuberance of the President Roosevelt era had died, most Americans were a little embarrassed over the way we "took" Panama (or Colombia, from which Panama seceded). But during T.R.'s day, Americans evidently were not inclined toward fine moral judgments in the matter.

The United States, it may be recalled, wanted to take up where the bankrupt French company left off in building the canal. Strong political forces in Bogota, the capital of Colombia, were being difficult. Roosevelt was fed up.

"The Bogota lot of corruptionists," he wrote Secretary of State Hay, should not be allowed "permanently to bar mankind from the highways of civilization." Language and sentiment of that sort removed from Anglo - French fulminations against Nasser's government.

And Roosevelt, again like the present British and French leaders, could be not too particular about exact interpretations of treaties. If under an earlier treaty the canal is to be built and "we have a color of right to start in and build a canal, my offhand judgment would be that we proceeding."

Secretary counseling patience, he replied. "I feel we are certainly justified in morality, and therefore justified in law in interfering summarily and saying that the canal is to be built and that they must not stop it." He did not explain the "moral" justification.

Colombia continued to oppose the U.S. government. Finally, after a number of Panamanians — then still Colombians — had visited the architects of the canal (and the money the United States was willing to pay for permission to go ahead) pushed forward with plans for a revolution.

After considerable communication with U.S. officials, including President Roosevelt, they launched their revolution on Nov. 3, 1903. To show how close American officials on the spot were to the revolutionists:

A report to a state department query as to progress of the revolution, our consul at Panama City replied that "the revolution finally started yet, but would get under way later in the day."

In his first speech—before the rebelling Panama Legislature—the soon-to-be president of the new republic declared, "President Roosevelt has made good. ...Long live the Republic of Panama! Long live President Roosevelt! Long live the American government!"

And then, under the commanding general of the revolution was carried aloft through the streets, the American colonel walked beside him carrying the U.S. flag.

Colombia naturally protested such an offense against her sovereignty, but the U.S. secretary of state brusquely replied that our actions were "for the interests of peace and order," and Roosevelt gave orders to U.S. naval vessels off Panama and Colon to prevent any Colombian action against the rebels.

According to one Roosevelt biographer, Thomas A. Bailey, T. R. may not actually have done anything directly to foment the revolution, "but he was extremely well informed regarding the plans."

And later his boisterous nature led him to marvelous interpretations, capped by a speech at the University of California, in which he remarked:

"I am interested in the Panama Canal because I started it. ...I took the canal zone and let congress debate, and while the debate goes on the canal does also."

Placing Outside Thermometers

Why the difference in temperature registered by outside household thermometers? Next-door neighbours often find their thermometers differ by two, three, four or more. Are the thermometers at fault or does the cause lie elsewhere?

Trials at the Beaverlodge Experimental Farm, Alberta, during winter nights have shown several causes for the variation in the readings of accurate thermometers placed in a louvered screen. Dr. A. C. Carder reports that one thermometer was placed in a louvered screen; another on a post in the open; another on a Stevenson screen; another on a post in the open and sheltered by fencing. Both were four feet above ground level. Although these thermometers were never more than 5 feet apart, the readings were identical only 35 per cent of the nights when exposed as described. On 15 per cent of these nights a difference of two degrees or more and on 2 per cent a difference of 4 degrees or more occurred. The greatest difference was 7 degrees F. and occurred on a clear, windless night.

The explanation for these differences is to be found in the differences in exposure to the flow of heat by the mercury or spirit in the bulb of a thermometer to colder objects within line of sight may, under certain conditions, be considerable. The "feel" of a night is true, and the recording liquid will be affected by the temperature of other objects. These objects need not be close at hand. Also, on clear nights, thermometers exposed to the sky will lose heat by radiation and register appreciably colder than a thermometer in a shelter. Readings from such an openly exposed thermometer may be representative of the temperature of the surrounding air, but not correctly indicate the temperature of the ground but will not correctly indicate the temperature of the ground on which vegetation or animals.

A householder cannot be expected to keep his thermometer in a louvered box. However, exposed thermometers will give reasonably accurate performance if certain precautions are taken. Never fence a thermometer directly towards the window of a warm room for towards an expanse of sky. The former location will cause it to register high, the latter low. The instrument is best suspended as inch or two from the north wall which shield faces a background of trees or other buildings.

Canada Needs Winter Hat

Montreal Gazette

After much huffing and puffing, he's finally here — Old Man Winter, that is (appropriately, Santa Claus is arriving soon, too). Low of 10 degrees, high of 22, reads the overnight record, with snow flurries moving in.

As the temperature lowers, the annual question arises: what to wear on the head?

Women, as usual, have a wide range of choice. Every day, by day, they adapt themselves; with bubble cars, they don the new bubble fashion they can meet the fiercest weather. When the sun shines women are at their best in their original ornamental headgear can be worn with ease.

For the male, it is a stern decision between comfort and dignity. Except on the coldest days, the businessman doesn't dare wear anything in sport such as a beret or a ski-cap. He can, of course, compromise with a pair of earmuffs worn under a felt homburg, but the effect is hardly imposing.

It is strange that Canada, for all her pioneering tradition and her pioneering days are far from over), has never given sufficient thought to winter headgear that will make it generally accepted in the cities.

People who have little or no connection with the West take great delight in "cowboy" headgear. No one ever seems to envy the Northerner who wears a fur cap with earflaps.

Perhaps Canadians should start glorifying the fur-trapper and his winter, instead of his summer gear. In winter he wears a cap with flaps.

That's all this sensible change needs: a little, well-supported change of attitude.

FOR LOVE OF SIMPLE THINGS

In the course of a long life we are given many choices. Some of these choices turn out to have been mistakes. We try as we will we do not always choose the right ones. We may think that life would be easier, but as Life's cunning approaches, our love is for the simple things. No land of mere experiences

Marshal Forces For Hot Debate On Suez Decision

LONDON (Reuters) — The government and Opposition feverishly prepared today their ammunition for a crisis debate on the decision to withdraw British and French forces from Egypt without delay.

As plans moved forward for the debate beginning Wednesday, political quarters buzzed with speculation about the extent of a "revolt" by some Conservatives bitter and angry at the decision to quit Egypt.

This group of Conservatives is expected to abstain from voting for the government they support when the debate ends with a crucial vote in the House of Commons Thursday.

But the numerical strength of the "Suez group" is uncertain. Political quarters today reported the "revolt" dwindling in strength as the debate approaches, murmuring not more than 12, as opposed to a previously reported 30.

SET THE STAGE

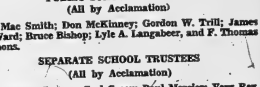
The government set the stage for the most vital political battle of its existence with a motion Monday night asking the House to support its Middle East policy as outlined by Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

This motion says British policy "has prevented hostilities in the Middle East from spreading, has resulted in United Nations forces being introduced into the area and has created conditions under which progress can be made toward the peaceful settlement of outstanding issues."

It was presented to Parliament about seven hours after Lloyd announced the Anglo-French withdrawal under a time-table to be agreed with the United Nations.

The general expectation in diplomatic circles here is that the withdrawal will be completed by about Christmas.



Today's preparations for the fateful debate included a cabinet meeting to decide parliamentary "battle strategy." a conference of the Labor party's "shadow cabinet" to work out a critical amendment to the government motion, and a meeting of Conservative members of Parliament addressed by Lloyd, who is trying to rally the "rebels" to the administration's side.

Laity Should Study 'Catholic Truth,' PTA Told

President Ernest Cook chaired the general meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of St. Michael's high school on Monday evening. The Very Rev. L. B. Garvin was present.

Mrs. J. E. Boyd read the secretary's report and H. O'Neill gave the financial statement. Mr. Cook gave a detailed report of the annual meeting of the Kingston Archdiocesan P.T.A.

It was decided that St. Michael's hall should join the Film Council. Also the date of the card party and bingo draw was fixed for Wednesday, December 12, at the Academy.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. J. R. Rashotte for his kindness in hosting the football team to turkey dinner at Point Anne.

Dr. F. R. Ross suggested some sign of recognition of his player on the team for their excellent effort. In the hope that more parents will attend the PTA meetings, the president will send a note to each family previous to the meetings.

REPORTS OF CATHOLIC SOCIAL

Cardinal McGuigan, 20 bishops, the Apostolic delegate, the Prime Minister of Canada, and Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto and Dean Garvin spoke more of the procedure of the conference. The division of group for discussion of the subjects dealt with.

Rev. Leo Laforest, who was one of the speakers at the conference, gave a comprehensive report. Sister said in part, "Catholic truth should be studied thoroughly and used in all humility, without prejudice or passion. Special emphasis was placed on the need to study the Encyclicals. The most important thought: The need to mobilize the laity in every walk of life; the immediate target, the specific social condition in your home, school, shop or office. There must be a renewal of Christian spirit. Because we are human beings, members of the Mystical Body of Christ, we must be interested and contribute to the present day, socially. The Holy Father expects each of us personally, physically and mentally able, to participate in the crusade of social reform."

MULROONEY — McCAMBRIDGE

White chrysanthemums and ferns adorned the altar of Holy Name of Mary church, Marysville, for a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday, November 24, at 9.30 a.m. when Dorothy Yvonne McCambridge, became the bride of Kenneth Joseph Mulrooney, son of Mrs. Stanley Mulrooney of Marlbank, and the late Mr. Stanley Mulrooney. The Rev. J. F. Donoghue, P.P., officiated in the double-ring ceremony and sang the Nuptial Mass. The Rev. J. F. Feeney, Erinsville, was present in the sanctuary. Bernard and Ambrose McCambridge, brothers of the bride, were acolytes.

Sister Mary Wilhelmina, Belleville, presided at the organ and Mrs. Bob Burke, Belleville, soloist, sang "On This Day O Beautiful Mother," "O Lord I am Not Worthy," "Panis Angelicus," and "Our Wedding Day."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a strapless gown of imported Chantilly lace, waltz-length, with net ruching and satin scroll braid, lace jacket with long lily-pointed sleeves and Peter Pan collar etched with seed pearls. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a seed-pearl headpiece and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white Fugi 'mums.

Miss Dorothy Mulrooney, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, wearing nile green crystalette, green feathered headdress and carried pink Fugi 'mums.

Miss Joyce Forrestell, also bridesmaid, wore shrimp crystalette, shrimp feathered headdress and carried blue Fugi 'mums.

Mr. Joseph Mulrooney, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Joseph McAlpine of Picton, and Mr. Joseph McCambridge, brother of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held at Quinte Beach motel, Desoronto, where the wedding dinner was served to over 85 guests. The bride's table, damask covered, was centred by a three-tier wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, flanked by candelabra and the bridal bouquets.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Jack Lamarche, to which the bridegroom responded and Mr. Joseph Mulrooney responded for the bridesmaids.

The bride's mother received the guests, attired in a brown suit with beige and copper accessories and corsage of yellow roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Mulrooney, wearing peacock blue satin with black accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

Later, amid showers of confetti She was seen away by the bride left by motor for Montreal and Eastern Ontario.

The bride chose as her travelling costume, a brown tweed suit with beige accessories and brown wool coat and corsage of yellow roses.

Guests were present from Detroit, Philippine Islands, Rochester, St. Catharines, Washago, Belleville, Kingston, Napanee, Clinton, Omemee, Lindsay, Port Arthur, Tweed Sudbury, Enterprise and Marlbank.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Mulrooney will reside at Napanee.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at showers held at the homes of Mrs. Ray Doyle, Miss Joyce Forestell and Mrs. William Spencer, Belleville. Fellow employees of the bride presented her with a table lamp and electric kettle.

Tissue fine wools, delightfully done, go out to enjoy happy evenings under bright lights. And no wonder when they are like this beauty, light-hearted, attractive, flattering. Black chiffon tops the sheer black wool dress, the chiffon striped in rows of black lace. Lace at the straight neckline and the cap sleeves adds a feminine touch. The self belt is set on, the bow decorated with a rhinestone buckle. The slim line is marked by a high waistline.

Centenarian Has Used Cold Cream For 50 Years

MONTREAL (CP)—Pert little Mrs. Louisa Wells, a centenarian with a score of humor and a complexion that a woman one-half her age could envy celebrated her 100th birthday with a six-hour party that left her guests all tuckered out.

But the highlight of the weekend celebration was the annual visit by her "boy," son Charles, 72, of Champlain, N.Y. Guests, who arrived at 3 p.m. stayed until 9:30.

That Mrs. White is confined to bed in a Montreal nursing home didn't stop her from enjoying the party or sparking conversation.

"I'm a little bit more than sweet 100," she quipped. But her skin still shone no wrinkles.

"That," she said, "is because I've used cold cream for the last 50 years."

AGREE ON CONTRACT

HAMILTON (CP) — The United Textile Workers of America said Thursday night it has reached agreement with Canos Imperial Mills Ltd., for a new contract, giving basic 5-cent-an-hour wage increases to employees. The wage packet also consists of increases ranging to six cents an hour affecting 30 per cent of the 175 workers.

Christ Church EBWA Hears Year's Reports

The final business meeting of the year of the Evening Branch of the W.A. of Christ church, was held in the parish hall on Monday evening. Bible verses were read by Mrs. A. Bongard and following the roll call and minutes, the secretary, Mrs. W. Edwards, read the correspondence including a thank-you card from Miss Elsie Bell and one from the secretary of the United Thank-offering Fund, Mrs. J. McCullum, explaining its purpose.

Mrs. L. Musclow as "Living Message" secretary, reported on her work and Mrs. H. Miles as Dorcas secretary, told of the bale that had been sent to Gordon Indian School and of the requirements for next year.

APPRECIATION EXPRESSED

The president, Mrs. A. Cooper, expressed her personal thanks to all members for their wholehearted co-operation for the most successful tea and sale last week, especially mentioning the conveners, Mrs. G. Cherry and Mrs. C. Pazzera. Notes of appreciation are to be sent to Mrs. J. Cooke and Mrs. T. Dafoe for their donations.

Arrangements were completed for the Christmas party supper on Monday next, when there will be a Christmas tree and exchange of gifts, following the evening.

As is the custom at the final meeting of this missionary group, sums of money were allotted to the work of many missionaries and needy projects among them the Cowley Fathers in Brazil; Anglican Sunday School by Post; Church Army; for the education of a boy in Palestine and for the Anglican Martian Relief fund, as well as a gift of money for the rebuilding of the Anglican church at Bannockburn which was destroyed by fire during the summer.

Archdeacon J. B. Creegan closed the meeting with prayer and refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Spencer and Miss A. Rodgers.

KILLED IN CRASH

PRESCOTT (CP)—Charles Hill, 22, of Prescott, was killed Sunday when his car and a transport collided in a snowstorm on Highway 2 10 miles west of here. The driver Howard Knarr of Brantford is in Brockville hospital with undetermined injuries.

TO GET NEW BUILDING

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—An all-truc-modern building will house the commercial printing department of the Daily Times-Journal here next March, President Frank Murphy announced Monday. The building will be a modern one-storey structure. About 8,000 square feet of floor space will be provided to replace the old two-storey quarters.

St. Andrew's W.G. Holds Season's Last Meeting

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women's Guild met on Monday night for the last meeting of the year with Mrs. J. G. Shorey presiding. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. Bly, and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. D. Dunsley. Mrs. W. Mantle was pianist.

The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. D. D. MacLeod from St. Luke's account of the Christ Child's birth, "Christmas in that angelic music echoes through the ages," said Mrs. MacLean, "and this year has found echoes in the hearts of men."

Discussing the particular carol, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," Mrs. MacLean stated "the message of God's message through the noise and confusion around us, and only when man has ceased his inhumanity to man, hear the angels sing."

Mrs. M. C. Thom expressed thanks to all who participated in making the bazaar an outstanding success.

Mrs. Williamson's group offered to provide the Rotary Christmas dinner for the blind of this district. They also voted to give a sum of money to the board of managers of the church.

Mr. Eaton Boyce was present with the Intermediate choir to render a fine program of vocal music. All sections of the choir were well balanced with beautiful tone and good blend in three numbers, "Father in Heaven Whose Love Profound," "God of Might We Praise Thy Name," and "The Virgin's Slumber Song," by Roger. Misses Barbara and Beverly McKenzie, whose voices blended nicely, sang "Santa Lucia," and Misses Rita and Helen Vincent were a pleasing duet with "Sisters" and "True Love."

Mrs. D. Fleming thanked the young performers and Mr. Boyce on behalf of the Guild.

Refreshments, served by Mrs. Renouf's group, provided a social conclusion of the evening.

Women Candidates Taste Bitter, Sweet in Municipal Elections

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Women candidates tasted the bitter and the sweet in municipal elections throughout Ontario Monday.

Mrs. Jean Newman, an attractive grandmother who is reticent about her age, drank deepest of the sweet.

She headed the poll for Toronto's Board of Control and captured an office second only to the mayoralty in Canada's second largest city.

The bitter went to women like Mrs. Bernadette Smith, of Woodstock, whose five consecutive terms in office were a record for the municipality in that city. She was defeated in her bid for a sixth term by C. M. Tatham, 31-year-old graduate of city council ranks.

BELLEVILLE VICTORY

Mrs. Smith was one of three women candidates for mayor in city voting Monday. Only Mrs. Jane Forrester of Belleville won through. The 46-year-old wife of an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist was re-elected for a second term, defeating Jack Boh, the same man that she overcame in her first bid a year ago.

At Sudbury, Mrs. Grace Hartman, wife of a retired International Nickel Company official, was defeated by Mayor Joseph Dobson. This year, Mrs. Hartman served on the board of control and was deputy mayor.

Toronto elected 29 women besides Mrs. Newman—two as aldermen and four to the Board of Education. Seven women were defeated, among them Communist Mrs. Edna Ryerson who was seeking her 14th term on the Board of Education.

The women elected as aldermen in Toronto are no strangers to civic politics. Mary Birchwood is former member of the council, Dorothy Gray is a present councillor and president of the council itself. She will be responsible for preparing the city's budget and hiring and firing of city employees.

"I'm speechless," she said when the final result established her position. Then, with a woman's prerogative, she added: "Credit for my success should go to the many women who stood beside me and helped during the campaign."

Little earlier, when news photographers invaded her home for victory pictures, she lamented: "I wish I had had time to get my hair done."

Also in Texas of Canadian parents, Mrs. Newman came to Toronto when three months old. She is a graduate of the University of Toronto. Her husband and her son George, 24, were with her during the evening. Her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Dahlgren, lives in New Brunswick. She has one granddaughter, aged 11 months.

Mrs. Newman made political life in 1951, with election to Toronto's Board of Education. In 1955 she became an alderman. Last year she won re-election with the highest vote among the city's aldermanic candidates.

INGERSOLL MAYOR

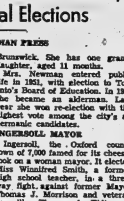
Ingersoll, the Oxford county town of 7,000 famed for its cheese, took on a woman mayor. It elected Mrs. Wendell Smith, a three-way high school teacher, in a three-way fight, against former Mayor Thomas J. Morrison and veteran councillor Thomas A. Ekett.



Across the province, women won many other offices.

Brantford elected its second woman alderman, Miss Mary Wood. The first, Mrs. Jennie Steere who served some years ago was defeated in a comeback try. Other women elected to councils included Mrs. Isobel Post at Orillia, Mrs. Irene McGeachie at Colingwood, Mrs. Eva Cox at Petrolia, Mrs. Kay Walkinshaw at Huntsville and Mrs. May Pickoss at Ottawa.

At London, Mrs. W. Don Smith, a lawyer's wife and official candidate of the London Council of Women, headed the poll for board of education. St. Thomas elected two women—Mrs. F. W. Lewis and Mrs. Jack Waite—to its board of education.

Mrs. Agnes Spence was elected deputy reeve of Strathroy in the London district.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ACT AS THOUGH THESE BOYS DIDN'T EXIST

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm a girl 18 years old and I live near a boys' boarding school.

Every afternoon I have to pass one of the dormitories on my way home from school, and although I don't encourage the boys, I sometimes make unconcilmentary remarks about me and my friends. Most of these unconcilmentary remarks are directed against my walk, but I can't help walking the way I do because I'm a little overweight.

Will you please tell me what I should do? — Sally

Dear Sally:

What you should do is very simple: do nothing whatever.

Simply ignore the boys and act as though you don't see or hear them. If they find they're not going to be able to get a rise out of you, they'll soon stop calling out at you because it won't be any fun.

I also suggest that if there is another way of getting home from your school, such as, perhaps, taking another street rather than the one that goes past the dormitory, it would be advisable to do that.

LET "SOMEONE" COME LOOKING FOR YOU!

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 30 years old and very lonely. I've been keeping company with a man who is 53. He tells me he loves me, but he never seems to want to show me any affection. He's always too busy.

Do you feel he's too old for me, and do you think I should look for someone nearer my own age?

— I.G.

Dear I.G.:

It seems to me there are more things wrong with this romance—if it could be called a romance—than your friend's age. Chief among these, I would say, is the fact that he doesn't appear to be really interested in you.

I'd advise you to get yourself a lot of other interests so that you, on your side, won't be "too busy" to have time for this man. If you turn yourself into an attractive and interesting young woman, who is active in many worthwhile projects, you may not have to "look for someone nearer your own age." "Someone" may come looking for you, which would be far better.

YOU WERE QUITE RIGHT TO GET MAD

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm 20 years old and have been going out for some time with a fellow of the same age.

A couple of weeks ago he came over to spend the evening with me. When I was baby-sitting, and after he'd been there awhile, he got fresh with me and I got mad and told him off. He said if I really loved him I wouldn't have got mad and he went off and left me. I haven't heard from him since.

Do you think I made a big fuss over nothing and that I should just forget it and call him up and say I'm sorry? Or was I right to get mad? — A.L.R.

Dear A.L.R.:

You were exactly right to get mad and—to use this young man's own words in another way—if he were really in love with you, he wouldn't have got fresh. Certainly if he were the right sort of young fellow he would have been apologetic, not angry, when you made it clear that you didn't like what he did.

Don't make the mistake of calling him up. The next move should definitely come from him, and unless he gets in touch with you to apologize, you had better forget him instead of what he did.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

WINTER WHITE WASHES LIKE A DREAM

White knitted wraps for the smartest occasions are high style this season.

Knitted wraps of winter white are very much the accepted mode this season. There's a wide choice of smartly tailored jackets, coatdshrugs, and sweaters designed for dressy theatre wear and for tea or After Five occasions—as well as the most informal all local-type fare.

For sports occasions, you can choose a huge bulky knit, bluoxy sweater with a drawstring waist and huge collar; a handsome motor coat with a half belt in back; a loose, roomy car coat with a detachable "hooded" hood and two big pockets in back; or a heavy rocket-type "barrel jacket."

Offerings for dressier occasions include soft orlon or wool cardigans with such glamour touches as lace insets, pearl and steel cut beadings, satin and lace piping, or small round collars sparkling with rhinestones.

One novel cover-up is the short short jacket in a bulky knit with cap sleeves, a pert round collar, and lace or pearl trim.

In addition to their luxurious cuddly softness and stylishness, white suits are practical because suds will rout all dirt and stains—even from elaborately decorated sweaters. Just squeeze the garment gently through lukewarm soap or detergent suds, rinse in water of white turkish towel—away from the heat. Gently ease the garment to shape with your fingers.

You may prefer to outline the garment on sheet of wrapping paper before consigning it to the suds and then use this pattern as a guide to "finger press" the garment back to its exact shape.

It's important to remember two things when washing any knitted garment. The first is to suds it frequently—because it's the dirt, not washing, which creates wear and tear on the yarn. The second is to avoid all rubbing, wringing, and twisting. Hard-to-remove spots should be pre-treated by gently "massaging" them with wet-lathered fingers or a rudsy soft brush before laundering.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

SHOULD ATTENDANTS BE MARRIED OR UNMARRIED?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My brother is to be married in a few months. I have been asked if I would like to be a bridesmaid in the wedding party. I am a married woman. Would it be proper for me to be a bridesmaid, or is this proper for single girls only? — S.E.

An attendant in a wedding party may be either married or unmarried. . . . quite often in today's weddings more than half of the bridesmaids are the bride's relatives or friends who have married before she did. And very often today the bride has a matron of honor, instead of a maid of honor, or she sometimes has two matrons of honor. So please do accept that charming invitation, and have the happiness of being an attendant of your brother's bride!

THEIR WEDDING PLANS DISPERSING

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I'd so very much like to have your point of view about the plans I have in mind for my wedding. It is to be a quite large, formal wedding in our church, with a noisy large reception at our house afterward. The basis of my question is that the members of my family have always been extremely close, and this is also true of my prospective bridegroom's family. Therefore we would like to make our plans a feature this closeness in both families. I'll explain more definitely. My father will give me in marriage: the groom's father is to be his best man. My mother will be seated in the first pew on the left of the aisle; the groom's mother will be seated in the first pew on the right of the aisle.

I have only two brothers (I am their only sister), both married. The groom wants to have these two fellows for ushers, and also his two brothers and his two first cousins. I would like to have my two sisters-in-law as my matrons of honor (to walk together); and no bridesmaids. As flower girls I would like to have my two nieces and the groom's two nieces, all of approximately the same age and height.

Tell me, please, Mrs. Beekman: Do you think this would look too much like a "family affair," and do you advise that we rearrange our plans to include some intimate friends and a few more relatives? Our wedding is several months away, and we have not yet invited the attendants—so we could change our plans if you say so.

Bride-to-be.

What a radiant glory it is for you and your prospective bridegroom to have such joy and pride in your family relationships that you want to "feature" this exceptional closeness. Please don't change one of your plans . . . your wedding will not only be wonderful and memorable to you both, bride and bridegroom, but also a noble inspiration to all who will see or know about the fine and abiding solidarity of the two families.

Elegant Evening Coat

By TRACY ADRIAN

Typical of the opulence and romance of the current couture collections is this short, extravagantly full evening coat which is luxuriously banded in mink.

Breakfast With A Concert Pianist

By Mary Moore

"Malcolm Troup slept here." If you call on me that's what I'll tell you as I point to his bedroom in my house.

What a glorious musical interlude in the life of a newspaper columnist! First of attending his concert and having the new experience of hearing this amazing pianist— a product of Canada and Guerrero of Toronto Conservatory and later Walter Gieseking—taking all of the diehard music critics by storm—and electrifying doubting audiences! You could feel them come alive after he played a Brahms number and he kept them thrilled and breathing for the rest of the evening.

I had lured Pete and Danny away from their studies with a promise of tickets to the concert. When I leaned forward to glance along our row at them I knew I was justified. Malcolm had just finished playing one of their labors of love—Chopin's Etude Opus 10, and they were applauding themselves right off their seats.

It was an exhilarating night. When he'd autographed programs and thanked his crowding fans Jessie Beattie (who discovered this genius) whisked him off to our house for a roast beef buffet and music talk.

He had played in Niagara Falls the night before, was due to play in Sarnia the next night, so I asked him how he stood the pace. The way he plays the piano requires the discipline of a general, the dedication of an artist, the sensitiveness of a saint, the intuition of a diplomat and the stamina of an athlete. He faced me squarely to answer: "Just before every concert I eat a steak." "But how did you learn anything about nutrition

Catholic Women's League Has Heavy Agenda

The November meeting of St. Michael's sub-division of Catholic Women's League was held Wednesday evening in St. Michael's high school auditorium, with the president, Mrs. B. E. Burley, Mrs. E. Logan presided. Reports were read from the various convenors.

A box of used clothing weighing 400 pounds was sent to the Missions last month. Anyone who has used clothing please take to Mrs. J. E. Boyd, 36 Oak Street, as she is packing another box.

Letters were read from Mrs. B. E. Burley and Mrs. T. J. Flurey, convener and co-convener of the parish bazaar, thanking everyone for their co-operation, their help and their generous donations which made the bazaar such a huge success.

Mrs. J. E. Boyd extended her sincere thanks to the councillors who so ably disposed of the tickets on the bond.

Malcolm?" "By trial and error. One night I had a big steak by chance before a concert in London, England, and I felt strong all the way through. So I've eaten a steak before every performance ever since. Another thing, Mary. . . when we were young we were never sure of an adequate meal and felt insecure. That steak in my stomach gives me confidence every time."

Of course I slipped that talk up like a cat does cream—and fed him a fruit and soft-boiled egg and milk breakfast according to his specifications. I decided to eat just like he did and maybe I'd break out into music. It worked too. I've been singing Little Brown Bird all morning.

Malcolm Troup, Canadian pianist—we salute and bow. It is men of your rare calibre who are making Canada great. Come back again!

Mrs. G. Powers and herself, thanked the 32 ladies who so cheerfully canvassed Baldwin ward for the Community Chest drive on November 19. The results were most gratifying.

On Sunday, November 18, a member of CWL sat at the rear of the church at all Masses to receive new members. This was so successful, it was decided to do the same in December and January.

Mrs. B. J. Flagler and Mrs. J. Perrault visited 88 patients in hospital during October. Mrs. M. Trudeau and Mrs. D. Hurst will visit hospital during January.

WORKERS NEEDED

Mrs. E. Finkle reported that there is an urgent need for workers for the Red Cross. Anyone interested in sewing at home or at the Red Cross rooms afternoons or evenings, please contact Mrs. E. Finkle, 383 John Street or dial WO 8-5852.

The ladies were reminded that the campaign for Canadian Register is now on. It is hoped the members will be generous with their time when asked to canvass.

Mrs. T. C. Young reported that 31 girls were registered as Girl Guides by Acting Captain Mary J. Walsh on October 24. Since then the girls have had five meetings in St. Michael's auditorium—meeting every Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. Four patrols have been formed: 1. Shamrock Patrol under Guider Mrs. T. C. Young; 2. Lily of the Valley Patrol under Guider Mrs. J. Finkle; 3. Red Rose Patrol under Captain Mary J. Walsh; 4. Buttercup Patrol under Guider Mrs. D. Green.

Miss Betty Holland (lieutenant) takes charge of four second class guides. The League which is sponsoring the Girl Guide group has offered to purchase material needed by this group.

Following adjournment, refreshments were served.

EMPIRE LINE

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The svelte, high placed Empire line is cleverly contrived in this charming dinner dress of black velvet. The device consists of halter bands of peacock blue silk faille, the bands crisscrossed to make for additional decollete interest, and the idea is tied up by the bow in back from which long streamers extend. For the rest, the dress is straight and reed-slim.

ASK ROUSECLEANING

PARIS (AP) — A meeting of the French Council of the World Peace Movement, widely regarded as a Communist front, called Sunday for withdrawal of Soviet troops from Hungary. Another resolution vote demanded abrogation of "all military pacts," including the North Atlantic treaty and the Warsaw treaty between the Soviet Union and its satellites.

Golden Girl

By TRACY ADRIAN

Jean Desses, eminent Parisian couturier, designed this magnificent evening dress using a fluid new tissue woven with a golden yarn which was made with aluminum.

The very formal ball gown is floor length with slender shoulder straps, a molded bodice and an intriguing and cleverly draped skirt.

Hastings County Board for Blind Gives Reports

Hastings County Advisory Board for the Blind met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wishart with the chairman, Mr. T. J. Flurey, in charge. Mr. Everett Fairman read the minutes of the last meeting.

The financial report, given by Miss Roblin showed that the recent campaign in Belleville realized $4,919.05 and the county $6,032.11 making a total of $10,943.16. Expenses included supplementation for residents of the Quinte-St. Lawrence hall; many services included talking books; radio repairs, and batteries; summes camp fees; emergency assistance to some residents of the county; eye services and remedial work; campaign expenses, and provision of Braille watches.

Mrs. H. Rollins reported for the admissions committee stating that there are six blind persons in residence at Quinte-St. Lawrence with five being supplemented with $21 a month.

Assistant field secretary, Bob Padden gave a comprehensive report of his visits to the blind in the county. Assistance had been given where needed with clothing and fuel provided. Home teaching was given where requested, and many personal problems were solved when possible.

COUNTY WORK REVIEWED

Mr. P. I. Timmins, field secretary, was present to review the work accomplished in the county. He recommended supplementation of fuel and allowance in some cases, and transportation to the hospital for a baby born with glaucoma in North Hastings. Arthur Davies, a former flight sergeant from Trenton, is in training for a field secretary. A baby with a brain tumor had to have an eye removed which had to be replaced with a plastic eye. The Lions club had provided the money for an operation and the hospital bill and the board had provided glasses.

Christmas gifts will be given to each registered blind person in the district. The request for allowances without a means test to be presented to the government, was discussed. It was decided to postpone the sale of articles made by the blind to a later date.

Mrs. Wishart served refreshments to the board members.

Club Activities

MODERN MISSES

The second meeting of the "Modern Misses" was held on Friday, with nine girls present and one visitor.

The meeting opened with the roll call followed by Faye Adams reading the minutes of the last meeting. Home assignments were: buy the material and pattern and take to the next meeting, be sure to know if it is sanforized or not; study the instruction sheet and the pattern and check measurements with personal measurements; continue work on record book.

The next meeting will be held at Janice Taft's on December 7.

CLAIM GEMS FOUND

LONDON (AP)—Moscow Radio claimed Sunday the discovery of diamond deposits in Siberia "at least as great as those in Africa and Brazil." The diamond fields were along the upper reaches of the Vilyuy River, a tributary of the Lena.

COLORFUL SHOW

More than 200 varieties of tulips are among the million blooms to be seen at Ottawa's tulip festival in May.

Reptilian DOG-TAGS

We are often amazed how aluminum gets around to unusual places. Who would think of looking for aluminum in the stomach of a Zululand crocodile! . . .

It seems when this croc was captured, no less than 32 aluminum dog licenses were found in its stomach, which suggests that Zulu dogs are mighty carefree. But it proves that aluminum is immune even to the formidable digestive juices in this reptile's insides.

Industry capitalizes on this resistant quality of aluminum when industrial fumes and other corrosive conditions present a problem: one of several reasons why this modern metal is in such heavy demand—and why Alcan is again increasing its already large smelting capacity.

By NANCY ANN STOKES

Yesterday at the television studios I witnessed a miracle! Before my astonished eyes I saw a 45-year-old woman look ten years younger in just minutes. I saw Ern Westmore, one of Hollywood's most celebrated makeup artists, select a middle-aged housewife from his studio audience. Then, as Mr. Westmore watched, she applied a new beauty formula to her face and neck. Instantly I saw wrinkles, dark circles under the eyes and "age-lines" disappear. I saw blemishes and birth marks vanish. I saw tired, old-looking skin turn satiny smooth and young again.

Next, with a few strokes, she reshaped her lips . . . changed her eyebrows, touched up her hair. With each stroke I heard the audience gasp in awe and wonder at the miraculous transformation that was taking place. Her face now glowed with the vitality of youthful freshness and beauty. Flashing devil-may-care eyes danced with fire. Tempting lips sparkled with enticing enchantment. Her skin was now so soft and ivory-smooth you wanted to reach out and touch it. And most amazing of all, what Ern Westmore did for this woman, you can do for yourself in your own home in just minutes . . . and do it WITHOUT RISKING A PENNY!

Ern Westmore, Dean of Hollywood Makeup Artists, TELLS TRUTH ABOUT MOVIE STARS

"Often people ask me, how is it so many actresses who are "stars" can still play glamor-girl parts! It's simple. It's not how old you are . . . but how old you look! These actresses just don't happen to stay young looking . . . they've got certain secrets.

A NEW COSMETIC BEAUTY DISCOVERY

It is no secret that the most important thing to beauty is the kind of makeup you use. For years science has known that powdered makeup clogs your skin pores — enlarges your pores. That powdered makeup prevents the natural skin oils from functioning properly.

Finally after thousands of tests, science found a SUPER-LANOLIN LIQUID MAKEUP that does not require the use of harmful, pore-clogging powder. That does not become flaky, caky, or blotchy. It does not harden your skin —dry out your skin. And this was just the beginning!

THE SECOND AND GREATEST DISCOVERY OF ALL

But science was not satisfied with a makeup that just covered up blemishes. They wanted to CORRECT BLEMISHES! After hundreds of additional tests came the greatest achievement of all. They found by blending a new wonder discovery called Sorbitol into this Super Lanolin Liquid Makeup . . . they combined a COVER-UP WITH A MIRACULOUS SKIN CONDITIONER! You can actually feel this new Lanolin-Sorbitol Liquid Makeup penetrating into your skin. Feel the way it smooths your skin, makes your skin feel young and alive. Imagine! Just apply a few drops to your face and neck. Instantly your cover-up shadows, dark circles, blemishes, "crow's feet", wrinkles, freckles, birth-marks . . . AND EVERY OTHER TYPE OF SKIN FLAW! Your complexion takes on that youthful, radiant look. It gives you natural skin's texture with soft, flattering warm tones. You're YOUNGER THAN YOU'VE EVER LOOKED BEFORE! And remember! This revolutionary new makeup goes on so smoothly, so evenly, so naturally, you need no powder.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY KIT FREE

All we ask you to do is TRY . . . not buy . . . but TRY Charles Antell's great new makeup at our risk. For your trouble we will be only too happy to send you ABSOLUTELY FREE a complete Hollywood Beauty Kit worth $5. and containing: 5 Hollywood Eyebrow outliner; 5 Hollywood Lip outlines; 3 Months' size of Charles Antell's "Pink Blush" Liquid Rouge; 1 "Silk Tone" Lip Liner Pencil; 1 "Fine Point" Eyebrow Pencil; Charles Antell's "Morn-til-Nite" lipstick in the beautiful-ly styled "Futura-Gold-Set" case; the Ern Westmore Hollywood Glamor Graph . . . a 32-page illustrated beauty course that shows at a glance how to style your hair and apply makeup . . . plus 101 other beauty tricks.

If after using Charles Antell's new Super Lanolin Makeup you can't look into your mirror and honestly say that you look ten years younger . . . if even a single line, mark or blemish is still visible . . . if your friends and loved ones don't shower you with compliments galore on your new youthful appearance . . . simply return the makeup for your full money back. It has cost you absolutely nothing. But keep the Ern Westmore Hollywood Beauty Kit as a FREE GIFT!

Charles Antell is making this special gift offer for Christmas, whether you have tried Charles Antell Super Lanolin Liquid Makeup or not, here's your chance to order and save money for yourself and your friends. # Part-Time Women Soldiers Under Command of Maj. Evis

OTTAWA (CP) — In Canada's militia, it no longer a case of "shall we join the ladies."

For the ladies, more than 2,000 strong, already serve beside their khaki-clad male counterparts in the five army commands across Canada.

Behind these peacetime, part-time women soldiers is Major Marjorie Evis, senior staff officer of the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

COMES FROM TORONTO

A tall, dark-eyed brunette, Toronto-born Major Evis is a veteran of the Second World War. She was recalled to active army duty in 1950.

Interviewed at army headquarters here, Major Evis said she acts as adviser on matters of special concern to the CWAC. Unlike the air force and the navy, there is no regular women's army. With the exception of Major Evis and five officers in the commands, CWACS are enlisted in the army militia, or reserve.

CWAC members train two nights a week beside the men, and spend two weeks at summer training camps where the CWAC becomes strictly feminine, with the exception of some male training officers.

With 193 officers and 2,128 other ranks now in the CWAC, the women "do practically everything." Fully integrated into the militia, they receive uniforms free a n d train in trades ranging f r o m radar operators to medical assistants.

About the only things CWACS don't do is train in weapon drill or firearms; members are engaged in clerical duties. But they can take rifle practice as a form o. recreation.

During the Second World War, 101 officers and 1,943 other CWAC ranks served overseas.

ENLISTED AS PRIVATE

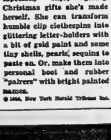
Major Evis, working as a secretary in Toronto and as a Red Cross volunteer, enlisted in 1941 as a 24-year-old private.



One of the first Toronto women to enlist, she served in Canada, the United Kingdom and northwest Europe. She was commissioned as a lieutenant in 1943 and promoted to major in 1945.

At the end of the war, she served at Frankfurt, Germany, as Canadian liaison officer at British and American headquarters.

Then she became executive assistant to Dr. O. M. Solandt, then chairman of the defence research board, and late a liaison secretary for the board.

She says her off-duty hours are taken up looking after her home and her eight-year old son Ricky plus hiking, camping and reading. She acts as cubmaster for her son's pack.

MID-EAST OIL ARRIVES IN BRITAIN

The first oil tanker to go from the Middle East by way of the long route around Cape Horn, Africa, arrives at a refinery on the Isle of Grain, England. The tanker Althea Livanos, with an all-Greek crew, carried 27,882 tons of crude oil. In the meantime, President Eisenhower ordered a massive emergency flow of oil to ease the critical shortage in Europe. U.S. officials said that at least 500,000 barrels a day will be in transit before Christmas. (Central Press Canadian).

Federal Agricultural Experts Predict High Wheat Carryover

OTTAWA (CP)—Despite higher wheat marketings this fall, federal agricultural experts today forecast Canada will have a record wheat carryover next year.

In a series of reports on 1957 prospects presented to the federal-provincial agriculture conference, the federal agriculture department also said:

1. Canadian meat production in 1957 will probably be about the same as this year with prices remaining strong.

2. Creamery butter production next year likely will be 1,000,000 pounds below this year's output and stocks at the end of 1957 down 12,000,000 pounds from the average during the last three years.

3. Consumers may have to pay higher prices for dairy products next year than this.

DOMESTIC USE HIGHER

On the wheat situation, the federal experts estimated domestic consumption at some 160,000,000 bushels during the current crop year, which ends next July 31. This would be up from last year's home use of 148,000,000 bushels.

If this year's exports equal the 1955-56 wheat shipments abroad of 862,000,000 bushels and domestic consumption rises as forecast, the experts said in the department reports:

"The carryover at July 31, 1957, would be well above the 537,000,000 bushels held on July 31, 1956, and slightly in excess of the previous record carryover of 602,000,000 at July 31, 1954."

Canadian wheat stocks last Oct. 1 totalled 858,000,000 bushels, up 32,000,000 from the 826,000,000 on hand a year earlier, although August-September exports were up to 37,200,000 bushels from 42,200,000 in the first two months of the previous crop year.

The report made no prediction as to how Canada's wheat exports will go this year.

The report said the U.S. surplus disposal operations "continue to have a disturbing effect on our export position." Heavy subsidization of wheat production in other countries also was affecting Canada's wheat exports.

MEAT POSITION

On the livestock outlook, the experts predict 1957 meat production will be about the same as this year's level which "appears to be approaching the record 1,900,000,000 pounds set in 1944."

"A continued strong domestic demand for meat, plus an anticipated firm improved U.S. market should prevent any significant decline in cattle prices, while all the indicators — consumer demand, export possibilities and the supply position—point to strong hog and pork prices."

Milk production in 1957 is expected to be about 17,500,000,000 pounds, about the same as in the previous two years.

Butter production for next year was forecast at 306,000,000 pounds, down 1,000,000 from 1956. Consumption would amount to about 318,000,000 pounds with a resultant drop in stocks at the end of next year to 84,000,000 pounds from the average in the last three years of 96,000,000.

5 MAYORS TURNED

Walter Harry Sr., a veteran of civic politics, returning after an absence of almost 10 years, stopped Herb Emaie's bid for an eighth consecutive term as mayor of Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. Harry had served on the city's council for 18 years and had a three-month appointment as mayor before his retirement 10 years ago.

Brantford's Mayor Howard Winter, seeking a sixth term, was defeated by Alderman Max Sherman in the city's first vote for a two-year term.

The other reversal for a sitting mayor was in St. Thomas, where Peter Laing was defeated by John Stirling, a public school principal and an alderman since 1952.

Toronto and Windsor were the only two of Ontario's five major cities to have a vote for mayor. Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto was returned with a more than eight-to-one majority over Ross Dowson, a bookstore owner making his fifth unsuccessful bid for the office.

An expected close fight in Windsor failed to materialize, as Mayor Michael Patrick pulled away from three opponents, including former Mayor Arthur Resume. Voting in the border city was unusually heavy.

Ottawa's new mayor, George Nelms, 51, took office by acclamation after former Mayor Charlotte Whitton, who held the office before, retired. London's Mayor R. A. Dennis was elected last year to a two-year term. Hamilton is to vote Wednesday.

Mayor Harold Sritter of Guelph defeated Dr. Charles Pinch, a native of Sault Ste. Marie. Frank Boyce won a three-way fight in Kingston, to fill a mayoralty vacancy caused by the death of George C. Wright, 71, Oct. 7.

In Fort William, Mayor Hubert Badanai won a fourth consecutive term defeating Alderman Joseph Young. Peterborough's Mayor John Dewart also defended his position successfully, defeating Arthur Burrows.

Stratford elected Alderman Fred Cox, 50, as mayor, over Alderman Victor Polley, 46.

Crowland Township, a thickly-settled area adjoining Welland, approved a $1,000,000 grant to a local hospital. Welland previously approved a $1,000,000 grant conditional on Crowland approving its expenditure.

London turned down a proposal that it spend $400,000 on passenger equipment on the 25-mile London and Port Stanley Railway.

PRIVILEGE OF FOREIGNERS ONLY

An unusual sight in Paris these days is a motorist refuelling his auto with a reserve can of gas, since the French are not allowed to carry an extra supply during the current fuel shortage. Here, a foreign tourist, who has run out of gas, is shown filling his gas tank with a reserve supply. An emergency committee of 15 U.S. oil companies has begun to carry out President Eisenhower's order to provide a half million barrels of oil daily to Europe. (Central Press Canadian).

ERRORS ADMITTED

HONG KONG (AP)—The Hanoi radio in Indochina's Communist state of North Viet Nam says nearly all party members wrongly condemned in connection with a land reform program have been released from prison and an announcement followed an earlier broadcast acknowledging belatedly a farmers' uprising late last month. An undetermined number were killed when the revolt was crushed.

ROMANIAN ELECTIONS

VIENNA (AP) — Bucharest radio announced today that new elections for the Rumanian parliament will be held next Feb. 3. On Thursday the present parliament adopted a change in the electoral law permitting any Romanian to stand for election to the legislature—even former kulaks (rich farmers) or members of "former reactionary parties."

23 HOMELESS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Fire burst through the dust-dry walls of five adjoining houses in central St. John's Monday night and left homeless 23 persons, including 17 children. Their possessions were lost or badly damaged by smoke, fire and water. Children were whisked from bed in their night clothes, but there were no casualties.

BRITISH TROOPS TO BE HOME BY CHRISTMAS

British troops arrive at the Customs House in Limassol, Cyprus, after withdrawing from Egypt in compliance with the United Nations ceasefire agreement. Other Franco-British battalions remained in Foreign Ministers Christian Pineau of France and Selwyn Lloyd of Britain met in London to discuss final details. Most of the British and French troops will be withdrawn from the Suez area by Christmas if enough U.N. troops arrive to take over. (Central Press Canadian).

Need Strong U.S. Leadership In Middle East Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson Monday night called for "strong and consistent leadership" by the United States in working out a settlement of the Suez and Arab-Israel problems.

He said the United Nations police force in the Middle East will not accomplish its job if there is nothing more than a ceasefire in Egypt and withdrawal of British, French and Israeli troops.

There was also need for settlement of differences over the Suez Canal and over Israel's borders with her Arab neighbors.

That will be difficult, Mr. Pearson said, "unless we get strong and consistent leadership from the United States" both inside and outside the UN.

The UN force should stay in Egypt at least "until the process of settlement is on the way."

Mr. Pearson spoke in a television broadcast in the CBC's five-time political series The Nation's Business.

He said that if the present UN force succeeds it will open the way for the building of "some more permanent structure of collective security."

He referred to a proposal by John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative foreign affairs spokesman, for the calling of a Commonwealth conference to revisions in the Western alliance.

Mr. Pearson said he is not sure that Mr. Diefenbaker would carry it out. It might be unwieldy, since Mr. Diefenbaker had suggested inviting leaders of Britain, France, the U.S. and also members of both the Commonwealth and NATO.

He added that the work of "reconstructing" the Western alliance should begin at the meeting of the NATO Council at Paris next week.

BUDAPEST CITIZENS FACE LONG, HUNGRY WINTER

In Budapest few public buildings and homes remain unmarked by the ravages of war. Citizens, thousands of them homeless and hungry, have searched through the rubble to find bits of wood for fuel, clothing and food. Now they can be seen walking the streets, grim with the realization that the winter cold and hunger will be long and trying. (Central Press Canadian.)

Hungarian Forestry School Faculty and Student Body Will Be Transferred to B.C.

VIENNA (CP)—More than 200 Hungarian teachers and students who stuck together through revolution and flight have chosen Canada as their new classroom.

The entire faculty and student body of the 153-year-old forestry school of Hungary's University of Sopron is expected to set up quarters soon after the New Year in a coastal British Columbia construction camp.

The move was suggested by the 29 professors and 285 students of the school, and Canada has set no time in trying to arrange the lock - stock - and - barrel academic transplant.

"This will be a tremendous asset for Canada," J. W. Pickersgill, the Canadian Immigration minister, said Monday in announcing the expected exodus from the Austrian refugee camps where the students, professors and 25 wives and other dependants are sheltered.

ASKED AMBASSADOR

The group escaped from Hungary about two weeks ago and sounded out Canadian Ambassador J. Scott MacDonald on whether they could transfer in a body to Canada and continue their studies.

Canadian officials went to work and a plan was formulated in 18 hours of speedy negotiations by the University of British Columbia and the Powell River Paper Company.

Many details are still to be worked out, but embassy officials say it is "almost certain" that the offers will be accepted and that the faculty and students will move to Canada to a construction camp 70 miles up the coast from Vancouver.

The accommodations are expected to be ready Jan. 15. If present plans go through on schedule, the Hungarians will reach Canada by ship in early January.

Pickersgill said the University of British Columbia, located in Vancouver, has agreed to accept the faculty in some form of affiliation.

Besides accommodation, the paper company will provide summer jobs and other aid. Logging space will be available and Powell River will sponsor English lessons, probably the first project to be undertaken on arrival.

Reports from Vancouver said plans are for the Hungarians to winter in the camp, a new unit which is being used at present by workers building a new mill for the company. By next winter, officials in Vancouver said, the Hungarians should know enough English to attend a Canadian university or trade school.

Pickersgill, speaking of Hungarian refugees generally, said Monday night that their rate of movement into Canada in 1957 will exceed largely on the country's ability to absorb them.

Winding up a three-day visit to Austria, the minister said it is impossible to estimate the number of refugees Canada might be able to handle in addition to some 6,000 scheduled to be flown to Canada en route to Canada by the end of the year.

"The real problem for Canada will be the task of handling refugees in Canada, not the mechanics of getting them there" he said. "It isn't going to be easy to absorb such numbers, especially in the winter months."

He said the 6,000 figure is by no means the total Canadian effort; that a "very great flow" was expected next year. Canada has set no limit on the number of Hungarian refugees she will accept.

Meanwhile, a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane took off for Vancouver on the first refugee flight by the private route. The plane carried 68 refugees, including two babies.

Pickersgill, in Vienna for an on-the-spot study of how Canada should handle the refugee flow, said he expects to return to Canada Dec. 16 after brief visits to West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium, France and England.

On his return he plans to take an "immediate look" into problems on the Canadian end to allow the start of detailed planning for the refugee movement next year.

New Brake Put On Credit Buying By all Banks

TORONTO (CP)—A new brake of so far unassessed strength has been put on credit buying. It became known Monday.

Finance companies—the institutions which put up the money for a large proportion of installment buying—have been told by the chartered banks that they must not borrow beyond their present loan-total for the year ended Sept. 30.

If they have already exceeded this peak, they are given 60 days to get back to it.

The measure applies to finance companies with lines of credit exceeding $1,000,000 and is assumed to stem from the Bank of Canada's decree to hold down credit buying as an anti-inflation measure.

It is understood that the situation in regard to finance company borrowing will be reviewed every three months.

FEARS RESULTS

A retail store source said he feared efforts of this sort might have undesirable overperation on other parts of the Canadian economy. Restrictions on bank credit, he said, might force finance companies into borrowing from parent-company or other sources in the United States. This would tend to raise the premium on the Canadian dollar and further embarass export trade.

The Telegram says "The next move will be a boost in downpayment requirements and a shortening of the repayment period."

Quick Clearance Of Suez Canal Sought by U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government sought today to persuade Egypt to allow quick clearance of the Suez Canal, blocked by sunken ships and other obstacles in the wake of the British-French attack on the area.

The state department said Monday, in a statement approved by President Eisenhower, that it would regard each day of delay in the clearance of the 1888 treaty which guarantees freedom of transit through the 103-mile waterway.

In London, the admiralty said today that more than 51 obstructions still clog the canal and others may lie beneath the surface. It said mines had been laid in the southern end, and urged that British vessels not be help in clearance operations.

MAY BE MONTHS

Western Europe, facing oil shortages because the canal is closed to all traffic, expects months to pass before it can be cleared.

In the U.S. statement was apparently designed to serve notice on President Nasser that he should cooperate in clearing the canal be declared nationalized last July 26.

Nasser is understood to be insisting that work to reopen the canal cannot begin until all British and French troops have been withdrawn, and that British or French equipment not be used in the task.

American officials said they hope Nasser will back down on both these points now that Britain and France have formally pledged to pull out all their troops "without delay."

Municipalities Are Preparing For Big Influx of Refugees

TORONTO (CP) — Organizations throughout Ontario, both public and private, are preparing one of their biggest receptions ever—for hundreds of Hungarian refugees expected to arrive before the end of the year.

As immigration officials braced themselves for a rush of paper work, the call went out to municipalities and citizens' committees to arrange for accommodation, jobs, clothing and food.

Northern Ontario already has the welcome mat ready. The Northern Development Association has appealed to cities, towns and villages to receive the newcomers and Mayor Merle Dickerson of North Bay, association president, said five cities and towns promised cooperation during the weekend.

Mayor Dickerson said North Bay itself expected to greet families, Timmins, Chapleau, Matheson and Calvert Township also promised assistance. Haileybury, Hearst, Haileybury, Verner, Blind River and Cobalt also are investigating the appeal.

ADD TO POPULATION

Mayor Dickerson said the refugees not only present a humanitarian challenge, but they offer "a tremendous opportunity to take first-class opportunity to take progressive steps in increasing and increasing the population of the region."

Immigration officials in Hamilton expect 200 Hungarian refugees to be installed in the 200 immigrants due there between now and Christmas. The immigration office here serves a heavily-populated area including Hamilton, Guelph, Brantford and Oakville.

Henry Mansfield, chief officer directing traffic there, Monday said the influx will tax the facilities of his office but the work will be done.

"The Hungarian situation is different," he said. "Here we have a national calamity and the only consideration is to get these people here and to find them accommodation and clothing."

In Barrie, labor businessmen said they plan to establish a committee to arrange employment and accommodation for Hungarians arriving there. Joseph Keenan, chairman of the Lowell Hungarian Club, said places already are available for 50 refugees and offers are still coming in.

Government Arms On Money Front To Save Pound

LONDON (AP) — The government today began arming on the economic front for a battle to save the value of the pound sterling from the ravages of the military venture into Egypt.

The cost of the Suez attack has brought intense pressure on the pound, cornerstone of a world-wide money system known as the sterling area.

Authoritative sources give this breakdown in dollars of the known costs to Britain of the Suez intervention:

1. Extra military spending, from $100,000,000 to $140,000,000;

2. Loss of Mideast oil — not counting the higher cost of replacement oil from the western hemisphere—about $218,000,000;

3. The Extra cost of shipping British exports to Asia, and Middle East oil to Europe, because of the blocked Suez Canal, about $33,000,000.

FOR SIX MONTHS

These costs are figured for a six-month period ending next April 1. It is possible that the Suez Canal may be back to normal before April, and that some of these costs can be saved.

But there are these enormous invisible losses yet to be measured:

The capital cost of repairing the Iraqi Petroleum Company's pumping stations in Syria that were sabotaged;

Britain's share of the cost of clearing the canal;

The general slump in economic activity throughout Britain and Western Europe as a result of the oil shortage.

And there is the great cost that may be involved in the loss of British goodwill, prestige and influence in an area where Britain's investments run into countless millions.

There are authoritative reports that in November alone the sterling area lost up to $200,000,000 in precious gold-dollar reserves. This would cut the reserves to $2,044,000,000, about the level some economists regard as the danger point for the pound.

Seaman Benoit Sentenced to Be Hanged

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—Seaman Michel Benoit, 23, of Montreal has been sentenced to be hanged April 12 for the fatal shooting of Police Captain Ernest Chalifoux last Aug. 7 at the Laurentian resort town of Ste. Agathe, Que.

The defence, which based its case on a plea of insanity, said it planned to appeal.

Benoit Monday night was sentenced to be hanged by Mr. Justice Gerard Challies after a verdict of guilty was returned by a jury which deliberated for three hours. A second man, Bernard Landry, 24, of Montreal, has been charged with murder in connection with the same death and is expected to be tried next February.

Both were arrested after the most intensive manhunt of the history of this area, about 60 miles north of Montreal.

Police Captain Chalifoux was felled by bullets fired during his attempt to apprehend prowler breaking into a liquor-laden station wagon in Ste. Agathe. He managed to drive back to his office after the pre-dawn shooting, but died in hospital.

Czech Priest Says Hungarians Tried too Early

GUELPH (CP)—A Czech priest who formerly broadcast religious programs to Iron Curtain countries said Monday Hungarians "tried too much too early" in their revolution against Soviet rule.

Rev. Frederick Ouskil, recently-appointed superior of the Slovak Basilian Fathers here, said the time in East Europe is not yet ripe for revolution and no satisfie nation is strong enough to overthrow the Russians.

Father Ouskil said Radio Free Europe, radio station of private American organizations, which he carried religious broadcasts to 8,000,000 Czechoslovaks and 4,000,000 Slovaks, never suggested to its listeners that they rebel against the Communist regime.

"We knew that if there were any revolution the Americans could not help the uprisings."

Most B.C. Delegates Support Diefenbaker

VANCOUVER (CP)—A British Columbia committee backing John Diefenbaker for national leader of the Progressive Conservative party claimed Monday the majority of the province's delegates favor him.

A spokesman for B.C. delegates for Diefenbaker predicted 60 or B.C.'s 103 accredited delegates will vote for the Prince Albert, Sask., member of Parliament on the first ballot at the leadership convention opening in Ottawa next Monday.

Remainder of the votes except one would go to "favorite son" candidate Davie Fulton, member of Parliament for Kamloops. One ballot would be cast for Donald Fleming, member of Parliament for Toronto Eglinton.

Toronto Returns Mayor Phillips Elects Woman to Board Of Control, Ousts Communist

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's second largest city, in its slimmest municipal voting in 19 years, Monday returned its mayor for his third term, elected the first woman to the board of control and ousted the last Communist from office.

The return of Mayor Nathan Phillips, with only token opposition from Trotskyite Rose Donson, was predicted. The surprise was provided by Mrs. Jean Newman, a chipper and attractive grandmother whose surge upward from aldermanic ranks left the "speechless."

By heading the poll with 54,785 votes, Mrs. Newman became vice-chairman of the board of control and president of city council—in effect Toronto's second highest municipal office.

Only 26.6 per cent of the 231,663 eligible voters went to the polls, the lowest figure since 1946 when the turnout was 25.6 per cent. Last year 31.31 per cent of the electorate voted.

APPROVE CIVIC PROJECT

Election day also saw a long-cherished civic project approved by a clear margin. Voters favored construction at a new $18,000,000 city hall, 237,457 to 26,679. Also approved, by a much wider margin, was a proposal to extend the franchise, except on money by-laws, to all city residents over 21 who are British subjects.

Ousted from office Monday were a man and a woman prominent in Toronto politics for more than a decade.

Mrs. Edna Ryerson, the last Communist holding civic office here, was defeated by coal dealer Edward R. Lockyer in the Ward 5 seat for board of education. She first took the seat 13 years ago at 25, the youngest member ever elected to the board.

By entering board of control, Mrs. Newman forced out Leslie Saunders, a former North Bay aldermen who entered Toronto council in 1942 after three years on the board of education. After filling out Allan Lamport's unexpired mayoralty term in 1954, he lost out to Mr. Phillips in the elections that year. He returned to the board in last year's voting.

The three other members of the board—Controllers William Allen, Dan Hill and Hilda Watt—also were returned to office.

Mayor Phillips, Toronto's first Jewish mayor, took the lead from the start and swamped his opponent, 80,357 votes to 9,854.

REDS LOSE OUT

Aside from Mrs. Ryerson, there were five other Communist or Communist-supported candidates on various city slates Monday and all fared badly. Charles Sims lost out for board of control, Paul Pask, George Jackson and Wilfred Kesha were defeated in their bids for city council and Mrs. Sophie Lazar failed to get on board of education.

New faces appeared in the chief executive offices of Toronto's two major suburbs. In North York, where Fred J. McMahon retired as reeve, councillor Verdon Singer, 37, took over in a landslide win from Maurice Hook.

In Scarborough, residential and industrial suburb just east of the city and heavily beset in recent years by growing pains, Albert M. Campbell, a 46-year-old former school teacher, put an end to the one-year term of Reeve Gus Harris.

OLYMPIC ATHLETE AND REFUGEE FIANCE WILL MARRY HERE

Now in Melbourne, Australia, competing for Hungary in the Olympic games, Valy Gyenge will fly to Canada to be married to Janos Garay, one of the leaders of the Hungarian rebellion who escaped to Austria to be flown here. Vali is regarded as the best woman swimmer in Europe.

—Central Press Canadian

A top Hungarian athlete, Janos Garay, flance of Vali, said he was kept in Budapest as a sort of hostage by the Communists to be used as a propaganda tool to the West. Garay says the revolution was planned and directed mostly by university students.

Mayor Phillips greeted his victory by repeating his plea for higher levels of government to take over some municipal financial burdens. "The higher level of government must get off their high horses . . . and adopt the courageous attitude of tackling their job, instead of leaving the burden for the municipal taxpayer," he said.

All candidates elected Monday will hold office for a two-year term under a measure approved last year and applied to the entire municipal area.

The favorable vote for the franchise extension, however, does not mean its automatic approval. The city now must apply to the Ontario legislature for an amendment to the Municipal Act, which could apply to Toronto only or to the province generally.

As the act now stands, a voter must own property such as assessed value of at least $400 or live in at least two rooms with cooking and sleeping facilities.

Get-Out-Vote Campaign Won By Cornwall

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cornwall held the lead after Monday's Ontario municipal elections in the Sarnia-sponsored get-out-the-vote campaign in 15 Ontario cities. Sarnia itself was in last place.

Eleven of the cities engaged in the challenge competition launched by the Sarnia Chamber of Commerce voted Monday. Four others—North Bay, Port Arthur, St. Catharines and Timmins—go to the polls later on in the month.

Figures on number of voters turning out were not available from the competing cities—Chatham and Oshawa. Unofficial figures from the other nine show following percentages of eligible voters going to the polls:

Cornwall 65.5, Port William 63.2, Brantford 61, Sault Ste. Marie 58.1, St. Thomas 33, Sudbury 30.7, Sarnia, 29.2.

Winner of the contest, to be decided on final official vote figures will receive a plaque from the Sarnia Chamber of Commerce bearing the Ontario coat of arms and name of the winning city. The winner is to donate a similar plaque to the second-place city.

Chambers of Commerce in all the cities promoted the get-out-the-vote drive through advertising, contests and personal contact.

Little Benny's Notebook

The big barber was cutting my hair while I talked to the little barber about politics, saying, If we ever have to go to the polls and vote for a party, Joe, I hope we'll have the spunk to vote for a man of our own and not for a figure head that the Russians set up for us.

Do you mean you'd like a gink like this big chested Teeko that's always getting in the newspapers? the little barber said, and the big barber said, Yes sir, Joe, I'm for Teetoom. If I'm going to be bossed by a dictator, I want to be bossed by one and how to think right off the bat. I've got too much self respect to stand around with my cap in my hand while my dictater waits for orders from Russia, he said.

Is it true that farmers can own their own land under a private dictater like this Teeto? the little barber said, and the big barber said, It's as true as you're sitting there with that comic book, Joe. When you work on a collective farm in Russia or one of her slave countries, everything you raise belongs to the state from the moment you plant the seeds till the moment you're caught stealing an afternoon nap in a pile of hay and get sent to a labor camp for loafing on somebody else's property. But on your own farm under your personal dictater, your crops all belong to you till a state truck driver hauls them away and leaves you a receipt to prove the stuff was really your own property for awhile. After that, you can't take it with you, but in a democracy as long as we pay our taxes we can hang on to it till we go ourselfs. It's just a diffrence in timing, doc, he said.

Being the last I heard on account of being the last of my haircut.

SOUND MONEY, SOUND PROSPERITY —QUESTION "FOR US TO DECIDE" B of M PRESIDENT MAINTAINS

Gordon Ball Discusses Role of Banks in 'Tight Money' Phase

GENERAL MANAGER, ARTHUR JENSEN, PRESENTS STRONG STATEMENT—REPORTS LOANS HIGHEST IN B OF M HISTORY REFLECTING TEMPO OF CANADIAN BUSINESS DURING 1956

MONTREAL, Dec. 3—Looking to the development of the Canadian economy through the next quarter-century, Gordon R. Ball, president of the Bank of Montreal, foresees the outcome in the extent to which Canadians as a whole exercise "adaptability and moderation at times like the present."

Speaking today before B of M shareholders at their-130th annual meeting, Mr. Ball suggested that Canada's national production in 1980, "expressed in physical terms or in dollars of constant purchasing power, may well stagger the imagination."

Emphasizing that sound money and sound prosperity go hand in hand in a successful economy, the president said: "We can have that kind of real prosperity, and we can have more dollars of constant purchasing power, if we so desire. Or, if we prefer to let prices rip whenever we happen to be trying to do too much too quickly, we can have a different kind of prosperity, much larger in dollars, but in dollars of much smaller value.

"It is for us to decide which kind of prosperity and which kind of dollars we want in the next 15 months and in the next 25 years."

Shareholders at the same meeting heard Arthur C. Jensen, vice-president and general manager, present a strong statement reporting record total loans, with commercial and other loans passing the billion dollar mark for the first time in the history of Canada's senior financial institution.

Shadow of Inflation vs. Substance of Real Growth

Mr. Ball expressed the belief that a considerable part of the dollar value of Canada's physical output of goods and services this year had represented "the shadow of inflation rather than the substance of real growth."

Pointing to the official price indices, which, after remaining stable for several years, have shown rises in recent months at both the wholesale and retail levels, Mr. Ball said, "In short, over inflation, to which I could refer on this occasion a year ago as only a potential threat, is now now report as a reality.

"So far, it can be said to be in its initial stages and far from rampant. But that is all the more reason why it should be resisted resolutely and vigorously now."

While there is no single source from which inflation can be said to spring, Mr. Ball stated, neither, by the same token is there any single means of quelling it effectively. "But of the means at hand" he continued, "the one that can be brought to bear most quickly, the one that can be expected to act most powerfully and pervasively, and one that is a clear responsibility of a designated body is monetary policy."

The president said that the Bank of Canada had been successful in keeping a tight rein on the nation's money supply, which was only slightly higher than a year ago. "It follows from this," he continued, "that the total Canadian assets of the chartered banks have not reflected the expansion shown by the various indications of national production, income and employment. To feed more money into the economy that is justified by the real gains in output would simply add fuel to the inflationary flames . . ."

"Tight" Money and the Role of Banking

Mr. Ball pointed out that, while the banks were unable significantly to enlarge the aggregate amount of outstanding credit they extend in Canada by way of loans and investments together, they were to some extent free to vary the proportion of these two preponderant assets.

"In the event, the banks endeavored to meet, as fully as was possible, the growing loan requirements of the country. In order to do so, it was necessary for them to reduce their holdings of securities, mainly of Government of Canada bonds."

We must take thought of what we mean, the president continued, when we talk of 'tight' credit conditions. Credit in the form of loans and security holdings had indeed been restricted, he admitted, as a result of the central bank's 'tight' money policy. "But it does not cannot be said of bank credit in the form of commercial, industrial and personal loans. It is plain for all to see that the banks, and this bank particularly, have gone a very long way in financing that degree of economic growth that is not in excess of the attainable.

"This is the rightful and proper function of a bank and it is with respect to its role as a lender that I can say, with some pride, that the Bank of Montreal has added to its s'ature and its service to the community during the past year, despite the fact that the totals at the foot of its balance sheet have, perforce, scarcely changed."

Inflation, a Fight on Many Fronts

Turning to the problem of fighting "resurgent inflation", the president saw it as a battle that could be won neither quickly nor easily. Inflation was an enemy, he said, against which the opposing forces must above all be mobilizable, and all in the community had a responsibility in the fight.

The businessman or individual who finds credit less readily accessible than he would wish should appreciate the need for credit restraint and be prepared to adjust his spending plans accordingly, even if it means some immediate sacrifice. Employees, in their relations with employers also have a responsibility to keep demands for higher pay within the limits of the real gains that can be achieved from higher productivity. And it goes without saying that governments at all levels should not press their claims on national resources at a time of excessive demand."

The General Manager's Address

Arthur C. Jensen, in presenting the B of M's 139th annual statement, reported that, after setting aside $750,000 for income taxes, net profits amounted to $8,975,940. Out of this, $7,200,000 was paid to shareholders as dividends. This was equivalent to $1.60 a share, 15 cen's a share higher than the previous year.

After payments of dividends, Mr. Jensen said, $1,775,940, had been added to undivided profits, which, with a transfer of $3,000,000 from tax-paid reserves, brings the balance in undivided profits to $6,910,155. "We have transferred, therefore," he continued, "the sum of $6,500,000 to the account which now stands at $96,-500,000."

Loans at New Record Highs

Reflecting the high level of economic activity during the past year, B of M current loans showed an increase of $251 million, the general manager said. "Our holdings of residential mortgages under the N.H.A. have risen from $52 million to $104 million during the year," he reported. Total loans at $1,383 million, are highest in the B of M history.

Mr. Jensen pointed out that the Bank of Canada's credit restrictions have placed upon the bank a serious responsibility in reconciling the legitimate borrowing needs of customers with the objectives of the monetary authorities.

"We are particularly conscious," he stated, "of the continuity of our customers' requirements and the relationship of these needs to the nation's productive capacity. We have, therefore, endeavored to avoid any semblance of suddenly 'turning off the tap' in loans for clearly productive purposes in a manner that would cause customers unnecessary dislocation."

Reviews Business Conditions

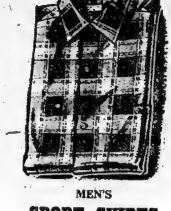
Discussing business conditions in Canada in 1956, Mr. Jensen stated that there were few areas or industries that did not share, to some degree, in the general growth.



"In summary, the Canadian business scene during the past year may be described as one in which the total demand could not be wholly satisfied despite sizable increases both in domestic production and in imports. Official monetary policy, in restraining the expansion of credit to match the limitations imposed by the availability of materials, manpower and plant capacity, should help to defer some of this demand until supply is more ample. I have every confidence, therefore, that continued economic growth is in prospect for this country."

In paying tribute to the staff, Mr. Jensen said that seldom has there been such a year into which were crowded changes of such dimension in the various phases of our business, and, "I would like to convey to all the members of our staff a well-earned commendation for their work during the year."

GETS OVER DOUBLE

There was a definite lack of "personal appearance" interest in the election if conditions in the city council chambers can be judged a criterion. There was scarcely a baker's dozen on hand at 7.15 when the advance poll results were announced. At 8.30 some fifty people viewed the tabulators, heard results and watched them pronunciated on a large blackboard. Later the crowd increased somewhat, mainly by candidates and their friends, but at no time were the council chambers filled.

The returns came in quickly, and established some sort of a time record. The final returns had been submitted and released by 10.30. Last year it was two a.m., before newsmen could get away with the final tabulations.

The battle for the mayoralty, if it can be called a battle, was never in doubt. Mayor Forrester took the lead with the release of the advance poll and never looked backward. The first return had creamed the majority. With nine in, she held a comfortable increasing 337 margin. With 13 divisions heard from she had doubled the vote on her opponent, 1,329-664.

From that time on it was a question of how many. She won every polling division, and something of a record was established, it was stated, when division Ward-win 10a returned ninety-one votes for the mayor and none for the opposition. Only in three divisions was the vote close. Baldwin, 9 and 11B and Sanderman 15 the margin squeezed out a one-vote margin.

Her most convincing victories came in six divisions. Samson 5X gave her 213-45; Ketcheson 8A, 123-22; Ketcheson 8X, 180-42; Baldwin 11X, 200-73; Murney 19A, 114-35 and Murney 23A, 106-29.

POSITIONS CHANGED FREQUENTLY

It was a different story in the aldermanic race. Actually it was a battle between seven successful candidates with the fortunes of the aldermanic war fluctuating from time to time.

Entries in the "Alderman Stakes" were carried practically to the wire before the final result was decided. Positions changed frequently although none of the "dark horses" threatened the leaders at any time.

When the results were announced, second - place Alderman Graham led Alderman Frank Grandame in third slot by only 32 votes. In fourth place was Alderman McCabe 150 votes behind. Looking over her shoulder just 77 votes back was Alderman - elect Collins. Chasing him with 49 votes in arrears was Alderman - elect Moxam with Alderman Whalen bringing up seventh position 76 votes behind the sixth-placer. That is how close and undecisive it was until the pack went under the wire.

Alderman-elect Whalen started off with a flurry of majorities, leading the race with three returns in, followed by Alderman Hyde, Graham, Collins, Grandame and Moxam.

With five returns in, Whalen had dropped to third with Hyde taking a lead he never relinquished. Graham had gone up to second followed by Grandame and Collins, and here Alderman McCabe entered the tattered circle. She swept up from eighth spot to sixth followed by Moxam.

From here in, the last-term office seekers took over. With 10 polls heard from, Hyde still held the lead followed by Grandame, McCabe and Moxam had taken over third and fourth spots with Graham dropping back to fifth, followed by Collins and Whalen.

MADE UP GROUND

Graham started to make ground with 23 polls in, taking over second place and followed by Grandame, Collins, McCabe, Moxam and Whalen. The remaining four candidates were having a battle all their own.

From here in, it was a two-way battle with Graham and Grandame fighting for second and third places and Moxam and Whalen battling for sixth and seventh positions. Collins and McCabe were holding their own.

Fifteen minutes after former mayor Beth had conceded the election the Forrester victory cavalcade paraded down Front Street with the mayor standing in the rear seat of a convertible.

Later to rounds of applause, she entered the city hall chambers carrying a beautiful bouquet of red roses. In a gracious speech of appreciation she said, "Today you have had a share in shaping the future of our city. I am happy that by marching to the polls so many have seen fit to accept not only the privileges but the responsibilities and obligations of citizenship."

PLACED FAITH IN ME

"I am grateful to my supporters. Nothing can be accomplished by one person alone. It is all a question of teamwork and co-operation and the spontaneous acceptance of the fact there is a job to be done."

"My friends," the mayor said, "you have been magnificent. The decision has been yours. The result is due to your efforts."

"Twice before you, the citizens, placed your faith in me. You have now renewed that trust. This time you have given your confidence as the result of the record which is shared by many, the many who throughout the past year have been serving you in such varied ways. It is on the record of all those as well as myself that you have based your decision today.

"You have renewed our courage. You have strengthened our determination to seek by every means possible the best for our city. I believe I can promise on behalf of all another year of united effort.

"To you, the citizens, I renew my pledge to do all in my power to serve you—to represent you to the best of my ability—to reach for everything that is fine and wholesome and just and good for our city."

The successful and other candidates with the exception of Messrs. Digby, and Huson and ex-mayor Beth, who were not present, expressed their appreciation of the support given them whether elected or otherwise.

Polls-leader Alderman Hyde said he was overwhelmed at the wide margin given him. Every body likes to win and everybody likes to finish on top, he said. "This was most gratifying and I hope in the future you see fit to place your confidence in me again."

Alderman Graham offered his congratulations to Mayor Forrester on her success at the polls. "She has done a great deal to merit your confidence. Speaking for myself and my fellow aldermen, we shall do all in our power to support her for the betterment of Belleville."

Alderman Grandame was pleased and gratified at the support given him and assured the city as a whole he would continue to work for it and its people.

Alderman Effie McCabe said she was delighted at being returned to office for a second term. She thanked her supporters for their trust and would work in the future, as in the past, for a bigger and better Belleville.

Alderman-elect Robertson Collins sincerely thanked all those who supported him adding "but my wife sincerely thanks those who did not", I shall serve as well as I possibly can in the next two years."

It was a great pleasure for Alderman-elect Moxam to return to council, he said. "I am pleased to see former aldermen re-elected and promise my earnest consideration, providing they are right."

Alderman-elect Don Whalen thought it was wonderful to be elected on "the first try." "Half the battle is over," he said, "and the second half will soon begin. I shall do all I can for Belleville."

Mrs. Theo Wheeler thanked her supporters. "It was a wonderful experience," she said, "and you have elected a wonderful slate of men. I shall remember it always."

Mr. Richards conveyed his personal thanks to all who supported him. To those who did not, he said, "you had personal reason for electing men figuring they were better equipped. However," he said, "I shall always continue my work with the hockey youngsters of the city."

The Ontario Intelligencer in keeping with its policy had an augmented staff on duty in the editorial rooms where a battery of telephones was kept busy answering requests for the election returns.

The returns were relayed from the city hall tabulating office as soon as they arrived and were quickly relayed to the calling public.

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

OUT OF THE PAST

He only weighed 142 pounds "fighting weight" in his heyday, but he was the bane of opposing defencemen, the bete noir of the foe goalies and the pride of the Montreal Canadiens fans.

He could skate like a scared streak of lightning, shoot like a Babe Dye and scramble up and along the boards like a dog-chased kitten. In fact that is how he got his nickname.

He is Johnny Gagnon, the "Chicoutimi Cat," once the pride of the Habitant fans of Montreal and the "mortal enemy" of the Maroons and the Westmounters.

Johnny, now a scout for the New York Rangers, lives in Providence, Rhode Island, the smallest state in the union, where everybody is on speaking terms with everybody and no one holds any grudges against Texas.

"The Cat" was in the city last Friday and went into a reminiscence huddle with his schoolboy pal, Paul Mercier.

The mighty mite, who once formed the famous Canadien line of Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat, hasn't used his figurative nine lives by any stretch of the imagination. The immaculate Johnny failed to hide the famous "beaked nose," the swarthy features and the quick flidgety action under sartorial splendor.

Montreal and other National Hockey League centres sports writers named him the "Chicoutimi Cat." Why? Johnny shook his head. So Brer Paul filled in. Gagnon, a winger, used to streak down the boards which in those days were about a foot lower than the current ones. Thus big defencemen of the day readied for him. Johnny would dig his skates into the boards and scramble along them, something like a scared kitty climbing a tree. That's how he earned that feline soubriquet.

Never a publicity seeker, Johnny was extremely modest about his experiences in the National Hockey League when "Montreal was divided into two factions, one the French-speaking Habitants, the other the English-speaking fans from the eastern parts of the city.

The famous Montreal Maroons carried the English banner with the Canadiens waving the hockey tricolor of French Mcrayil. Rivalry was bitter. Feelings ran high both off and on the ice.

The Forum ice was the scene of many a bitter and sometimes bloody battle between the rivals, and for every fight on the ice you could figure on four in the pews.

There was no fraternization between the players. The puck-chasing enmity was carried out and beyond the Forum. Players of the clubs never spoke with one another, not even on the street.

"Nowadays," said Johnny, "the boys sometimes get together for a coffee and sandwich and talk shop—but not in those days. We never looked at nor spoke to a Maroon player, either on the ice or elsewhere."

We mentioned the fact that we recalled a story heard some time ago that in the days of the Maroon-Canadiens' rivalry the Habs practiced shooting pucks on the ice while the Maroons sharpened their optical reflexes by looking at the ticker-tape in stock-brokers' offices.

Johnny shook his head. He smiled. "That might be so," he said, "but they did call them the Millionaires for the monied people of Montreal were solid Maroon fans."

Would or could Montreal support two National Hockey League clubs like the old days? Paul supplied the answer. "Put the Chicago Black Hawks in there. Bolster them with some players and I believe Montreal would again support two teams," he said.

Did he know Tools Holway and Yip Radley? "Sure, but didn't they play for the Millionaires?" smiled Johnny.

Both Toots and Yip were members of the Maroons in those colorful days, and we have heard many a tale, tall and short, of the hectic period when Montreal was divided sharply by its two puck-chasing factions.

JUNIORS TONIGHT

Tonight the Belleville Lambert juniors tangle with the Kingston Frontenacs in Memorial Arena in a scheduled OHA Junior "B" tussle. Both clubs are undefeated and Art Edwards' youngsters are determined to keep their record intact, but they look for a stiff battle with the Kingston kids. These boys play good hockey and are deserving of support of city fans. Game at 8.00.

Beliveau Splurge to Top Feature of Week Activities

MONTREAL (CP)—The names line up just about the same statistically after another week of National Hockey League action, but some have boosted their superiority.

Jean Beliveau of Montreal, no stranger to the van of the scoring race, splurged with a goal and seven big assists to pull seven points out in front of Ted Lindsay of Detroit. Beliveau has 33 points.

Boston Bruins won two of three games and held their one-game edge over Detroit, who in turn continued to lead Montreal by two games—just the way it was last week.

Dickie Moore of Montreal still tops the marksmen with 12 goals, an addition of two. Montreal's Jacques Plante recorded his fifth shutout to stay ahead there. Beliveau took the assists leadership from team-mate Doug Harvey at with a total of 23 and New York's Lou Fontinato kept his record as worst penalties offender with a total of 59 minutes.

The only change in the standings was in the New York-Toronto battle for fourth place. Rangers, who started the week in fifth, won two of their three games and now hold fourth spot by a point. Toronto dropped a pair.

The week was all too unchanging for Chicago Black Hawks who dropped three of three.

Aside from Beliveau's splurge, the scoring race still has Lindsay second with 26 points, one more than linemate Gord Howe. Bert Olmstead of Canadiens took over fourth, place with 2 points—he climbed from a three-way tie for fifth—and Norm Ullman of Detroit is fifth with 21. He had been fourth.

Defencemen Doug Mohns of Boston and Harvey of Montreal share sixth place with 20 points each. Four players are tied for seventh at 18 points—Boston's Vic Stasiuk, the Montreal brothers Maurice and Henri Richard and Ted Sloan of Toronto, 10th a week ago.

Walker Jubilant Over Chances After Finals Qualification; 'Girls Swimming Their Best'

MELBOURNE (CP)—The jubilant coach of Canada's Olympic swimmers Monday night predicted his charges will come away with anywhere up to three medals before the competition ends.

Tommy Walker had just watched 15-year-old Sara Barber of Brantford, Ont., qualify for her second final of the day, the 100-metre butterfly, together with Beth Whittall of Montreal, after registering the fourth-fastest time among the qualifiers in the 100-metre backstroke a few hours earlier.

And his lone entry in the women's diving competition, Irene MacDonald of Hamilton, was a close second behind defending champion Pat McCormick of the United States with four dives to go in the springboard category. Another Canadian, Toronto's Virginia Grant, already had broken the Olympic record twice and equalled it once to finish fifth in the 100-metre freestyle.

In an interview Monday night, Walker was particularly confident about Miss Barber in the backstroke final,-following a qualifying time that equalled the clocking of South Africa's Joan Harrison in the 1952 final.

Tee Toronto coach also liked the chances of his 400-metre relay in which Miss Barber and Miss Grant follow Helen Stewart of Vancouver and Gladys Priestley of Verdun, Que.

With the flat prediction that the girls would qualify for the final in today's free-for-all, Walker added:

"These kids of ours are swimming their best ever. They know they have a tough job ahead of them. But the relay team has the ability to qualify—and if they do they'll win a medal."

Walker also was high on Miss MacDonald's chances.

"The last four dives are extremely difficult," he said, "but Irene is a wonderful competitor and has a good mental outlook. I won't be surprised if she wins a medal, too."

Dewitt Named Administrator Major Leagues' Giveway Fund

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—William O. (Bill) Dewitt, one of the most successful men in baseball, stepped into one of the game's most challenging jobs today as administrator of the major leagues' $500,000 giveaway program to aid the minors.

The 54-year-old former owner of St. Louis Browns was selected for the post Monday by a special major-minor committee headed by John Quinn, general manager of Milwaukee Braves.

He is resigning as assistant general manager of New York Yankees to administer the fund created by the majors as the first concrete step toward assisting minor league clubs which need financial aid.

DETROIT-A'S SWAP

A flurry of major league actions dominated the opening session of the minor league convention. An eight-player trade between Detroit and Kansas City highlighted off-the-floor activity. And the majors picked up nine minor league players in the lightest draft since the war.

On today's programme was the minors' first legislative session with 29 proposed amendments, all but four to the major-minor pact, up for discussion. The vote on the amendments is set for Thursday.

In the big trade, Detroit got infielder Jim Finigan and Eddie Robinson, pitcher Ed Blake, outfield catcher from Toronto Maple Leafs, and an undisclosed amount of cash from the Athletics in exchange for pitchers Virgil Trucks, Ned Garver and Gene Host and first baseman Wayne Belardi. Also as part of the deal, the Athletics agreed to sell right-hander Bill Harrington, 3-5 at Columbus last season, to the Tigers' Charleston farm club.

Dewitt's official title is baseball co-ordinator and he plans to open an office in St. Louis, his home.

ASK TAX RULING

The majors' aid-to-the-minors program can't begin operations immediately. The 16 major league teams have asked the internal revenue service to rule on whether the money they put into the fund can be deducted as a operating expense, which would make it tax-free. If the federal government says no, the majors aren't ready to say yet what will happen to the aid program.

Dewitt, recognized as one of the sport's top administrators, explained how he expects the program to work:

"Suppose a class D club needed money to meet a payroll. The owner comes to us and says he needs $1,000 to get over the hump. If he can show us he is operating on sound principles—not throwing money away—we give him the $1,000, no strings attached. His club finishes the season instead of folding."

CARDS DRAFT PAIR

Only eight of the 16 major league clubs participated in the draft. Cal Neeman, a 26-year-old catcher with no previous big league experience, became top draft choice when Chicago Cubs plucked him from the Denver roster for $10,000. St. Louis Cardinals, only club to draft more than one player, chose a pair of pitchers, lefthander Robert Smith from San Francisco for $15,000 and righthander Lloyd Merritt from Richmond Virginians of the International League.

Of the nine selectees, only two have been extended big league service. They are Gil Coan and Jerry Lynch, both outfielders. Coan, 32, was drafted by Detroit for $10,000, from Minneapolis, where he hit .286 in 134 games. Not so many years ago Washington Senators were regarded to have turned down $100,000 for the fleet flychaser.

Lynch, who spent part of two seasons with Pittsburgh before he was shipped to Hollywood last season, was drafted by Cincinnati for $15,000 from the Pacific Coast League team. A crack base-stealer Lynch most of last season.

HAD FINE E.R.A.

Kansas City selected Blake, a 31-year-old righthander from Toronto where he had a fine earned run average of 2.61 earned run average last year.

Baltimore took Tom Patton, 21-year-old catcher from Omaha where he had been advanced after hitting .240 at Houston in 1956. Boston Red Sox picked southpaw Jack Spring, 25-year-old lefty who had a 6-6 record with Miami Marlins in the International.

Chicago White Sox plucked Norman Larker, a 26-year-old long ball hitting baseman from Montreal Royals. Larker batted .269 last season, walloping 15 home runs.

'Sooners' Named Top Team in College Football

NEW YORK (AP) — Oklahoma's high - powered Sooners, winner of 40 consecutive games after shaking up 10 triumphs this season, have been acclaimed the No. 1 college football team in the United States the second successive year.

In the final poll conducted by The Associated Press, 187 sports writers and broadcasters gave the Sooners a total of 1,715 votes compared with 1,618 for the second-place Tennessee Volunteers, who are headed for the Sugar Bowl after an unblemished record in 10 games.

The Sooners, who retired the Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, C.S.C. Memorial Trophy, were placed first on 104 ballots. Tennessee received 48 first-place votes. The others received a total of almost seven teams, topped by Iowa's 15 and Miami's 12.

The O'Donnell Trophy, put into competition by Notre Dame in honor of the former president of the South Bend, Ind., university, now has been won three times by Oklahoma.

Iowa's Rose Bowl-bound Hawkeyes, who had their best season since 1922 with an 8-1 record, finished third. Georgia Tech (9-1), which will meet Pitt in the Gator Bowl, was fourth, followed by Texas A and M (9-0-1), Miami (8-0-1), Michigan (7-2), Syracuse (7-1), Michigan State (7-2) and Oregon State (7-2-1).

Officials Predict Sell-Out For East-West All-Star Game

VANCOUVER (CP) — Advance ticket sales for the all-star East-West football game here Saturday reached more than 14,000 Monday and officials predict a sell-out come game-time.

Both teams have started twice-a-day workouts. The West, under coach Frank (Pop) Ivy of Edmonton Eskimos, turned to at Brockton Oval in Vancouver's Stanley Park while the East, coached by Hamilton Tiger-Cats' Jim Trimble took over Queen's Park in New Westminster, 15 miles away.

Trimble, who arrived at International Airport here from his home in Philadelphia Monday, declared the West "has all football players "and we intend to prove it."

Ivy wouldn't predict any outcome of the game but he brushed aside Trimble's claim of eastern superiority.

"Everyone is entitled to their own opinion," he said, "but the Grey Cup game would seem to indicate the west has a little edge."

PREDICTS FULL HOUSE

Ivy made one prediction:

"With the interest there is in football here and the top talent from the country in action, I don't see how they can help but sell out."

Empire Stadium, scene of Saturday's game, has 30,000 seats although attendance has exceeded that number many times.

The Shrine is the sole sponsor of the game and net proceeds will be used to finance the two Shrine children's hospitals in Canada, at Winnipeg and Montreal.

The players, selected on the basis of balloting by fans, represent a formidable lineup for each side. The game will bring face to face two established gridiron foes, quarterbacks Jackie Parker of Edmonton and Montreal's Sam (The Rifle) Etcheverry.

Elik Stretches Lead in AL Points Race

NEW YORK (CP) — Bo Elik, Cleveland Barons' star rookie, gathered in another six points last week to boost his American Hockey League scoring total to 36 points, best in the league.

By scoring all four of the Cleveland goals that the Barons registered in two weekend games, Elik also raised his league-leading goal total to 23.

Elik's linemate, Fred Glover, also scored six points to maintain his second-place standing with 32 points. Paul Larivee of Providence who scored seven points last week, and Jimmy Moore, the third member of the Baron forward line, were tied for third place with 22 points. Willie Marshall of Hershey was next with 28 points.

Larry Zeidel, Hershey defenseman, took over the league lead in penalties with 88 minutes—29 minor sentences, two majors and two 10-minute misconduct penalties.

Providence's Johnny Bower remained the league's best goaltender with an average of 2.33 on 48 goals allowed in 19 games.

Robinson, Fullmer Fight Postponed Until Jan. 2

NEW YORK (AP)—The middleweight championship fight between Sugar Ray Robinson and Gene Fullmer, scheduled for Dec. 12 at Madison Square Garden, was postponed until Jan. 2 Monday and Fullmer, through his manager, Marv Jensen, promptly claimed the title by default.

The three-week delay was ordered after Robinson came down with a severe cold. Jensen immediately said he would go before chairman Julius Helfand of the New York State Athletic Commission to claim the title from Sugar Ray.

Jensen suggested that "Sugar Ray probably got sick watching old 'man Arachi' Moore on television Friday night."

Jensen said either the Dec. 12 contract will be honored by a fight or it ought to be voided and a new split of purse drawn up.

Under current terms, Robinson would receive 47½ per cent plus a big slice of the TV and radio receipts. Fullmer's share would be 12½ per cent and no TV or radio swag.

Pending new arrangements, Jensen said Fullmer will stay in training at Grossinger, N.Y.

BETHEA LOSES DECISION

Aussie Swimmers Plan Olympics Of Their Own

MELBOURNE (AP) — Australia's fabulous women swimmers and runners are planning a miniature Olympics of their own.

While crowds throng the main stadium in Melbourne for the closing ceremony of the Olympic Games, Saturday, the Australian girls will be playing hockey and competing in a unique decathlon.

Each girl of the Australian track team must compete in these five swimming events: 25-yard backstroke, 25-yard breaststroke, 25-yard butterfly, 25-yard free-style and one-metre dive.

The swimming girls will take part in track events. They must compete in five of these events: 100-yard sprint, 400-metre run, 80-metre hurdles, javelin throw, discus throw, high jump, broad jump in a walking race, 400-metre relay, 1,000-metre relay.

Each of the 52 girls involved has paid one shilling for entry fee. The money will be used to present a box of chocolates to the runner who does best in swimming events and another box of chocolates to the swimmer who does best in the running events.

Love Blooms In Heat of Olympic Combat

MELBOURNE (AP)—The first romance of the Olympic village has been announced — between Jamaican hurdler star Keith Gardner and a 17-year-old Melbourne girl, Julie Scott.

After a whirlwind four - week courtship, the two Sunday made public their engagement. Definite wedding plans will not be made for several months.

Before he left Melbourne with the rest of the Jamaican team Sunday, Gardner, studying engineering at Nebraska University, said:

"This is very awkward for me as I have not formally asked Miss Scott for Julie's hand."

Julie, who met her fiance while working in the personnel department of the Olympic village, said she plans to marry in America.

"It has been a curious courtship because Keith had to be back in the village every night by 10 p.m.," she said. "However, he spent lots of time at my parents' home."

Minor League Baseball Bosses Come to Blows

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Two baseball executives attending the minor league baseball convention Monday staged a one-blow fight right immediately following the big league draft session.

The pair — general managers Gabe Paul of Cincinnati Redlegs and Harold Cooper of Columbus Jets of the International League — had to be forcibly separated after Cooper hit Paul a glancing blow.

President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League and Joe L. Brown, general manager of Pittsburgh Pirates, did the separating.

The argument started when Paul accused Cooper of spreading false and malicious rumors about him and the operation of the Redlegs.

"You're a darn liar," charged the usually mild-mannered Paul, "when you go around saying that the Cincinnati club has been violating Columbus' territorial rights by broadcasting games into your territory.

"We not only refrained from broadcasting our games into your territory when the Columbus club is at home but also when it is on the road."

Cooper replied with a wild swing that grazed Paul's shoulder.

Later Cooper insisted the Redlegs were violating Columbus' territorial rights by telecasting games into Columbus. Paul was not immediately available for comment about the telecasts.

British, American Track Stars To Hold Meet

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—The largest group of world record holders ever collected for one meet will compete here Wednesday in one of the greatest track and field meets ever arranged, Western sports officials say. In addition to a dozen Olympic gold medallists, will compete in the meet of the British Commonwealth versus the United States.

The Commonwealth team includes all field events and most track events in addition to a number of relay races. The competition will be over linear distances instead of meets as at the Olympic Games in Melbourne.

The meet brings together the cream of Olympic athletes from the United States, Britain, Australia, Canada, Northern Ireland, Trinidad, South Africa, New Zealand, Jamaica, Kenya, Nigeria, Pakistan, India and Singapore.

Six Canadians, five of them Olympic champions will compete. They are Eleanor Haslam of Saskatoon, Steven of Regina, Diane Matheson of Moncton and Montreal, Terry Tobacco of Cumberland, B.C., Doris Lavenston of Toronto and high-jumper Ken Money of Sarnia, Ont., who placed fifth at the Olympics.

Hungary Athletes Will Seek Asylum in Other Countries

MELBOURNE (AP) — From Hungarian athletes in Olympic village and throughout Melbourne today came word that 15 of them will ask for political asylum in Australia and more than 30 others will never return to their Russian-crushed homeland.

Two officials with the Hungarian Olympic team, who made this report are sure he would never tell their names, said at least one-third of the squad of more than 150 men and women "will somewhere leave the team" and never go back to Budapest.

At least one of them will go to Canada. It was learned this after-noon that swimmer Valeria Gyenge, Hungary's fastest free-style woman, will go to Canada Dec. 19 to marry Janos Garay, who fled from Hungary last month as the Russian tanks poured in.

Garay has since emigrated to Toronto.

"I do not wish for any trouble here," Miss Gyenge, a prospective champion of 1952, said. But she said arrangements have been made for her flight to Canada.

The team officials said that "between 10 and 15 will leave the Hungarian team within the next few days." One official said that "between 30 and 45 will stop in Europe."

"We also expect some of the Czechoslovakians, East Germans and Poles to leave their teams. There may be a few Romanians, but not many, and no one expects the Bulgarians to remain."

The two officials said they personally plan to return home "because we must return," but they say that Hungary's once-great sports empire, which included the world's best soccer players and many of the best swimmers, runners, divers, discoverers and fencers, has been shattered.

Many of the athletes have family in Hungary and they want to determine if they are safe—that is, out of Communist territory — before they ask for political asylum in other countries.

Russians Move Headquarters to Native Ship

MELBOURNE (AP) — The entire contingent of 53 Russian rowers who had been at Lake Wendouree in Ballarat for the Olympic rowing competitions last week moved their headquarters today to the Russian ship Gruzia. The ship is at a Melbourne dock.

From Olympic village in Melbourne 122 of the Russians have also departed now for the Gruzia.

It is expected the ship will sail with the Russian athletes Sunday, the day after the closing ceremony of the Olympic Games.

Evidently the Russians are leaving in as unobtrusive a manner as they came. Olympic village transport officials said the Russians were not using the cars provided by the village to transport themselves to the ship but had engaged private transport from the city.

When a Russian-speaking Australian newspaper man called the Russian headquarters in Melbourne a number who had left for the ship, he was told: "That is an indiscretion. Ring it is none of your business."

Hungarian Star Plans to Wed In Canada

TORONTO (CP)—Vali Gyenge, 17-year-old Hungarian Olympic team member at Melbourne, plans to fly to Canada to marry her Hungarian freedom fighter fiance Janos Garay, 24, it was learned Monday.

Garay, one of the leaders of the ill-fated revolt in Hungary in October, reached Toronto nine days ago as a refugee. A noted swimmer himself, he fled from his homeland with Russian tanks at his heels.

Miss Gyenge, who won the 400-metre women's free-style swim at the 1952 Olympics, is entered in the 400 and 800-metre events in the current Games. She plans to leave the Hungarian team after the Games end next Saturday.

'Stilt' Makes Impressive Debut In Basketball

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain, seven-foot Philadelphia rookie, may believe will become the greatest big man in U.S. college basketball history, made his varsity debut Monday night and more than lived up to advance notices.

The sophomore scored 52 points and grabbed 31 rebounds—shattering his school's offensive and defensive records—as Kansas Jayhawks beat an 87-69 victory over a good Northwestern University basketball team.

About 15,000 fans turned out to watch the debut, and coach Dick Harp gave them an eyeful by letting Wilt play all but 31 seconds.

Other coaches who did their best to stop Chamberlain inevitably moan louder if they had seen him ram the ball through the hoop 20 times in 39 attempts—a 69 per cent record.

SIGN COACH

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — St. Catharines Lovers of the Niagara District Senior B Hockey League announced Monday that Joe Checrera has been signed as coach. He formerly was a coach and player with Canadian Armed Forces championship teams in Orillia, Hamilton and St. Catharines.

INDIANS REFUSE TO LEAVE

A Long Iroquois teepee (left) on the Caughnawaga Indian reservation south of Montreal is owned by one of six Indians who refuse to vacate their land to make way for the St. Lawrence seaway. The seaway authority has expropriated their land and wants to build a road across it. Hon. Lionel Chevier, seaway authority president, said the matter is so serious that the authority has applied to the Quebec Superior Court for a warrant to obtain possession of the land. The land occupied by the Indians is in the area of the new approach to the Honore Mercier bridge, shown in background. (CP Photo).

Jonathan Winters Held Down To Fifteen Minutes Each Week

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — The printed word does not do justice to a young man named Jonathan Winters. He is the limitless machine has not yet been invented which will set facial expressions, neither can sounds be conveyed in print, so you'll just have to take our word for it that he can tick like a watch and explode like an atomic what's-it.

Since Winters doesn't seem to transmit with full effectiveness in person, he could take a look at him on television NBC-TV Tuesday evenings. For some incredible reason, he's held down to fifteen minutes weekly, but apparently you have to be thankful for small blessings in this age of the quiz program.

We think he's funny, very funny indeed. He's also masterly with patbos. Basically, we maintain, he's a satirist who can seldom give full vent to his satirical powers because the medium of television is hearish on satire. It doesn't want its performers to hurt anybody's feelings.

It's inadequate to call Winters rubber-faced. He is, rather, phototaced, meaning that his eyes and ears record the frailties of human nature, his mind develops them, and his face and voice publish them gleefully.

"Notice how far from a neutral corner he always is when I go down? By the 14th or 15th round he'll be plenty tired!"

Heroic Canuck Girl Swimmer Wins Medal With Injured Arm

MELBOURNE (CP) — Irene MacDonald, pert little diver from Hamilton, earned a bronze medal for Canada tonight in the women's springboard diving competition with a display of pluck that provided one of the most dramatic incidents of the Games.

It was almost inevitable that the 18-year-old Hamilton girl would lose out to the brilliant defending champion, Mrs. Pat McCormick of Lakewood, Calif., and it was a heartbreaker that she had to surrender second place to Jean Stunyo of Gary, Ind.

What the big gallery at the Olympic pool didn't know was that Irene competed with her left shoulder frozen to alleviate the pain of a pulled muscle.

She injured the shoulder Monday, when she was second to Mrs. McCormick after six dives, and it was thought that she might not be able to continue tonight.

GOSTLY BALK

On her second dive Irene walked to the edge of the platform and then balked. The crowd gasped. Then the little Canadian girl went to the back of the board and started crying. But she came forward again, gritted her teeth and made her dive. The balk cost her severely in points.

But she came back for the next two dives with a remarkable exhibition of pure courage and saved third place from Barbara Gilders of Detroit.

Irene finished her total 10 dives with 127.40 points. Mrs. McCormick, 1952 Olympic winner in both the springboard and platform events, was well in front with 142.30. Miss Stunyo had 125.89 and Miss Gilders 120.76.

Canada's relay team of girl swimmers came in for a share of the glory earlier by qualifying in heats for Thursday's final in the women's 400-metre relay, although a quartet of Australian girls will be ranked favorites.

There was a last-minute change in the order of swimming. Virginia Grant of Toronto led off, with Gladys Priestley of Verdun, Que., second, then Lilla Sara Barber of Branford and Helen Stewart of Vancouver swimming the anchor leg.

The only other final in the Olympic pool tonight, in addition to the women's springboard, was a brilliant win for Australia's 17-year-old Murray Rose, who smashed the Olympic record in winning the men's 400-metre freestyle race in 4:27.3.

Rose had plenty of time to spare in winning over Japan's Takeshi Yamanaka, George Breen of the United States was third.

While attention centred largely on performances at Olympic pool, Gil Roe of Toronto placed sixth in the small-bore shooting competition.

The Russians, at the same time, were making up points on the leading United States by winning gold medals in the running deer and small bore shooting events, and assuring themselves of at least a fourth in soccer.

OTHER EVENTS

Hungary won the sabre team gold medal in the fencing competition. Poland took second and Russia third.

In gymnastics Russia was slightly ahead of Japan in both team and individual competitions.

Italy defeated France tonight to win the gold medal in the 4,000-metre team pursuit event of Olympic cycling competition France took the silver medal and Britain defeated South Africa for the bronze medal.

WAS BELIEVED OLDEST

MEXBOROUGH Eng. (Reuters) Edwin Stead, believed to be the oldest man in Britain, died Saturday at the age of 105. Up to last week, he still helped with the domestic tasks such as chopping sticks and bringing in coal for the fires.

BOOK OF REMEMBRANCE

Artist Mrs. Yvonne Diceman of Ottawa puts the finishing touches to a title page in the Book of Remembrance which lists the names of Canadians who lost their lives in the Second World War. The book will be on public display next summer. It will be exhibited in Ottawa along with a similar volume recording the dead of the First World War. (CP from National Defence.)

HUNGARIANS PRAY

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Penzvalto and their son, Leslie, 6, offer prayers of thanksgiving in a Roman Catholic Church in Toronto for their escape from Hungary. Refugees who have arrived in Toronto recently attended thanksgiving services in Toronto and prayed also for their fellow countrymen still in their homeland. (CP Photo).

In room one the European team reached a contract of four hearts with north as declarer. In room two the American team arrived at the same contract with north and south. Their bidding went like this:

| North | South |
|---|---|
| 1 ♦ | 1 ♠ |
| 2 ♣ | 3 ♥ |
| 4 ♥ | Pass |

The American team opened the bidding with the exploratory one club; a good expert convention for a borderline opening. It does not promise a club suit, as partner is supposed to know.

Besides other methods of showing aces, this team used cue bids. When they have agreed on a trump suit (as with spades), mention of a new suit does not necessarily show a new biddable suit.

Instead, it announces the ace of that particular suit. This info is told in case partner has ideas of going to a slam. In this case it will explain why north bid four diamonds.

Since south was declarer at four spades, the opening lead from west was the diamond king. By guessing which way to take the finesse in hearts, declarer took 11 tricks.

Where north was declarer in hearts, he took a finesse in that suit in a different direction. This led to the east queen and the European pair took only ten tricks.

Many a success has hinged on a finesse.

BUILDER DIES

WEST PALM BEACH Fla. (AP) Louis J. Horowitz, 82, Polish immigrant who built numerous landmark buildings of New York and other American cities, died Sunday. The retired president of Thompson-Starrett Company, New York, put up an estimated $600,000,000 worth of buildings.

Clarence Kolb Going Strong After 60 Yrs. in Show Business

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Clarence Kolb, surviving member of the vaudeville team of Kolb and Dill, is still going strong after 60 years in show business.

The 82-year-old actor is again doing a movie and playing himself, of all people. In 1912, he gave Lon Chaney his first big break and he's reliving the sequence in the Chaney biography, The Man of a Thousand Faces.

You'd expect Kolb as the irascible general, boss or father of dozens of movies and television films. His most recent engagement was as Charlie Farrell's explosive boss in My Little Margie. He made 82 of the TV half-hours.

STORMY STORIES

He can be or pose as crusty as the characters he has performed, and he's full of stories of directors, producers and actors he has clashed with. Apparently his long partnership with the late Mac Dill was a stormy one.

"We never mixed socially," Kolb said. "Our relationship was the same as it was on the stage. When I said yes, he said no."

Kolb was born on a farm near Cleveland and grew up in the Ohio city. Dill lived on the same street. They got combined their talents in the theatre, but gave up the stage in 1931, returning briefly in 1947 and then splitting up again. Dill died in 1948.

After they broke up Kolb came to Hollywood to try his luck as a movie actor.

REAL LIVE

"I knew appearances meant everything in Hollywood," he said. "I was driving around town in a 12-cylinder Cadillac but I didn't have a job for a year and four months.

"Now this town is about through with me. That's all right with me. I'll go back to San Francisco, where I can really live.

"I've given up everything that doesn't. I'm a Methodist — except drinking, and it agrees with me."

AT THE PARK — On-Stage Ray Milland and Maureen O'Hara as they appeared in the new Republic production, "Lisbon", now at the Park Theatre. Also on the screen is a color production of "Josephine and Men", starring Glynis Johns, Jack Hawkins and Peter Finch.

At The Belle

"Josephine and Men," and "Cast a Dark Shadow", Blend Laughs, Romance and Thrills

"Josephine and Men", the hilarious romantic comedy hit, starting today at the Belle, is another Bon Bon from the masters of comedy John and Roy Boulting, co-starring Glynis Johns, Jack Hawkins, Donald Sinden and Peter Finch.

Plan to see "Josephine and Men", also "Cast a Dark Shadow" complete shows at 2.00, 7.00 and 9.00, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, Dec. 5, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Days feel particularly favorable for attempting new and untried ventures. Eliminate the waste motion that periodically slips into routine. Stand firmly on principles.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Excellent influences prevail. Give full support to essentials first, then judiciously experiment with novel yet saleable merchandise or promotion. Underscore activity with stability.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Gains possible, but don't be overenthusiastic to the point of carelessness. Your quick wit and ingenuity will aid in obtaining strong cooperation. Discuss matters with trusted associates.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Like Taureans, strike out toward high goals. Don't permit your talents to rust. A well - planned manoeuvre has a good prospect of succeeding. Maintain a steady, constructive pace.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Profit by experience and the well-meaning advice of friends "in the know." Avoid a tendency to shirk difficult tasks. Cultivate friendships that will be durable, workable.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Security your goal. It is built upon a foundation of day-to-day efforts. You can make an enviable record. Dividends will accrue as efforts increase.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) Favorable aspects abound which should encourage you to sustained endeavor. Schools, professional people, clerks, laborers, office workers can all share in benefits if putting forth their best efforts.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — The position of Mars suggests caution in dealing with competition, financial matters, new ventures. Call into play your triple threat of tenacity, shrewdness and discernment.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Your indications similar to Scorpio's. Move with deliberateness, sagacity. Tackle incompleted matters carefully. Display a calm, confident air and things should go your way.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — An advantageous day — especially for merchants, those in the legal and advertising fields, mechanics, factory workers. Be alert to ever-prevalent pitfalls, however. If observant, you can spot them.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Keep yourself under sensible restraint now. A tendency toward extremes and overexertion is possible. In dealings with others be direct if you would gain best results.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Progressive ideas, properly exploited, can help you today. Don't become down-hearted by stemporary set-backs. A firm, comprehensive program is a "must." No plans, no development.

You born today are generous, charitable, exuberant. You are also endowed with self-reliance, enterprise, initiative and go-get-it-iveness. You make friends readily and retain them if you so desire. You do not relish instructions or orders, but will work ably with superiors. Curb a tendency to rebel at unwanted, but necessary authority. You have the knack for progressing rapidly when you put your mind to it; will, therefore, be impatience with those who are indefinite, careless or vague. Generally you are fond of the outdoors, sports, travel. Birthdate of: Martin Van Buren, 8th U. S. Pres.; George A. Custer, Amer. cavalry leader; Walt Disney, cartoonist, producer.

JAILED MAN GETS DEGREE

BOSTON (AP) — A judge Monday sentenced Mrs. Joan Witherspoon, 25, to a year in jail after she admitted it was more than a kiss that she gave her imprisoned husband. Mrs. Witherspoon pleaded guilty to a charge that she passed narcotics to her husband, Calvin, in jail when she was kissing him in jail. The husband was serving nine months on narcotics charges.

PERMIT "STAND-UP" ALE

AUGUSTA, Me. (AP) — The Maine lumber town of Rockland, York has voted to allow men to stand up and drink beer and ale in taverns, but not to be allowed to drink it in restaurants or hotels. Women will not be allowed to drink malt liquor in any licensed places, but they may join the men in drinking whiskey, cocktails, brandy or wine in hotel cocktail lounges.

WEEPING WOMEN

The women, pushing past the roadblock, gathered at the corners of the square. They seemed to wilt within a few feet of the muzzles of Russian guns and began to sing Hungary's national anthem.

Their high voices carried over the square, and the old song was picked up by women on the opposite side, nearly 100 feet away.

Later, a group began reciting a poem written during the 1948 revolution. It ends with a defiant oath: "We shall no longer be slaves."

The women raised two fingers of their right hand to swear the oath, which fits the old tale in the faces of the Russian soldiers.

Reuters said that at this point one woman gave an officer a violent push and another officer drew his pistol.

"People on the pavement opposite the square began to run and a few armed Soviet soldiers ran towards them. Then the shots rang out and the crowd was hit."

It began at 11 a.m. with progression of women, young and old, wearing headscarves and heavy winter coats and many carrying shopping bags, filing slowly and calmly across the square towards the tomb.

Many were in black and some had children with them.

Facing the soviet armored troop carriers stood around the square and at streets leading to it with their guns manned.

Soviet soldiers with carbines, rifles and bazookas jumped from the troop carriers and began waving the women off the square.

The women were nearly all from working class families and they said they had chosen today for the demonstration because it was exactly one month after Soviet troops had launched their attack on Budapest to crush the Hungarian uprising.

COLDER WEATHER

The long-range forecast of the United States weather bureau, as shown on this map, is that temperatures lower than seasonal averages may be expected in the next 30 days in a band that stretches from Florida, through central Ontario and Quebec and encircles Hudson Bay. Near- or above-normal temperatures may be expected in most of Western Canada and Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. Northern Newfoundland and eastern Labrador are in for much-above-normal readings. (CP Photo).

PICTON

15,000 Flock to Town to See Jolly Old Santa in Parade

PICTON — A crowd estimated at more than 15,000 people flocked into Picton Saturday afternoon for the annual Santa Claus parade sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Though snow covered the ground, it was comparatively mild and the many floats and bands, coupled with fifty walking characters, were much admired. As always, it was Santa that the children awaited and he brought up the rear of the mile-long parade, riding in a red sleigh and driving eight reindeers with blue Lach pads. The jolly fellow rode very slowly on the T. Eaton Co. float in order that he might greet the children as he passed. Due to a great crush, which followed other parades as Santa met them at the armouries, that feature was eliminated, and Santa will be in town on succeeding Saturdays to personally greet each child.

Lining the route of the parade and preventing any accidents, were members of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery. Their khaki uniforms with patches of red made an additional bit of color on the street which was enhanced by strings of colored lights and spruce trees attached to hydro standards. Gaily decorated stores added to the festivity.

Heralded the approach of the parade was the town's police car driven by Chief George Pitt. They came a herald in bright blue and gold. The RCSA trumpet band not only entertained with marshall music but with counter-marching. The town fire truck added a splash of red. A couple of clowns from the army camp, on a scooter, provided a riot of fun. The nativity scene was beautifully portrayed by the Explorers' Group of the United church. A similar scene highlighted the Salvation Army float which had a huge Bible labelled 'The Living Word'. Members of the Sea Cadet Corps manned their ship HMCS Hallowell. Several old model cars, one 37 years old, carried greetings from owner Mayor H. J. McFarland.

UNDER OWN POWER

A train, complete with box cars filled with children, travelled under its own power, an entry of Central Radio, Belleville. Characters on a tiny tractor provided more fun. Little Boy Blue was asleep in the hay, with a live sheep near by, on the Ontario Farmers' Union float. A lively square dance was in progress to old time music on the Big 5 Junior Farmers' float. The Sea Rangers emerged as Davy Crockett and Indians. Mary had a Little Lamb was the theme of the Brownie float, complete with lamb and school. Simple Simon rode on another float which also boasted the largest snake in the world and a huge snowman. There were 1956 model cars decorated and entered by Homer Shields, Grinnell Motors, Picton Motors, Wright's Garage. Contrasting them, was an old Packard which emitted a train-like whistle, driven by Eric Miller.

Christmas trees and balloons were Christmas trees and balloons were featured on two entries by Sun Joy Foods. Outstanding was the Picton Cubs, 2nd Picton Pack, float with Humpty Dumpty, and guarding the Queen in a beautiful blue gown were many of the king's men carrying shields.

Picton Camp fire department took occasion to urge 'let's make it a fire-free Christmas'. One half of the float showed a happy Christmas scene; the other half the desolation that fire could mean.

The night before Christmas was the theme of a Girl Guides float. Flags of the nations were carried by several girls. The Business and Professional Women's Club float showed Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. The Bank of Nova Scotia had an old car towed by a tractor. East End Grocery had a gaily decorated float as did Gorsline's Electric. The Canadian Legion float provided much amusement as well as noise. A cannon shot candy to the children.

Bringing the scarlet - coated Odd Fellows band were three smart drum majorettes. Then came Santa to wind up the colorful parade.

Interspersed among floats were many kinds of clowns, all kinds of comic book and fairy story characters and animals, including a ... ok complete with bushy tail. ... Cen Smith was chairman of the event.

Six Councillors Returned in Light Vote

TRENTON (Special) — Only an estimated 30 per cent of Trenton's electorate turned out at the polls yesterday to elect six councillors, and three members to the board of education. About 1,300 votes were recorded from a possible 6,900.

Leading the polls for councillor was James MacDonald, with 1,127; Claude V. Graham, 1,125; George Brown, 1,116; Vagn Lang, 1,004; Charles Hilton, who is a former resident of Belleville, 824; and Bert Strong, 820. Defeated was Jack Goldberg, with 650 votes.

Elected to the board of education were Rev. George Puttenham, 821; L. G. Phinney, 820; and George Greer, 686. Two other candidates for office, Douglas Whitley, with 542, and Gordon Davis, 431, were unsuccessful.

Late in November Mayor Ross Burti received acclamation, as did public utilities commission chairman, Bert Atkinson.

CAMPBELLFORD

62 Per Cent Of Electorate Out to Polls

CAMPBELLFORD — About 62 per cent of the electorate turned out to the polls here today to pick their 1957 council, deputy reeve and public utilities commissioner. Although voting was light during the first few hours, the polls were open, a heavy vote was registered by the time the polls closed at 6 p.m.

Campbellford's mayor and reeve were elected by acclamation last week. Douglas R. Maybee, warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham replaces former mayor Ralph J. Locke, who did not run in this year's elections. The 1957 reeve is F. M. Rutherford.

The following is the result of the elections held on Monday. The new council consists of William R. Nicholas, as deputy reeve; Hector A. MacArthur and R. J. A. Mc. Gregor, as P.U.C. commissioners. Council consists of P. Girard O'Sullivan, P. H. Macmillan, George H. Free, Charles Thompson, George Nicholls, F. S. Liston.

Four council aspirants were defeated at the polls, they were Jack Torrance; George Vice; R. A. Hall, and William Masterson.

NO COMMITMENT ON GAZA STRIP

This close-up of Premier David Ben-Gurion of Israel was made as he held a press conference at his office in Jerusalem. He evaded a definite reply to the future of the Gaza strip, where thousands of Arabs are prisoners of the Israelis. (Central Press Canadian).

SCORES AGAIN

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur Hailey's Toronto advertising executive who sold his first television play to Hollywood for $20,000 after it was produced by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, has done it again. His latest television play Time Lock, has been bought by a British film company for $22,500.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma shook her head over her sewing, saying to pop, William, I spect 2 solid hours rearranging your socks this afternoon.'

Do you mean 2 solid minutes? pop said, and ma said, Really, William, I mean without exception. you are the untidiest man that ever existed on land or sea.

There's a certain satisfaction in being a world's record holder, but still, my dear, cant you be a little less unrestrained in your sexual broadsides? For instance is it neccesserry or reasonable to drag in the sea? I'm sure the untidy sailers you have encountered in your entire career could be counted on the fingers of my hands, he said, and ma said, Now William, I ment every werd and I didn't even begin to express my real thoughts. You have no more sense of order than the wild winds of the west. A baby in arms is better than you are, she said.

You can't mean a baby without its bib, pop said, and ma said, I mean what I say.

Now that's very intristing from a sycological standpoint, because in that case you cant even realize that you are exaggerating, pop said. For instance, if I were no neeter than a baby in arms, my face would be covered with brickup and gravy from dinner at this very moment. So seriously, my dear, you must admit that you exaggrate, he said, and ma said, I seriously admit nothing. My werds may exaggerate, but I know exactly what I mean, she said.

So do I, my dear, said it's a woman's werld and I love it, pop said.

And he got up and gave her a short kiss.

Famous Trichologist Will Demonstrate How To Grow Thicker Hair . . . And Guarantees It!

DEMONSTRATIONS TO BE HELD HERE

This new method of home treatment for saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Belleville, Ontario, on Wednesday, Dec. 5th.

These private individual demonstrations will be held at the New Queen's Hotel on Wednesday only.

LONDON, Ont. — In an interview here today, William L. Keele, internationally famed trichologist and director of the Keele hair, said there are 11 different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so-called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

Guaranteed

"The Keele firm, recognizing that most people are skeptical of claims that hair can be grown on balding heads, offers a guarantee. "If you are not completely satisfied with your hair progress at the end of 30 days your money will be returned."

Hopeless Cases Discouraged

First, the trichologist is quick to tell hopeless cases that they cannot be helped. But the "hopeless" cases are few. Only if a man is completely, shiny bald is he in this lost category.

If there is fuzz, no matter how light, thin or colorless, the Keele treatment can perform wonders.

Free Examination

This examination is very thorough and highly technical, it requires 20 to 30 minutes. The trichologist makes no charge for this examination and no appointment is necessary. After the examination the person is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost.

After starting treatments, the person makes regular reports to the Keele firm in London to check the progress of the home treatment.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, independent trichologists are visiting various cities to conduct examinations and start home treatment.

No Cure-All

"We have no cure-all for slick shiny baldness," Keele emphasized. "If there is fuzz, the root is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."

There is one thing Keele wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If a recession appears at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

Hair For Lifetime

If clients follow our direction during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives." Keele said. "Your firm is definitely behind this treatment, it all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."

How's Your Hair?

If it does you can call Trichologist Benny A. Leggis at the New Queen's Hotel in Belleville, Ont., on Wednesday Only, December 5, 12 noon to 9.00 p.m. The public is invited.

You do not need an appointment. The examinations are private and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Both men and women are welcome.

Europeans Panic As Anglo-French Troops Withdraw

Fear Violence in Port Said When Soldiers Have Left

BABY-SITTER SHOT BY NINE-YEAR-OLD

A shotgun, fired by a nine-year-old boy, caused the death of Bernadette Swaschuk, 11, who was baby sitting in a neighbor's home in Edmonton, Ontario. Bernadette, above, was in charge of the household of Mrs. Joan Lyons, who was visiting her husband in hospital, when she was shot in the face by the boy, who ran screaming from the house. Mrs. Lyons, on her return, said the gun was just left loaded around the house, but that there were shells that the boy could reach. (Central Press Canadian).

PORT SAID (CP) — The big outward rush by Anglo-French forces—1,833 more troops sailed off this morning—left Port Said's European communities in a state of near-panic today.

The Italian and Greek consuls here sent urgent appeals to their governments for evacuation ships to take away jittery civilian families before the last of the Anglo-allied military force departs within the next few days.

As more troopships poured into Port Said, the speed of the Anglo-French withdrawal appeared to be accelerating rapidly. The official estimate has been that it will take two to three weeks—but it appears obvious that only a few more bulkloading fores will still be around by that time.

The sight of military truck convoys packed with troops and equipment streaming to the harbor is highly unnerving for European civilians who have been harassed by Egyptian terrorists and extremists.

REPORT THREATS

Several Italian families reported to their consulate today that their baggage had been packed and examined during the night because they were obviously trying to "escape Egypt."

Other Italians brought copies of threatening letters that had been slipped under their doors: "You are serving the English and French imperialists. Leave your home, your wife and children. Go home."

Lt.-Gen. Sir Hugh Stockwell, allied commander in Port Said, told a press conference that "adequate" arrangements were made on their way here to evacuate all the 13,000 British and 6,500 French troops in Port Said at present.

He said he was unable to give any definite date for the completion of the withdrawal but plans were going ahead reasonably quickly.

ASSURANCE SOUGHT

Stockwell said he has asked Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canadian chief of the United Nations truce supervision, to ensure that no Egyptian troops enter Port Said before the last allied soldier leaves.

He expected that 2,500 UN troops — Danes, Swedes, Norwegians, Finns, Indians and Colombians — will be housed in the Port Said area by the time the British troops are withdrawn.

He added that Burns is working out the number of allied vehicles which he will be prepared to ferry from Britain and France.

Scandinavian troops already in Port Said are manning a buffer strip in the centre of the city amid reports of renewed anti-allied hate campaign. Traders here who have been doing business with the allies are fearful of mob reprisals. A Woolworth store was burned Tuesday.

GOES TO ISRAEL

Burns flew to Tel Aviv today for talks with Israeli commanders on the withdrawal of their forces from Egyptian territory.

The Israelis have announced a withdrawal of their forces to positions in the Sinai desert to the bank of the Suez Canal. They also have reported the withdrawal of their Sinai Peninsula entirely of three brigades of troops, totalling between 6,000 and 12,000 men.

ROYAL PORTRAITS

LONDON (CP) — Edmonton-born Llewellyn Petley-Jones will display his recently completed portraits of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh at the Imperial Institute this month. Other works by the Canadian artist will also be shown.

300 HUNGARIAN FORESTRY PUPILS TO COME IN GROUP

Lumber Company Will Provide Camp in B.C.

OTTAWA (CP) — Now it's official. The government is making arrangements to bring to Canada about 300 Hungarian forestry students and their professors who fled the Communists in a group.

The immigration department said Wednesday the refugees have accepted a government invitation to come to Canada. They also have accepted an invitation to live in a camp prefabricated by the Powell River Company Ltd. of British Columbia.

They are expected to arrive in Vancouver by train in mid-January to continue their studies in the University of British Columbia.

After escaping from their homeland the students and professors took solemn oaths to stick together. To make this possible the Canadian government has agreed to bring them to Canada as a group.

Immigration minister Pickersgill explained the situation. Two days when he visited Dr. Kalman Rolier, dean of forestry at Hungary's University of Sopron. Dr. Rolier and the other refugees are now living in the Salzburg, Austria, area.

TOURING CAMPS

Dr. Pickersgill, who returns to Canada by air Dec. 16, now is touring refugee camps in Germany and in Austria. He conferred in Bonn that 6,000 Hungarian refugees are in Canada by the end of the year.

A report from Vienna said the Hungarian refugee group totals 314 students and professors and 24 wives and other dependents of faculty members. But the immigration department in Ottawa says it understands that the group will number between 323 and 325, including students and professors and 20 wives and 50 children of professors.

Arrangements now are being made for free ship and train passage and the easiest. It is learned that they will arrive in Vancouver about April 15.

It is likely that the Hungarians will travel from the east coast to Vancouver in one train. There was no confirmation here of a Vienna report that the government is considering a "Hungarian Freedom" train which would stop at Canadian universities en route across Canada.

27,000 Japanese Families Starving

TOKYO (Reuters)—More than 27,000 families are destitute, starving and freezing in Japan's northernmost island of Hokkaido.

Thousands, living in flimsy shacks without fuel, electricity or water, are known to be close to extinction."

Hard-hit by a bad summer and crop failures, Hokkaido's farmers are suffering blizzard conditions in the coldest winter in years.

Many children, without clothing or footwear, are unable to travel to school and 150,000 school children are now given free meals of soup needed daily for hot lunches.

A cold summer destroyed 90 per cent of Hokkaido's crop and a subsequent drop in temperatures buried the island under snow.

COSTLY DECORATION

LONDON (CP) — A West End store offers for sale a Christmas tree made of Canadian mink skins—100 skins surmounted by a golden cherub in a white mink coat. Price asked is £4,200.

Butler Tells British Hose Reins Of Govt. Will Be Handed Back to Eden

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Eden's chief deputy, R. A. Butler, told the House of Commons today the reins of the government will be handed back to Eden immediately after he is released by American rest cure.

Butler's statement, however, did nothing to lessen speculation that Eden may be forced to resign.

As government leader in the House, Butler said Eden "would wish to face the music"—an obvious reference to the controversy raging in Britain over his Suez military policies.

The House votes tonight on a confidence motion which, if not carried, would force Eden's cabinet to quit.

Word of announced tonight that the prime minister and Lady Eden will leave Jamaica by air Friday, arriving in England in the following afternoon.

Eden had been ordered to take three weeks of rest for what 10 Downing Street described as "severe overstrain."

The Labor party opened the second day of the two-day Suez debate in the Commons this afternoon with an appeal to the government to repair the rift in the Anglo-American alliance.

Plan All-Canadian Seaway Despite Objections by U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has decided to get tough, diplomatically, with the United States on a major issue of the St. Lawrence seaway.

The Canadian government is telling the U.S. it is going ahead with preliminaries for an all-Canadian deepwater shipping route through the river and into the Great Lakes, despite stiff U.S. objections.

Canada's final stand, it was learned, has been made known to the American government after a couple of years of negotiations complicated by U.S. political considerations.

Informants said an exchange of formal notes—which the U.S. objects to the Canadian move but does not openly bar Ottawa—is made public in the next fortnight.

The Canadian action won't call for any Canadian seaway immediately but will make things easier for long construction and as traffic justifies. Officials here say it could save $30,000,000 in the long run.

Chances are, they say, the Canadian route won't be built in many years—20 years or more from now—pinpointing on the deep-water channel through two canal locks on the American side at the downstream end and then traverse a lock on the Canadian side about 40 miles upriver at Iroquois, Ont.

Canada has been holding for U.S. agreement for its idea of setting things up for double by-passes downstream while telling the U.S. it is agreeable to locks duplicating Canadian facilities upstream. The U.S. has not gone for either idea.

One reason, in the view of political observers here, is the difficulty the U.S. administration has had in selling the whole seaway idea to Congress over the years, and the fact that it has had to convince many congressmen that it will be financially safe for water entry into mid-America by way of the southern locks.

Despite this and the U.S. government's expected objections, the current exchange of notes, Canada is advising the U.S. it proposes to have the following done:

Deepening of the St. Lawrence River channel to 27-foot (ocean-going) depth up to Cornwall, which will allow big vessels to reach that port which now handles ships of only 14-foot draught.

This will cost, over-all, some $17,000,000 but part of it will be recovered by tolls. Completion of phase of the seaway-power project since the channel deepening will afford a better tail-race for the power dam just upstream from Cornwall.

When and if Canada decides to start locks across a neck of land near Cornwall and into the river past the power dam, it will then be in a position to do it economically. Meanwhile, the preliminary condition for this are being built on land on the Canadian side. And the U.S. is being told fairly bluntly that this is Canada's own affair.

Menon of India Calls on Canada To Take Lead in Disarmament

OTTAWA (CP)—V. K. Krishna Menon of India has called on Canada to take the lead in world disarmament, External Affairs Minister Pearson suggested disarmament is mainly a matter for decision by the great powers.

Mr. Menon, chairman of India's delegation to the United Nations, said Wednesday in a Canadian Club address that Canada is "ideally situated" geographically and politically for the leadership task. He praised Canada's role in the Middle East crisis.

Mr. Pearson, who sat near Mr. Menon at the luncheon head table later told reporters that Canada's role in the UN sub-committee on disarmament had been "greatly valuable," but it is "difficult to see whether this country should take the lead in a matter that is mainly in the concern of the big powers."

There was some question among Canadian diplomats as to why the Indian spokesman raised the disarmament issue in the Canadian sub-committee has not recently met, although Russia has asked for a meeting.

Russia has made some concessions toward—but not accepted—a United States proposal for an "open skies" aerial inspection to ensure that countries would keep any agreement not to produce arms.

Mr. Menon said he agreed with Mr. Pearson that the Commonwealth had almost been split by "quite impossible" for a British government to continue in the Commonwealth.

He said he had never stated this publicly before. Had he done so, it might have been interpreted as meaning that Asian powers were trying to use the statement as a "bargain basis."

The Commonwealth was "something useful" and "we will try to keep it so," he said. "It is large enough to the world that nations can live."

The Indian diplomat praised the "terrific part" Canada played in Colombo plan aid to South and Southeast Asia, especially Canada's decision to help build an atomic furnace in India.

Although there had been "considerable talk" that economic cooperation should be channeled through the United Nations, some countries should not also make bilateral arrangements, "but we should not exclude particular friendships."

Mr. Menon was prepared to "throw over" her atomic furnace agreement with Canada. He hoped Canada felt the same way.

Talks Prime Minister Nehru will have with Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mr. Pearson, when he leaves Ottawa for London Dec. 22, will help Indian-Canadian relations and enable Asians to see that they are not a suppressed species, Mr. Menon added.

His country faced major economic problems. Its population increased by about 4,500,000 annually and was expected to total about 600,000,000 by the end of the century.

Because of India's needs, she followed a policy of conciliation and friendly even with countries which disagreed with the democratic way of life.

TWO PLANELOADS OF REFUGEES ON WAY TO TORONTO

Emergency Program Moves Into High Gear

VIENNA (CP)—Two planeloads of Hungarian refugees left for Toronto Wednesday night as Canada's emergency immigration program moved into high gear.

The Trans-Canada and Maritime Central planes, carrying a total of 151 refugees, were scheduled to arrive in Toronto today. Previous flights terminated in Montreal and Vancouver.

The refugees Wednesday night were given an official sendoff at the airport by the Ontario agent-general in London, J. S. P. Armstrong of London, Ont., and John Yaremko, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto-Bellwoods. The two arrived in Vienna Wednesday to make a survey of the refugee situation for the Ontario government.

GIVEN DINNER

Before leaving, the refugees were offered dinner by Armstrong on behalf of the Province of Ontario.

The refugees boarded the planes without the slightest sign of trepidation, despite monotonous decision to begin their lives again 6,000 miles from their homeland.

Typical of the group was Antony Mihok, 38, a Budapest electrician, who left his wife and child behind. Mihok had $20 in his pocket. Asked if he was worried about his future, Mihok said through an interpreter: "I'm not worried. I'm glad to be free."

The TCA Super - constellation carried 69 adults and 82 children—including a set of twins and one family with 10 children.

ASK LABOR WORKERS

A majority of the adults on the two flights are skilled tradesmen, with some professionals included. Dr. Csaba Komja, 51, who walked from Budapest to Austria two weeks ago with his wife, his young son Gabriel and three other relatives, who Wednesday night asked numerous questions about Canada's schools.

At a press conference Wednesday in Bonn, West Germany, J.W. Pickersgill, Canadian immigration minister, said that almost all refugees in Canada will be needed in order to get the refugees to Canada as quickly as possible.

He said whether political screening was also being waived, he refused to say, but added: "I can't answer that. But I can assure you that there's not at all delay" in movement.

Mayor Warned

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Discussing taxi drivers' licences Wednesday, the London police commission had the power of one applicant with a record of running through stop signs.

"We all do that," said Mayor Ray Dennis.

Special Judge Ian MacRae: "What do you mean 'We'?"

Magistrate Donald Ormsby told the mayor: "Well you had better step it or you will be up in one of our courts."

Cardinal Mindszenty Stripped Nude, Tortured 29 Days by Red Police

NEW YORK (AP) — Hungary's Cardinal Mindszenty was tortured by Red secret police for 29 days and 29 nights before his trial on treason charges in 1949, he disclosed in an interview published Wednesday morning.

The cardinal said he was stripped nude, beaten by guards with a rubber hose, kept in a cold, damp cell to irritate his kidneys, forced to stand for long, tense orgies, and questioned without sleep throughout the entire period.

When he collapsed, he was revived with injections to deprive him of rest, but no drugs were used to make him confess to trumped-up treason charges at his trial, the cardinal told his interviewer, Hungarian Foreign Minister Balogh Bain. The interview was published in Bain's newspaper.

Bain saw the cardinal Nov. 4, first in a building near the Austrian border and then in Vienna. This was shortly after Mindszenty's release following eight years of confinement and just before he was granted asylum in the U.S. legation in Budapest.

Bain completed the interview at the legation, the story said.

Cardinal Mindszenty was still defiant of Hungary's Communist regime, the interview emphasized.

It quoted him as saying he would never submit to force to the extent that he instead would fight on against it.

"I will protest to the world my own record of the unspeakable brutality practiced on me and my nation under the imagination of a normal human being," the cardinal was quoted as saying.

His memoirs will aid in raising funds for the impoverished Roman Catholic Church in Hungary, he told his interviewer.

The cardinal was given Bain a copy of this plea he sent President Eisenhower from his refuge in the U.S. Legation.

"I beg of you do not forget, do not forget, do not forget this small honest nation which is enduring martyrdom to death."

There were reports in Budapest that the cardinal's 62 year-old secretary, Father Zoltan Tuchapsky, was arrested by Soviet troops as he sought to leave Hungary two weeks ago with the message, dated Nov. 8. But the magazine prints a photographic copy of the message as Mindszenty typed and signed it. It was brought out by Bain.

Since then the U.S. legation in Budapest has ruled that Mindszenty may not give statements to interviewers while on the premises, to avoid infraction of

At Least 2 Die As Hungarians Again Fight Reds

Nationalists and Communists Clash in Budapest Streets

BUDAPEST (AP)—Pro-government and Hungarian nationalist demonstrators clashed on the Budapest boulevards this afternoon and, according to eyewitnesses, at least two men were killed and several wounded.

The clash started when a group of about 100 pro-government demonstrators carrying Red flags met another group of about the same size with the nationalist flag on Budapest's Great Boulevard at about noon. A general fist fight got under way.

The Communists were escorted protectively by Russian armored cars. Some unidentified person fired a pistol and the Russians fired a volley above the heads of the demonstrators.

The whole boulevard was engulfed in a minute. Russia tanks and armored cars rumbled up and down the street. Members of the Hungarian officer corps stood at the corners with tommy-guns ready for action.

CROWD STUBBORN

Farther down the boulevard, toward the Parliament on Marx Square the crowd refused to disperse and stood their sidewalks in a challenging mood. Six Russian tanks clustered around the center of the square with their guns pointing in every direction.

The square was filled with Hungarian policemen and members of the officers corps, but no Russians were observed in the immediate area.

Others used a small coffee house as a temporary prison and brought in people whom they had picked up and arrested, as well as the wounded.

Eyewitnesses said the two killed were Hungarian nationalists but could not say who shot them, the Russians or the Hungarian Communists.

WORKERS STRIKE

Earlier, workers had struck spontaneously in several Budapest factories in protest against the shooting of demonstrators Wednesday by Soviet troops and Hungarian secret police. Leaders of Workers Council had advised against a general strike.

The atmosphere remained tense in the capital as Soviet tanks moved up and down the main boulevards of the capital. However, there were no demonstrations during the morning.

The huge factories in the Csepel Island industrial area, Csepel Island, where workers made their stubborn stand against the Russians during the recent revolution, were working as usual. Ten large Russian tanks stood near the factory gates.

Street buses and streetcars were in operation in Budapest.

New posters throughout the city called for an "hour of silence" in the city from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. Businesses were requested not to go out on the streets during this period.

Radio Dispatcher Gives Excellent Piece of Advice

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A radio dispatcher on duty last night gave this bit of excellent advice to all cars Wednesday night:

"If you see a man carrying a cash register, arrest him."

Conservative Rebel Group Likely Small

LONDON (Reuters)—A group of Conservative members of Parliament will refuse to support the government in tonight's crucial vote on the Suez crisis, but political observers today did not think Sir Anthony Eden's government in danger of defeat.

Some politicians forecast that as many as 20 Conservative rebels would abstain as a bitter protest against what they consider the premature withdrawal of British and French forces from Egypt. But seasoned observers thought the number would be between six and 12.

If only a handful of Conservatives refuse to vote for the government—which has a 59 majority in the Commons—it will not be the first blow to his premiership which was feared earlier. The voting is on a government motion inviting support for its Middle East policy.

WILL ADJOURN

Capt. Charles Waterhouse, leader of the die - hard "Suez Group" of Conservatives, earlier announced that he would abstain. Five other members were reported likely to follow him.

Waterhouse said in the House of Commons night that he could not support a government which had made itself impotent "on the radio and in the Middle East over the last four years."

Political observers said Waterhouse was aiming not at bringing the government down, but to force a reconstruction of its leadership. This would include the replacement of Eden, now resting in Jamaica.

SALVATION CAROLERS AGAIN ON EAST HILL

With the excellent weather experienced recently, Salvation Army plans for their annual Christmas caroling are proceeding exceptionally well. Residents on Ann, William, Albert and Charles Streets gave a hearty welcome to the carolers on Tuesday evening. One wee Belleville tyke wanted to know why Santa Claus was helping the Salvation Army. It was suggested that Santa was helping the Salvation Army as they in turn could help Santa at Christmas time.

On Thursday evening, the carolers will be visiting the following streets: George Street, John Street, Church Street, Parkwood Heights, Montgomery Heights and McDonald Ave.

Highlands of Hastings Tourist Booklet Again Approved by Council With Grant of $500

Hastings County council will continue to support the Highlands of Hastings tourist booklet for 1952, although there is a feeling among some members that there could be an improvement to include more attractions in the northern part of the county.

On recommendation of Reeve Dr. C. McVicker, of Belleville, as chairman of the publicity committee, council voted to continue support for the booklet published by Belleville Chamber of Commerce and referred the $500 outlay to ways and means.

Both the county and the city of Belleville contribute $500 toward the cost of the booklet, the actual work being done by the Chamber of Commerce.

Reeve Dr. McVicker felt there should be more direct contact by the Chamber with tourist operators, who should be given an opportunity to participate in advertising. He said he understood this was to be done for the 1957 booklet.

Reeve Frank Wells of Marmora, and Deputy Reeve Alfred Mallett noted that the size of the booklet had been reduced, but was deliberately made smaller so it would be more compact and more easily read. Such being the case there was not the room for the same individual advertising as had previously been the case.

It was felt that the booklet attracted attention to the district and that it was up to the individual operator to do his own advertising to attract the tourist once they were in the area.

Under by-laws later in the session council will consider a motion from Reeve J. N. Brown of Bancroft, to delete his village from the county grant.

NEED NEW BRIDGE

Referring to the need for a new bridge on Station street he said the village to replace a present one-way structure over the York river, Reeve Brown said he did not with council to think that his municipality was trying to avoid financial responsibility but said they had to have a new bridge.

Tuesday a communication had been read from the highways department in which that body had expressed its decision not to accede to a county request to take over the bridge, and Reeve Brown at that time stated that if the county could not or would not build the bridge, the village would withdraw from the county roads system and build the bridge themselves.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Brown said Bancroft was willing to stay in the county system if Hastings would build the bridge. "Or we are willing to step out and build it ourselves."

He noted that this year his village had paid approximately $4,500 in county road rates and had received a 50 per cent rebate from the county. In return for their county road rate only maintenance was done on the bridge which had amounted to less than $200.

Cecil Green, county assessor, urged reeves to have township assessors go out and get assessment on new buildings not yet on the assessment rolls.

He noted that teams of provincial assessors were making the rounds of the different municipalities making spot assessments, later comparing them with assessments made by local men, then using comparison figures for payment of grants in lieu of taxation on government-owned property.

He said there was a possibility of these assessments made by provincial men at some date in the future being used as a basis for school grants. Therefore, he said there was little use in municipalities deliberately keeping assessments down to take advantage of higher school grants.

MENTAL DISTRESSES

Discussion swung around to assessments on so called "chicken houses" which are almost entirely being used as living accommodation in many areas.

Mr. Green pointed out that trailers were not assessable and the only way in which a municipality could obtain revenue from them was through licensing. He said this licence fee ranged from $5 to $10 per month per trailer.

Reeve H. Bateman of Sidney noted his township refused to license individual trailers but did issue a trailer camps where an overall licence of $100 was taken out by the operator. Therefore, he added, fee of $4 per month being collected for each trailer.

Reeve J. Brown of Bancroft advised municipalities to get after the trailers early or the matter would get ahead of them. He said the trailer licence in his village was $10 per month and they were seriously considering raising it to $25.

"We don't want any part of them," he said.

Reeve Wilmott Rose of Frankford wanted to know what defined a trailer. In this village he said there were several trailer owners who had put their trailers on cement blocks with result that they were no longer trailers and the only recourse the municipality had was assessment.

"Your building by-law should forbid block foundations for trailers," advised Deputy Reeve Mallett, "we have that trouble in Bancroft we give them just 48 hours to get out of town."

Reeve T. C. Graham of Tweed wanted to know if a municipality being done to provide for minimum accommodation on a standard housing and he was told by Deputy Reeve Charles Long of Tyendinaga and Deputy Reeve Agricultural Council had taken this matter up and recommended a minimum assessment of $1,000 be allowed on all buildings used as residences.

"Hastings should pass a similar resolution," Deputy Long recommended Reeve Charles Buskard.

APPROVE GRANT

Under ways and means council took little time to approve of a $10,000 grant to the township of Dungannon for the use of that municipality taking over the three-and-a-half mile county road to Dellor.

The $10,000 grant and reversion of roads to the municipality was part of a highways department condition that the province taking over the Coe Hill county road as a development road.

Reeve Earl Sager, acting as chairman of the committee on ways and means, told council the $10,000 would be paid out of the general fund, but it was hoped there would be sufficient left over from the 1951 road by-law to cover the amount.

"It looks like a good piece of business," commented Reeve Buskard, "and the sooner we can get rid of the balance of our county roads the better."

MRS. ALDEN A. MORDEN

Wellington

WELLINGTON (Special) — A member of one of this village's oldest and most esteemed families, Mrs. Maria Morden passed away in her home on December 1st. Mrs. Morden was said to be over 100 years of age.

She was born in Newtonville, Pt. Hope, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Luke B. Jacobs. She had resided in Wellington for the past 76 years.

She married the late Alden A. Morden in 1893. The former canning producer of this village, Mr. Morden passed away in December 1943.

Surviving are a grandson, Ralph E. Morden, and two great grandchildren, John and Julia. A niece, Mrs. Lewis Neff, also resides here. A son, Norman A. Morden, passed away in 1949.

Mrs. Morden was a long and devoted member of the Wellington Baptist Church.

The funeral was held from the residence on Monday, December 3, with the Rev. Alfred Poulter, minister of Wellington United Church, officiating. Interment was in the family plot in Wellington cemetery vault.

Accused Found Guilty on Assault Charge

Charged with common assault Frank Quinlan, 23, who lives in the Madoc area, pleaded not guilty and conducted his own defence when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills here this morning.

Quinlan was found guilty of assaulting Lloyd Sandford and was placed on suspended sentence for one year in addition to paying costs of $17.50.

In passing sentence Magistrate Wills warned the defendant that it is very annoying to have children throw stones, mud or other debris at a person's property.

Quinlan said he chased the teen-ager after he suspected the child of hurling stones at his trailer. He said he intended only to give the suspect a scare, but did hit the court of other trouble he had had with neighboring children. At one time someone took his brand new truck tires belonging to him and rolled them into a gravel pit near his home. On another occasion someone emptied a 10-gallon fuel oil tank outside his trailer. And on a third occasion someone broke into his un-locked trailer and made off with $5 in cash.

Magistrate Wills warned parents of children bent on annoyance that they can be made to pay for them to instruct their children to have respect for the property of others. He added that it is not cricket for parents to lay false affidavits as weapons of harrying neighbors.

Evidence of the defendant and Magistrate Wills laid over until December 10 a charge of failing to report an accident, which was laid against Kenneth Holmes, of Madoc, a few weeks ago.

The magistrate also withheld judgment in the case of 18-year-old Ameil Thompson, of Cooks-ton, who stood trial two weeks ago for the hit-and-run death of 62-year-old Herman Wilcox, on the Madoc county road.

Youngsters Asked To Mail Cards

Traditionally Santa Claus goes into a home by way of the chimney. Recently, however, the grandold man of Christmas has been harnessing other things besides reindeer.

In Belleville, for instance, Santa's imagination had gone completely modern. He is now using the telephone to reach all his young friends.

Throughout the next few weeks St. Nick will be buzzing all those who want to hear from him personally by using Christmas greetings. In this Santa is being helped by the Belleville Recreation Committee with William McPhail president.

Now, the first question that comes to mind is how to get in touch with Mr. Claus to have him phone home.

Well, here is the procedure:

At present stores and schools in the city are holding special mailing cards addressed to Santa. These can be picked up and filled out by any youngsters. All that has to be done with the cards is that name, address, age and telephone number be entered in spaces allotted for them, together with the time they wish Santa to place the call.

Finally, just drop the card in the nearest mailbox.

It's as easy as that!

P.S.—Don't forget to put a four-cent stamp on the card.

By-Law Providing Selective Cutting of Trees Laid Over

A tree cutting by-law aimed at providing selective cutting of trees in the county will be considered by members of Hastings county council at their January session.

Thursday council members had a full scale debate on the proposed by-law submitted by W. E. Edwards, zone forester with the Department of Lands and Forests, who outlined its aims and provisions.

Discussion on the matter was heard during the morning session and again in the afternoon when final consideration of the by-law was laid over to the January session on recommendation of Reeve C. T. Hollins and James Sprackett.

In his address to council Mr. Edwards noted that 23 counties in the province had tree-cutting by-laws, all of them promoting better forestry practice.

He said the by-law was primarily aimed at controlling cutting of trees on wild land and stressed it would affect very little the private woodlot owner wishing to retain the value of his woodlands.

It would principally affect the wholesale cutting of pulpwood and timber limits with the intention of clearing them completely to make a quick profit. The by-law which was circulated among councillors was said merely a guide and that regulations could be set to suit the area concerned. Deputy Reeve Long felt there would be a county matter.

Main reason for presenting the by-law was the fact that a Trenton paper company was now using pulpwood as a source and there was a fear that areas in the county would be stripped by speculative operators.

Under the terms of the proposed by-law cutting of certain types of trees under a certain size would be illegal.

Northern reeves generally were against wholehearted support to the by-law claiming that if the regulations were too stiff they might prevent residents in their townships cutting trees for wood as a profitable basis. Many farmers still obtain their pulp wood as a means of getting ready cash, it was stated.

COUNCIL APPEAL

Mr. Edwards reiterated, however, that the by-law would have little effect on farm private woods and in cases where there might be injunction an appeal could be made to the tree commissioner.

Reeve William Davis of Bangor township, one of the northern reeves favoring the by-law felt it was a good thing and said first thing they knew a gravel pit should be to stop the slaughter at once. Areas in Tyendinaga and the area were starting at the wrong end if we do not preserve what nature has given us and stop the slaughter of young trees which do not care."—he said.

Education and co-operation was needed, he said.

Reeve Charles Buskard of Deseronto said, "It's high time we prosecutionated long enough," he said. "It is fairly easy to get regulations. I move adoption of the by-law."

Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora village said he had heard the by-law explained himself on conservation minded and would fully accept the cutting of pulpwood per hundred acres from certain pliers.

Mr. Edwards agreed this was correct and said the company was interested in a continued supply of pulp. He again stressed that the by-law was intended merely to stop the few speculators from clear cutting.

WANTS WHOLE COUNTY IN

In his original form only the south six townships in the county were mentioned in the by - law but Deputy Reeve Harold Varty of Hungerford felt the whole county should be included and made a motion to this effect.

The afternoon session saw continued objection from a few northern reeves who said if the entire county was to be included they wanted more time to think the matter over.

Reeve Sprackett said many residents in his area were opposed and although he personally saw the benefits he would have to vote against it.

Reeve Davis said he did not take the attitude that he must vote as residents of his township decreed.

"I feel that I am sent to county council to vote in the best interests of the county and I intend to vote that way," he said.

He should take the longer viewpoint and what is best for the county."

The motion from Reeves Rollins and Sprackett to lay the matter over until the January session followed and was carried unanimously.

Churches Filled For Services of Crash Victims

Funeral services for the six accident victims killed in Sunday's auto-train crash north of Shannonville were held at the Mohawk Indian Reservation Wednesday afternoon with both Christ Anglican Church, and all Saints Church filled to overflowing for both services.

The funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill and their two daughters Marion, 12 and Audrey, 8, was held at All Saints Church, where service was conducted by Rev. Walter Smith, chaplain for the Reservation. Burial was in All Saints Cemetery.

Archie Maracle and his son Robert, 9, were buried from Christ Anglican Church where service was conducted by Rev. W. Smith, assisted by Canon S. H. Colcleugh, rector of St. Marks' Anglican Church at Deseronto.

All schools on the Reservation were closed for the day as the Reservation went into mourning for the accident victims. School children acted as bearers for the three children who died in the accident.

The funerals were under the direction of the White Funeral Home at Deseronto.

Four other persons were critically injured in Sunday's accident which saw the car jammed with 10 persons tossed down the right-of-way by a speeding C.-P. R. freight on the Tyendinaga 1st concession crossing.

Injured were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robertson of Kingston and their children Donald and Rita. Mrs. Robertson and her son were taken to Toronto for emergency brain operations. Mr. Robertson and his daughter are in Belleville General Hospital.

Police Officer Sentenced to Five Years

WELLAND (CP)—Ex-constable Harry Read, 36, today was sentenced to five years in Kingston penitentiary for possession of loot from a $70,000 post office theft.

Read pleaded guilty to the charge Nov. 23. A breaking and entering charge was withdrawn earlier.

Police said they found $5,000 from the 1955 theft in the basement of Read's home. Read said he found the money in his garden after receiving an anonymous phone call.

IN MEMORIAM

CROSSLEY — In loving memory of our dear brother, Artie Crossley, who passed away so suddenly December 6th, 1952.
He who loved you, sadly miss you,
He who knew you, ne'er forget,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are ever near.
—Ever remembered by Harold, Dorothy and family.

CROSSLEY — In loving memory of our dear brother, who passed away December 6th, 1952.
A day of remembrance sadly recalled,
Without farewell you left us all,
To be with us in the same old way,
Would be our fondest wish today.
—Sadly missed by wife and daughters Leslie and Dorothy.

REID. — In loving memory of Francis, who was taken away December 6th, 1952.
We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our mind;
For the days are few we don't think of you,
And the years are long,
If all the world was ours to give,
We'd give it you, and a great deal more;
To see the face of Francis dear,
Come smiling through the door.
—Ever missed by Mum, Dad and Garry.

Santa Parade On Saturday At Eleven Sharp

Hey Kids, Santa is coming to town on Saturday.

Yes, the annual Santa Claus parade will be seen in downtown Belleville Saturday morning starting promptly at 11 o'clock, and it is safe to say that all the kiddies in the city and immediate district will be on hand to greet him and his party.

City Fireman, headed by Fire Chief Gerald Vance, along with several interested merchants, are in charge of the parade and for past weeks have been busily engaged in preparations.

Chief Vance says that more than the fiscal will take part in the parade, which will leave the Moira Street firehall sharp at 11 o'clock. Parade will swing over the Upper Bridge and down Front Street to Dundas, along Dundas to Pinnacle and then north to Station street and back over the Upper Bridge.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market carried its recovering advance into a fifth straight session today during moderate morning trading.

The industrial index gained a bit more than a point as papers and banks assisted the sections to an advance. Base metals add one-quarter of a point, mainly on the strength of higher-priced senior issues. Western oils were ahead nearly one-half point.

Nickel mining issues managed a few slight gains but they were minor compared to the ones hung up in the latter part of Wednesday's day when the International Nickel raised the price of refined nickel 1½ cents a pound (U.S. funds), lace gained more than six points at the time but it was down ¾ today.

Hudson Bay, Steep Rock and Walte Amulet gained fractions among other senators and Noranda lost a point.

Now Little Hope Of UN Observers Visiting Hungary

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) The United Nations, rebuffed in its attempt to get Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold into Hungary, today insisted a group on "wheels" a UN observation team would be admitted.

But most delegates, discouraged by Hungary's refusal to permit Hammarskjold to go to Budapest Dec. 16, hold little hope that the reply will be favorable.

The request was contained in a 14-power resolution passed by the General Assembly Tuesday night. It asked that the team be permitted to enter Hungary, travel freely and then report on the situation in the revolt-torn country to the UN.

REPLY STUNS

Delegates were stunned Wednesday when the Hungarian Communist government announced through Radio Budapest that Hammarskjold could go to Budapest Dec. 16 for a three-day visit. Previously it had been held that he would be admitted, since the date was set during a meeting between Hammarskjold and the Hungarian foreign secretary, Imre Horvath, who later cabled his government recommending it accept the plan.

The Budapest announcement said the Dec. 16 date for the visit was acceptable, but that Hammarskjold would be welcome at some later date when would be more convenient for both parties. They did not mention any possible date for that.

A United States spokesman said his delegation, which co-sponsored the resolution passed Tuesday night, has no immediate plans for intervening the general debate in the General Assembly to discuss Wednesday's reply.

SHRUGS SHOULDERS

Confronted by reporters as he arrived at UN headquarters for Wednesday's afternoon session, Horvath merely shrugged his shoulders, smiled and said, "Apparently my government did not agree with you."

Many delegates were irate over the announcement. U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge termed it "an affront to the secretary-general and to the whole civilized world."

Sir Percy Spender of Australia said the action was further justification for pressing forward with the 14-power resolution which would give Hungarian and Hungarian authorities until Friday to consent to the entry of the UN observers into Hungary.

4-H Club Membership Climbs By Almost Third This Year

Membership in county 4-H Clubs increased by 31 per cent in 1956 over last year. Hastings County councillors were told Wednesday afternoon by A. Allen Jenkins, associate agricultural director for the county.

Reporting to county council on the activities of his department during the year, Mr. Francis stated the year had again shown 4-H Club work increased, with more girls being very proud of the awards won by both Junior Farmers and 4-H Club members during the year.

The Ottawa Winter Fair judging team of Douglas Rollins, Harold Harris and Harry Danford had placed first in the general competition in judging all types of livestock and swine carcases to win the fair trophy.

Junior Farmer work, however, had continued on similar lines to previous years with a drop in membership due to many young folk going to the cities.

GRAIN CROP DOWN

Generally the farm picture was not as bright as could be wished, Mr. Francis stated. A late seeding date for spring grain with a smaller acreage sown, coupled with wet weather at harvest time, had resulted in lower stocks of grain and many county farmers would be faced with the problem of purchasing grain or adjusting livestock to meet with the situation.

Mr. Francis' report noted that the number of horses in the county continued to drop, although there was still a market for top animals. There were many jobs on the farm at which the tractor could not compete with the horse.

Both butter and cheese production had dropped in the county during the first nine months of the year in comparison to a similar period in 1955. The drop in creamery butter had been from 2,952,572 pounds to 2,479,325, and in cheese from 2,993,652 pounds to 2,853,465 pounds.

17 4-H CLUBS

There had been 17 4-H clubs active in the county with a membership of 252 and 202 members completing the year's projects. 4-H homemaking clubs for girls numbered 12, with 272 members and 248 completions.

Nine teams of two club members each had entered provincial inter-club competitions at Guelph with the South Hastings Club team of Grant, Ketcheson and Doughis finishing placing second in the swine judging.

Thirty-two county 4-H club members were presented by 4-H activities at the Ottawa Winter Fair with first and second place in the potato section being taken by Aloysius and Jack Hickey of Bird's Creek.

There were seven Junior Farmer activities in the county, with boys' and girls' clubs in Sidney, Thurlow and Madoc townships and a boys' club in Hungerford.

Traffic Slowed By Freezing Rain and Fog

A freezing rain which turned streets and highways into a slippery mess made driving conditions in the Bay of Quinte district treacherous last night, but neither provincial nor city police reported any serious motor mishaps.

Provincial police said that No. 14 highway south of Belleville was particularly slippery with several cars sliding off the road and into the ditch.

In the city driving conditions were also bad but here again there were no serious mishaps. One accident at the corner of Victoria Ave. and Ann St. saw damage of $200 to one vehicle. Police said that cars driven by Lorena Ashley, 24 Greenlawn Ave., and Reina Tieckleis collided at the intersection.

Later in the night heavier rain cut ice conditions but brought fog and this morning visibility both in the city and on the highway was cut to a 100 feet or so and traffic was slowed accordingly.

Lloyd Jackson Elected Mayor Of Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton's Mayor Lloyd Jackson Wednesday night was re-elected for his eighth term by a wide margin over his only opponent, Senior Constable Jack MacDonald.

The mayor took a lead with the first returns and was never headed. By 10:30 p.m. EST, 2½ hours after the polls closed, his 29-year-old opponent conceded his defeat.

Mayor Jackson's re - election makes it possible for him to get a Hamilton memorial erected. He has served seven years and his new two-year term would put him past the eight-year record hung up by the late William Morrison.

Controller Ada Pritchard, the only woman controller, headed the polls as she was re-elected for a second term. Close behind her was Controller Leslie Parker, a veteran of 14 years on city council, eight of them on the board of control.

Former Controller Sam Boggs, who lost the last election by only 200 votes, returned to office in third place and Aldgrman Archie McCoy, making his first bid for a controller's seat, was elected in fourth spot.

Returns were tabulated by a new punch card system which rapidly counted official returns as they were received at city hall.

Trio Facing 137 Charges in Police Court

TRENTON, (Special.) — The climax to the series of the worst break-ins in the history of the summer resort district in the vicinity of Trenton and Brighton, was the appearance of Ralph Cooney, 21, his brother, Colin Cooney, 18, and a Brighton juvenile, before Magistrate R. B. Boxter in Brighton police court today. The older Cooney faced 67 charges of breaking entering and theft. His brother, 57 charges and the juvenile 10 similar charges.

The charges were laid by provincial police at Brighton following investigation and arrest of the trio.

The final outcome of the court will not be known until later today, because of the number of charges laid against them.

This brings to the end a recent crime wave that has kept provincial police in the Brighton district working overtime for the last two weeks.

FLYING WASHED OUT

A dense fog which settled over Trenton last night still cloaked the town today although police reported no accidents, car drivers are taking precautionary measures to make sure they are not the first to be in an accident.

Flying has been washed out at RCAF Station, Trenton, for the day. Elsewhere in the town pedestrians are having both ways twice before attempting to cross the street.

Newfoundland Eighth Province To Sign Pact

OSHAWA (CP) — Works Minister Winters said Wednesday night Newfoundland has become the eighth province to sign new agreements with the federal government for the construction of the trans-Canada highway.

He said Newfoundland signed the agreement Monday, leaving only British Columbia among the nine participating provinces still outside the fold. Quebec did not join the present agreement which expires Dec. 9.

Expect Same Cheese Production As Last Year Says C. N. Heath

C. N. Heath, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board, Belleville, yesterday told the annual convention of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association that he is expecting cheese production in Ontario to be about the same next year as it was this year.

"My reasoning for not expecting the production to increase in Ontario under conditions similar to this year are: the increased use of bulk cooling tanks and tank trucks; the increased demand for fluid milk; industry's demand for labor — farmers resorting to profiting part of their livelihood from reducing their interest in dairying to taking a job with industry; and the reduction of cheese factories in Ontario.

"Our last survey of 189 factories we les we find that 24 of them have not more than 20 patrons. As for Central Ontario 18 factories out of 56 had 30 or less patrons. It is also noteworthy that 30 factories in Ontario last year produced less than 1,000 boxes," said Mr. Heath.

Quebec, with a butter floor price of 58 cents and cheese factories paying about 80 cents for fat, is producing more and increased production of cheese in 1957 providing the differential between prices paid for butter fat at creameries and cheese factories remain the same as this year.

Mr. Heath urged cheese producers to promote quality and improvement in co-ordinate the efforts of all concerned in the cheese industry; strive to improve public relations, not only among the dairy groups but within the cheese industry itself; and exercise to the limit sales promotion, research and advertising.

"Ontario cheddar cheese is a good product, deserving of all the support we can give it. Let us make it good; let us keep it good; let the consumers know about it," said the speaker.

He explained the minimum negotiated price for cheese offered for sale in used boxes, especially cheese made in the set-up at the Kingston cheese exchange. Mr. Heath said the minimum price for first grade offered for sale in used boxes was one-half cent per pound below that established for boxes might select a factory's cheese for interprovincial export, thinking it to be in new boxes and finding the cheese was which definitely looked the worse for wear. Another reason is that many warehousemen have been very careful about the kind of storage against infestation of mites, and there was a fear that cheese arriving in' used boxes might prove a source of contamination to their places of business.

Dealing on the subject of boxes, it has recently been brought to our attention that some buyers are complaining of the problem of cheese arriving at their storages in damaged boxes, some of them badly damaged, and they have asked the question of who it is that should bear the expense of repairing or replacing such boxes. This has caused the Marketing Board to write the grading station operators and the cheese factories, pointing out to them that the buyers expect the cheese which they purchased to arrive at their storages in sound boxes, and the Board cannot be expected to tolerate the expense in coopering or replacing boxes," said Mr. Heath.

Last year the Marketing Board spent over $1,000 experimenting with boxes constructed of plywood or hard board and found, although more expensive, that plywood proved the best material for cheese boxes. Plywood cheese boxes are used in Montreal for about 88 cents, and if cheese is exported in these boxes it will result in a draw-back of two cents per box.

"To me, packaging is a very important feature of selling, and if for an additional few cents we could move a much stronger and more attractive package to put a high quality product in, it would be money well spent," he concluded.

Chemical Firm Blast and Fire Kill One Man

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)— A 26-year-old workman was killed and two others injured when a blast hurt Wednesday night when an explosion and fire wrecked a small building at the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. plant.

Firemen quickly extinguished the flames following the blast which shook an area in the heavily industrialized section of the city.

Thad Thrasher of Niagara Falls, a pilot plant operator, died about 20 minutes after the explosion. He was the father of two children. The other men were treated for minor injuries.

Company officials said Thrasher was alone in the small steel-metal building when the blast occurred. The injured men, also pilot plant operators, were in the immediate vicinity of the building.

PROSPECTS REASONABLY GOOD, INDEED!

John Foster Dulles, returning to his duties as U. S. Secretary of State after a month's absence following an operation, told a press conference that he believed prospects for peace in the Middle East are "reasonably good."

That statement is in such sharp contrast to much that we have heard in Dulles' absence that it must have sounded strange to many who heard it—and to many more who read the reports that these men and women wrote.

Yet, when one considers the matter, it was not a surprising statement to come from Dulles, but was characteristic of his outlook on world affairs.

For the past four years Dulles has been clinging to the ledge of hope over the abyss of war. The world has clung with him.

Yet, surely, this precarious clutch on non-belligerency cannot really be termed peace.

Dulles was absolutely right when he said that only a pessimist would think that the danger of war is as great today in the Middle East as it was a month ago.

But can we expect Dulles to be optimist under present-day conditions? For the best that we can hope in the Middle East, for years to come, is that all the area's powder-kegs can be juggled interminably without one of them being dropped.

There will be no real peace in the Middle East in Dulles' time, and perhaps not in the time of many a man much younger than he.

Where is the salve that will miraculously heal the festering sore that is the frontier of the state of Israel? What magic ointment will cure the bleeding wounds of mutual hatred which the Israelis and the Arabs hold for each other? Even if some miracle should bar the reach of the salt-rubbing hand of international commerce, does anybody believe that the British and the French will be forgiven in a day by the Arab nationalists? And even if all these wounds were healed, where in the Middle East are the leaders who are willing to seek remedies for the crushing poverty which is the real foe to the future well-being of peasant and beggar throughout the Arab world? Is this a situation which provides "reasonably good" prospects for a real peace?

What true peace exists in Eastern Europe, in the satellite lands where the Communists have earned a hate so deep and unconquerable that there is no quick death to a long life, where the Communists have made their own slogan ring true and workers have nothing to lose but their chains?

Nor should we conclude that it is only in the Middle East and amongst the satellite countries of Europe that the prospects for a real peace are not "reasonable" enough to please a pessimist.

What reason is there for hope for real peace in North Africa, where the French are again demonstrating the white man's inability to learn the lesson of the twentieth century? What reason for peace in South Africa, where a white man's government swims against the tide of the times? What hope for peace in Asia, where nobody has suggested any solution to the Communist regime but the return of Chiang Kai-Shek's Kuomintang, with its record of corruption? What hope of peace in India, when citizens riot over the question of what official language shall be official, where Kashmir still lies as a prize sought by two republics which are members of the same Commonwealth?

Prospects for peace "reasonably good," indeed! Would that there were men who would be unreasonable, then, in their demands for peace, and who could show us the way to enforce these unreasonable demands.

A HUNGARIAN'S MESSAGE

On more than one occasion since the outbreak of the rebellion in Hungary, Lester B. Pearson has warned, in carefully chosen words, of the danger of permitting our deep sympathy with the Hungarians to express itself in weapons which would add to their tribulations rather than alleviate their sufferings.

To judge from a wide variety of reports, this warning, while well meant, would appear to have come much too late.

There have been many indications that the Hungarians expected active intervention by the Western powers on their behalf, once they had risen against their Russian oppressors.

Part of the blame for this misconception of the West's position has been placed by people who have studied some of the items of which was poured over the Iron Curtain in the Cold War struggle.

The official radio broadcasts by the United States, at least in the past, have tended to deceive the peoples of the satellite countries about the nature of the help they could expect from the western nations. The same, however, cannot be said of all the broadcasts by private groups and organizations.

How the Hungarians feel today is revealed in four heart-rending sentences from a letter printed in the Toronto Telegram. John Pelle of Hamilton received a letter from a Hungarian friend who had escaped to Austria. This letter, translated from the Hungarian, he sent to the Telegram. Here are the concluding four sentences:

"If it's possible send this letter to be delivered to President Eisenhower with this message from Hungarians: The Hungarians are begging the President of the USA for the balloons and leaflets which he sent us through the years and the nice speeches by radio which we were listening to with heartache. But now finally we want to ask him of something. Send 10,000 coffins so that we can bury our dead. This is our message to him."

THE OLD QUESTION

It has to come; as children grow
There will be much they want to know,
And any father has to pause
To say: "Is a Santa Claus?"

My father was a truthful man.
Deceit was never in his plan.
And when I asked him, with a cough,
I now recall, he put me off.

"Is there a Santa Claus who comes
At Christmas Eve with horns and drums
And does he on that happy trip
Down chimneys to good children slip?"

I could not take the charm away
From youngsters small on Christmas Day.
I said: "I've always understood
He knows when children have been good."

Russia Moves Hard in East

New York Times

Russia is still moving fast and hard in and toward the Middle East. From the beginning of the latest crisis it has been obvious that this was the greatest threat to the area and the most important thing that was happening. This was at first denied, or at least discounted in Washington. Now one begins to sense a realization that this is one of the great movements of history and a highly dangerous one for our country.

Our government has gone a long way since it concentrated exclusively on rounding up and punishing the British and French for their ill-advised attack on the Suez Canal. The American emergency plan to move Western Hemisphere oil to Europe is now being put into effect.

The announcement on Thursday that Secretary Dulles and Secretary of States would view "with the utmost gravity" any threat to the territory or independence of the Baghdad Pact nations (Iraq, Iran, Turkey and Pakistan) was the right thing to say—and to mean. The State Department's expansion of concern to Syria the day before ever "substantial shipments" of Soviet arms was also well advised.

Only the Russians and some misguided nationalists in Syria have had the effrontery to charge that with "imperialism" and "colonialism." If there was any valid charge against the Americans in these days it has been of weakness, of taking the easy line that the United Nations would do it all. Russia was not concentrating her activities on the United Nations; in fact she has been much more out of that in the United Nations. It has also been clear that such great and complicated forces have been set in motion in the last few months that no president, no country, no areas could be insulated and treated by itself. Cleared up, tied into a neat package, after which we could go on to other problems. Washington thought that it would first clear up the Suez Canal and settle the issues and then calmly move on to such long-range problems as the Arab-Israeli agreement, the internationalization of the Suez Canal and the healing of the rift between the United States and Britain and France.

That could not be. Everything that is happening today in the Middle East and in Western Europe is inextricably linked to all the contending forces of our times. Above all it is linked to the decision between the West and the Soviet bloc that does not leave one or the other dominant in the world. We must never forget that if the Soviet Union achieves dominance in the Middle East it will be the dominant power in the world.

And other explanation is there for the Russian threats against "the very existence of Israel as a state," which Investia was the latest to utter two days ago (Nov 29)? Obviously the Russians would like nothing better than to eliminate Israel, which is the one sure and permanent pro-Western nation in the Middle East. While Washington is at it, it should be made quite clear to the Russians that the United States believes in the continued existence of Israel as a necessary, just as she does in the existence of Egypt.

The use of the phrase "to view with the utmost gravity" in the American statement about the Baghdad Pact nations is ominous. One must presume that it was employed with due thought. It is not a threat; it is a warning. There are certain developments in the Middle East that the United States cannot accept.

This is a time when everything is to be gained and nothing lost by plain speaking.

Need Courage To Be First

London Free Press

According to Jonathan Swift, "He was a bold man that first eat an oyster," and Swift's aphorism just about sums up the history of all courageous pioneers, whether in the field of gastronomy or any other. For instance, he trod the detail of Wing Commander Albert Carter, former chief guardian-inventor for the RCAF, who was the first man to jump without oxygen from 29,000 feet. Wing Commander Carter died in bed.

Those of us who occupy earth-bound and relatively safe positions realize, if we think about it at all, that we inhabit a world different from that of the parachutist as even Swift's first oyster-eater. Most of us are pale carbon copies of H. T. Webster's Timid Soul, and we admire the pioneering to others.

Where would we be now but for fearless fellows like the Vikings, who navigated their cockleshell craft across the unknown Atlantic to find a whole new world? Adventurers like Cabot and Magellan and Columbus, or the forgotten James Phipps who allowed Edward Jenner to vaccinate him with cowpox? How many of us would have volunteered for these?

The list, of course, is almost endless. Nature in her infinite wisdom had produced all varieties of men and women, a small fraction of whom are always ready to disregard for disease, danger and death. We do not for those we would still be living in mud huts, wondering but afraid to find out what lay beyond the next range of hills.

THE DIVINE WORD

What is the Bible?

We might define it as 66 books dealing with religious matters. But this would be a most inadequate definition. The term has held from the beginning that the Bible is the word of God. It is a great collection of fine literature, but it is vastly more than this. Most people do not realize the significance of "word" as used in the Bible. It was by His word that God created the world. The word that came to the prophets and made them the moral leaders of all ages. According to the Bible, God's word is something more than an uttered sound or a few letters put together. It is a force by such that God created that world& come into being at its utterance.

This word of God with its power comes to us in two forms. First, it comes as a book in which are revealed God's nature, His attitude toward us, and His will regarding our lives. But even more important is that in the fullness of time, God caused His powerful Word to become flesh in the person of Jesus and to live, teach, dwell, die, and be raised from the dead, that our eternal salvation might be achieved.

As we read the Bible, let us always be conscious of the unnecessarable patience of the divine word. This word is the divine energy of creation. This word is God's salvation come to the restoration of our souls.

Where are the aldermanic candidates? It is about time they were coming out and be ready for inspection.

During the formation of considerable anchor ice and a rather heavy downfall of snow the mouth of the river became blocked last night and in consequence the water in the river rose to an unusual height. While no particular damage was done to cellars in dwellings near the lower bridge were flooded and some cellars on the west side of Front Street also contained considerable water today. This condition is unusual for this time of year.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OLD FRIEND, NEW FRIEND

In Boston, recently, I called upon an old friend with whom I had done business for many years. I had not seen him for a long time, but never did well acquainted with him. But this event was to lead for two hours—about everything under the sun in the newspaper world. I was perhaps the pleased to think that I could call this old friend by his first name, for I never did I have so revealing and pleasant a talk.

I found there are when we have catalogued as old friends those whom we have named our new friends, for a friend is new, or old, according to spiritual development. Friendship is a state of realization. At any rate we are lucky to have a new friend, and lucky are those who can well classify as new friends.

The older we get the more we prize our friends. We, ourselves, are a little when a beloved friend writes "thirty" at the close of his last piece of writing. It is always sad to tear to our old and new friends to appraise our worth to the world. For the last few years of the world, America says: "We are your friends." Old ones and new ones is the story.

There are those whom I have known for a good part of my life, but whom I have really never met. They resume there as we pick up such. On the other hand we have met a new friend in the world of letters an honor place in our heart after but a very brief acquaintance. Such friendships, however, I frequented at birth, I guess.

I am glad to say every feoud when he stands before a great audience and can look at that spread of human faces and can say: "Friends". Did you ever read Robert Barrlow's letter to the Turkish island of St. Helena had but one about him whom he could call his friend, and that was his faithful yak!"

Late Ladies

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The sight of a glorious mink coat on a beautiful lady—or on a hard-bitten old battle axe for that matter, is a pleasant one. Furs and looks even more beautiful, by contrast—would never lead us to suppose that the fur trade and garment is linked up with wild horses and whales. The chances are it might be. For the bands of wild horses that used to roam the Canadian west were one of the principal sources of feed for mink ranches. But the wild horses have vanished, or are corralled and slaughtered, to be taken to parking houses for conversion into dog food, and the whales are being killed in the number of tons to domestic horses that came to their end in dog food, due to mechanization of transport all over the land. Newfoundland inuit will make trouble to come and set up shop in immediate proximity of the whale fisheries of Newfoundland, and the west coast supplies of fish scrap from the cod fisheries of the Atlantic provinces. So successful has been the development in that direction that today, the Trinity Bay, which is the second big inlet on the Atlantic side north of St. John's, there are actually corrals full of whales. Not unlike the cattle or wild horse roundups, the Newfoundland fishermen, when the great herds of "porkeads" or blackfish appear off shore, set out to sea in their small craft, marine row punchers, and drive the whales towards shore where they will ground. In former days, it was common practice to herd the whales ashore and cut up the fat, and then slaughter and butcher them as best they could on whatever land was available ashore. Now the drive ends in a corral, where the whales are killed when the comes to be speared and hauled to the ramp that leads up to the processing plant which is the permanent feature of the setup.

But the mink ranches and the much larger pet food industry has been very concerned in recent years with the supply of fish for bone meat supply. So far, it is already demonstrated that the whales of Newfoundland have satisfactorily met the needs of the mink industry. Whether this will prove adequate in the dog food industry is not yet known positively.

Little did we realize that our luscious mink coats and our darling little poodles were connected so intimately with corrals, wild herds, carnages and whales.

Mau Mau Terror Beaten

Written by Ormeade Godfrey for the United Kingdom Information Office

Fear has passed from the lives of the multi-racial community that is the population of Kenya. The four years battle against the terror of Mau Mau has virtually ended and the army has handed responsibility for public order back to the civil administration.

In announcing the end of first session of the newly-elected legislature the governor, Sir Evelyn Baring, said that only a few hundred terrorists and but two of the Mau Mau leaders, Gikuyu, still, at large in the forests.

The remaining terrorists are to be run to earth by police action. Military operations are no longer necessary and the army will be held in reserve to come to the help of the police if required. Food supplies will be denied to those remaining in the forests and harrassing of lower members to the gangs prevented.

• • •

The rehabilitation of Mau Mau detainees has yet to be completed, however. Their number has dropped from about 83,000 in the camps 18 months ago to 34,000 still under detention together with 8,000 convicted prisoners. The problem was stated by Sir Evelyn: "Our troubles with the active Mau Mau will be at an end only when we have shown we can keep the peace, not only in the cities as they now are, but in the future when all the worst of the detainees and Mau Mau convicts now in custody have been relieved."

The turning of detainees into useful citizens is no easy matter. They are now being released at the rate of 1,500 every month but remain under some restrictions to ensure against backsliding. A very considerable part of the finance and maintenance of order has taken place during the past year but the end of emergency has not been completely ended.

• • •

Sir Evelyn spoke of the plans for an agricultural settlement on the Tana river, that great stream which rises in the Mount Kenya and Aberdare Mountains, as it rains northwards to join the Indian Ocean. Northern Province is the emerging in the Indian Ocean at Kipini. Under the plan of settlement, taking in between 20 and 30 square miles, each family is established that those settled there, living a family life, could be turned out of the scheme.

They would not be behind barbed wire, although the movement would be restricted to the settlement area for the time being.

It was believed that thousands now in the reserves could be rehabilitated. Technical and cultural difficulties exist. Sir Evelyn said, and it would be some time before the pilot scheme, on which the whole project is based could be completed.

• • •

Immense changes have taken place in Kenya towards the normal turn to the normal way of life. The police force has undergone a drastic expansion and the Kikuyu, Embu and Meruu guards now organized in the Kikuyu reserves have proved to be the greatest value in denying supplies to the terrorists.

It has been possible for thousands of tribesmen and their families to return to their former districts and to the farms whilst an increasing number of Kikuyu have been accepted into forest villages. The policy of consolidation is manifested in the Kikuyu lands, with the consent of all those interested, has also proved successful.

Economic development has proceeded apace. During the period of the emergency situation has permitted the resumption of forestry work and local industries, and factories producing commodities not previously manufactured in the territory, have been opened up.

• • •

Agricultural development is going ahead. Before the outbreak of the emergency situation has permitted the resumption of forestry work and local industries, and factories producing commodities not previously manufactured in the territory, have been opened up.

Large sums have been spent on the improvement of public utilities in the capital, Nairobi, and plans for the improvement of African housing are being pushed forward. Nairobi is affected by the financial troubles of the United Kingdom and world events".

• • •

Sir Evelyn spoke against a background of increasing and buoyant revenue, and increasing official expenditure. Expenditure has increased in the past year accounted for by the Mau Mau war, but there still had been an increase in normal social services and services which have been provided for the emergency. Education and development have been speeded up and the Kenya government is playing a part in the rehabilitation of Mau Mau detainees under education, and provides the means for the provision of medical services for the Kikuyu reserves. In the long run the sale, for diversifying traditional crops production of timber stands and of cattle products and hides. These are the main exports of Kenya, which is now self-supporting in normal budgetary difficulties exist. Sir Evelyn said, and it would be some time before the pilot scheme, on which the whole project is based could be completed.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Human Factor Key to Reducing Accident Toll

Note: Traffic accidents caused 3,000 deaths, 75,000 injuries and $75,000,000 property damage in Canada last year. If the toll continues to follow the rising trend of the past, the carnage in 1957 will be even higher. What are we doing and what more can be done to meet the challenge of the nation's number one man-made killer? This question is being directed to some citizens of Belleville best qualified by experience and training to comment on a subject which affects more and more people every year. A series of interviews with these experts will appear in this paper.

Assistant Crown Attorney Gordon S. Robertson is the second Belleville barrister to express an opinion on this problem. In a previous article, Ronald W. Cass commented on, this subject.

Like his confrere, Mr. Robertson believes the human factor is the decisive one in reducing the number of traffic accidents.

"A little bit of courtesy and consideration would go a long way" he said. While a certain number of accidents are inevitable and the majority of drivers are conscientious, a few motor car operators through their callous attitude are apt to be the cause of altogether too many preventable and unnecessary traffic mishaps.

Mr. Robertson noted that some people drive in a manner which would indicate that they are either unaware that careless driving can be dangerous or are indifferent to their responsibilities.

The educational value of safe driving campaigns was praised by the assistant crown attorney but he expressed doubt that people who consistently flout the law are likely to be affected by appeals to reason and common sense.

DIFFICULT PROBLEM

"Some drivers, either because of physical or psychological shortcomings really should not be allowed to operate a vehicle but unfortunately there does not seem to be any way of eliminating this dangerous element from the highways other than by cancellation of licence following a conviction.

"I believe," Mr. Robertson continued, "that more stringent and more thorough licence examination might help to weed out many of the more incompetent and physically unfit applicants. In that the licence bureau is flooded with a rapidly growing number of drivers seeking permits, more detailed examination would call for a larger increase of personnel and facilities for this purpose."

As an example of the extra time and expense involved in more detailed examination, Mr. Robertson mentioned the application form which requires the applicant to state if he is subject to disabilities which might cause dangerous blackouts or unconscious spells but demands no proof other than the applicant's word. Such proof, of course, would involve thorough medical examinations.

Even if the driving tests were so stringent as to assure physical driving ability, Mr. Robertson agrees with the widely advanced contention that until there is some means of determining and legislating on the mental, moral and emotional responsibility of the applicant, a major cause of preventable accidents will continue to exist.

A ruling on these character traits involves such delicate and personal considerations that legislation is beyond the competence of the examining department.

This inability to adjudicate character defects except when they express themselves in traffic infractions is, of course, a major obstacle in preventive accident programs.

WILL REDUCE HAZARD

The Assistant Crown Attorney believes that by eliminating the possibility of opposite-bound cars contesting the same laneway, new four-lane highways will help greatly to reduce passing collisions which are the most frequent and serious of highway accidents.

Mr. Robertson recognizes that even with the advent of more four-lane arteries, a predominant number of two-lane highways will continue to bear considerable traffic for a long time.

His first suggestion for reducing the passing hazard is to minimize as much as possible the necessity for this manoeuvre through enforcement of a more uniform rate of speed for all traffic.

Mr. Robertson regards the slow driver who lolls along the highway, forcing all traffic travelling at a normal speed to pass him, as one of the foremost hazards of the road. If the slow driver were to make more effort to match the speed of the main body of traffic and if the speeder would do the same, the frequency of passing and the accompanying dangers would be greatly reduced.

When it is necessary to overtake the car ahead the first consideration is to pass and regain the right lane as quickly as possible. The car being passed should cooperate by not increasing its speed and by remaining well in its own lane.

Foremost among the dangers which prolongs the stay of the passing car in the wrong lane, Mr. Robertson noted, are transports and trailers which, because of their great length, delay return of a passing car to its right lane thereby multiplying the chance of a head-on collision with a car approaching from the opposite direction.

Another element which adds to the danger of passing transports and trailers is the unfortunate habit of some drivers of these vehicles in "hightailing" or riding close together, requiring the overtaking car driver to pass both vehicles in a single movement which prolongs the stay in the wrong lane, Mr. Robertson observed.

Value of Co-operatives Stressed by Banquet Speaker

MADOC (Special) — The value of co-operatives in keeping big private business in line and in preventing monopolies, was stressed to members of the Madoc District Farmers' Co-Operative at their annual meeting and banquet Tuesday night. About 200 attended.

Speaking to the banquet meeting at the Madoc armouries, Dan Stauffer, past president of the United Co-Operatives of Ontario, stated that co-operatives were better able to contend with large business than were small privately-owned businesses which were in danger of being forced out.

He pointed out, however, that while co-operatives in Ontario had been successful, they could not afford to stand still and they must expand.

He referred to the strength and purpose of labor unions and pointed out that farmers had a much stronger power in food. He said the proper spirit of brotherhood could never be reached through a policy of dog cat dog competition but could be achieved through co-operatives.

Co-operative president Don McKinnon expressed the appreciation of directors to the manager, R. A. Woods, to the mill employees and to all members for their patronage through the year. The year's financial statement showed a business turn-over of $190,237 with net savings of $12,685.

DIRECTORS NAME PRESIDENT

A patronage loan of 6 per cent on the volume of business was declared payable to 29 years without interest.

Mr. Edward Robinson introduced the guest speaker with appreciation being expressed by Cecil Woods.

Wilfred Forestell, Kenneth Bateman and O. Deville were named directors for the next three years. Policy is for three directors to be named each year for a three year term with no director to hold office longer than six years. Directors will meet to elect a president.

Members of the Catholic Women's League at Madoc catered to the banquet with appreciation of the co-operative being expressed by Ken Holland. Entertainment was by the McAvoy Orchestra.

Guests attending the banquet included George White, M.P. for Hastings - Frontenac; G. Murray, manager of the Madoc branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank; R. A. Woods, manager of the co-op, and Thomas Kenny, feed specialist from the Peterborough Co-Operative.

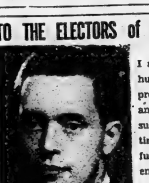
CAS Costs Will Be up in '57 Report Shows

Children's Aid Society costs in Hastings county will be increased in 1957, members of Hastings county council were told Wednesday afternoon as they heard a report of the first three quarters of the current year.

Presenting the report to council, Reeve James Spracklett, chairman of the Juvenile and Family court committee and Children's Aid Society representatives, said the per diem rate of the Society would go up next year as this department had operated in the red this year.

Children's Aid Societies' costs for the first nine months of the year had amounted to $44,101.05, including $3,700 for salary and expenses of the preventive worker.

He noted that if the cost continues on the same basis for the balance of the year, the county would over-run its estimate of $55,000 by up to $5,000.



At September 30th, the county was paying for the maintenance of 123 children in various societies; 68 in Belleville and 23 in other societies throughout the province.

Juvenile and family courts costs for the first nine months of the year totalled $3,701.75 with a total of 81 cases. Cases and costs had been divided as follows: County 52 cases, and $2,296.38; city, 29 cases and $1,405.37.

Administration of justice costs for the first two quarters of the year were a net of $36,236.68, Reeve Charles Buskard, Deloro, told councillors. Of this amount $10,534.52 was the city of Belleville share, while Trenton's share was $5,163.74.

It was noted in the report that the $150 increase per year to all male jail employees recommended by council had been approved by the department with salaries being paid at the increased rate commencing September 1st.

TO THE ELECTORS of Belleville . . .

I am grateful for, and humbled by, your expression of confidence and you may rest assured that I will continue to endeavor to fully merit that confidence.

POT-LUCK LUNCHEON

The Afternoon Branch of St. Thomas' W.A., met on Tuesday in the parish house, and enjoyed a pot-luck luncheon.

The afternoon was spent packing a large Christmas box to be sent to a missionary clergyman and his family at Terrace, B.C. This is an annual event, and the ladies' members enjoy doing.

A committee was formed to take charge of the Lay Helpers of the parish under the leadership of Mrs. John Wheeler. The following volunteered to act: Mesdames Art Smith, R. Boyle, B. Feather, Ted Goddard, S. E. Morton, H. Welter, D. Brunton, - H. Smith and Mrs. Coleman.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Will Donald of Bloomfield, Ontario, spent Sunday with the latter's brother, Mr. Albert Wright, 38 Strachan St.

* * *

Mr. John Hogg, who has been at Bayside Nursing Home for four years, was moved to the home of his daughter, Mrs. L. M. Hendrix, Dunbar Street. Mr. Hogg is in his 97th year and an invalid. He would enjoy visits from his old friends.

Pr. Wales H-S Assoc. Enjoys 'Open House'

The regular monthly meeting of Prince of Wales Home and School Association was held on Tuesday evening, with Mrs. Burtt at the piano and Mrs. May presiding.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. McKim and Mrs. McKim the minutes of the previous meeting.

The financial results of the children's fair were written in full on the blackboard for all to see. Mrs. May thanked all those who helped by sending donations and also all of those who attended.

The president announced that the first polio shots for beginners and all pre-school children would be available at the school on Monday, December 10th at 10 a.m.

Parents were asked to send articles of groceries, suitable for packing Christmas boxes for less fortunate families in the immediate district. Mrs. J. Sproule and Mrs. P. Murray may be contacted regarding this project.

Following the business, the meeting was adjourned and as this was the annual "open house", parents were invited to visit their children's class rooms where the teachers would receive them.

The class rooms displayed a fine array of arts and crafts. There were angels, snowmen, pumpkin head, Santas, candles, and all sorts of winter scenes. Below, true spirit of the Christmas season.

The teachers and pupils are to be commended for the great effort and amazing imagination used in the decorations.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Bridge Street Jubilee Aux. Holds Meeting

The December meeting of the Jubilee Evening Auxiliary of Bridge St. United Church was held on Tuesday evening.

Following a delicious supper served by Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Knowlton and their group, the meeting opened with the singing of "As With Gladness Men of Old." Miss Violet Saunders, missionary, was remembered in silent prayer by the group, after which Miss Gertrude Lazier, president, offered prayer.

Minutes of the November meeting were read by Miss Faye Young; Miss Helen Cook gave the devotion in the west; clothing in large sizes suitable for lumbering and fishermen will be welcomed.

A large number of CGIT girls joined the Auxiliary as guests for the evening and were welcomed by Miss Lazier, who thanked the ladies for their assistance with the Baby Band party and announced that the CGIT and Explorer Candlelighting Service will be held in St. Andrew's Church at 7 p.m. on Sunday, December 9. Eleven calls were reported for Community Friendship.

Miss Grace Houston contributed a reading and led in prayer.

Mrs. Lyle Jones presented the slate of officers for 1957, and Miss Lazier requested group leaders to meet on December 19 to fill out end-of-year reports and thanked all groups for their fine co-operation throughout the preceding year.

Mrs. Arthur Clare spoke regarding subscriptions to the "Missionary Monthly."

Miss Helen Sullivan was in charge of the delightful Christmas program which she opened with the reading of A Christmas Wish." Mrs. Ralph Morden read from the second chapter of Luke, as translated by Dr. James Moffatt; Mrs. William Burgoyne, accompanied by Mrs. J. G. Denure, sang "The Magnificat."

Miss Sullivan read "Let Us Be Silent," after which she introduced the guest speaker, Miss Madeline Young, who told the heart-warming story of "The Shepherd Who Watched Over His Flock By Night."

Mrs. Denure graciously thanked Miss Young, Mrs. Burgoyne and Mrs. Morden on behalf of the Auxiliary and Miss Joan Lewis expressed the appreciation of the CGIT group.

Tabernacle United Church Yuletide Bazaar, Tea Pleasingly Successful

Nestling in a grove of snow-sprinkled red cedars stood the little white church in the "wild wood" with glowing windows, from whose nave came the heart-warming strains of the Christmas carol "Noel, Noel", thus, the introduction to the magnificent bazaar and tea held yesterday afternoon by Tabernacle United church. Many who came to purchase were seen to pause and look and listen to this well loved carol and its joyous message as they passed down the steps into the emporium of attractive merchandise, high-lighted by garlands of red and green, fragrant spruce and balsam, and twinkling lights of many hues.

Into this scene activity with its street signs of "Candy Lane", and "Bake Shop," lighted by the olde English street lamps in black and yellow, its tall pillars entwined with red and white, flopped by smiling Santa Clauses and bowls of Scotch pines, Mrs. R. A. Bowley, wife of the pastor, Mrs. R. Brickman, Mrs. R. Johnston, of the L.I.M.S. Sheppard, W. Boulton and Mrs. R. Manley invited the never ceasing stream of guests.

BUSY QUADRANGLE

As in previous years, the quadrangle formed by the tall pillars contained the apron booth, the fancy work; the children's wear; and the novelties, which overflowed into nearby tables as well. All bespoke the Christmas theme with their gay decorations, while in the centre under were the parcel post, the home-cooking; the men's woodworking; the candy booth with its two pretty Christmas trees, and the much appreciated check room where purchases might be kept, for a minimum fee, until the owners had enjoyed the proverbial cup of tea, and friendly chats with neighbors.

Convening at the apron booth were Mrs. W. May and Mrs. C. Hogle, assisted by Mrs. L. E. Gray, Mrs. G. Russel, Mrs. P. Osland and Mrs. A. Woods. There were aprons of every colour and shade, most in the half styles, made from red and white checks, red ginghams; colorful prints; white organdy; aprons with fancy borders and pleated ruffles guaranteed to remain pleated; pink chambray aprons with apron and a few of the all-over type.

LOVELY FANCY WORK

On the fancy work booth, convened by Mrs. G. Winters, and Mrs. G. Gorsline, assisted by Mrs. R. Ackerman, Mrs. F. Shane, Mrs. W. Dougherty, Mrs. F. Farnell, Mrs. E. Schlievert, and Mrs. M. Buck were some fine pillow slips, beautifully embroidered; towels in pastel shades sporting gay lacey edges in crochet; place mats in yellow crochet; tea towels with pretty borders, one of which depicted a cock heralding the early morn with its lusty crow. This was marked "Morning Coffee."

MANY NOVELTIES

The novelties displayed almost everything one could think of; plants, ivy, African violets, wandering Jew, little cacti, and belonias; dolls' clothes, cretonne shopping bags; needlepoint picture, Christmas centrepieces, crochet doilies, fancy edged handkerchiefs, needlecase, oven mitts, bath mats, cushions, bathroom slippers, card table covers and many other articles. Mrs. G. Brickman and Mrs. F. Davidson were the conveners, assisted by Mrs. G. Woods, Mrs. D. Simpson, Mrs. W. Judge, Mrs. Carruthers, Mrs. W. Way and Mrs. M. Smith.

The children's wear booth was presented for its dainty baby sets in pink, blue and white; cosy pyjamas, bootees, plaid slacks in red, tiny aprons and mitts. Mrs. T. Orr assisted by Mrs. W. Olds, Mrs. R. Clarke, Mrs. R. Taylor and Mrs. G. Oliver were in charge of this.

DELIGHTFUL CANDIES

The candy booth was a delight to the eyes with its multitude of boxed candies of many kinds in pinks, whites, cream color and dark browns. To add to this attraction two Christmas trees stood as sentinels, each decked with little bags of pink hanging from their branches. There were also popcorn balls in pastel tints. A most tempting display.

R. McCulloch and Mrs. G. Stanton were the conveners, and those assisting included, Mrs. N. Hallam, Mrs. H. B. Weese, Miss Jean Pettit, Mrs. M. LaRue, Mrs. A. Touchie, Mrs. H. Bovay, Mrs. M. Hackett and Mrs. J. Kingston.

The parcel post with its silver-mesh wicket and red and green trim, was also a point of continued interest as those who favored "chance" called for their parcels. The courteous postmistresses were Mrs. O. Robb and Mrs. G. Charlton, with helpers, Mrs. N. Robb and Mrs. McKinnon.

MEN'S BOOTH

One of the outstanding booths was that convened by Mr. A. Nayler, Mr. A. Touchie, Mr. A. Greenleaf, assisted by Mr. E. Taylor, Mr. R. Robinson, Mr. D. Robb and Mr. L. Field. On display here were garden trellises, wall brackets, fancy flower baskets, sleeve boards, child's folding chair, no sliver in any of the trips, for that much needed 'extra'; a tiny wheelbarrow, a big white Donald Duck stool, with boxes with compartments and handle, knife holders, trays with fringed edges; and a cat whose tail was to be used as a tie hanger for those ever-present Christmas ties.

In this booth of the Explorers' Group was a pretty Christmas tree, beneath which were eleven parcels, suitable for the young fry. This was well patronized. This was convened by Mrs. D. Jewell and Mrs. G. Stille.

The checkroom ladies were: Mrs. E. Grills, and Mrs. D. Mitchell.

DELICIOUS HOMECOOKING

The home - cooking booth, sponsored by the Comrade Club, was in charge of Mrs. W. Emsury and Mrs. W. Wonnacott, assisted by Mesdames R. Varcoe, Barlow, R. Irvin, S. McGuire, A. Bell, G. Stewart, S. Joss, C. Mcbride, L. Wannamaker, A. Walmsley, J. McLeod, S. McGlobes, E. Greenleaf and Miss E. Mossman.

As usual this was surrounded by three-deep purchasers for the delicious pies of many kinds; coconaut macaroons; coffee cakes; tarts; date loaves; cookies, white and dark cakes; angel cakes; meringues; baked apples; mincepies; potato salads; fruit salads; cheese wedges; pickles; jellies; relishes and tea biscuits to mention but a few.

TWO TEA ROOMS

The tea rooms were situated in the Sunday School rooms, where the Christmas spirit was well displayed with the pretty tea tables, one with a hand crochet tea cloth, centred by a tall, red Christmas candle, frost touched, surrounded by a halo of Scotch pine with little cones, mingled with red poinsettia blooms, and multicolored golden sprays, and flanked by tri-branched crystal candelabra bearing flickering red candles. The other tea table was almost identical in its appointment, save that here the cloth was of cutwork in deep cream. The centrepiece was of a gleaming simulated tree of golden-pink globes, highlighted by scintillating crimson poinsettia and flanked by crystal candleholders with red candles.

TEA HOSTESSES

The tea room hostesses included Mrs. Ernest Ellis, Mrs. M. E. Cornish, Mrs. G. Priest, and Mrs. J. S. Hall. These also presided at the tea tables were: Mesdames A. H. Fisher, G. F. Lent, J. Babcock, L. W. Boulton, Ruth Pettiter, R. L. Johnson, M. P. Duff, R. A. Bowley, W. E. May, J. A. Buchanan and Miss Ethel Horton.

Serving were: Mesdames F. Douglas, J. Aitchison, J. S. Hall, E. Cornish, G. Priest, Miss Stanfield, G. May, R. D. Salisbury, R. Coe, I. Tinkess, H. W Robinson, R. E. Goodfellow, M. McCann, and the Misses Marion Brickman, Margaret Brickman, Marilyn Huddleston and Mary Pearce.

The pots replenished: Mesdames A. Firth, G. Stanton, H. Burley, R. Boldrick, R. Wiley and E. Godin.

The treasurer was Mrs. P. Huddleston.

A fine bazaar and tea, nicely convened, and most pleasingly successful, bringing much commendation to the conveners, Mrs. Roy Brickman, Mrs. Cliff Mansboldt and Mrs Albert Mulvey.

Nurses' Alumnae Holds Formal Dance

A grand time was had by all at the Nurses' Alumnae formal at the Club Commodore on Friday night. The theme of the decorating was Paris. The wall panels were decorated with black silhouettes depicting gay Parisian night life. The dance floor was interspersed with lamp posts, with various French streets and places named after Belleville doctors. The main scene, occupying the large end of the dance floor depicted a street artist in Paris with many interesting paintings by Mr. Merle Massey of Belleville.

Guests were greeted at the entrance by a poor French woman and child selling flowers and balloons in a scene depicting the other side of French life.

The bandstand was decorated in various themes, all taken from the famous Folies Bergere.

Prizes for spot dances were won by Miss Audrey Bearcroft and Lennox Smith, of Belleville; second spot, Mr. and Mrs. John Lennox of Belleville; third spot, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Miller, Belleville; and fourth spot, Paul Mc Cauley of Belleville, and Mike Collins of Tweed.

Decorations were arranged by Miss June Frost and her committee from Belleville. The convener was Miss Marlene Heaton of Belleville.

Refreshments were served by the Club Commodore.

Queen Enjoys Naughty French Bedroom Farce

LONDON (AP) — The Queen rode back to Buckingham Palace early today, chuckling over a naughty French bedroom farce her grandfather once called "the hottest show in town."

The play was Occupe - Toi d'Amelie (occupy yourself with Amelia), a between - the - sheets classic from across the Channel which has kept Continental audiences laughing for years.

The Queen and her party of 20 smiled, giggled and laughed out loud for 3½ hours. Then she went backstage at the Palace Theatre and congratulated the members of the visiting French repertoire company.

Wearing a light mauve evening dress—cut extremely low for Her Majesty—she moved on to the French Embassy for a supper party given by Ambassador Jean Chauvel.

"All through supper," said an embassy spokesman, "the Queen talked about Amelie. It was long after midnight when she went home and we noticed she was still chuckling when she got into her automobile."

The farce is about a Parisian coquette with no morals but a great many boy friends, including one visiting royal prince.

Today's British papers say this is Queen Elizabeth's first farce. Her grandfather, King Edward VII, took his fun where he found it—and Paris was a place in which he never got lost.

Occupe-Toi d'Amelie was staged in London only after a watered-down version which King George V saw and called too risque. Wednesday night's presentation was just as the show is played in theatres in Paris. Most of the action takes place in bed, with the cast dressed for the occasion.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

OLD FRIENDS ARE FINE IF THEY'LL STAY JUST THAT

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 22 years old and have been very happily married for a year and a half. I couldn't have a better husband and we seem just made for each other in every way. Yet, oddly enough, I have a problem, and I'm all mixed up about it.

You see, before I ever met my husband, I was going out with another fellow. When I announced my engagement, this fellow left town and got a job that took him to the opposite end of the country.

Now, all of a sudden, he has come back to our city, and when he called me up and asked me to see him, I felt that since he was an old friend I couldn't refuse.

He told me that he was still in love with me and, on my side, of course I, said that I was in love with a wonderful guy and couldn't be happier.

He said he didn't see why I couldn't meet him occasionally anyhow, and since he is very companionable and we always had good times together, I have done that a few times, because it did make me feel badly to think of giving him up entirely, as a friend.

I have never told my husband about seeing this fellow and now I am wondering if I am doing the right thing. What I am specially confused about is, how can I love my husband so much, and be so completely happy with him, yet still want to see this old friend?

— Sue

Dear Sue:

There's no need to waste time "wondering" if you're doing right in seeing this young man without your husband's knowledge. You're not.

At the same time, it's perfectly natural for old friends to enjoy seeing each other and perfectly all right for them to do so if they behave properly about it. But if either one refuses to let the past alone, as this particular friend of yours is doing when he talks about still being in love with you, that's quite another matter.

If you feel that you might be able to persuade this young man to accept and enjoy a place as a friend of both yourself and your husband, you might all together have some very good times. You might suggest to your husband that you invite some of your own and his old friends to dinner some night and include this chap among them, thus creating an opportunity to let him see for himself what a happy pair you and your husband are. Such an object lesson might have a very good effect.

It would also be an excellent idea to invite to the dinner party one of your most attractive unmarried girl friends and seat her next to this fellow. If you go at it tactfully, you might be a very successful matchmaker.

If, however, this young man is the type who prefers under-cover finagling with another man's wife to a straightforward friendship with them both, then, obviously, there is nothing for you to do but say goodbye to him for good and

Sweet Christmas Gifts

By Mary Moore

The pressure cooker owners will remember that I was asked for the method of cracking nuts in a pressure cooker. Helen P. has her own butternuts on her own farm (which I visited last month) and was happy because she could crack them herself this year, and not have to coax George to do it, who obviously does not relish the job. Who does?

Helen has a jarful of nuts waiting to be made up into fudge to ship to her relatives in Florida for Christmas. She asked for fudge recipe.

To give variety to the boxes of homemade sweets that you are planning to pack, try the decked out version of divinity fudge, for it has an attractive topping of melted bitter chocolate.

By popular demands—and rightly so—I'm including "nuts and bolts." These may be made from start to finish by the children. Your 10—or 12— year olds can shop for the makings and mix the whole business. They can watch it and stir it while it slowbakes too. If they set the alarm at 20-minute intervals to stir it.

FUDGE WITH NUTS

(For Helen P.)

Two tablespoons butter, 2 cups light brown sugar (well packed), 1-4 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup 18 per cent cream or top milk, 3-4 to 1 cup freshly cracked nuts (or store nuts if necessary—or shredded coconut). Gently melt the butter, then add the sugar, salt and cream and stir until sugar is dissolved over low heat. With damp cloth wipe down sides of pan to remove sugar crystals. Cook without stirring over medium heat to 234 deg. Fahr. (soft ball stage). Remove from heat at once and do not stir until outside of pan is cool to touch. Beat until creamy. Add nuts at once, and at once press into greased pans. Mark into squares. Cool until hard. Then cut into squares. If desired a whole nut may be pressed into top of each square before fudge sets.

DIVINITY FUDGE

(With Chocolate Topping)

Two and 1-3 cups granulated sugar, 1-2 cup maple syrup, 2-3 cup light corn syrup, 1-4 cup water, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 egg whites, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla (for topping) 2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, melted. In saucepan mix together the sugar, syrups, water and salt and stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Cook without stirring to 283 degrees F. (hard ball). Wipe off any sugar crystals which form on sides . Remove syrup from heat and slowly pour over stiffly beaten egg whites while beating constantly, until mixture will hold its shape well. Add vanilla and pour onto greased 9x9x1 1-2-inch pan. When cool spread with melted chocolate. Cut into squares when cold. Note—Maple syrup may be omitted and water increased to 1-2 cup. One cup nuts may be added, and fudge dropped by teaspoons onto waxed paper, and chocolate topping omitted.

NUTS AND BOLTS

Gently melt 1-2 lb. margarine or butter and add 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, in large roasting pan. Add 1-3 package each cheerios and shreddies (breakfast cereals) and dry pretzelly sticks, and 1-3 lb. skinned salted peanuts. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr., stirring every 30 minutes, for 2 hours.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

CHRISTMAS CARDS TO THOSE IN MOURNING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to send Christmas cards to people in mourning? This year I have an unusual number of friends who have lost loved ones in the last several months, and I certainly realize how difficult Christmas will be for them this year. I'd like to have them know I'm thinking of them devotedly, but I don't want to do anything not in good taste. What do you advise in these circumstances?

Lorraine

Yes, it is proper to send Christmas cards to people in mourning . . . If we choose the cards we send and the words we send with them we can help to lessen their depression. People in mourning, generally speaking, have very real need for the human touch that we can express in Christmas cards, and with the suitable card and with the right words we can thoughtfully express our loving kindness, our gentle understanding.

For this mission it is natural for us to consider cards of religious inspiration; perhaps a lovely reproduction of a Madonna or other religious masterpiece, or a traditional message of the holy Christmas story. Or we may prefer to choose a very simple card with a small conservative design (best, perhaps, a radiant star) on the first page, and on the inside page (with no printing on it) write a brief, but heartfelt message of comfort: "Margaret dear, I do want you to know that I am thinking of you these days with loving affection and with tender understanding."

Note 1: Instead of sending a card, we may, with exquisite taste, write our message of devotion and understanding on a plain white card or white semi-note paper. The few warm-hearted, sincere words you write may carry just the kind-ly reassurance and heart-comfort so needed at Christmas time by one in mourning.

Note 2: Never should we stoop to sending a card printed "With sympathy to you at Christmas" or any similar canned message. Certainly a chilling idea, grim and bawdry, to send the printer's words rather than your own. Make your message personal by writing them yourself . . . a few blessedly reassuring words to reach the heart of a friend in mourning. "With loving thoughts, with tender understanding."

PROPER FOR PEOPLE IN MOURNING TO SEND CHRISTMAS CARDS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me if it is proper for people in mourning to send Christmas cards. — T.H.

Yes, it is proper, but naturally it depends entirely on their feelings and preferences. Naturally, too, relatives and friends of those in mourning will not expect them to send Christmas cards if the effort to do this would add any strain, add any burden to the burden already being carried. However, if they do decide to send cards to relatives and some very intimate friends, those so honored will be deeply touched and inspired by this gallantry-of-the-heart that can forget its own unhappiness in wishing happiness to others.

Note 1: The person in mourning may choose to write a greeting or a message on an inside blank page of a card with a religious picture or the word "Greetings" on the cover; or on plain white note-paper or white cards. Perhaps to write something like this: "Loving greetings to you. And every good wish for your Christmas and New Year." Or simply: "My greetings and best wishes to you dear friend."

Note 2: Of course a person in mourning should not send Christmas cards to casual friends, or to mere acquaintances.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

By MME QUI VIVE PRETTY GIFTS FOR PRETTY GIRLS

A dresser set, of her very own will encourage Sis to keep her hair well groomed.

When Santa makes the rounds among the fair ladies on your gift list, you can help to make him the most sought after man in the world—by selecting gifts which are not only lovely to look at and fun to use, but will make any pretty gal even prettier.

Myriads of beauty gadgets are available, which vary in price from one dollar to one hundred or more. They can be as plain or decorative as the situation demands and are all conducive to promoting good grooming standards.

For the teenager who is apt to neglect her hands, a manicure set and fingernail brush will encourage well-kept nails and hands. If she tends to skimp on face washing, a soft complexion brush or a set of monogrammed towels may be put to good use in helping to clear up skin problems.

If Sis has been neglecting her crowning glory, select a pretty dresser set with a matching comb, brush, and hand mirror in a color to match her bedroom decor. A decorated pocket comb in a silver enamel, or leather case is another gift anyone will be proud to display often, even though its use is confined to the recesses of the powder room.

Bath accessories are the height of luxury and an enticing invitation to sheer relaxation. A bath tray — with a built-in magazine stand and compartments to hold bath equipment—a bath pillow, scented dusting powder, and bath salts are excellent gifts for women who are too active to ever sit down and really relax.

And for those who enjoy the finer points of bathing, there are all manner of bathbrushes and sponges. Back brushes, loofa mitts, spray brushes which attach to the faucet, long-handled sponges with pockets for soap—all are items which will encourage a really thorough job.

Just shop around in the bath and notion sections of the stores and you'll find lots more beauty gadgets which make lovely and useful Christmas gifts.

Woman Judge Advises Mother To Stay at Home

VANCOUVER (CP)—A woman judge of the family court, who hears hundreds of cases involving young people, says that delinquency pattern's begin in the home.

Judge E. Lorraine Johnson said in an interview that problems facing parents today tend to make child-rearing more difficult.

Apart from economic factors, she said "each generation produces its own fads among young people, the influence of which must be counteracted in the home. That means understanding, affection and direction."

Popular fads "have no moral bearings on children's thinking if a proper perspective is maintained," she said. "And that's the task of their parents."

She said she thought that children of mothers who work are more likely to find themselves outside the law. "And often, if the father is working, the mother could be at home.

"Standards of living have risen so high that both parents feel they have to work to provide luxuries they want. A new car doesn't make up for a neglected child who drifts into delinquency. Nothing can replace a mother in the home.

Twice a week young people file before her bench and she must determine what is best for them and their futures. "Sometimes when I come home at night, I worry if I have made the right decision."

Good as Gold

By ALICE ALDEN

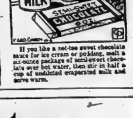
Fashion is on the gold standard just now with the color and gold touches used in clothes and accessories. The "gilded circle" motif in gold and rhinestones is used by Anthony Blotta in a clever all-over print effect to embellish a long evening sheath of siena silk faille. A double-fabric train and a pouff of gold peau de soie ties on at the waistline to change the lovely sheath into an even lovelier creation.

Reading Tastes Of Youngsters Little Changed

CALGARY (CP)—Children "are tops" as library patrons, says Dorothy Rogers, a Calgary librarian who has been studying youngsters' reading habits for 25 years.

"Children will read anything as long as it's interesting until they develop their first love interest," she said. "Then reading dwindles for a few years."

Miss Rogers, head of the children's department at the public library here, says reading tastes of youngsters have not changed much over the years.



"They still prefer imaginative books, such as Robinson Crusoe, Peter Pan and Paul Bunyan, stories about dogs and other animals, and mysteries."

Today's illustrated books are generally overdone, Miss Rogers feels, and "leave nothing to the imagination."

"Let them imagine what Cinderella looks like. Instead, we give them someone else's idea of her appearance."

Children's minds are always open to suggestion, she said.

"They may think they want nothing except animal stories, but tell them a little bit about an exciting book you have just finished reading and they are willing to try it."

If you like a not-too-sweet chocolate sauce for ice cream or pudding, melt a 4½-ounce package of semi-sweet chocolate over hot water, then stir in half a cup of undiluted evaporated milk and serve warm.

Boost in Steel Prices Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — The Iron Age, weekly trade magazine, predicts a boost in steel prices soon. With steel companies facing a serious problem in rising costs, "something has to give."

It says the increase will probably come in the form of boosts for extras as opposed to a base price advance. The pressure on these prices just as the industry is entering "one of the busiest periods in steel history," and this "portends an upward break in steel prices soon."

Refugee Says Supplies Being Sold by Reds

VANCOUVER (CP) — A truck driver who escaped from Hungary a week ago says emergency supplies sent to Hungary are being confiscated by the Communist government and sold.

John Barna, 51, who came to Canada from Hungary in 1928 and returned in 1950 for his wife and two sons, said his passport was immediately confiscated and only after six years was it retrieved by the British legation, Mr. Barna sold clothes and personal belongings to pay his way back. His family is still in Hungary.

Of the tons of food sent from here to Hungary through the Red Cross and church groups, only a trickle has got through, he said. The rest was snatched by the Communist government and either sold to the starving people or used to bribe them into working.

You've never tried anything like new, blue WISK, because WISK is a revolutionary new liquid formula that gets all your clothes cleaner than any laundry powder.

PENETRATES DEEPER, FASTER. Only a liquid can penetrate so deep so fast. Only liquid WISK removes spots and stains laundry powders leave behind! Yet, WISK is safe for hands, safe for fabrics, as only a liquid can be.

NO BLUING OR BLEACH NEEDED. Without bluing or bleach WISK gets white things visibly whiter with the very first wash. And WISK removes all those stubborn stains powders can't touch.

GUARANTEED BY LEVER BROTHERS. Get WISK in the Large, Giant or King Size at your grocer's. If you don't agree WISK is the best detergent you've ever used, Lever Brothers will return the full purchase price plus postage.

Anything powders wash Wisk can wash cleaner!

MAKE THE STAIN TEST YOURSELF AND SEE how WISK'S Concentrated Washing Power gets clothes cleaner, whiter!

Prove it yourself! Wet stain with water. Pour on a little WISK and rub gently. Put in with rest of wash.

See it yourself! Stain has completely disappeared. Proof that WISK gets all your clothes cleaner, whiter.

Greener Thumbs

BY JOYCE SMITH

Lilacs may be pruned any time during winter, but preferably early. Remove all old flowers, twigs and weak wood. Do not remove flowering branches, recognized by large buds at tips. Correct pruning of lilacs gives less, but better, flowers the following year and subsequently the quality and quantity. Vitex, called "Summer Lilac" but not same family, is also benefitted by regular winter pruning.

IVANHOE

Departing Residents Honored By Neighbors

IVANHOE — Friends and neighbors gathered Wednesday evening at the Huntingdon township hall, Ivanhoe, to honor Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lain and family prior to their departure to take up residence in Adolphustown.

Mr. Harry Lovibond was master of ceremonels and spoke briefly.

The following program was given: community singing with Mrs. M. Shaw at the piano; chorus, "Mamma From the Train," Ivanhoe P.S. girls, accompanied by Mrs. George Wood (accordion); reading, "Moving In," B. Fleming; solo, "Love Me Tender," "Cindy", Barry Bray; reading, "The Turtle," Norma Jean Stephens; chorus, "Walking in a Winter Wonderland", school girls; reading, "Friends," Jean Benson; piano solo, "Pezz O'Nell," Mrs. M. Shaw.

The chairman requested the Lain family to occupy seats of honor.

An address expressing appreciation was read by Mrs. E. Rollins, and the presentation of a handsome swivel occasional chair and television table was made by Milton Shaw and Earl Benson.

Sandra and Linda were presented with costume jewelry. After Ross and Marg had expressed thanks all joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Mr. Lain has been engaged as cheesemaker for Adolphustown factory and they plan to take up residence there shortly.

During the time they have lived in this district they, by their genial personalities and hospitality, have made lasting friendships.

The best wishes of this community go with them for many years of health and happiness. Refreshments were served and a short time was spent in dancing.

Stirling

STIRLING — St. James CWL held its last euchre party for this season at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Phil McEvoy, with nine tables in play. The winners of cash prizes were: ladies' Mrs. John Ryan, Mrs. Manson Farrell; men's high, Roy LaChappelle, John Ryan. Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Mrs. K. B. Henry, Orchard Park, New York, attended the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. Agnes Demorest at the Duffin Funeral Home last Thursday.

At the Rotary luncheon last week the group enjoyed an address on "Wild Life," by Mr. William Little of the Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed, and Mr. F. Ferguson, Madoc, showed an interesting film on that theme.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Craighead entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Craighead, Oshawa, recently.

At the regular Guide meeting held at the public school Mrs Bateman, District Commissioner, of Madoc, made the presentation of badges to Joan Fraser, Barbara Woodbeck and Louise Hardling.

Mr. and Mrs. George Crown and daughter of Dorchester, Ont., spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. David Duffin.

TO SELL BUFFALO

ELK ISLAND PARK, Alta. (CP) Buffalo meat, a dish relished by many gourmets, will start appearing in butcher shops across Canada next week. About 200,000 pounds of seldom - seen buffalo steaks and roasts will be up for sale as a result of the thinning out of herds of the animals at Elk Island National Park, 30 miles east of Edmonton.

EARLY INHABITANTS

Thank You!

My sincere thanks to the electorate of our city who voted for me on Monday last, and particularly to the grand people who worked so zealously on my behalf during the past week.

reach for the finest... WHITE SWAN

- so soft
- so strong and safe
- so white

All you want in a tissue you will find in White Swan. You want softness. White Swan gives you the famous "just-right" softness that millions prefer.

You want strength. White Swan is strong yet so amazingly absorbent. And you want purity. White Swan gives you a purity and whiteness no other tissue matches.

These are the reasons more Canadian women reach for White Swan Tissue than any other brand. You see, it really, is "the finest". White Swan towels and serviettes are also "of the finest" quality.

Canadian Sailor Pleads Guilty To Murder Charge

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian pleaded guilty Wednesday of the murder of a London bookseller and was immediately sentenced to be hanged, but the sentence is not likely to be carried out.

No executions have taken place in Britain since parliamentary moves began early this year to abolish the death penalty, and the mandatory death sentence for murder convictions since then have been commuted.

The sailor, Leading Seaman Richard Rhodes Henley, 26, of Creston, B.C., and Dartmouth, N.S., made the guilty plea—unusual in British jurisprudence—to the charge of murdering John Alan Robinson in his shop in Soho, London's Latin quarter.

At his preliminary hearing a statement was admitted as evidence in which Henley said he had gone to the shop "to get some pornographic films for nothing."

The shooting took place when Henley was visiting London during the stay of his ship, the destroyer Iroquois, at Southampton.

The murdered man was a well-known Soho character, married to a fashion model and living in an expensive west end flat.

Madoc Junction

Between 35,000 and 40,000 Refugees to Settle in Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Planning by federal, provincial and civic organizations to settle Hungarian refugees seeking new homes in Canada continued unabated this week, even as the vanguard of the large group expected was being cared for.

In almost every major centre, plans were being set up to clothe, feed, house and give medical care to the newcomers.

The situation developed too quickly for plans to be worked out to the last detail, but organizations, counting heavily on public co-operation, were rushing to get facilities organized.

Between 35,000 and 40,000 refugees are expected to settle in Canada eventually. About 6,000 will be settled by the end of this month.

H. L. Volsey of Winnipeg, western district superintendent of the federal Immigration department, gave the figure of 35,000 to 40,000 refugees expected to come to Canada. He said each Prairie province should count on receiving about 2,000 of them.

B.C. OFFERS

In British Columbia, more than 2,000 offers of accommodation and jobs were received by immigration officials. A special provincial cabinet committee was set up Tuesday to co-ordinate activities throughout the province. Six cities offered officially to accept refugee house about 2,000 refugees was agees and several municipalities started relief fund drives.

Alberta's welfare department promised every assistance.

Saskatchewan was preparing to handle about 2,000 refugees. The first group of 200 was expected in Regina next week.

Two government ministers were named in Manitoba to co-ordinate relief work. A Citizens' Hungarian relief committee appealed for homes and clothes, and a provincial reception area in Winnipeg to set up.

Premier Campbell said Manitoba will provide accommodation for any overflow from immigration facilities.

ONTARIO PREPARES

Ontario sent its agent - general in London, J. R. P. Armstrong to Vienna for a first-hand report on Hungarians wanting to settle in Ontario, and John Yaremko, a member of the legislature, also was sent.

A special refugee committee was set up under the department of planning and development. A 125-bed former Salvation Army hostel in Toronto was taken over to house the newcomers, and a barracks block at the RCAF station at Uplands in Ottawa was being prepared.

Royal Botanical Gardens In Hamilton Will Have New 70-Acre Arboretum to View

HAMILTON (CP) — The little hobo who smuggled railway ties into the Royal Botanical Gardens until he had enough to build a log cabin had one of the largest, most luxuriant estates in Canada until gardeners discovered his ravine hideaway.

"But we don't have much of that sort of thing," says R. A. Sims, gardens secretary. "Oh, there is the odd poacher caught trapping fox, mink, etcetera during the proper season."

What the gardens do have is lots of people. Last year "nearly a quarter of a million persons" wandered through the 1,900 acres which at one time comprised an extension of the northwest fringe of "the dirty Pittsburgh of Canada," Mr. Sims says.

They hiked over nature trails, wandered through the formal memorial garden, saw the profusion of color in the rock garden and watched the fields of iris wave in the spring garden.

Those who come back next year will see an initial three-year development of what is planned as a 300-acre arboretum.

"Recreation is only part of the plan," says Leslie Laking, director and member of the biology staff of McMaster University.

The other two reasons why Hamilton and the Province of Ontario contribute $100,000 each annually are research and education. McMaster is situated adjacent to the stylized sunken garden.

Research is symbolized by a gardens experiment last year in the growing of wild rice; education by the annual children's garden project in which youngsters from nine to 15 learn the fundamentals of horticulture.

NORTHWEST OF CITY

Four miles long between the extreme tips and more than a mile wide, the gardens wander through ravines, farmland and forest. They have, since their start in late 1929, formed a decorative northwest entrance to Hamilton and beautify what were once tax paper shack slums and garbage dumps.

It was in 1930, with the gardens in their formative stage, that Lieut.-Gen. George V. Kitchel thought to be called Royal similar to the famed Kew Gardens in Surrey. Today, the Hamilton counterpart is run by a director and a supervisor who learned their trade at Kew.

An historical part of the gardens is the wide, turfed memorial garden, built on the site of trench works set up but never used during the war of 1812.

Soldiers slain elsewhere on the Niagara Peninsula during the action were brought here for burial in the trenches. Then, in 1847 and 1848, fever - ravaged immigrant ships in Lake Ontario and more bodies were buried on the knoll which now overlooks busy highways. A cholera epidemic in 1854-55 added still more unmarked graves.

Today, a plaque reads: "Guard this resting place of these unknown soldiers, immigrants and citizens."

INFLUENCE ON AREA

The influence of the parklands is reflected in the next housing developments surrounding some sections. Not forgotten are those in the formal gardens. Rockeries show the influence of the Japanese garden—a former gravel pit turned into a huge outdoor flower box.

"That's one of our main aims," Mr. Sims says. "To show people what can be done to their gardens with a little planning. When the arboretum is finished, they will be able to walk through areas devoted to collections of trees for small gardens, or see trees suitable for suburban streets.

"We are more than a park here —all our trees, shrubs and flowers are labelled so the visitor may learn what will look best in his own garden."

And it's all free. "There's no admission and we have no concessions in the gardens," says Mr. Laking. "Some day we may put up refreshment stands but the gardens will always be free."

CHANGED ROLE

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — A Second World War Lancaster bomber abandoned near here will be used to fight bush fires and spray weeds in Oregon, Walter Melvie of Red Deer, who bought it for $600 shortly after the war, said it cost $2,000 in Oregon air services firm. Officials at the nearby RCAF Penhold air base said it would cost $50,000 to put it in flying shape.

EVEN SUN CO-OPERATES WITH CHOU

Jawaharlal Nehru, prime minister of India, right, on his arrival in New Delhi for a state visit. According to reports, Chou gave Nehru a thorough briefing on Peking's viewpoint on world affairs to be passed on to President Eisenhower, presumably when Nehru visits the United States in the near future. India gave the Red Chinese premier a "red carpet" welcome. Even the sun co-operated by staging a partial eclipse. (Central Press Canadian).

Federal-Provincial Welfare Program Restoring Sight to Many Thought Blind for Life

OTTAWA (CP) — Many Canadians who thought they would never see again are having their sight restored through a federal-provincial welfare program that began nine years ago as an experiment.

Since 1947, the blindness control division of the federal health department has helped restore the vision of 210 Canadians in all walks of life, all of whom thought they were doomed to finish their lives in darkness.

Simple operations, which in most cases kept them in hospital only a few days, have enabled the blind to resume normal lives. The operations didn't cost them a cent.

EXPERIMENTAL BASIS

The program began at the urging of Dr. F. S. Burke, then head of the blindness control division, which at the time was mainly responsible for issuing pensions to the blind.

The government gave the division $25,000 to conduct a program with the provinces to determine whether some of the blind receiving pensions could be cured with treatment.

Treatments began a year later. Sixty-eight persons had been treated, 41 regaining their sight, by the end of 1951. The division was put on a permanent footing in 1952, with Dr. J. H. Crowe in charge.

There are an estimated 20,000 blind persons in Canada and grey-haired Dr. Crowe, a 64-year-old native of Toronto, is convinced the sight of many of them can be restored.

The records of blind pensioners —anyone between the ages of 17 and 70 can apply for blindness allowances — are checked and those with even the slightest chance of recovery are sent to certified oculists for thorough examinations. Those eligible for operations may choose their own oculist.

The federal government pays 75 per cent of the cost with the provinces—all except Alberta are taking part—paying 25 per cent.

COSTS BALANCED

The cost of the operations to the federal government so far has totalled about $83,000 but this is offset by the savings in blind allowances.

An operation usually costs about the same as a maximum yearly allowance of $480. There are about 8,500 Canadians receiving blindness allowances.

More than 85 per cent of the operations are for the removal of senile cataracts, one of the more common causes of blindness in Canada.

The operation is not considered dangerous and the patient stays in a hospital only about 14 days. The allowance is continued until the patient is accustomed to the high - powered glasses he must wear to aid his eyes after the operation.

Corneal transplants are being attempted for returning sight to those blinded because of injury to the cornea of the eye, but the approach to this field is cautious because of the difficulty in obtaining the corneas.

An eye bank is being set up in Toronto by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Other agencies are also studying the possibilities of developing this field in Canada.

Find Two Bodies

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—The bodies of two U.S. air force officers were found Wednesday in the buried wreckage of their F-89D Scorpion jet fighter.

Rescue squads from Kinross air force base bulldozed a mile-long road through the swampy area 20 miles southeast of here to bring heavy equipment to the crash scene.

The air force identified the victims as Lieut. John Edward Cunningham, 24, the pilot, of Tulsa, Okla.; and Lieut. Hobart Walter Krasowo Jepsen "Jr." MARED of Mount Hope, W.Va.

The plane crashed Tuesday night while attempting a ground controlled night landing.

HITCH - HIKING FISH

LONDON (CP) — The crew of the British submarine Talent, investigating the cause of bad air in the vessel, discovered a large codfish netted in the snorkel breathing apparatus.

W.M.S. Elects 1957 Officers

MARMORA — The November meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Sweet, with Mrs. Bateman presiding.

The meeting opened with a carol and the Lord's Prayer. Devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Bateman, Mrs. Auckland and Mrs. Murphy. The theme was "Not Your Own Doing."

Mrs. Madden and Mrs. Auckland presented the 3rd chapter of the Study. Mrs. Murphy offered her home for the December meeting, to be held on December 11th, and Mrs. Tinsdell and Mrs. Prentice were appointed to plan the candle-light service.

The election of officers took place with the following slate for 1957: president, Mrs. E. C. Prentice; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. Auckland; recording secretary, Mrs. J. Murphy; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Thomas Bateman; treasurer, Mrs. G. Jarvis; Christian Citizenship secretary, Miss Richards; literature secretary, Mrs. Tinsdell; Missionary Monthly, Mrs. James Sproule; Associate Members secretary, Mrs. Glover; press secretary, Mrs. Murphy; supply secretary, Mrs. Post; Christian Stewardship secretary, Miss Brown; Community Friendship secretary, Mrs. McGinnis; pianist, Mrs. Murphy, assistant Mrs. Glover.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

STEAL LINGERIE

TORONTO (CP)—Thieves broke into a three-storey warehouse in downtown Toronto early Thursday and escaped with $7,000 worth of lingerie. Police said doors on the second and third floors were forced and believed the thieves used a truck to cart away loot, which included hundreds of pairs of stockings, nylon slips and panties.

Crofton

CROFTON.—Mrs. D. B. Munro was a dinner guest on Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gilbert, Carl and Mrs. Gilbert Sr at Jericho Street.

Mrs. E. Crook spent Thursday night and Friday at Belleville, with her brother and family Mr. and Mrs. W. Salisbury and attended the Kiwanis Travelogue at B.C.I.

Miss Reta Christy of Foxboro, was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. Crook and Mr. and Mrs. M. Allan on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sharp and Dennis and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hutson and Glenn of Roslin, were dinner guests of their parents Mr. and Mrs. George Hutson on Wednesday.

Tweed

TWEED — Mr. Harold Foster of Foster's Dairy, had a serious operation on Saturday at Belleville General Hospital. He is resting comfortably.

Mrs. Sexsmith of the vicinity of Marysville, has been spending a two weeks' holiday at the home of her son Russell and Mrs. Sexsmith.

Mr. Harvey Blake was hospitalized on Friday, but after the necessary x-rays was permitted to return to his home here. It will be noted that Harvey is the man who is responsible for the removal of snow from the streets.

Night classes began on Monday night at the high school. Much interest has been shown and over 115 applications already have been acknowledged.

Mrs. Latondre was a weekend guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Fobert, Victoria Street.

Mrs. Wm. J. Woods, B.S. T. Tweed, was stricken with a heart attack on Friday and is in a serious condition in the Belleville General Hospital. She was a little improved on Monday.

The "Spencer's" dress shop has taken on a new look in their new quarters, it is both attractive and pleasant. They are now where C. Courneyea's electric shop previously was.

"Sherry's" grocery is no more. Ed Way will begin tearing down the structure any day now. "Sherry's" counters and islands are at Spencer's shop displaying ladies and children's wear instead of the usual groceries.

Miss Joan Black is employed at "The Stedman Store" here. She previously has been working in Belleville.

Mr. Bill Quinn, employed for Bob Wood Motor Sales, has moved his family to Alexander St., in the house that Mr. Smith recently vacated.

The cooking sale held Saturday for the C.W.L. was a decided success in spite of the heavy snow and bad roads.

Dr. and Mrs. Dales, now of Belleville, were in town on Saturday for the Hay-Walker wedding, and dinner following in the United Church parlors.

Mrs. Earl Graham is better and is able to be back at her employment in Belleville.

The Appreciation Draws in Tweed are surely bringing the crowds out on Saturdays at 3 p.m. The winner of a 5% ticket last Saturday was Mrs. Thelma Cook. Her husband is employed at the B.A. station in town.

Santa Claus will make his annual visit to Tweed next Saturday and the treats and entire event will be sponsored by the Kinnette Club. Much credit is due the club for their yearly effort in this instance, in this way Santa reaches each child and a free movie is enjoyed by the small fry at the Victoria Theatre as well. It has always been a great success and no doubt will be again this season.

The Anglican Bible study was held at the home of Mrs. McKay, North Victoria Street on Tuesday of this week.

"WHERE BETTER FURNITURE IS NOT EXPENSIVE"

'Have you heard the latest?' "Now there's a beauty soap with a deodorant right in it!"

New DAWN Deodorant Bath and Beauty Soap

Stops perspiration odour for a full 24 hours or more — beautifies your skin at the same time!

The secret? Dawn contains Deodorine, an exclusive new deodorant. Used regularly and exclusively, Dawn checks the action of odour-causing skin bacteria a full 24 hours or more.

An underarm deodorant is not enough. Dawn bathes away the cause of perspiration odour—keeps you morning-fresh, bath-fresh all over. And this is important, because you perspire all over. So you see, daintiness begins with Dawn—Dawn keeps you morning-fresh all day long.

Dawn beautifies your skin, too. Dawn cleanses thoroughly, gently. And Deodorine checks the action of the skin bacteria that cause skin blemishes. New Dawn helps keep your complexion radiant, glowing satin-smooth. And Dawn is mild.

New Dawn is different from any soap you've ever used—a bath and beauty soap with a deodorant right in it. Try new Dawn right away—your whole family will love it.

Look for DAWN in the blue foil wrapper.

DAWN WITH DEODORINE Keeps you morning-fresh all day long!

Soldiers Have Little in Common Except Membership in Force

NAPLES (CP) — In the chill Neapolitan pre-dawn darkness, they gather in front of the RCAF hangar at Capodichino airfield.

They come in buses, the soldiers of India, Denmark, Sweden, Colombia and Canada. The Indians, small, wiry and tough; the Danes and Swedes, blond, big and almost baby-faced; the Colombians, lithe, always rumpled, caps pulled down over their ears; the Canadians, well-trained and hard.

They have little in common except that they are soldiers for the United Nations. They are mainly quiet as they come face to face with the great adventure, if not for them perhaps, at least for the world as a whole.

LITTLE CONTACT

Some UN troops are quartered in Italian barracks on the field. The Swedes are out all day near the Canadian hangar, running, practising small arms drill and how to search a prisoner.

Other UN troops are put up at NATO headquarters at the other side of the city during their stay here. They have little contact with one another, however, until they come together in front of the RCAF hangar to fly to Suez.

The only light is from the open hangar doors. The men stay in their buses until it is time to board the RCAF Flying Boxcars, about 40 men in each. All wear the blue UN helmets although some soldiers are embarrassed by them. They are only plastic and useless to stop a bullet and the soldiers regard them more as playthings.

An officer leaves each bus as it arrives to find out to which aircraft his men have been assigned. A United Nations officer in charge of the move—a New Zealand armored corps major—paces nervously back and forth in front of the hangar, glancing often at his watch and looking for more buses whose lights can be seen coming around the runway.

He stops to chat now and then with the UN soldiers, now with an Indian paratrooper, now with a Canadian medic. The Canadians find it strange that many of their companions from other nations can speak English.

ON A FLIGHT

The air crews come out of their briefing room and help the UN soldiers strap on their parachutes. Many soldiers have never flown before and the buckles and straps confuse them. The airmen show them what to do in case of emergency, checking each man's harness.

Then the soldiers climb into the planes through the narrow door just back of and below the cockpit. Some have to board buses again because their planes are parked in dispersals some distance from the hangar.

The planes' two engines become charged with life, the aircraft are led by flashlight out of their parking areas, trundle down the taxi strip to the end of Capodichino's single runway.

In a few minutes the plane is away. In the operations room at the back of the hangar, the telephone rings. The officer in charge is told by the control tower the takeoff times for each plane and it is marked up on the blackboard. The ground crews go off to eat. All is quiet again. Another flight of four planes carrying 180 UN soldiers is bound for Suez.

WHITE BERRIES

The snowberry shrub, bearing small flowers and white berries grows on limestone banks from Quebec to Alaska.

Dulles' NATO 'Super-Council' Plan Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diplomats disclosed today that an American plan to strengthen the Atlantic alliance by creating a NATO "super-council" has been brushed aside by the European allies.

As a consequence, they said, the idea, first proposed by State Secretary Dulles in Paris last May, is being abandoned by Washington, at least for the time being.

Dulles' suggestion was ignored by a three-member committee which has just completed a report recommending changes in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Its report, which is understood to contain no recommendations for radical departures from the present NATO set-up, will be studied at the NATO foreign ministers' session in Paris early next week.

Heavy Tolls Of Deer Herds Taken in Shoot

ROSCOMMON, Mich. (CP) — Michigan state's weekend "any deer" season is reported to have taken heavy tolls of deer herds and sportsmen here staged a "deer funeral" in protest.

Several shops in the town closed down Tuesday and signs "closed for deer funeral" were displayed prominently. A pick - up truck draped in black carrying the body of a dead doe and accompanied by a string of cars toured the county in protest of the conservation department's "any deer" season. The number of fawns and does shot over the weekend has not been determined as yet.

Michigan guards its deer population closely, allowing only a 16-day hunting season each year. Fawns are protected, but because does and fawns have become so numerous a special two - day "antler - less" season was held over the weekend.

Foxboro

FOXBORO — The Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Shorten and Mary Ruth, Peterborough were Sunday guests of Mrs. J. W. Daniels.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Montgomery accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Stewart to Wallbridge on Saturday and spent the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Barton Hinchcliffe.

Glad to report Mrs. Z. Wickett home from the hospital much improved in health.

Mrs. Robert Andrews, Belleville, was a Tuesday guest of Mrs. J. Daniels.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stewart also Mr. and Mrs. Bill Armstrong spent the weekend in Toronto.

Friends of Mrs. Hurald Hopkins are sorry to hear she is a patient in Belleville General Hospital. All wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Prindle and Jean spent Sunday in Kingston with her daughter, Mrs. Carl Shipman. Miss Yvonne returned home having spent the past two weeks with her grandparents.

4th Sidney

4TH SIDNEY — Mrs. C. Knight spent a recent weekend with Mr. and Mrs. C. Champane, Bayside.

Glad to report Mrs. R. Twiddy able to be home again after her recent operation in Belleville General Hospital.

The Stone Church Women's Auxiliary held its bazaar and tea in the community hall on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Gray and Anna were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gray.

Mrs. C. Knight attended the funeral of her cousin, Mrs. Fred Porter, at Thomasburg on Monday.

Several from this community attended the Holstein Freisan banquet at Carmel, on Friday night.

Mrs. R. VanWert, (nee Dorothy Rushnell) left last week for Metz, France. Her parents accompanied her to Montreal.

Mrs. E. B. Phillips attended the bazaar and tea at Gilead, on Friday night.

Miss Isabelle Burnside and Miss Anna Gray accompanied the Rev. and Mrs. R. McMullin to Scott's Y. P. U. potluck supper on Monday night.

Mr. H. Kuntz, of Brockville, called on his mother-in-law, Mrs. C. Knight, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Knight, recently.

Glad to report Mrs. W. J. Tufts is feeling some better following her recent illness.

Mrs. C. Vermilyea visited her daughter, Mrs. J. Wood, Mr. Wood, and family, at Barrie, recently.

A few of the ladies attended the St. Andrew's Church bazaar and tea on Wednesday afternoon, while others were at an afternoon meeting at the Bayside parsonage where Mrs. R. McMullin, was guest speaker.

Mrs. S. W. Lloyd is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. R. Dafoe.

COST CONGREGATION

LONDON (CP) — A 100-year-old church in Waithamstow is to be pulled down and replaced by a smaller one, Rev. A. C. S. Kirk, minister of the Congregational church, says the old edifice seating 550 persons is a "white elephant." The congregation numbers about 80.

Federation Makes Annual Requests Of Government

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Agriculture has asked the Ontario government to increase substantially its appropriation for the department of agriculture.

It also asked for revision of legislation governing the marketing of milk products, amendments to the Gas Pipe Lines Act and the Assessments Act and emergency assistance on imports of feed grains.

The requests were contained in the federation's annual brief submitted to the provincial cabinet.

Reiterating a request of two years ago, the farm organization said "The relatively great importance of agriculture in the provincial economy warrants a more generous expenditure of public funds" for the department of agriculture.

It urged expansion of the Ontario Agricultural College economics branch and the farm economics branch of the provincial department of agriculture.

Calling for amendments to the Milk Industry Act, the federation asked that cream produced in another province and received by Ontario creameries be graded according to Ontario grade standards and that every churning of creamery butter be graded.

It requested that a formula be set up to determine the price of butterfat, using essentially the same basis as that now used for fluid milk.

Hour of Decision Is Near For Hungary's Olympic Stars

MELBOURNE (AP)— The hard hour of decision drew nearer today for Hungarian Olympic athletes battling in their own minds whether to go back to their Soviet-ravaged homeland or to cut all ties and seek political refuge in the free world.

About 50 of the Hungarian team of 175 at the games here are believed to have decided to remain behind when the first of two chartered airliners leaves here Friday night for Budapest.

But as their teammates who have families in Hungary got ready for the long journey, even those who had openly said that they would stay behind appeared to be having second thoughts about the future.

The Hungarian camp at Olympic Village was a sad and hushed one today. Several athletes who only Wednesday had indicated that they planned to seek asylum said with tired voices: "We are going back to Hungary."

JUST DON'T KNOW

Then a moment later, they said they didn't know what they would do. The crucial moment will come when the team lines up with its luggage to board buses for the airport. Then the long hours of inner conflict will reach a climax.

Some, of course, could leave the plane at its final stop in Western Europe — Rome.

While Australian newspapers have carried reports of varying numbers of Hungarians who would defect, one team official, Ferenc Molnar, would only comment with a smile: "Let us say that we have reservations for 151 people to go out on the two flights."

West Favored Over East In Big Game

VANCOUVER (CP)—John Wed of Toronto Argonauts may be ded to sit out Saturday's East rt Shrine football game here because of a knee injury which bothered him during a workout Wednesday.

Coach Jim Trimble was reported trying to bring in Hamilton Tiger-Cats' Ralph Tooby as a replacement for the eastern all-stars in the second Shrine bowl meeting at Empire Stadium.

Welton, given permission to compete in the game by his physician, underwent what he termed a "minor" operation three weeks ago for muscle strain. But the knee was draining water after an hour and 20-minutes workout.

Trimble said he wanted to talk to Welton before making any change in the lineups as Welton is keen to play Saturday.

Trimble said his side will pass "a great deal" in the game. Westerns coach Frank (Pop) Ivy predicts it will be a high-scoring duel.

Both teams were to hold workouts again today—the favored West in Stanley Park's Brockton Oval and the East at Central Park in suburban Burnaby.

The weatherman tentatively forecasts a cold, clear afternoon. Most of the players seemed pleased with this prospect. Following a week of heavy fog, Vancouver has recorded below-freezing temperatures the last few days.

Ivy was happy about the weather. "This ain't cold," he said of the 36-degree temperature at Brockton Oval.

Ticket sales were slow because of the cold weather but officials expect attendance will easily surpass the 15,063 who watched last year's game in Toronto. Proceeds go to support Shrine hospitals in Montreal and Winnipeg. Gross receipts last year were $8,000. The net take was $21,750.

SPORT IN BRIEF

MUGS FULL NOW

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Five Sydney men Wednesday won $870, $20 on the winning ticket in a special Olympic lottery in Tasmania.

The winners bought the ticket in the name of the "five mugs."

KEEPS RECORD CLEAN

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Eddie Machen, undefeated West Coast heavyweight, made his first eastern appearance a successful one Wednesday night with a unanimous 10-round decision over Detroit's Johnny Summerlin. Machen weighed 190½, Summerlin 196.

EFFECTIVE CAMPAIGN

MELBOURNE (CP) — Bernard Newman of Windsor, Ont., coach of Canada's gymnastics team at the Olympics, has been the busiest man in Melbourne.

Bernard is a city councillor in Windsor and had to rush off to the Olympics before starting his campaign for re - election. He bought 8,000 postcards—depleting kangaroos—and mailed them to his constituents.

Word reaching Melbourne today was: Newman won by a landslide.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

OMINOUS NOTE

A cry that has a slightly familiar ring to it is sounding out at Cornwall. The lyric with the mournful tone is that the senior "A" Chevrolets might drop out of competition if the box-office does not meet the weekly payroll.

It seems to us that we heard that sad sonnet last year before the circuit decided to go high-hat and hop into the senior "A" mezzanine.

It is recalled that the Cornwall-Whitby combo were the main instigators of the loop's jump into senior "A". The brainwave of their argument was that the fans preferred the senior "A" caliber to the slower, sloppier senior "B" stuff.

Cornwall was loud in this claim since, it was stated, the fans down thataway were used to professional or senior "A" hockey, and if the current senior "B" loop could see its way to climb to senior "A" status all would be hunkey-dory with the Cornwall management and the loyal fans of the riverside city.

Last year the Colts threatened to drop out of the senior "B" brigade and, it was reported from Cornwall, money-financiers zeroed around the catastrophe. So the tubs thumped and the tubbies shuffled in a Cornwall-Whitby duel for the changeover.

Belleville voted against the move. Brockville dropped out of contention. You know the rest. This city hopped aboard the senior "A" band wagon— and has away they went.

Apparently senior "A" hockey as it is played in the Eastern League is not good enough for Cornwall fandom, unless there is another reason for the non-existence of capacity houses.

It seems the average gate in Cornwall is 1,200 fans and another five or six hundred nightly would pay the expenses.

Wyman Collins, sports editor of the Cornwall paper, says in his column: "There is a danger the lessening of gates may force Cornwall to fold up its tent before too many more games are to be played. Rumors to this effect have been circulating and team manager Ray Miron corroborated this yesterday."

Collins quotes Miron as saying: "The possibility does exist that the Chevs will have to drop out of the loop if crowds do not pick up at least 500 fans per game."

The sports editor goes on say that Miron did not want the story written so as to give the impression the Chevs were "crying," but he said Miron did issue the warning the Chevs would not be able to keep "underwriting losses indefinitely."

Said Miron:—"The Chevies' operational expenses are $1,400 per week, and only on home ice do they cash in. With 500 more ticket buyers in our midst we would have broken even."

Back home it is a different story. Maybe it could be better, but as is, it is a very satisfying one to the McFarland management.

Manager Drury Denyes released attendance figures for the first nine games today, and compared them with the first nine games of a year ago when senior "B" hockey was in vogue.

Here they are. Read 'em and you don't have to weep. For, the first nine games played this year in senior "A" the gross attendance was 17,833 or an average of 1,891. Last year the first nine games drew 7,601, or an average of 823.

Glancing over the McFarlands' scoring records to date, it is noted that Minnie Menard, the Mats' marksman, has hopped into second place in the league points-getting race and is the leading goal-getter of the loop. Minnie tops the Mats' roster with 21 goals and 11 assists for 32 points. His hat-trick last Saturday helped him bop Gagnon of the Dunlops.

Paul Payette, however, is crowding Min with eight goals and 31 assists for 39 points. Five other Mats are in the two-column space with Gilbert in 3 and 9 for 12; Bep Guidolin 4 and 11 for 15; Johnny Murelich, another hat-tricker, 5 and 11 for 16; Keith MacDonald 7 and 4 for 11; Floyd Crawford 4 and 6 for 10, and Maurice Benoit the same.

Going down the list, Real Larouche has 9 points; Wilf Menard 6; Jack Whalen 8; Dave Jones 5; Lionel Botley 4; Rene St. Hilaire 2 and Bouncing "Bernie" Lamonde 1.

Whitby Dunlops Extend Lead With 5-2 Win Over Kingston

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stratford Indians finally made it back to first place Wednesday night in the Western Division of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A series. It wasn't easy.

Indians were down 6-4 to Chatham Maroons in the third period but came back with four goals to force overtime. Their fifth and sixth tallies were counted within 30 seconds of the end of regulation time.

Then Dinny Flanagan scored a single goal in overtime for a 7-6 win to give Indians the league lead by one point.

Tied at second place are Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen who defeated the touring Soo Indians 12-5 and Windsor Bulldogs.

WHITBY WIDENS GAP

In the Eastern Division, Whitby Dunlops stretched their first-place lead to seven points by downing Kingston CKLC 5-2.

North Bay Trappers of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Southern Group again have a six-point lead as a result of a 4-2 win over runner-up Sudbury Wolves. It was North Bay's 11th victory in 12 home games this year.

Timmins Flyers moved to within one point of the league-leading South Porcupine Porkies, while Kapuskasing Kuppers Huddle 8-3 in the Porcupine Mines Senior League.

FLICS HAS GOOD NIGHT

At Chatham, Billy Flick shot four goals to lead Indians, three in the third period.

Joe Schertzi and Dinny Flanagan, who had two goals, were the other snipers for Stratford. Jim Robertson tallied three goals for Maroons, Alex Visaltis, Jim Power and Danny Blair netting singles.

Dutchies fired 46 shots at Soo goalie Julian Klymkiw.

Jack McKenzie had three goals for the winners, Jack Taylor two. Singles went to Abner Martin and Dutch Martin, Harry Pontin, Doug Speck, Gerry Theberge, George Scholes and Art Hurst.

Gord Heale, John Offidani, Ed Foss, Laurie Peterson and Jackie Forbes counted for the Soo.

SCORING DIVIDED

At Kingston, Whitby scorers were Gord Myles, Georgie Samoschuk, Tom Comeau, Harry Linden and Frank Bonello. Don Thompson and Dop Senior were the Kingston marksmen.

At North Bay, Bob Barlow and Bernie Cosentin scored in the final two minutes of the last period to give Trappers the win.

Other scorers were Ches Konecny and Art Stratton for North Bay, and Andy Miles and Nick Tomluk for Sudbury.

Migay, Morrison in Hoosegow When Moore, Beliveau Get 2; Rangers Rally to Tie Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Before the National Hockey League season began rookie coach Howie Meeker vowed he would cut out the "needless" penalties which have cost Toronto Maple Leafs so many games. If his charges haven't been attending to him so far, perhaps Wednesday night's game will serve as an object lesson.

Leafs dropped further into fifth place by losing 3-1 to the third-place Montreal Canadiens in Toronto. The two goals which gave Canadiens their margin came with Leaf players in the penalty box.

In New York, the fourth place Rangers moved within two points ahead of the Leafs when they came from behind on Parker MacDonald's third-period goal to tie the last-place Chicago Black Hawks 2-2.

Leaf defence was notably lacking because Rudy Migay, regarded as one of the league's top penalty-killers and Jim Morrison, one of their best rearguards, were the men in the box. Dickie Moore and Jean Beliveau scored the winners in the second period with 5,000 fans.

BOOM BOOM GOT OTHER

Canadiens went ahead 1-0 in the first period on Geoffrion's goal after a minute and 13 seconds but Ron Stewart tied it just after the halfway mark.

Ed Chadwick turned back 29 shots for Toronto while Jacques Plante in Canadiens' nets kicked out 25. Stewart, moved back on to the wing from defence in one of the undermanned Leafs' many player changes, was testing the Montreal defence consistently but could beat Plante only once.

A crowd of 7,486 was on hand in New York as Rangers went ahead on Harry Howell's goal just before the end of the period. In the second, Ed Litzenberger got his 11th in the season for Chicago and Hawks took the lead on Jack McIntyre's goal a few minutes later.

Lorne Worsley had one of his easier nights in the Ranger nets, being called upon to deal with only 22 shots. Chicago goalie Al Rollins handled 31 drives.

Kowalchuk Goes To Petes' Juniors

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Junior Canadiens announced Wednesday night that forward John Kowalchuk of Fort William has been reassigned to Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series.

Kowalchuk, who joined Junior Canadiens this year, will play against Ottawa in Peterborough tonight. Both teams are sponsored by Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Ottawa officials said Kowalchuk, who played only senior games here has been reassigned because he would not see much action with Canadiens during the next two months.

Record Betting Level Noted on Canadian Tracks

OTTAWA (CP) — A sharp increase in Ontario in activity by thoroughbred race horses and those who bet on them helped boost at-the-track wagering in Canada this year to a record level.

The parimutuel machines took in a total $98,196,561—equivalent to more than $6 for each Canadian—compared with last year's previous record wagering of $82,685,610.

Of the $15,510,951 increase, nearly $13,500,000 was recorded in Ontario where $70,702,417 was wagered as the number of days of racing rose from 165 to 186 and the number of races from 1,317 to 1,482.

2,984 RACES

It said that 33 racing association—the same number as last year—held 2,984 thoroughbred horse races on 366 days of racing compared with 2,688 races last year in 329 days.

Of the total wagered, the racing associations retained $9,486,306 as their legal percentage, paying out nearly half, or $4,375,850, to owners of winning horses.

Governments of the five provinces where the races were run collected $6,703,839 in parimutuel taxes, compared with $6,281,700 last year. The provinces are Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan Alberta and British Columbia.

The amount collected by bettors was $97,066,421—or 61.5 per cent of the amount they invested.

Largest amount wagered in one race meeting was the $6,228,033 at the 14-day meeting of the Greenlife Park Race Track and Breeding Association at Toronto's New Woodbine Race Track opened this year.

The number of races declined in three provinces, Saskatchewan to 92 from 116, Alberta to 238 from 354, and British Columbia to 691 from 699. But wagering decreased only in Manitoba, where the number of races was unchanged at 302.

Ontario's $70,702,417 wagered this year compared with $57,271,-417 in 1950.

A total of $48,719,317 was bet in Toronto's race track year, last year the figure was $43,792,630. For Fort's racers were up to $21,963,200 in 1950 from last year's $13,481,762.

Lions, Argos Legal Battle

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal was told Wednesday that Detroit Lions of the National Football League did not valuly exercise an option clause they held with quarterback Tom Dublinski, now with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Union.

Counsel for Dublinski, C. L. Dubin, is asking the court to uphold the decision of Chief Justice McRuer, who earlier this year ruled that the option clause had not been properly exercised.

Mr. Dubin said that even if the option had been properly executed the clause in the previous contract which prohibited Dublinski from playing for any other organization applied only to the term of the previous contract which ended May 1, 1955.

Francis Gerity, appearing for Lions, said Detroit is entitled to relief for breach of contract by Dublinski, who signed with Toronto in January, 1955.

Mr. Gerity said his clients would be satisfied to receive either substantial damages or a declaratory order stating that they would have been entitled to an injunction against Dublinski had the case been heard during the football season covered by the Detroit contract.

LEAFS TRADE PAIR

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (CP)— Outfielder Archie Wilson, the highest hitter last year for Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, and catcher Don Griffin were traded Wednesday to Charleston Senators of the American Association.

In return, Leafs got relief pitcher Bob Tiefenauer, who posted a 7-12 won-and-lost record for the Senators last season, and catcher Al Robertson, who batted .246.

Wilson contributed a .301 average to Toronto's pennant drive, while Griffin, who played only a few games for Leafs, finished the season as playing manager at Memphis, where he batted .291.

Compulsory Sports Program Secret of Australian Success

MELBOURNE (CP)—The spectacular assault on world and Olympic records by Australia's swimmers and women sprinters has been one of the success stories of the 1956 Olympics.

What makes them the fastest humans on earth in these glamour sports? The answer is simple: A government - sponsored, countrywide compulsory sports program, one of the most extensive in the English-speaking world, and the bursting desire of the Australians to be the world's best.

It is natural for foreigners to watch the green-clad athletes of this country of 9,500,000 stride to the victory platform day after day to receive gold medals, the adulation of their countrymen and the plaudits of the sports world.

But it is no surprise to Canadian-born Gordon Young, director of physical education for the State of New South Wales since 1938. "This is just the beginning," he told the Canadian Press in an interview.

CAN ASPIRE HIGHER

"With the turn of the wheel, with increased sports facilities plus the native ability of Australian athletes, we can be more of a world power in track and field, swimming and other sports in competitions such as the olympics."

Young, a 52 year-old native of Guelph, Ont., was a YMCA physical education director in London, Ont. and Montreal following his graduation from the University of Western Ontario. He is enthusiastic about Australia's "planned program of sports for school children."

In New South Wales alone he controls the activities of about 250,000 youngsters of 12 and over.

"There is nothing complicated about the system," he explained. "The pattern is similar in all Australian states—there are no local education boards, all are controlled by the state education department."

The key to the program is that every primary - school teacher must take a physical education course for at least two years.

HAS SPORT BACKGROUND

"As a result, every teacher has a background of sports knowledge. There are physical education periods when schoolboys and girls are taught the fundamentals of all sports, and every school in the country devotes one afternoon a week exclusively to sports."

The youngsters practise the fundamentals learned at school on afternoons devoted to competition. Hundreds of athletes compete with other schools every week of the season in a well-planned program.

"In addition, our more promising youngsters are creamed off from this and enter club competitions, district, state and interstate weekends and on vacations. That's where the real polishing takes place."

The Australian idea is a planned sports program to avoid stupid searching for potential champions. If you have thousands interested, it is only natural that you'll get champions. They believe youngsters will get the real potential, and that a youngster must show some basic ability before he is ever given coaching.

"Important too is the great pride of the allies, employers, teachers and politicians in sports achievement."

HAD NO TRACKS

The Australian success story is all the more surprising when it is considered that there was not one cinder track in the country before 1928, the year in which sprinter Marjorie Jackson and hurdler Shirley Strickland got their rewritings the record books. Now there are eight—all in Sydney and Melbourne.

Additionally, track and field is a third-rate sport behind tennis and cricket, in which the country first gained international promise, rowing, and football, field hockey and women's basketball.

Just as in Canada, track meets do not draw, but Australian love of sports and that desire to win keeps the youngsters at it.

"These kids have a genuine desire to excel," said Young, who got his job when New South Wales advertised around the world for a physical education director.

When Young went over his job there were eight physical education specialists in New South Wales. Today there are more than 300.

Britons, Yanks Let off Steam In Melbourne

SYDNEY (AP)—Sydney police are investigating stories of a riotous party held Wednesday night by some male British and American Olympic athletes at Coogee beach.

Police claim the athletes—some nude and others in underpants—ran wild on the beach for several hours.

Team managers and members denied any high jinks when asked about the party today.

Inspector R. O'Neill, officer in charge of the Randwick police area in Sydney, said he was informed the disturbance occurred when some U.S. Olympic team members "raided" the Coogee Bay hotel where the British are staying.

The athletes said to have been concerned competed in an international track meet in Sydney Wednesday night.

This morning, the hotel verandah and beer garden were littered with broken beer bottles. The wire mesh in front of the hotel was wrecked and pipes had been torn out of concrete settings. Brick supports were smashed.

Larry Huston, manager of the U.S. team, said later "the party, if there was one, could not have been anything like the way it was described.

"There were no girls and no drunks."

Police have not laid any charges.

Orders Pitcher Returned to Kansas City

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Baseball commissioner Ford Frick Wednesday ordered Detroit Tigers to return to Kansas City pitcher Ed Blake, one of the players involved in Monday's eight-player deal between the two clubs.

Frick ruled that Blake, drafted by Kansas City earlier that day through March 25 before his contract can be assigned to another club.

Jack Crimian, a lighthanded pitcher who won four and lost eight for the Athletics last year, was sent to the Tigers in place of Blake.

Crimian cost the Athletics $50,000 and three players last year but after he had won 19 games at Detroit he was voted the International League's most valuable player.

Blake, obtained for the $10,000 waiver price, won 17 and lost 11 for Detroit.

In the deal, Kansas City had sent Jim Finigan, Bobby Shantz and Blake to Detroit for Ned Garver, Virgil Trucks, Duke Maas, Wayne Belardi and sold pitcher Bill Harrington to Charleston, a Tiger farm club in the American League.

Bisons Down Providence 5-3

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Buffalo piled up a big lead in the first two periods and withstood a final period assault by Providence to post a 5-3 American Hockey League victory over the Reds Wednesday night.

The Bisons blasted two goals past sub goalie Harvey Bennett in the opening period on shots by Lou Haskowski and Larry Wilson.

Tallies by Chuck Blair, Wilson and Sam Bettio in the second period gave Buffalo a 5-0 bulge.

Fifty-five seconds after the start of the final period Paul Larivee cashed the first Reds score. Then Camille Henry and Ron Murphy scored at 10:09 and 11:01 for Providence.

Barrie Ties St. Mikes 4-4

BARRIE (CP)—Barrie Flyers battled twice in the last three minutes of the final period to gain a 4-4 draw with the visiting Toronto St. Michael's College Majors in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Wednesday night.

Dick Cherry scored twice for Barrie, Jim Lister and Tommy Black got the others. St. Michael's scorers were Jim Bonnick, Ken Wharram, Bob Boucher and Frank McKnight.

Minor Leagues Spend Plenty in Annual Draft

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—The higher classification minor baseball leagues Wednesday spent $172,750 for 36 players in the annual minor league draft.

Open classification teams paid $36,000 for five players; class AAA teams $48,500 for nine players; class AA $65,750 for 12 players and class A $22,500 for 10.

Classes D and C were to complete the drafting at the annual minor league convention today.

The Pacific Coast League took five players at a cost of $36,000. Vancouver Mounties made the first pick and selected Charlie White, former Milwaukee Braves and Toronto Maple Leafs catcher, from Austin in the Texas League. Seattle, 28, played at Wichita last season and batted .270 in 87 games. His price was $7,500.

Seattle took Marion Fricano, a 25-year-old righthanded pitcher, who also played for Toronto, from Memphis of the Southern Association for $7,500.

The two Triple A circuits—the American Association and the International League—paid out $46,500 for nine players, the same number they selected last year.

Charleston, Minneapolis and Toronto of AAA selected two players each.

Richmond's selection was Gerry Thornas, a 26-year-old outfielder from Houston who batted .296 at Allentown, Pa., last year.

Rochester selected Charles Essegian from Salem, Ore., a Class A Northwestern League. A 22-year-old outfielder, Essegian had a .366 batting average including 28 home runs and 95 runs batted in. Essegian, drawn from a class B club cost $4,000. Thomas cost Richmond $6,000.

Machen Offfered Jackson Bout After Victory

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) Undefeated heavyweight Eddie Machen today was offered a bout with Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson as a stepping stone to a title match with new heavy king Floyd Patterson.

Billy Brown, matchmaker for the International Boxing Club, said, following Machen's 10-round unanimous decision over eighth-ranked Zora Folley Wednesday night:

"We have offered Machen a bout with Jackson and we would like to put the winner of that fight in line with Patterson."

Brown said, however, that Sid Flaherty, Machen's manager, "wants to wait a couple of days before he gives us an answer." There were indications that Flaherty would refuse the offer.

Machen's ability as a counter-puncher as displayed in Wednesday night's triumph might make him a very capable foe for the new champion.

Machen failed to record his 15th knockout in winning 19 bouts, but Summerlin whipped the heavy pounding much to the amazement of his shorter opponent and the 2,243 fans who paid a gross gate of $4,551 to see the televised bout broadcast here.

Machen was in command throughout. Judges Richie Fazio, Wayne Bilardi and sold pitcher Bill Harrington to Charleston, a Tiger farm club in the American League.

The plodding Summerlin won the third round on two cards after being shaken in the second by Machen's heavy guns.

Sixth-ranked in the National Boxing Association listings, Machen said his victory was a birthday present to his wife Charlotte who celebrated her 25th birthday Wednesday.

Machen weighed 190¼; Summerlin 196.

Duke Popular In Melbourne

MELBOURNE (CP)—When the Duke of Edinburgh visited Olympic village, the athletes lined up in front of their various quarters to greet him as he passed by in his open limousine.

Later a group from the United States rowing squad, which watched the Duke, paid a hospital visit to their teammate John Cooke of Yale University's victorious eight-oared crew. They were thrilled about their experience involving the Queen's husband and told Cooke, who is ill with influenza, how sorry they were he had to miss it all.

"Oh, that's all right," said Cooke. "The Duke came to the hospital and we had a 15-minute chat. I shook hands with him and, look" he gave me his autograph."

LECLAIR TO TROY

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Jim LeClair, 21-year-old forward from Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds has signed Wednesday with the Troy Bruins of the International Hockey League.

Majors Player-Cut Proposal Will Aid Top Minor Leagues

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A player cut-down proposal, a kind of share-the-talent plan for grassroots baseball, appeared to have a good chance of passing today as minor leagues prepare to vote on 29 amendments to the major-minor agreement.

Recommended by both baseball commissioner Ford Frick and minor league boss Frank Shaughnessy, the proposal would require major league clubs to cut their rosters to 28 players by opening day. The majors in the past have kept from 30 to 33 players until the May 15 cut-down time.

Adoption of the proposal by both the minors, currently in session here, and the majors, which meet in Chicago next week, would free at least 32 players—two from each of the 16 big league clubs—for immediate service in the higher minors.

The Pacific Coast League and Triple A clubs then could top off some of their players, setting off a chain reaction which would reach all the way down to the class D circuits.

ANOTHER HELP STEP

Trautman has complained that under the present plan, the minors are unable to get their lineups "set" for the first month or two of the season.

The cut-down plan would be another step in the majors' program to aid the minors, this time with earlier player help. The major leagues have set up a $50,000 fund to assist financially troubled minor league clubs.

In addition to the legislative session on amendments, A, AA and C leagues were set to hold their draft. Minors from class A up drafted 36 players Wednesday at a total cost of $156,750.

Four of the proposed amendments would make changes in the player bonus rule—but they are given scant chance of passage. They range from a proposal to eliminate the bonus rule entirely to a suggestion from farm clubs of Cincinnati and Detroit to create a first-year draft.

BIG GAMBLE

The latter would permit drafting of a high-priced bonus player after one year—which would be too great a gamble for a major club to take. Currently, players who receive at least $4,000 for signing must remain with the major league club which signed them for two years, and are not subject to draft for the second.

Another proposal, made by Montreal Royals, would set up exclusive negotiation rights. A club could notify the commissioner of it wanted a certain batsman with a certain prospect, and no other club could negotiate with prospect for six months. But this proposal, too, seemed headed for defeat.

Many of the major league representatives attending the minors' meetings were observing in the the trade market' but no definite deals appeared in the immediate offing.

Manager Birdie Tebbetts, whose Cincinnati Redlegs have been dickering with several clubs in hope of getting outfielder Jim Greengrass or a pitcher, said Wednesday night's triumph might make him a very capable foe for the new champion.

Machen failed to record his 15th knockout in winning 19 bouts, but Summerlin whipped the heavy pounding much to the amazement of his shorter opponent and the 2,243 fans who paid a gross gate of $4,551 to see the televised bout broadcast here.

Machen was in command throughout. Judges Richie Fazio, Wayne Bilardi and sold pitcher Bill Harrington to Charleston, a Tiger farm club in the American League.

Sixth-ranked in the National Boxing Association listings, Machen said his victory was a birthday present to his wife Charlotte who celebrated her 25th birthday Wednesday.

Machen weighed 190¼; Summerlin 196.

Y Basketball

The 'Y' Youth 1956-57 Basketball House League opened Tuesday night with the Comets playing two games. Explained by Roger Walters the "Knickerbockers" were the first game over the Comets 47 to 38. Half time score was 18 to 19 in favor of the "Knickerbockers" and in the last half the Knickerbockers outscored the Comets 28 to 20 to win their first game. High scorers for the game were Walters with 31, Masters 15 and Lucas with 12.

In their second game of the evening the tables turned and luck was with the Comets as they squeezed out a 35 to 34 victory over the Bullets. The Bullets led at half time 28 to 26 but after that it was anyone's game as scores moved up for both teams. Captain Bill Dickey of the Bullets played a beautiful game both defensively and offensively, scoring 23 points but this alone could not combat the smooth plays of the Comets High scorers for the game were B. Dickey 22, R. Boomhower 10, B. Skelley 10, J. Green 27, Bill Batchelor; Scorer, Jim Heffernan; Timers, Stu Muirhead and Bill Green.

First game Knickerbockers 47, Capt. R. Walters 31, Masters 15, J. P. Bennett 4, R. Parkhurst 2, T. Parker, H. Evans 5, C. Allenson, Fa., last year.

Comets 40, Capt. D. Clarke 6, Green 6, B. McBride 6, Lucas 12, B. Skelley 6, J. Davidson 4.

Second game—Comets 35, Capt. D. Dodgson 4, Green 17, R. McBride 6, S. Lucas 8, B. Skelley 10, J. Davidson.

Bullets 34, Capt. B. Dickey 32, R. Boomhower 10, D. Puste 8, B. Simons 4, T. Morton, Plane.

JUNIOR

This first half of the 'Y' Junior Basketball House League schedule ended Saturday with two well played games.

Scoring 24 points Steve Wilson captained his team, the Honest Johns to a 40 to 22 victory over the "Y" Clowns. The Clowns fought hard but the sharp shooting and close checking of Wilson and team mates kept their score down. High scorers for this game were S. Wilson 24, McMartin 12, J. Fisher 10, S. Muirhead 8.

Top scoring shortest player on the floor, B. Valcamp, the Hillbillys came up with their third victory of the schedule defeating the Little Hound Dogs 35 to 17. Vamp led the victors with 21 points followed by B. Avery with 12 and J. Clapp 11.

The third game Honest Johns 40. Capt. S. Wilson 24, J. Fisher 10, D. Dodgson 4, Donald 2, Bailey, MacDonald; Bolton.

"Y" Clowns 22, Capt. Muirhead 8, McMartin 12, Shortt 2, M. Angus, G. Kinkaid, G. Rainbird.

Second game Hillbillys 35, Capt. R. Blaker, B. Valcamp 21, B. Avery 12, M. Murphy 2, Collins.

Little Hound Dogs 17, Capt. J. Peoples, C. Reed, L. Doxsee 2, N. Miles, D. Skickle.

'Swaps' Named 1956 Champion

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (CP)—Swaps, holder of five world's records, Wednesday was named 1956 champion among older colts and horses.

The Thoroughbred Racing Associations, in annual convention, announced that Swaps received 60 votes to 10 for Nashua, with two to Summer Tan and one to Bardstown.

In 25 races over a three-year career Swaps finished out of the money only twice, once as a two-year-old and once this year over the Washington Park turf course.

In five starts at Hollywood Park Swaps broke four world's records and one track record.

Harvest of Medals

Russia Ousts United States From Olympics Points Lead

MELBOURNE (CP) — Russia forged into a virtually insurmountable lead tonight over the United States in the unofficial Olympics point standing, collecting the anticipated harvest of medals and points in gymnastics and wrestling while American hopes were slowly submerging in the Olympic pool.

In the three swimming finals, Japan broke into the Australian-United States pool duel and led Americans failed to score a gold medal.

Australia's sensational girl swimmers set a world record in winning the women's 400-metre relay—in which Canada placed fifth —and David Theile, 18-year-old Australian, led all the way to win the men's 100-metre backstroke over his fellow-countryman John Monckton.

JAPANESE WON

Masaru Furukawa, Japan's 20-year-old submarine swimmer, swam to the gold medal in the men's 200-metre breast-stroke, without an American placing in the first six.

In the brilliant finale of the night—the men's platform diving —Juan Capilla, Mexico's handsome torcador of the high tower, won his first gold medal in three attempts and the two favored Americans had to settle for second and third.

The Russians had things almost their own way in gymnastics and were gradually adding to their medal collection in Greco-Roman wrestling.

Even in the women's platform diving, only partly completed today, two Russian girls were close behind Paula Jean Myers of Glendora, Calif., while defending champion Pat McCormick of Lakewood, Calif., was in fourth place.

The Russians also gathered in a few more points by unexpectedly scoring a third and a fifth in the men's breast-stroke final.

END SATURDAY

The 1956 games end Saturday with the championship soccer match between Russia and Yugoslavia and the closing ceremonies Friday will mark the last day of full competition.

Climax of the sensational displays as Olympic pool came tonight when Capilla, 26-year-old architect from Mexico City, made a dramatic dive in his final trip off the high tower in his last Olympic Games. Capilla finished third in the 1948 games at London and second in the 1952 games at Helsinki.

Until that final dive, the competition had seemed to be between Dick Connor of Pasadena, Calif., and Gary Tobian of Los Angeles, with Capilla never far behind.

Karl Michaela, diving coach of the American Olympic team, tonight lodged an official protest with the International Swimming Federation after the platform diving championships had been awarded to Capilla.

WANTS NEW SYSTEM

He made it clear that he does not wish or hope to change tonight's result, but only to work out a new system of selecting the judges.

One member of the American delegation explained that normally each country submits the names of three persons for the judging panel. Because of the great distance to Australia some countries lacked three completely disinterested persons who could act as judges, and coaches were put on the panel and sometimes wound up judging their own proteges.

Michaels said the Hungarian diving coach, who had two divers in tonight's competition, had been seen obviously coaching his own men with hand signals from the judging stand.

The 400-metre women's relay was a thrilling victory for Australia's brilliant foursome of Dawn Fraser, Faith Leech, Sandra Morgan and the incomparable Lorraine Crapp over the American team.

The sensational speed of both teams lowered the world record as the big crowd broke into a frenzy of cheering at the spectacle. The Australian girls finished in four minutes, 17.1 seconds and the Americans in 4:19.2.

The new world record was 4:19.7.

Canada's team followed in 4:28.3. Swimming for Canada were Helen Stewart of Vancouver, Gladys Priestley of Verdun, Que., Sara Barber of Brantford, and Virginia Grant of Toronto.

David Theile scored for Australia in the men's 100-metre backstroke final, beating out teammate John Monckton and breaking the Olympic record of 1:03.4. Frank McKinney of Indianapolis saved the bronze medal for the United States.

Japan's first victory in the Olympic pool came when Masaru Furukawa broke his own Olympic record in winning the men's 200-metre breaststroke.

The 20-year-old Japanese, who swims under the surface most of the way, won in 2:34.7, breaking the record 2:36.1 he made at Helsinki in 1952.

As usual, he submarined at the gun and did not surface for 40 metres—for one quick breath.

AT THE BELLE — Richard Egan takes on Elvis Presley as a romantic rival, with lovely Debra Paget, as the No. 1 girl in Twentieth Century-Fox's suspenseful CinemaScope film "Love Me Tender" which opens today at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE McCARTHY — Jane Greer and Richard Widmark have the romantic leads in the adventure drama, "Run For The Sun," United Artists release which opens today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. The picture was filmed on location in Mexico in Supercope and Technicolor. 2nd feature is the gay comedy hit "Who Done It?" featuring Benny Hill and Belinda Lee.

Belleville Minor Hockey Association

The Midgets and Squirts returned to action in BMHA play at Memorial Arena last night with seven games being played.

SQUIRT

The Bruins squeezed out a 3-2 victory over the Canadiens with Bobby Lancaster netting two goals for the winners. Richard Foster also scored. Hurst and Brian Smith tallied for the Canadiens.

Maple Leafs rolled to a 3-1 triumph over the Black Hawks. Larry Stewart, Donnie Caron and Edward LaPalm each fired one goal while Donald McCormick tallied for the Hawks.

Rangers racked up a 4-0 shutout over the Barons with Billie Hallam in the starring role. Hallam scored three of his club's goals while the other went to Bob Pursey.

MIDGET

Jimmie Pointer led the Red Wings to a 6-0 victory over the Browns. Pointer racked up a three-goal hat trick while James Pringle, Bobby Butcher and Don Adams fired a goal each.

MIDGET

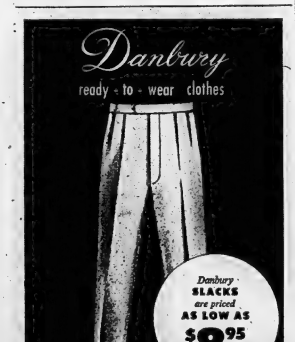
Team Five whipped Team Four 8-1. John Brennan spearheaded Team Five's attack with two goals and two assists while Earle MacDonald had two goals and one helper. Bernie Boulter had one and one while S. McMillin also scored twice. L. Carmichael fired the other goal and assists went to Pointer, Thompson, Wade and Harvey. Ivo Regent was the lone marksman for Team Four.

Teams Six and One fought to a 2-2 deadlock. Boulter and L. Mavety scored for Team One while Poste had an assist. D. Valcamp and L. Westfall scored the Team Six markers while D. Moreau had one helper.



Team Three had the only midget shutout, blanking Team Two by a 5-0 count. Billy McGuire, Trudeau, Larry Hull, Bowerman and Hunter were the marksmen. G. Duncan, Ejbier and Moore had assists.

Barbara Lang Signed by MGM Although Paramount Took Test

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The latest Hollywood success story concerns a beauteous blonde who was told once that she would never walk again.

Shapely, healthy-looking Barbara Lang has walked right into an MGM contract. Today she's preparing to play the sole female role as Jack Palance's wife and sister - in - law (she plays dual roles) in The House of Numbers.

"I always knew I was going to be an actress," she recalled. "Even when I was a girl in Eagle Rock, (a suburb of Los Angeles), I used to organize plays in which I would star and direct. Then I'd go around the neighborhood collecting two cents from the grown-ups to see the show."

After high school she acted in little theatres and did some night club singing. Then tragedy struck.

"One morning I woke up with pains in my back and neck and I couldn't remember having done anything to strain them."

The doctor found she had polio. Soon her body was rigid except for her toes. She was even unable to close her eyes.

"But I was lucky. At least I could breathe. Some of the other patients had been in iron lungs for months."

She said that doctors dispaired of her ever using her legs again —but she didn't.

Not a religious zealot, Barbara says she has a firm faith in God. She prayed often and read the Bible.

After months of treatment, she was once again able to walk and tests proved she was able to be discharged from the hospital.

Anxious to get back to her career, she took long walks and did night club singing to earn some money for an assault on the studios. Returning, she found work in TV films like Death Valley Days, My Little Margie and the Bob Cummings show.

Survey Shows Eating Habits Of Children Affected by TV

NEW YORK (AP)—Now here's an interesting survey. True, it's a publicity gambit, but a legitimate one. It shows something of how children's eating habits are affected by television.

The facts and figures were learned by questioning 1,000 kids who went with their parents to eat at Don Rob's new Blackhawk Restaurant in Chicago. Here are some of the things the bemused proprietor discovered:

In less than one week 2 kids were observed eating only the crusts of their bread. Why? "The man on TV said it's good for your teeth."

During one noon-day period at the restaurant eight of 11 children asked for a special new flavor of gelatin advertised just that morning on a highly rated children's show.

Many requested name - brand sauces and condiments to "freshen up" the flavor of their meal. This invariably surprised their parents, who said the youngsters must have seen the products on television because they never asked for such things at home.

AT THE PARK — Here's "Doc" mixing his home-made brew o Scotch whiskey while Mister Roberts and Ensign Pulver watc intently in a scene from the Warner Bros. production of th six-year stage success, "Mister Roberts" opening tonight at th Park Theatre. Henry Fonda plays the title roll, William Powel is "Doc" and Pulver is played by Jack Lemon, win ner of Academy Award as best supporting actor. On the sam program and having its first Belleville showing, a story of th fighting saga of a commando team of ten, "They Who Dare". A thrill a minute story in Technicolor featuring an all star cas

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, December 7, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Yesterday's strong Mars' aspect should continue to give you incentive and ambition for further achievement, personal attainment. You may be able to make some unusual contact now. Try!

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Stability, geniality stressed. Have faith in the goals for which you work; others will help. Force thought is necessary to success.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — You may encounter delay, things that could disturb your plans, but overcome a temptation to "duck" it. Stay with your problems until you have conquered. The returns will be more satisfying.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Often the nicest things come from the least expected sources. Don't leave any stone unturned in your quest for truth, for more knowledge, steady, worthwhile advancement. Day's rays help.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Be extra careful about taking suggestions or following others' ideas for the handling of your problems. Each to his own; what is good for one may not be for others. Make haste slowly.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — You may have to make important decisions, carry out difficult assignments, so be sure you have all the details, know all the angles. Avoid unpleasant discussions, needless worry.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — You may be troubled in some departments now. Pride and temperament could upset a prosperous applecart. Check. See if records are exact. Don't give in to dissatisfactions, but work for higher goals.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — You are often inclined to take on too many activities at one time, or to take on too many details of one activity in which others should help. Sensibly restrict action now for the sake of health, future work.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Mixed vibrations. Be tactful in what you say, how you answer questions and give information. Be considerate — but not easily deceived or oversold.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — While your especial planet Saturn is not notably aspected now, it is going to an auspicious configuration tomorrow. Attend to small items quickly; do not waste motion; plan astutely.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — In a manner much like that suggested for Capricorn, attend to day's chores promptly, maintaining an even tempo, however. Support authority, responsibility, true progress.

February 20 to March 20— (Pisces) — Day promises some excellent advantages in your line of work. Make a quiet survey, reflect on possible results and, when satisfied, go ahead confidently to earn success.

You born today have little patience with those who are indecisive or unpredictable; you never vague or time wasting yourself. You are self-reliant, enterprising, outspoken, progressive in action. You aim directly at a mark, dislike devious or roundabout methods; may be too blunt at times, but innately are honest, reliable. Salespersons,, brokers, photographers, teachers, religious, promoters, artists are prominent in Sagittarius. Birthdate of: Allen Cunningham, Scot, author.

UN Request For Additional Troops Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — Details of a United Nations request for additional Canadian troops for Middle East duty may be announced today, Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, UN emergency force commander may want more men than the two infantry corps members he asked for last July.

Eternal Affairs Minister Pearson Wednesday told reporters the government of the 13th parliament of Canada was awaiting further information from Gen. Burns before it decides.

"The information is expected to morrow," Mr. Pearson said, following a cabinet meeting. "Possibly sooner" than the 150 signalmen would be requested, he added.

Trade Minister Howe, acting prime minister, told reporters a statement likely will be issued after the cabinet meeting. Another cabinet meeting would be held later this week to approve the UN request.

WILL COMPLY

"We'll comply with the request whatever it is," Mr. Howe said, "but I don't know what we expect," Mr. Howe said.

Defence Minister Campney said last week there were 627 Canadians with the UN Middle East force also available for 50 signallers. Parliament has authorized a total of 1,000-man contingent for UN duty.

In reply to reporters' questions, Mr. Pearson said Wednesday that movement of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles depends on what other contributions the UN asks from Canada. The battalion, which was originally designated as the main element of Canada's contribution, has been waiting at Halifax.

Upset Stomach; Nerves On Edge, Couldn't Sleep Until She Took Syntona

Mrs. Jean Thurbee, 1182 King Street, London, Ontario, said in a recent interview:

"I was feeling so tired and nervous all the time that I didn't know what to do. I suffered with indigestion, constipation, dizziness, headaches and headaches. Many nights I would be awake until 3 or 4 a.m. and I would get up feeling as tired as when I went to bed. Pains in my limbs and joints

Took Friends Advice

"I decided to try Syntona after a friend recommended it and I am glad I gave me such good results that I am glad to tell others about it. Not only is the stomach condition relieved, but my nerves are calmed down so that I can sleep. I am now relieved of headaches, and backache and feel so much better that even my work seems easier.

"I am sure Syntona will help you as it has so many others! Syntona acts on the digestive system to relieve gas, sour stomach, distress of acids and poisonous matter. It relieves constipation, helps food and helps tone up entire system.

Syntona is easy to take.

U.S. Government Will Study Need For Aid To Allies

Begins Major Policy Review In Light of Suez Closing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration is beginning a major policy review from which may emerge recommendations for a new program of dollar aid to allies in Western Europe.

High United States officials are deeply worried both by the widening breach between Britain and France following the Egyptian crisis and by the impact on those countries of the closing of the Suez Canal and the loss of Middle Eastern oil.

Some authorities believe the U.S. may be confronted with a choice between a new program in the pattern of the Marshall Plan to restore the unity and strengthen the economic base of the North Atlantic Alliance. None contemplates now any such spending for European aid as the $4,000,000,000 a year which the Marshall plan cost.

NIXON SPEECH

Vice-President Nixon may have had the possibility of some new program in mind when, in a New York speech Thursday night, he referred to Britain's financial troubles and declared:

"I believe it is to our interest as well as theirs to assist them in this hour of difficulty. I am confident that there will be strong bipartisan support in the Congress for granting such assistance."

While Nixon did not say so, a recommendation for such aid also would have to encounter the strong opposition in Congress, which has been increasingly reluctant to vote purely economic aid to Europe.

At Augusta, Ga., where President Eisenhower is on vacation his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, said Eisenhower had not seen Nixon's speech in advance, but "the vice-president knows the policies of the president."

The current policy review, however, covers a wider field than possible new economic aid, it embraces the possibilities of broader if greater share of the cost of free-world defences and of liberalized trade with such countries as Britain and France. It includes also the concept of a more sympathetic U.S. attitude toward allied actions not in line with American desires, as in the case of the Anglo-French-British intervention in Egypt.

More Arrests Are Expected In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—Special branch detectives today continued their large-scale investigation of alleged high treason and sedition in the country.

More arrests were expected today; two days ago 140 persons were imprisoned and charged with high treason, sedition and participation of the Communist and Nationa Assembly Acts.

(High treason has a different meaning in South Africa than the generally accepted meaning of betraying one's country to another. South Africa regards internal opposition as high treason.)

No details of the charges against any of the arrested have been disclosed so far. Six of the persons said today they had not been supplied with details of any charges against them.

The cases were treated bail by the Witwatersrand Supreme Court in Johannesburg. Petitions for other persons were denied bail Thursday and Wednesday.

Seventy-five persons arrested in the raids appeared in Johannesburg magistrate's court today on allegations of treason. They were remanded until Dec. 19, when all 140 will appear at a preliminary hearing.

Trial for high treason need not be carried out before a jury in South Africa if the attorney-general considers that the ends of justice would be defeated by a jury trial.

High treason in South Africa is a common-law offence and is not defined by statute. The accepted definition is that "high treason is committed by any subject who hostile intention disturb, impair or endanger the independence or safety of the state or attempt to actively prepare for such ends."

The penalty for high treason rests with the court. The penal code lays down that it may be death by hanging, but the court at its discretion may pass a lighter sentence such as a fine, imprisonment or corporal punishment.

Theoretically a person found guilty of high treason can be let off with a warning or a few days in jail.

Meanwhile, the Anglican bishop of Grahamstown, Rt. Rev. Archbald Cullen, was reported considering what help can be provided for the defence of two Anglican native ministers.

Today's Chuckle

If the boss practised what he preaches, he'd work his fool self to death.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The slow moving weather system, which dominates the weather picture in Central and Southern Ontario, continues to linger in the Great Lakes region. A long period of precipitation, associated with this system, covers a line from Ottawa southwestward to St. Louis, Mo.

Temperatures should begin to drop during the evening and the province will be covered by the cold air mass when clear skies during night the temperature ropped to well below zero.

Northern Ontario is now in this old air and with clear skies during night the temperature ropped to well below zero.

3 PC CANDIDATES FOR LEADERSHIP READY FOR BALLOT

Observers Believe Diefenbaker Will Win

OTTAWA (CP)—The three candidates for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party approach next week's convention with confident claims of success.

The three, all Commons members and lawyers, have made strong bids: John Diefenbaker, 61, of Prince Albert, Sask.; Davie Fulton, 40, of Kamloops, B.C., and Donald Fleming, 51, of Toronto Eglinton constituency.

Some 1,400 delegates, of a total 1,472 eligible to vote at the three day convention starting Wednesday at the Coliseum here, will decide the issue next Friday.

Balloting is secret, unlike United States political conventions where delegates stand and are counted. Thus there is no discipline which would force delegates back a certain candidate.

DIEFENBAKER FAVORED

Published opinions of most political writers and observers here say that Mr. Diefenbaker has the best chance. They see the likelihood, with only three in the field, of no immediate majority winner must get a majority of all votes cast.

Chances of a free-for-all contest among many candidates have been discussed for days. The three declared candidates have taken up the challenge from those who feel contenders might hope for the leadership at 1942 and 1948 conventions. This time he has conducted a low-pressure campaign, stating fairly well out of the way. Many party supporters have lined up the delegates and made the claims of success.

These claims have been disputed by the other two candidates, who have superseded their own causes in extensive speaking tours and political meetings across the country.

EXPECT TO WIN

Campaigner Wm. Fleming said he thinks he has "excellent chances" of winning. Mr. Fulton has been quiet on the rumour he is on and I expect to win."

Diefenbaker candidate has been George Nowlan, 58-year-old parte stalwart and former minister president of the party association. As MP for Digby-Annapolis-Kings he has been active in the Commons for Nova Scotia. The province can send a maximum of 16 votes delegates to the convention, and the four Atlantic provinces, where he could expect his main support, can send 225.

But Mr. Nowlan has stayed on the sidelines, neither declaring himself in the race or not so far. Observers see this hesitancy as costing him votes in his own province before it goes to others.

Leon Balcer, 39-year-old MP for Trois-Rivieres, Que., announced Nov. 21 he was a candidate but dropped out a week later, since it was important that he continue his functions as president of the party's national association.

QUEBEC SUPPORT NEEDED

Mr. Balcer's support would have gone chiefly from the nine of 10 Quebec delegates. Opinions now differ on whether Quebec will play the biggest share of the Quebec member's supporters.

Iraq's Aged Strong Man Weakens Despite His Harsh Police Measures

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

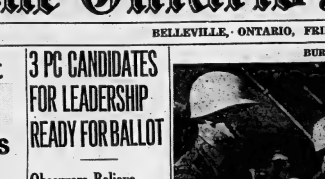
Nuri Said, 68-year-old premier of the country which is an important key to the future of the whole Middle East, appears to have his back to the wall.

Like a man preparing for an impending storm, Nuri has arrested and confined a number of opposition leaders. He has kept all secondary schools and colleges closed since the outbreak of fighting in Egypt to prevent student rioting.

He has clamped down rigid martial law, transforming Iraq into what the literate population considers a total and often harsh police state.

He has imposed the strictest of military and civilian censorship on the local press and on foreign correspondents.

This writer has just returned from Baghdad after talking to dozens of Iraqis, all the way from intellectuals to peasants, to diplomatists, journalists, businessmen and members of Iraq's smallclass of professional people.



The conclusion is inescapable.

At least 90 per cent of the literate population—and Iraq—perhaps more—oppose Nuri.

Seasoned observers of the Middle East consider that Nuri—

It may not be tomorrow. It may not be next week or next year. But it is inevitable that Nuri will fall. When that comes, anything can happen. Anarchy may strike through of Iraq's strong man has kept the country from hurtling toward chaos.

All sorts of agents — Syrian, Egyptian, Communist and home-grown nationalist extremists—operate under Nuri's nose in Iraq in the Baghdad pact. It is the only Arab member of that pro-Western, anti-Soviet alliance.

BURNS INSPECTS CANADIANS

Major-General E. L. M. Burns of Ottawa, commander of the United Nations police force, inspects Canadian guard-of-honor at Abu Suweir in Egypt where Canadians are serving with the force. Behind Gen. Burns is Major T. R. Green of Ottawa and at left is Sgt. Alex. Lafferty of Fort Simpson, N.W.T. (CP from National Defence.)

Forty Hungarian Athletes Remain Behind in Australia

MELBOURNE (AP) — Eighty-three grim-faced Hungarian athletes and officials flew out of Melbourne and the Olympic Games tonight aboard a French airliner.

Empty seats in the plane bore silent witness to the Hungarian tragedy.

Originally the passenger list called for 91 members of the team and an undetermined number—possibly 40 or more—chose to cut their ties with their Soviet-style aged homeland and seek freedom in Australia or North America.

A record plane with a scheduled passenger list of 60 flies out Saturday. Then the full extent of the defections from Hungary will become clearer.

Left behind tonight were such noted Hungarian sports figures as swimming coach Mihaly Iglai and Laszlo Tabori, four-minute miler.

Other great figures in the Hungarian sports world are expected to leave the group at Milan, Italy, the last stop before London, for from that Italian city the team moves by train to Harwich and a plane cloud-it in uncertainty.

Most of those who left tonight are expected to be turned back or asked straight ahead. Some preceded in predicament was endless and waves of farewell. One athlete stopped to embrace a woman at the rails near the end and both broke into tears. After they had boarded the plane the crowd sang the Hungarian national anthem.

Many of the male athletes and officials proudly wore the old Kossuth shield of the 1848 revolution on their jackets. Some also bore black ribbons of mourning pinned to the shield. Others wore no insignia at all.

Hungary's Olympic water polo players will go to the United States instead of returning to Hungary. James W. Greene, acting chairman of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union, said today the team will go with him for an exhibition tour to raise funds for Hungarian refugee relief.

Among the group flying out Thursday night were Istvan Rosznyoszki, weight lifter from Budapest; Jozsef Czermak, 1932 Olympic hammer throw champion; Sandor Bozsnyak, steeplechase world record holder; and Jozsef Kovacs, distance runner.

One girl gymnast, Alice Keresztes, 20, who decided to remain behind, bade farewell to her teammates today.

A Hungarian team spokesman said many refugees now living in Australia have talked of returning after things settle down. Hungary, sending messages to loved ones still in Hungary.

Reliable sources among the Hungarians themselves say that many of the group returning are of younger people with some position in the Hungarian Communist party, whose feelings about the present turmoil in their native land are unclear.

UN Security Council Seat For Year Won by Philippines

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) The Philippines won a first-ballot victory today over Czechoslovakia for a one-year term on the United Nations Security Council.

The vote in the 79-member General Assembly was 51 for the Philippines, 26 for Czechoslovakia, Afghanistan 1, Spain 1 and Yugoslavia 1.

The Philippines had just one vote more than the two-thirds required, and therefore the 54 affirmative votes were cast.

Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister Vassily Kuznetsov immediately protested that the election discriminated against the Communist bloc. The seat which The Philippines will now occupy previously had been held by Eastern European Countries.

SERVED HALF TERM

Yugoslavia will vacate the seat Dec. 31 after serving half the term of a normal two-year term under a private agreement reached last year to break a deadlock between Yugoslavia and The Philippines.

Kuznetsov, taking the floor immediately after this morning's vote, said the U.S.S.R. and the Communist bloc constituted a "crude violation" of the UN charter's provision that the council's membership should be based on equitable geographic distribution.

Kuznetsov earlier had warned that, unless the assembly elected Czechoslovakia, he would vote any proposal to enlarge the 11-member council to take into account the admission of 19 new UN members in the last year.

BANS XMAS TREES

NORTH ADAMS, Mass. (AP)—There will be no Christmas trees in the schools of North Adams this year. Fire Chief Arthur A. Girard has banned them as a fire hazard under power granted him by law to regulate the safety of buildings used by the public.

Big New Wave Of Refugees Anticipated

VIENNA (Reuters) — Austrian officials expect a big new wave of refugees to arrive in the next few days as a result of increased tension in Hungary.

Reports reaching Vienna today from Hungarian border areas have spoken of the guarding of the Parliament Buildings in Budapest.

At each entrance door stand two Russian guards with sweeping-guns at the ready. Visitors were being allowed everywhere in the building except into rooms occupied by Premier Janos Kadar, Two armed Russians turned away anyone who came near.

—Other reports said government posters set out in Budapest were being torn down or defaced within minutes of their appearance and that sellers of government newspapers were having their stocks of papers dumped into drains by crowds.

Refugees say Russian troops in Hungary appear hastily fed. There had been cases when they called at bakeries and bowsy-guns for a loaf of bread.

Before the uprising Russian troops in Hungary lived off the land, but now there was no food to be had and Russian transport of food was irregular.

Fuel Shortage In Britain Causes Heavy Layoffs

LONDON (Reuters) — About 1,500 British workers have been laid off and another 40,000 put on shortened weeks as a result of the fuel shortage.

In announcing this official estimate in the House of Commons Labor Minister Iain Macleod said most of the workers were hit by the automobile industry. He did not think other industries would be seriously hit.

Bus, taxi, and freight services all over the country are contemplating increasing their charges to offset the new and sharply higher price of around six shillings a gallon.

London transport officials spent Thursday discussing fare increases to meet an extra £2,960,000 bill imposed on them for the running of their 8,000 buses and Underground.

In Edinburgh, the Scottish omnibus company decided to apply for permission to raise fares by 12½ per cent.

The nationalized trucking industry has announced a surcharge of 10 per cent on all charges for general haulage, parcels and tank haulage effective from today.

The Shell-Mex and Bamber price is beginning to force private cars off the road, and the lines of motorists outside garages were dwindling today.

No Relief Seen For Big Freeze Throughout West

EDMONTON (CP) — Temperatures are rising slightly in the West. They may even struggle up above zero at some places today.

But generally the big freeze continues. There was no relief in sight today with no major relief in sight. It's still bitterly cold from the Great Lakes to the Pacific coast.

Here is a sampling of overnight temperatures:

Twenty below at the Lakehead, Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton; 30 below at Kenora and Brandon; 30 below at Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Saskatoon; 40 below at Red Deer in central Alberta.

TORONTO (CP)—A solid, self-sanctatone mansion in central Toronto has seen a wide variety of tenants but its doors were open today to the most unusual group of all—134 displaced Hungarians.

Half of them—28 children and 20 adults—arrived by plane and bus Thursday to the former home of Sir William Mulock when Ontario government and the Red Cross converted it in three days of reception centre capable of handling 150 persons.

An equal number was to arrive today, second phase in the vanguard of more than 4,000 expected to settle in Ontario this year.

When heavy fog prevented the first group's Trans-Canada Air Lines plane from landing at nearby Malton airport it was rerouted to Windsor, where buses waited to bring them to Toronto.

Sympathetic welfare workers helped them down from the muddy-coated bus. They threaded their way through crowds of people of Hungarian descent, newsmen and photographers to be welcomed by Planning Minister Rickie and Premier Leslie Frost.

The house where the reception centre is located was the home of Sir William Mulock in its palmiest days. Later it became a Barnardo home—one of a chain organized by Dr. Thomas Barnardo, orphans established in Canada.

After the Second World War a reception centre for refugees was located there for returning servicemen. Then the Salvation Army used it as a national head office until a new building was completed.

Before the recent activity it has been virtually derelict waiting the arrival of wreckers. It will make way for a new apartment or office building.

Eden's Prospects Uncertain As 15 Refuse Support

Government Wins 2 Votes Despite Die-Hards' Revolt

LONDON (Reuters) — Sir Anthony Eden's prospects of remaining prime minister remained the big subject of speculation in public and private today after 15 Conservative members of Parliament revolted and refused to back a government confidence vote in the House of Commons.

The die-hard "Suez group" bitterly opposed the decision to withdraw British and French troops from Egypt. Their refusal to support the government's policy might led many politicans and newspapers to report a big backbench de-cotes move to topple Eden without bringing down the government.

The government won two votes after a two-day debate on its Middle Eastern policy. First it defeated by 327 to 260—a majority of 67—a Labor censure motion. Then it went on to win the confidence vote 312 to 260—a majority of 52.

WANT NEW LEADER

The "Suez rebels" have not hidden their belief that Eden, now in Jamaica on a three-week rest, should be replaced by a new leader before the withdrawal of Egyptian withdrawal.

Some political observers say leaders are confident of the future and pleased with the small number of Conservatives who abstained.

Eden will return from Jamaica Labor Thursday and be in the House of Commons the following Monday.

His decision to fly home touched some speculation that he might present President Eisenhower before his return.

The government's determination to stay in office despite the dissensions within the party and the Labor Opposition's calls to "resign," was made plain by senior ministers during Thursday's debate.

HAS "A LONG LIFE"

R. A. Butler, Lord Privy Seal, who has been acting as chairman of the cabinet during Eden's absence, declared: "This government has a long life before it."

Harold Macmillan, Chancellor of the Exchequer, referred bluntly to the "next 2½ years that this government is in power."

The statements were taken as an indication that the government has decided against calling an early general election.

During the debate Butler discounted rumors that Eden intends to resign on recovery in Britain. He declared that Eden "remains the head of the government. . . .

It is a fact that the British government is being carried on and will be carried on with the unabated back to the prime minister when he returns to this country."

BOY SHOOTS SELF

OAKVILLE (CP)—A 16-year-old boy shot himself accidentally in the stomach hitch-hiked to hospital Thursday and waited 20 minutes for the doctor before telling what had happened.

Police said William Thomas was target shooting with a .22-calibre rifle when the gun accidentally discharged. The boy was reported in good condition. The bullet lodged in the back of the stomach.

Dutch Store Keeps Its Word, Sells Giraffe

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — A large department store will sell a giraffe to a local zoo which took seriously a publicity man's stunt.

One of the store's Christmas ads said: "We can sell you anything, including a live giraffe, for 7,500 guilders ($2,100)."

A few days later the store received a letter from the zoo stating that the price was satisfactory. It was therefore ordering one "giraffa camelopardalis reticulata."

The store scraped around and finally managed to buy a spare giraffe from a German animal dealer, but took a considerable loss on the deal.

The ad writer was basing his figure on the costs of giraffes 10 years ago. Like everything else, the cost of giraffes has gone up since then.

Fire on Train Kills Motorman Injures Forty

CHICAGO (AP) — A sudden fire on a moving four-car wooden-body elevated train today killed the motorman and injured an estimated 40 passengers.

The Chicago Transit Authority train was bound from suburban Evanston to downtown Chicago. The fire burst forth as the train made the half-hour sizing of cars neared the Howard Street station, just inside the north city limits.

Russell Lane, Associated Press reporter who was riding in the second car, said the blaze, confined to the first two cars, threw passengers into a panic.

"I got out of the car, where the blaze started, 'went up like Smoke.' He said some passengers in the forward car fought their way to other cars while others crawled through closed windows to the elevated right-of-way.

The train came to a halt south of the station, and passengers fled to safety.

EAGLE EATS WOLVES

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — A golden eagle which was lassoed and captured by the wife of a trapper several weeks ago is fanning with a strange diet—wolf-meat. Trapper Dub Fite says the big bird eats a wolf every day. He traps the animals.

CITY and DISTRICT NEWS

STORK PAYS VISIT TO BELLEVILLE COUPLE

The stork with the maple leaf markings made a record number of deliveries to families of the 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade group in Germany in October.

Born on October 31 to Lance Corporal and Mrs. William Jack son, 1st Battalion, The Royal Canadian Regiment, of Belleville, was a daughter.

The Canadian section at the British Military Hospital, Iserlohn, reports 26 boys and 18 girls were born in Canadian couples during the month. The previous record was set in June when 39 young sters arrived.

3 KITTENS, 3 DOGS ARE IN CITY FOUND

Three kittens and three dogs are in the Belleville city pound. Included are black grey and pure white kittens. Dogs in the pound are a male golden retriever, a male part cocker spaniel and fox terrier, and a black retriever puppy. Permanent homes for all the animals would be appreciated.

NO UNACCOMPANIED HUNGARIAN CHILDREN COMING TO CANADA

The Children's Aid Society in Belleville has been receiving numerous calls from people who would like to adopt Hungarian children being brought into Canada as refugees from their war-torn homeland.

This morning Bruce M. Kerr, director of the society said, "We are glad to be contacted by responsible authority that the only refugee children now entering Canada are those travelling with their own families, and indications are that no unaccompanied Hungarian children, available for adoption, at present are being brought to Canada.

"Should the situation change and sponsors for children are sought, interested persons will be informed through a notice in the press."

No County Road System Now in North Townships

The Hastings county roads system covers only the south nine of twenty four townships today as part of their final session held this week councillors gave approval to the deletion of two North Hastings sections of county roads.

One of the county roads is the north — that passing through Coe Hill and running from the new highway to meet up with development road 504 at the west boundary of Wollaston township — will be taken over by the Ontario Highways Department, while the other — what is known as the Detor Road — will revert to Dungannon township.

This leaves Hastings with county roads only in the south nine townships and, according to councillors, will mean a more compact system and will make construction the keeping of maintenance equipment in the south.

BRIDGE DELETED

A county bridge in the village of Bancroft over the York River, was also deleted from the county system at the request of Reeve J. J. Brown who is seeking to have the present one-way structure replaced by a new bridge next summer. Doe Lake township, Mineral development of the area in the north and of Bancroft was causing a serious bottleneck.

It was felt that the village would be able to secure quicker action in getting a new bridge constructed than would the county.

County engineer Gordon Sherman, Reeve Treacy Adams of Dungannon township and a great deal of work had been done to get the Wollaston county road taken over by the Highways Department.

CONDITIONS MET

He noted that the only condition on which the department would take over the Coe Hill road was for the county to make a cash grant to Dungannon township to assist in rebuilding the feeder road and then allow this road to revert to the township.

During the session council voted a grant of $10,000 to Dungannon township. This will be met by a 70 per cent grant from the province and the three-and-a-quarter mile feeder road will be rebuilt and provided with a permanent top.

With the county roads system now confined to the south nine townships, it is understood that North Hastings in the future will be able to aid in the roads and bridges committee unless he happens to be warden.

Under regulations no council members whose municipality does not belong to the county roads system can sit on that committee. The warden sits on all committees.

Police Court

Charged with a third offence of causing a disturbance in a public place by being drunk, a local man was sent to jail for three months this morning when Magistrate T. Y. Wills convicted him.

Garry Lewis, member of a gang of city and district youths who are alleged to have broken into several stores in the city and county, this morning was placed on probation for two years when he faced the magistrate for sentencing. Magistrate Wills told him to report back to court next Friday to learn the amount of restitution he is to pay to each. Others in the gang will be tried next Friday.

It was learned this morning that ex-police chief Charles Lockwood of Marmora, started his 1-year sentence in Kingston penitentiary last Monday. Lockwood recently was found guilty by a jury of stealing $8,500 from the Marmora post office in August.

Senior Citizens Celebrate Fourth Birthday of Club

The Senior Citizens of Belleville Club celebrated, Wednesday evening last, the occasion being the fourth birthday of the club. A short meeting was held before the arrival of Mayor Jane Forrester, who had been invited to officiate in cutting the birthday cake. The Queen was sung and the birthdays song for those celebrating in December.

Upon the arrival of Mayor Forrester, she was received by those present and she was asked to address the club. Mayor Forrester stated that among other things to come before council for discussion was the provision of a meeting place for the various organizations that come under the guidance of the recreation commission, and she hoped such a building would soon be provided.

Lloyd Doran, director of recreation for the city, addressed the meeting and said he was more than pleased with the success of the club, for which he felt he had a big share in organizing. Mr. VanTassel of the recreation commission,also spoke briefly, and wished the club every success and asked the club for support for the projected meeting place.

Entertainment was provided by Helen Cook who sang one song, appropriate to the festive season, and then led the meeting in singing some of the favorite carols heard at this time of the year. Miss Cook was accompanied by Mrs. J. G. Demorse, and the ladies were thanked by chairman Field and were heartily applauded.

PAST PRESIDENT IN CHAIR

Owing to the serious illness of President Field, past president Jim Brennan, past president Leslie Field was chairman of the meeting. He was ably supported by all executive members, Mesdames Cooke, Demorse, Hagerman and Thomson, and Messrs. Budreau, Preston and Thomson.

Any meeting of Senior Citizens would not be complete without the usual social hour, and 11 tables played six games, the winning being Mrs. A. Thorn, Mrs. L. Adams, Mrs. A. West and Geo. McWilliams. The prizes were donated by Mrs. E. Turner.

To round out a splendid evening refreshments were served by Mrs. F. Cooke, ably assisted by ladies of the club.

Miners' Wage Hike Will Boost Coal Prices

A new anthracite wage agreement has been consummated between the United Mine Workers of America and the anthracite producers, effective December 1, it provides among other things an increase in vacation pay, time and a half rates for work on any double day time for Sundays and holidays.

When questioned today as to what effect the new agreement will have on the domestic market, a local dealer stated that the consumer price will be increased very shortly. The coal dealers in Belleville have already had a previous raise in the mine price plus the increase in the American freight rates but this will have to be passed on to the consumer, although they will absorb a portion of it.

HISTORIC MEET

Canada's first political party convention is believed the one called by George Brown for the Reform party in 1859.

Knight Templars To Hold Service

King Baldwin Preceptory is keeping up the custom enjoined on Knights Templar to hold Christmas Observances in the Belleville Temple on Sunday, December 9.

The proceedings will consist of a brief religious service at which Eminent Knight W. B. Humphrey will be the special speaker and Mrs. Fred Newman the guest soloist.

Knight Templary first came into being during the early Crusades, and present ceremonies use them as a basis. On the revival of Freemasonry in 1717 many Christians demanded a branch of the order that should be opened to their faith only, as membership in the craft is open to free men who believe in a Supreme Being regardless of method of worship.

Any mason is invited to attend this function.

Belleville Man Helped Write War History

The "Official History of the Canadian Medical Service, 1939-1945," written by Lieut.-Col. W. P. Feasby, BA., MD, recently off the press, is receiving acclaim from book reviewers.

As Lt. Col. John R. Walker stated in a review of the Toronto Globe and Mail: "Dr. Feasby's book will rank high among the official histories of Canadian participation in the Second World War already written and those yet to be written in the future. It should find a place in the library of every regular and militia mess across Canada."

Of particular interest to Belleville readers is the fact that among army officers who assisted Dr. Feasby in the preparation of material for the book is one time Belleville resident, Major John C. Morrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Morrison, Dundas St. The Ontario School for the Deaf here.

Major Morrison, (Honor History University of Toronto) graduated from Belleville Collegiate Institute in 1930. He served overseas for five years with the Royal Canadian Artillery, and is now posted at army headquarters in Ottawa.

Dr. Feasby in his preface states: "The editor wishes to express special thanks to his staff, without whose assistance this work could not have been completed. In Ottawa Lieut.-Col. C. P. McCabe, CD, MD, CM; Major J. C. Morrison, BSA; W. A. Riddell, MD, and J. P. McLaughlin Ph. D. assisted with the various sections.

"Lieut. Col. McCabe prepared the chapters on the Canadian Army overseas in the Mediterranean campaign, North-West Europe. Dr. McLaughlin prepared the chapters dealing with the RCAF medical branch. Other chapters and sections were prepared by civil and military organizations concerned in Toronto.

SPACE FOR PARKING

TORONTO (CP)—John Walker, Metropolitan Toronto Parking Authority manager, said Thursday space will be provided for 1,300 cars by 1958 under the rite of a projected mile-ugly hall. Plans for a $8,000,000 underground garage below the city hall site are being drawn up.

IN MEMORIAM

TOPPING. — In loving memory of William Henry Topping, who passed away December 9th, 1955.
Like falling leaves the years pass by,
But our love for you will never die;
Though we cannot see you as we would,
But memory turns back every day;
—Sadly missed by wife and daughter, Jessie.

BELCH. — In fond and loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Belch, who passed away December 7th, 1954.
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day;
But never here can one we love,
From memory pass away.
—Sadly missed by daughters Helen, Edna and Marjorie.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Senior base metals led the stock market into its sixth straight session of advancing prices today as the market moved narrowly ahead.

Industrials were led higher by steels. Atlas gained 1¼ points while Canada Iron, Canadian Vickers, Dominion Steel, Steico and Hamilton Steel Car added fractions.

Steep Rock added ⅞ among senior base metals while Falcon bridge was up ⅜, Hudson Bay gained ½ but International Nickel lost ⅜.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged today.

The egg market was unsteady on A large and in excess of poor demand. Other grades steady with fair demand.

Quotations, provided by the Dominion department of agriculture: Eggs, in fibre cases, graded: A large 37-38; A medium 31-32; A small 26; B 31; C 26. Wholesale to retail: A large 42-43; A medium 31-32; A small 25 26; B 36; C 31.

Butter solids: Canada, first grade, Ontario tenderable 58, nontenderable 58½; western 58½ (nominal). No trading reported.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trade on slaughter steers and heifers this week was dull at prices steady to last week's high at the Ontario public stockyards. Cows were 50 cents a hundredweight higher.

Calves gained a hundredweight. Hog prices were unchanged. Sheep and lambs advanced 25-50 cents a hundredweight.

Cattle receipts were 3,200 head fewer than last week and about 1,400 head less than the same week in 1955. Western receipts were 1,400 head fewer than last week at 1,243 head. Western stock calves totalled 875 head compared with 908 last week. The western were mostly replacements.

There were no exports to the United States. An estimated 1,200 cattle will be unsold at the close, consisting of stockers, feeders and a few common killers. The dressed beef trade is reported as only fair.

Poor quality continued to dominate the cattle. Despite the low quality, the trade had more punch than at any time in the last several weeks with the estimated carryover the lowest since the first week in August.

Steers sold well. Heifers have shown fractional gains in the past several weeks.

Prices

Mixed good and choice steers $19.50-20.50, choice to $21; medium $16-18.50; common $12-15; medium heifers $12-15; good heifers $17, odd tops to $17.50. Cows common $10-12; boner steers and heifers $8-10; choice fed yearlings $23-24; good fed yearlings $22-22.50; medium $17-21; good cows $10-10.50, odd top to $11; medium $9-10; common $8-9; canner and cutter $6-8; good heavy bologna bulls $12-12.50; common and medium light bulls down to $8.

Replacement cattle met a season demand at steady prices. Demand was centred around medium grade with most sales ranging from $14-16 a hundredweight. Good kind of stockers were up to $18.50, stock calves up to $19.50, common $12-14.

Calves were active and $1 a hundredweight higher with a shortage of choice vealers. Good vealers $24-27, choice to top of $29; medium $17-23; common $10-16; grass calves sold for slaughter $9-11.

Hogs grade A $33 a hundredweight, sows $29.50-31; stags $15 on a graded-weight basis.

Sheep and lambs were active at prices steady to 50 cents higher. Choice ewes and wethers $21.50, sales to $22, cull lambs down to $10; bucks were eliminated at $1 a hundredweight, heavy lambs were discounted as much as $1 a hundredweight. Feeder lambs $16; shedweight $3-9 a hundredweight according to quality.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 3 27-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Thursday's noon rate 96 7-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.67¾, down ¼.

Hungarian Had Not Seen Son In 29 Years

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A man met his son at the railway station here Thursday. Their meeting was overdue.

Zoltan Mod Sr., had not seen his 29-year-old son Zoltan Jr. since he was an eight-month-old baby in Hungary.

The young Hungarian arrived with two other refugees—John Molnar, 26, and John Haman, 25—after an undercover flight to freedom practically under the nose of Russian tanks.

Mod, a streetcar conductor in Budapest before the outbreak of violence, said he made his way 40 miles to the border, walking through waist-deep swampland to reach a truck provided by the Austrians.

Molnar and Haman told reporters they fought the Russians in their home town of Vesprem, about 100 miles from the Austrian border. They had to hide at the border until Russian tanks, patrolling the area, finally left.

The men told of Russian tank formations shooting their way down a line of houses in which people moved out.

They shot down an eight-year-old boy who had gone back to get his clothes," Molnar said.

Famed Trophy Returned Home After 40 Years in Deseronto

TRENTON (Special)—A beautiful silver trophy donated by the late Robert Weddell for horse pull competition has been returned to Trenton after 40 years of obscurity in storage in Deseronto.

Last night at the annual firemen's night at the Legion Hall the unique prize was unveiled in a simple ceremony that highlighted the program of speech-making and reminiscing in an atmosphere of friendliness around a turkey laden festive board.

Forty years ago in the last of the horse reel races in Trenton, the team of Deseronto volunteers captured the coveted Weddell trophy and took it home proudly with them. It became virtually forgotten until Fire Chief Clare Goodwin started movement to bring about its return to Trenton two years ago. Deseronto was reluctant to part with their hard-won possession, but finally gave in to persuasion.

Fire Chief Greer went on record to say the trophy from now on would receive the care it deserves and he thanked those men who unselfishly contributed to inspire Trenton volunteers in the early days.

The Trenton hose reel team established the record of 32 seconds for the regulation 200-yard dash never again equalled by any of the other teams of successful volunteers. Ex-chief Jess Goodsell explained a hose reel aggregation comprised 16 runners pulling hose, one man at the hydrant to make the hook-up and another man assigned to the task of cutting the line in case attaching the nozzle.

At first the race was 300 yards and later the distance was reduced. The Deseronto team dashed to 200 yards and made the necessary hook-up and attachment in 32 seconds flat to meet that brought to a close inter-town competition between volunteer firemen in this part of Ontario.

ARRANGEMENTS CANCELLED

Actually a representation from Deseronto, it was to be on hand to turn the trophy back to Trenton. Arrangements to have Robert Weddell jr., accept the honored cup on behalf of the local fire department had to be cancelled because Mr. Weddell's health was not permitted him to participate. The expected visitors from Deseronto did not show up as scheduled either mainly because fogbound roads would not permit them to travel last night.

The ceremony brought home the significance of preserving history and tradition. Old timers, some of them retired volunteers, all members of Trenton's vaunted hose reel team attended the dinner. Among them were: Mayor Rose Burtt, ex-chief Jess Goodsell, Art Holsey, Russell Hinney, Walter Yorke, Bob Reynolds, Lorne Orser, Mel Burtt fire chief Clarence Greer. Other members of the famous running outfit Paul Anderson and Frank Filion were unable to be present.

Mayor Ross Burtt added to the conviviality of the get-together explaining the association with the volunteers in the early days had continued through his years of public office.

Councillor Claude Graham, chairman of fire and police, praising the firemen said he could not remember when he had worked with a better- bunch of fellows. "I think town fire losses are the lowest of any place in Ontario," Mr. Graham remarked. "They deserve a lot of credit for the good job they've done."

Fire Chief Orser adding to Mr. Graham's comments pointed out fire losses in 1956 amounted to $17,229 compared with $72,000 in 1955. He noted the $55,000 Quinte Machine fire the year earlier was responsible for the bad

Given One Year On Conviction Of Manslaughter

COCHRANE (CP) — Florida Johnson, 41, of Hearst Thursday was found guilty of manslaughter in the knife slaying of Gerard Fradette. She was sentenced to one year definite and six months indeterminate.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury found Mrs. Johnson guilty of murder but convicted her on the lesser count. Fradette, a restaurant owner who lived with Mrs. Johnson, was stabbed to death last Oct. 5 during a drinking party.

Mr. Justice Ayles said he sympathized with Mrs. Johnson's plight.

"You did a very wrong thing," he said. "At the same time, I have a good deal of sympathy with you in your situation. I feel that there was a good deal of provocation on the part of the deceased Fradette."

"He had been ill-treating you for some time. He had been drinking heavily for a long time. However, I still think it was wrong of you to secure a knife to guard yourself from attack."

Frame Dwelling West of Town Gutted by Fire

TRENTON, (Special). — Two old aged pensioners were seat pushing outside in the cold by a fire which gutted their frame dwelling on the highway three miles west of here this morning.

Fred Rushnell and his wife, former residents of Trenton, until they moved to the Frank Hendricks' tenant-house, saved most of their furniture with the help of Trenton firemen and neighbors. Mr. Rushnell resting on a cot in the living room was startled by smoke curling down the stairway from the second floor. He called to his wife and they both sought the safety of the outdoors.

Firemen and two trucks from Trenton answered the alarm while neighbors went to the elderly couple's assistance.

The house damaged by smoke, fire and water will not be habitable for some time.

"And this bad luck had to happen just before Christmas," Mr. Rushnell commented at the scene.

COLLIDE IN FOG

Two transports collided in the pea soup fog on the highway five miles west here late last night causing provincial police to reroute traffic. Police said the hours until the wreckage was cleared.

Trio Convicted On 125 Charges In Crime Wave

TRENTON. (Special.) — A Brighton trio responsible for a wave of crime surpassing anything previously reported in the Trenton-Brighton district were convicted on all the charges of breaking and entering and theft laid against them. Magistrate R. B. Reid sentenced Ralph Hall and Colin Cooney in custody for a week to await sentence and committed a juvenile to the Boys' Training School.

During the record more than 125 charges following discovery of counterfeiting and stealing from 60 cottages in the Barcovan and Presqu'ile resort areas. Brighton Provincial Police announced that the arrests of the three responsible.

record that year.

THROWS OUT HINT

Councillor James MacDonald commended Chief Orser and members of the fire department. Remarks he made prompted Chief Orser to ask: "I wonder if he had in mind a new firehall." The remark got applause followed.

Chief Orser dwelt on the improvement of Bain Memorial Park and the movement to turn it into a place of beauty and old to find enjoyment and relaxation. "There will be a bath pavilion and swimming beach for the children and accommodation for the parents to go there and relax on Sunday," he pointed out. "Without the wonderful cooperation from No. 6 Repair Depot the park would have been a wilderness," Chief Orser observed. S/L McDonald said the depot was only too willing to help because of the close proximity of the recreational area to the RCAF families at Middleton Park.

County Councillors Receive Road Report at Final Meet

Hastings county councillors wound up their fourth and final regular session of the year yesterday, the final day being marked by presentation of the roads and bridges report, discussion on the deletion of two sections of Route 2 Hastings road from the county system and the retirement of Warden Elmer Wood.

A member of county council for the past six years, Warden Wood is retiring this year from municipal life. At the opening session yesterday, Ex-Warden James Spreckett expressed the appreciation of council to the retiring warden who in turn thanked council members and officials for their co-operation during the past year.

The roads and bridges report submitted by committee chairman Reeve Tracey Adams noted that as of Nov. 30 there was expenditure on county roads had been $256,553 out of a total roads budget of $276,000. Of this $20,000 was allotted for suburban roads.

During the year construction costing $26,151 had been done using hot mixed asphalt with the cost of 18,599, less the cost of building up shoulders.

Progress was reported in the purchase of the right-of-way for the Hastings road from the Moira road and some late season work such as ditching was done.

The report noted that tenders had been called by the province for the grading and culvert repair etc. on the two and a half miles of Hastings road from the Marsh Road, with the contract for the work being awarded to Dufferin McCoy Construction Company of Stittsville. Amount of the contract was understood to be $70,000. It was not known when the actual work would commence.

No contract had been called for the necessary new bridge over the narrows at Moira Lake.

CONSTRUCTION UNDERTAKEN

Considerable construction, including elimination of hundred inch bridges had been done during the year; also bridge repairs at Stirling; Anson Culvert and Bridge in Sidney township and at Tweed, Taylors Bridge was widened and the total cost for the year being over $9,000.

In connection with the Tweed bridge which was damaged last summer by overload, Reeve Tracey reported that efforts had been made to have the highways department rebuild with a heavy type bridge. It was pointed out that turned down with department officials stating they would not construct a heavy bridge so close to the present highway bridge in Tweed.

Supplementary grant application for an alternative of re-routing the Hastings road at the Tweed outskirts and effecting an entrance onto the highway north of the main highway bridge.

It was pointed out that this would avoid the unnecessary fifty heavy trucks to use the present county bridge in Tweed.

Councillor Ross said that this suggestion would be considered by the roads department next year.

WAGES INCREASED

Hastings county summer roads employees had received ten cents per hour wage increase across the board with common labor now receiving 85c per hour and pavement $1 per hour.

Decision of the Ontario Department of Highways to change the color of stop signs and certain other highway markers will make it necessary for the county to follow suit. All such signs are to be changed by 1961, with the county to make a start next summer. One hundred of the new type stop signs with posts to carry them have been ordered at a cost of $1,500.

Councillors voted a grant of $500 to the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association and also under ways and means, voted $500 to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for publication of the tourist booklet, Highlands of Hastings.

Grants of $100 each were voted to the school associations in Central and North Hastings and also to the South Hastings Educational Association.

APPOINTMENTS MADE

Appointments were made to the various high school boards. They were as follows: Bay of Quinte District, Brooks Allen; Deseronto, Ed. Roach; Trenton, Basil Brooks; Centre Hastings, Ritchie Wills; Stirling and Rawdon, James Johnston; and North Hastings, Thomas Bronson.

Reeve Neil Kelshaw of Thurlow township presented the agricultural committee report and the finance committee report was given by chairman Reeve Lloyd Price of Elzevir.

The finance committee report showed that indirect hospital accounts were on the increase, with payment of $12,825 being approved for the third quarter of the year. This was the highest ever paid for a quarter period. Only three phases of county business — roads and bridges, county home, and children's aid — take more money than indigent hospital accounts, it was stated.

Indigent burial rate paid to funeral directors had been raised to $100 from $75, plus other costs

Bowery Santa Dies at 81

NEW YORK (AP)—"Mr. Glad" a silver-haired old man who since depression times has given food and a smile to homeless and hungry New Yorkers at Christmas time, will not play Santa Claus this year.

Mr. Glad died last Monday. With him died a vow his wife had made not to reveal his identity as long as he lived.

Mrs. Grace Rodway Thursday revealed it was her husband, Alfred Richard Rodway, who passed out nickels and distributed sandwiches and cups of coffee on the Bowery, the New York skid road, along with this holiday message:

"Cheer up, old fellow. Every cloud has a silver lining. Keep up your nerve and everything will come out all right."

Rodway, of Garden City, N.Y., was the founder and chairman of Manhattan food - brokerage firm bearing his name. He died at 81.

It was of Rodway that newspapers of the 1930s wrote in describing an anonymous man who gave away $20 to $50 a day at Christmas time.

Mrs. Rodway said a serious illness about 30 years ago led her husband to assume the role of a Bowery Santa, such as opening graves.

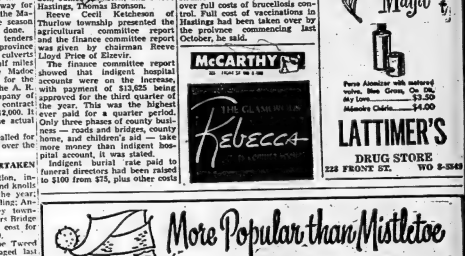
Deputy Reeve Charles Long, of Tyendinaga, gave a verbal report on his attendance at the Ontario Agricultural Council, noting that this organization had been instrumental in the province taking over full costs of brucellosis control. Full cost of vaccinations in Hastings had been taken over by the province commencing last October, he said.

Second Charge Laid Against Former Officer

WELLAND (CP) — Former police constable Earl Kirk, 41, who was charged two weeks ago with breaking and entering Welland post office, a second charge laid against him today in connection with the alleged breakin.



He was charged in court today with being in possession of a sum of money in excess of $50 on or about May 5, 1955—the day of a $78,000 payroll theft from the post office—knowing the money was unlawfully obtained. He was remanded until Jan. 4.

Thursday Harry Read, another former Welland policeman, was sentenced to five years in penitentiary for being in possession of $5,800 of the stolen money.

TWO VIOLENT VIEWS

Here are two quotations:

"The plain truth is that the Suez problem, the Egyptian-Israeli problem, the whole Middle East problem, are further away from a solution than they have ever been. The plain truth is that Britain's vital interests there are in greater peril than they have ever been. The plain truth is that Britain has suffered a grevious defeat. This is not the doing of the British Government. Britain's alleged friends did it, with the gleeful co-operation of Britain's recognized enemies. But they could never have done it without the help from inside Britain —the help of a Labor Party which was also working against her interests, also working for her defeat. There was an excellent name for such people during the Second World War. They were called Quislings."—The Times of Karachi, Pakistan, published after the Anglo-French intervention in the Suez Canal Zone.

On reading these quotations, many Canadians will be interested and annoyed by the other side of them. But if this annoyance at the one quotation leads to acceptance, without reservations, of the language of the other, we suggest that this is almost irresistible evidence that emotion has been permitted to overwhelm reason. For these statements view the Middle East situation in sharply contrasting blacks and whites, while the reasonable man, whatever his final conclusions, will agree that there is much to be said for both sides of the controversy.

In fact, there is so much to be said that no newspaper editorial, and no speech in Parliament or at the United Nations, can hope to cover adequately all the pertinent facts.

Roughly, though, the position of those who support the British-French action is that it was necessary; that Russia has been endeavoring to expand her sway in the Middle East; that Egypt was in danger of falling within the Soviet orbit; that the Suez Canal is vital not only for Britain and for France but for all Western Europe; and that when Israel invaded the Sinai peninsula prompt action was imperative to prevent extensive damage by the combat.

Opponents of this intervention take their main stand on the ground that the Anglo-French action violated the charters of the United Nations which Britain and France had pledged to uphold; that Egypt, far from being the aggressor, was the injured party in the outbreak of hostilities with Israel; that Egyptian nationalization of the canal was not an infraction of international law; that traffic through the canal was moving normally prior to the Anglo-French intervention; that the Anglo-French action, far from safeguarding the canal, actually resulted in its being blocked.

It may strike some that the supporters of Anglo-French action, in general, are basing their whole argument on expediency), while those opposed take their stand on a matter of principle, (or are theorists), the choice of the terms to define these attitudes depending upon the standpoint of the person selecting these terms.

Actually, though, divorcing realism from theory, expediency from principle, is not a course which will provide a satisfactory solution to any of the problems which face the world. Rather these opposing factors have to be wedded. Theory has to be modified to meet facts, and an attempt has to be made to alter facts to suit theory. Nothing can be permanent which, in the long run, runs contrary to correct principles, and no principle is acceptable which is at variance to the best interests of all concerned.

The man who can call a Briton who opposed his country's action a Quisling, or the man who can call the Anglo-British intervention "the worst in colonial history" has either a knowledge of history or no grasp of the scope of the intricacy of the problem. They are not reasonable men.

Language like this might not surprise or dismay us if it came from the Kremlin, or indeed from Cairo or Tel Aviv where passions run high, but it makes a sharp contrast to much of the language, forthrightly, is now being heard in the United States, in Canada and in Britain herself. For, let it be noted, nowhere has the conflict between expediency and principle between realism and theory been more clearly illustrated than in Britain herself. Alan Harvey, Canadian Press staff writer in London, England, reports that "most detached observers agree in regarding the Suez action as an aberration difficult to reconcile with British traditions." He adds, however, that "this so-called 'intellectual' view" does not appear to correspond with opinion at the man-in-the-street level."

What clearer indication could one have that basically this problem is one in which the reasonable man will accept the possibility of there being honest differences of opinion? To talk of treachery or treason is to exhibit deep emotion but little else.

AGEING

Once, getting home was pure delight.
The children ran with greetings gay,
Business and care had taken flight,
The evening hours were meant for play.
But now, I reach the door alone;
Both boy and girl have older grown.

And it must be they're wiser, too,
With all the cares of life to bear.
They have their various tasks to do,
Which leaves them little time to share.
Each with his family likes to sup;
Each has 5 garden to attend.
A lawn to trim, with leaves to rake,
And she has little frocks to mend
And things a child will need, to make.
When I get home the place seems bare
Because they are no longer there.

Well, life does that to one and all.
Time banishes the joys of youth
And leaves the older to recall
Some precious page of memory.
We live again the yesterday
When strength and will were ours to play.

Just Common Humanity

By John Allan May writing from London in the Christian Science Monitor

One specially strong point among the lances of those who oppose nationalisms and racial isms is this: There is no test by which you can prove a man's nationality if he has lost his papers.

But this is a point that is sharp at both ends. And George Barnard, aged seventy-two, is actually clerk of Colombo, Ceylon, but just how sharp it can be. It all started way back in 1952. The Ex-lend-Lease cargo ship City of Florence was in port and George Barnard lured aboard one tropic night by the siren call of adventure, cleared away. The Indian authorities refused to allow him ashore at Calcutta.

This naturally disappointed him, because there is nothing very adventurous about staying aboard ship peeling potatoes. But at least he was getting somewhere in the under world. He peeled away, relatively content, until the City of Florence steamed back to Ceylon. And there the officials also refused to let him land.

"But I am George Barnard," he said. "I have a job here."

The port officials were sympathetic but regulations demanded to see his papers to prove his identity. They asked for his passport. He had none. He had no driver's license, either. Nor any other means of identification. Not even a union card. He couldn't.

"You will have to stay on board," the officials decided, hesitating down the world's most rigid, most impenetrable barrier — the super citizen.

The City of Florence sailed again, certain that George Barnard took him all over the world. And everywhere the City of Florence docked George Barnard was put in jail.

He had no papers.

When the City of Florence was due to sail again the police would escort George Barnard to the ship's aboard.

"We're sorry," they would say. "But there's nothing we can do. We are officials of the government. We have to carry out the law. Nothing personal, Mr. Barnard. No hard feelings."

So George Barnard, who had no papers, went to Canada, Australia, India, South Africa, Ireland, and all those many countries that a cargo liner touches, on and on, month after month, year after year, sentenced. It seemed, in default of paper to sail the world for ever. Every night George prayed that it might not be so and that one day he would come home.

But still they put him in jail for the duration of the ship's stay in each port, with the Ellerman Line paying the cost of his accommodation, and then they marched him to the dock and put him to sea again on the way to another prison.

The problem was actually simple enough (for the authorities) until the City of Florence was sold to new owners. But can a man be sold as part of a ship?

The City of Florence sailed to Belfast and the ceremony of handing over was only a month away and still no answer to the question had been found. Could the sale go through? Would the new owners accept responsibility for George Barnard? How could anybody do anything when he could not prove (on paper) even that he existed? Bureaucracy was done, if anything, was clearly going to be illegal. Authority was puzzled.

George Barnard was brought from Belfast Prison and put back on board. In November, 1955, the City of Florence sailed across to Liverpool. George was at once driven to the Home Secretary's office. There somebody called the Home Office.

Half an hour before the ship was due to sail for the Far East a policeman came in and instead of saying, "Sorry George, we've got to put back to the ship," the policemen usually did, he said: "You can stay here. Anyway for six months. Here is a passport. Go out and get yourself a job, son."

George Barnard could hardly believe his ears. But it was true.

The Home Office official who had had everything and who couldn't say yet that he will be able to stay for ever. "We'll just see how he gets on."

The Ellerman Line found George Barnard a job and the ship's line arranged to pay his way until he should find a job. And George went out into the streets of Liverpool to see what home was like and breathe the air.

Newspaperman wondered what formula had at last been found that would thus dissolve the impenetrable paper curtain. What new test had been applied that proved George Barnard's rights? They asked the Home Office one day.

This solid official most courteously explained.

"Oh," he said. "Just common humanity."

Stress Plays a Useful Role

Montreal Gazette

Dr. Hans Selye, world famous researcher of the University of Montreal, has outlined some of the principles set forth in his new book, "The Stress of Life."

One of these is that every human being begins life with a store of energy which cannot be replaced or increased. Tension, the stresses which produces discases of various kinds, may be caused by using up this energy under excessive rate — or by not using enough of it.

It is impossible to establish a general principle of activity which will be useful for all because, first, the inherited energy is not equal for all; then, too, particular characteristics, abilities, situations required for performance differ for each of us.

For some, too much stress may be relieved by enforced relaxation. For others, it might produce boredom which will find a busy executive to relax for a few weeks in Florida or Europe quite fatal," warns Dr. Selye. "Activity may be this man's way of relieving pressure. He may build up more internal pressure building than if he were at work."

Specific hormones are produced by the body for specific requirements, situations. Certain activities may cause an overproduction of one type this production facility may be faulty. In such cases, medical help can restore the balance.

Stress is what sparks this production, therefore stress, in perfect, balanced quantities, is a natural part of normal living. Today's complicated living produces many stresses but ancient man had hunger, cold and fear to keep his hormone production going, too.

Outside of medical assistance, what can the average person do to keep his stresses and his energy expenditure at normal levels? Don't worry about things that can't be helped, don't rely on the doctor, don't worry about things beyond your powers.

Acting on this principle, says Dr. Selye, he is only going to continue his researches on stress as long as he feels he's getting somewhere.

Dr. Selye's theories offer sound scientific support for the ancient laws of balanced living. Don't be worry, work, for this is an unnatural human state. But don't be over-driven, either.

Advice for Dog-Buyers

Hamilton Spectator

This is the season of the year when many fond parents, under pressure, perhaps, from persuasive children, are pledging that "little puppy for Christmas," are thinking about buying a dog as their child's sake, we hope Daddy will buy the dog, but for the sake of the dog, the rest of the family, the neighbors and the community at large we hope that Daddy will give the matter all the serious thought it deserves before he puts that whimpering little pup under the Christmas tree.

A dog, in the first place, is not a toy for a child. If the prospective purchaser is thinking of it in that light, he better put Fido off. Adding a dog to the family is a serious affair, and before doing so one should consider carefully all the implications.

The dog must have good, dry quarters in which to live. To use the dog for a sleighing mat all day and then turn the beast loose into the back yard, to suffer in the cold and rain overnight, is little short of criminal — yet hundreds of dogs undergo just that fate.

A dog demands a great deal of time and attention from its master. It must be trained. It must have regular daily exercise, and within the city limits this means that it must be run on a leash. It's one thing, by the way, to have a dog in the country, where it has unlimited freedom of movement at all times, and another to try to keep one in the city.

And then there are the neighbors to think about. Some people object strenuously to having their door a dog that's just about all night and keeps them awake. And the dog that scratches up the neat-door lawn or digs holes in the tip beds is fot going to make friends for its master.

These are but a few of the hazards to be faced when one extends his family and consequent responsibilities by buying a dog. Buy the dog, by all means, but be good companion and a lasting friend. But the buyer should be sure he's ready for the love duties that go with the purchase.

City election results: In the city elections yesterday Eardley Wilmot was elected mayor in a three cornered contest. His opponents were ex. mayor George Bennett and ex. alderman Harry Greenleaf. The contest was the closest between Mr. Wilmot and Mr. Greenleaf, the former winning with a majority of 286 votes. The result of the voting for mayor was: Wilmot 1296; Greenleaf 1012; Bennett 600. The following were elected aldermen in the order given: — Morley P. Duff 1547; A. Bernard Collins 1418; E. T. Cherry 1413; Russell Wilton 1412; G. R. Sills 1410; W. L. B. Greene 1342; Robert Gourly 1340; Clifford C. Wallbridge 1305, Dr. Proctor 1302; George O. Tice 994; William Donahue 893. The by-law to increase the number of office of aldermen to three years was defeated by 955 votes, the vote was 1011 for the by-law and 1686 against it.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SEES ALL

I get a postage stamp pewpaper that has been coming to me for many years. In it there is one part that I always read, its heading is: "Sees All." And then the author goes on to give many an interesting hint to sharp collectors. It is the most interesting feature in all the paper. I wish I were able while he will call attention to some new discovery, but it's all interesting. He has given me thought of that title and thought how well we could adopt them for words, by trying each day to See All that is worth seeing. Tourists, as a rule, are so blind to the world around that they often do not note some of the most outstanding features that they should not miss.

In the Bible it says that our Heavenly Father notices everything —that He even "notes the sparrow's fall!" How important, then, that we look upon everything and see all that we can, each day.

Perhaps we can be the means of pointing out to others much in this world that they should look for.

My friend, Edwin Way Teale, author of many popular books, the most recent one entitled "Autumn Across America," was given an entire night on the highest floor of The Empire States Building, that he might see the migration of the thousands of birds that passed that way. Some were killed on a foggy night, however, that gave him some lights on which to be sad to catch some of there songsters on their flight south.

We ought to see all in nature, for beauty, knowledge, and inspiration are all there. These fiscos in Nature give health and hope to us all. Every year scientists are revealing some new discovery made as a free inheritance for us all. Life by little they are getting closer to a cure for cancer. We owe so much to them for all that they have to date achieved.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

You Had Better Get Back On Your High Calcium Diet

If I'm about to pass or have already passed for a while in ward, as a lot of characters would have you believe, I hope you will remember this health advice: You had better follow from day to day, week to week, year to year, a high calcium diet, and if for any good reason you can't handle enough of the foods that supply the most calcium, then you had better supplement your mamby-pamby diet with an adequate daily ration of calcium and vitamin D.

Best sources of calcium are milk, cheese, egg yolk, nuts, peanuts, beans, carrots, turnips, celery, greens, peas and parsnips.

Indispensable for good utilization of calcium in the body is vitamin D. Few foods contain enough vitamin D to maintain good calcium metabolism in living animals, whether in infant, growing child, or mature adult. Milk, cream, butter, egg yolk, canned salmon, fresh sardines, and canned sardines —the oil or fat in tuna, salmon, and sardines has been found equal to cod liver oil in vitamin D content.

Exposure of the body to direct sunlight or even indirect or diffuse daylight enables the body to manufacture vitamin D. Therefore a child's or adult's body to manufacture vitamin D. Therefore a child's or adult's body to manufacture vitamin D. Therefore a child's or adult's

SASKATCHEWAN COAL FIELD

A huge power shovel works in one of the coal fields in the Estevan area of southern Saskatchewan where some 2,000,000 tons of coal are produced yearly. While vast new industries are appearing in Saskatchewan, production of this old resource, lowgrade coal, is going up. The coal is used chiefly for electric power plants. Note the size of power shovel in relation to the tractor in foreground of this Saskatchewan Government photo. (CP Photo).

Industry Other Than Farming Now Accounts for Nearly Half Of Saskatchewan Production

REGINA (CP)—Something of an industrial revolution is taking place in Saskatchewan.

To the province's rich agricultural scene are being added manufacturing, oil, construction, and probably a vastly expanded forest industry. They give security against the uncertainties of crop and their markets and come opportunely when farm mechanization is reducing farm population.

Industry other than agriculture now accounts for nearly one-half of Saskatchewan production. Ten years ago it accounted for less than one-quarter.

SPEEDY DEVELOPMENT

The change is gathering momentum.

The causes are cited:

1. Development of resources, creating supplies of raw materials and opening industrial opportunities;

2. General growth of the western market;

3. The province's possibilities as a distribution centre—situated in the middle of the prairies and of the area from the head of the lakes to the coast.

BIG ADVANCES

There are some estimated net production totals for this year, with comparative figures for 1953 and 1946 in brackets (without adjustment for price changes):

Agriculture $460,000,000 ($465,000,000, $282,232,000); construction $109,000,000 ($164,000,000, $13,856,000); manufacturing $116,000,000 ($110,000,000, $28,400,000); mining $100,000,000 ($85,000,000, $21,330,000); electric power $22,200,000 ($20,000,000, $6,338,000); forestry $4,300,000 ($4,000,000, $2,292,000); trapping $4,000,000 ($3,700,000, $2,662,000); fisheries $700,000 ($700,000, $729,000).

Saskatchewan—761 miles from north to south and an average of 333 miles east to west—has a diverse geography.

Flat prairies covers the southern one-third. North of that is a wide band of "park lands" — a mixture of farm and wooded country. Beyond that is a belt more than 100 miles wide of commercial forest. And north of that, covering one-third of the province, is the pre-cambrian shield of rocks, lakes and trees—a desolate land probably rich in minerals.

The southern 200 to 300 miles account for the province's agricultural wealth. Now it is adding oil and gas.

Ten years ago Saskatchewan had virtually no oil. This year it is producing about 20,000,000 barrels. Petroleum development expenditure in the last five years has totalled about $370,000,000, of which $100,000,000 is being spent this year. Refinery capacity has doubled in five years to 67,800 barrels a day.

GAS PRODUCTION

Three years ago natural-gas production was negligible. Now an expanding pipeline network serves 26 towns and five of the province's eight cities — Saskatoon, Prince Albert, Moose Jaw, Swift Current and North Battleford.

Potash — crystallized mineral salts left far underground by the seas that covered Saskatchewan millions of years ago—may be the next sensation. Deposits of immediate interest stretch from around Esterhazy on the East, through the Saskatoon area, to around Yorkton on the east. More than 3,000,000 acres are under exploration by a dozen companies. The deposits are said to be the most valuable in the world in grade, thickness, quality and quantity.

Potash Company of America is trying to find out in a test operation whether it is economic to mine them.

Between the surface and the potash are sedimentary, crumbly rock formations which resist ordinary methods of shaft-sinking. To combat this, a cylinder 18 inch 30 feet in diameter and 3,000 feet deep is being frozen near Saskatoon by drilling a circle of holes and running down refrigerating pipes from a plant at the surface. In the centre of the centre of the frozen column a shaft 16 to 18 feet in diameter is being sunk and will be lined with reinforced concrete. It now is down about 500 feet.

MANY USES

Fertilizer provides the biggest use for potash and, in addition to Canadian markets, there are possibilities in the orient. Other uses are for glass, matches, explosives, soap and gasoline. The only present North American production is at Carlsbad, New Mexico.

Common salt—another product left over from pre-ancient seas is mined at Unity, on Saskatchewan's western side, in a 500,000-a-year production.

Iron ore—in the Fort A La Corne-Kelsey Lake area north of Melfort and east of Prince Albert—is in the drilling and sampling stage. Imperial Oil is, among those interested.

In the south, low-grade coal is an old resource and more than 3,000,000 tons a year are produced near Estevan from surface operations. It is used chiefly for electric-power plants in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and production is going up.

INCREASING POWER

Electricity production is increasing by 20 per cent year. Two new projects, each costing $40,000,000, have been started: Saskatoon and Estevan. Four thousand farms have been electrified and 5,000 more will be electrified yearly for the next five years.

North of the prairie-parkland domain lie commercial forests—so far little developed.

Now a $60,000,000 pulp plant and associated operations — to be known as Waskesiu Forest Products Ltd. — is planned near Prince Albert. Mill and logging operations would employ 2,000 people, create employment indirectly for another 5,000, and eventually double Prince Albert's population of about 18,000.

Beyond the forests is the Pre-Cambrian Shield where a colorful chapter of exploration and adventure seems to be opening.

For years its major feature was the big copper-zinc-gold operation of Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company on the Saskatchewan-Manitoba border around Flin Flon—more than 70 per cent of its production from the Saskatchewan side.

URANIUM FIELDS

Since 1954 uranium has been produced in the Beaverlodge area north of Lake Athabasca. Production last year was estimated at $14,000,000, this year it will be about $27,000,000, and by 1958 it is expected to reach $80,000,000.

Exploration and development activity is expanding along the Shield's southern fringe for about 125 miles from Flin Flon to Lac La Ronge.

Anglo-Rouyn Mines Ltd. has established 3,000,000 tons of copper-gold ore near La Ronge and is continuing work to see if there is enough ore to justify a mine.

Gilens Uranium Mines Ltd. is sinking a shaft in a copper-nickel prospect and more companies are active.

Railway links—either a 155-mile line to connect with Prince Albert to the south or one to connect with Flin Flon to the east—are being discussed. A Prince Albert line would also serve the timber areas of the projected pulp mill.

A group of business men at Meadow Lake, about 150 miles northwest of Prince Albert, are reported planning to operate a winter trucking road nearly 400 miles north to Beauveridge, to compete with air freight, and bring back fish as a return cargo.

Canal Clearance Difficult Job Says Expert

LONDON (CP)—Clearance of the Suez Canal under authority of the United Nations is expected to begin as soon as technically possible. It will probably prove to be one of the most difficult salvage operations of modern times.

At least 51 obstructions — two bridges and 49 wrecks of various sizes—have to be cleared away before the canal is restored to normal state. In Port Said, at the northern entrance to the canal, a channel free of obstructions and 30 feet deep has been cleared already by a British naval salvage fleet.

After aerial surveys of that part of the canal under Egyptian control—about 70 miles of the 103-mile waterway—the British admiralty says a channel suitable for ships of 25-foot draft and 60-foot beam can be achieved by removing only nine wrecks and repairing two bridges.

NOT FOR BRITAIN

But the job is not in British hands.

The UN has assumed responsibility for clearing the waterway. The Danish-Dutch team, working with a three-man committee appointed by secretary - general Dag Hammarskjold, probably will ask for help from salvage companies of other countries. Britain, which has assembled a large, comprehensive salvage fleet in Port Said, has offered every help.

TRAPPED 13

Thirteen foreign merchant ships were trapped in the canal during the fighting.

Southbound from Port Said to Port Suez, the convoy was marooned north of the destroyed El Firdan bridge but south of El Cap, the point reached by Anglo-French forces at the cease-fire Nov. 6.

Britain says the ships can be turned around and released through Port Said, but so far Egyptian authorities have refused permission.

Greener Thumbs

BY JOYCE SMITH

Next time you buy parsley look for a bunch on which there are a few roots. Occasionally they're overlooked and left on. Cut off the top, pot up the roots and put in a sunny window. They will sprout and give you a touch of green for garnishing for some time. Of course you can grow parsley from seeds, but it's best planted in spring.

POT-LUCK SUPPER

The December meeting of the Y's Mensetics was held Tuesday evening in the form of a pot-luck supper at the YMCA.

President Jean Pindall presided with minutes of last meeting read by secretary, June Sine.

Christmas Party Planned by Gamma Mu

A regular meeting of Gamma Mu chapter Beta Sigma Phi was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Ken Lamson, 350 McDonald Avenue.

Mrs. J. C. McDonald presided over the business meeting in the absence of the president. Miss Alix Rastey gave the manual review from the book of Beta Sigma Phi.

The service report given by Mrs. C. E. Jones dealt with the family that the chapter has undertaken to care for at Christmas.

Final arrangements for the Christmas party were outlined by Mrs. W. O. Cochrane.

The speakers for the cultural program, Mrs. Dan Boyle, were introduced by Mrs. W. L. Turner.

Mrs. D. Beere gave an historical picture of the changing design of houses in the last 400 years, while Mrs. C. E. Jones showed modern home as her subject, and contributed some helpful hints in the decorating of a home.

The speakers were both thanked by Mrs. A. C. Mitchell.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess, Mrs. W. L. Turner.

Quinte Secondary H-S Assoc. Panel Discusses T.V.

The weather was miserable and the driving dangerous when the Quinte Secondary Home and School Association held its monthly meeting last Wednesday night at the school. If the unpleasant elements made for a small attendance, it did by the same token, emphasize demonstrably the fine leadership and the healthy interest of parents and teachers in their school and its pupils. The parents who were there, were unanimous in expressing their appreciation and delight in attending the interesting gathering.

The president, Mr. Fred Beeby, opened the meeting by thanking the Choir and his band group (all of 25 students, boys and girls, who played for the entertainment of the members as they assembled. An instrumental trio gave a trumpet rendition of "O Holy Night," during the short existence of Quinte School. Mr. Shoesmith has accomplished much, and Quinte will have a band second to none for schools in Ontario.

Mr. Beeby briefly explained that the Home and School membership stood at 132 but better, much better, things were anticipated for the year ahead by the next meeting.

LEADERSHIP TAUGHT

Miss Howson spoke briefly and instructively. She is the athletic director for Quinte girl athletics. Last summer Miss Howson was an instructor at the Lakefield Camp, training which is conducted by the Department of Education at Lake Courchaine. Each school has the privilege of selecting one boy and one girl to attend the camp. The speaker explained that the principal purpose of the camp is to teach leadership through the medium of athletics. Miss Howson told of the excellent incentives that the sense of responsibility inculcated in the camp was amazing and of great benefit to prospective teachers and, for that matter, to anyone who is going to walk of life. The quiet dignity of the camp life, she said, tends to come under salutary leadership while the instructors.

PANEL DISCUSSION

The main feature of the meeting was a panel discussion on the provocative question "Is TV a blessing or curse?"

The panel was moderated by the principal of Quinte Secondary, Mr. Ross Bird. The fact that interest created is indicated when it is realized that only four of the eight panelists had time to prepare for discussion purposes.

The panel was made up of Mr. Reid, Mr. George Wishart, Mr. Ralph Morden, Mr. Ken Thompson, Mr. Edward Craighead, Mr. Wilfred Bowerman, Mr. Ed. Mills, Mrs. W. Slavin, Mrs. Ralph Morden, Mr. William Stovin and Mrs. Three Lyons, Mrs. Lamont Musgrove, Bruce Dobbs and Robert Bowerman.

When Mr. Reid tossed the subject to his panel, a lively, constructive, and entertaining discussion ensued. Each member made his or her contribution to the fullest possible for the writer to attempt a resume of individual thoughts, suffice it to say that latter part of wisdom to report that every single person in the room had a most interesting time and was conscious of the problem presented in a new and serious medium.

CONCLUSIONS

Mr. Reid, who summed up the conclusions of the discussion, had participating audience analyzed the results. It seemed that TV did protect a problem that had to be met. There was a difference of opinion, however, with the intention that TV contributed to juvenile delinquency. That TV has had a tremendous effect on habit, it presented parents with responsibility of selectivity and guidance. It was also pointed out that TV is going through a stage of novelty which time will rectify and adjust. The influence that TV may be having on reading habits, conversation, time distribution, and general attention screen, rests squarely with the parents. Generalities are a dangerous indulgence and generalities were not indulged in at this informative gathering, but rather, words like discussion, control, the individual home, what is good for one may not apply to another were the themes.

COMMENTS

During the coffee period after adjournment such comments were overheard as "wasn't the discussion interesting?"; "I enjoyed that", "I learned something tonight," "we should have more of these participating discussions," and so on.

Weddings

BEER—CROSS

A pretty autumn wedding took place on Saturday, November 24, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Roslin, at 2.30 p.m., when Betty Faye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cross, Roslin, was united in marriage to George Everett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Beer of Belleville.

The Rev. M. W. Heslip of Madoc, performed the double-ring ceremony before a background of ferns, 'mums, snapdragons and potted plants. Satin bows designated the guest pews.

The wedding music was provided by Mrs. Arthur Bates, who also accompanied the soloist, Mr. Jack Clark, who sang "Hand in Hand."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her gown of white nylon net over taffeta. The floor-length bouffant skirt was accented by a ruching of softly folded net. The strapless bodice was enhanced by a Chantilly lace, pearl-trimmed jacket with Peter Pan collar and short, shell-like sleeves. Appropriately pointed over the hand. Her fingertip length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of seed pearls and rhinestones and she carried a shower bouquet of pink and white roses.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Jack Clarke of Oshawa, as matron of honor, wearing a gown of rose nylon over taffeta made princess lines in waltz length. She wore a matching headdress and carried a Colonial bouquet of yellow roses and 'mums.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss Sara Jane Cross, maid-of-honor to bride, wore a gown of blue net over taffeta with a jacket of brocaded nylon and lace. She wore a floral headdress and carried a Colonial bouquet of pink roses and white 'mums.

The bridesmaid, Miss Martine Cross, cousin of the bride, chose a gown of yellow nylon net made with

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

PUTTING UP WITH HER MAY BE THE LESSER OF TWO EVILS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I've been married ten years, and during this time my husband has insisted on our living with his mother. She's only 47 years old and has been married three times. One husband died and the other two left her. I can understand why, as she wants everything run her way.

A year ago I told my husband that I thought it was time we bought our own home. We bought one. My mother-in-law went to live in it.

Now she is back, and insists on living with us again. I told my husband No; that it's time we lived by ourselves. My mother-in-law has more than enough funds to support herself, and she could live by herself or with her daughter for a change. But every time I mention this, my husband puts up an argument and then just walks away.

I have four small children, and it's hard enough to take care of them and the housework etc., without being annoyed by my mother-in-law all the time. It would be hard, too, to go out to work to support them, but I'm considering doing it.

What would you suggest I do?

— Unhappy Wife.

Dear Unhappy Wife:

Of course you're quite right in believing that you and your husband and children should live by yourselves. Unless your mother-in-law were low on money to take care of herself, or ill, or there was some other important reason why she shouldn't live alone, you're certainly entitled to have your home to yourselves.

At the same time, I don't believe you really want to go off, taking your four children with you, and face all the problems that would result. It would, I think, be much better if you could bring about some sort of compromise in this situation.

What I mean is just this:

Do you think you could tell your husband that you'd be willing to try having your mother-in-law live with you for awhile provided she'd agree to keep her hands off your affairs?

You tell me she has always insisted that everything should go her own way. So you might say that it must be understood from the beginning that it's not possible for everything to be her own way if she is living with another family; that she must consider herself a guest in the house who is glad to help out where she can, but who can't expect that the house must be run to suit her.

Tell your husband, just as calmly and pleasantly as you can, that you'd be willing, on this basis, to have your mother-in-law come to live with you for an experimental six months, but add that, if things don't go as they should for that experimental six months, he, on his side, must undertake to tell his mother that she must make a change.

Let all this be understood before your mother-in-law comes to live with you again.

And what if your husband refuses to respect it upon his mother's that if she is to live in your family she must keep her hands off your affairs? Then I think you'll have to make up your mind which is the lesser of two evils: to put up with your mother-in-law, try to get her on your side and persuade her to give you help, instead of orders, on how to run your own home, or to take the children and try making a life of your own. Personally, I think you would find that, however difficult

ANSWER:

(To Lorna McP. continued from two weeks ago.)

Question 4 was on paraffining jams and jellies. I think, Lorna that you are making your layers of paraffin too thick. Let the jam or jelly cool a little until bubbles break on top and disappear. Then cover jelly with thin layer of hot (but not boiling) paraffin and let harden. Then add a second thin layer of hot melted paraffin, rotating the jar this time, so that wax will adhere and form a close seal. Question 5 was regarding supper dishes that are not meat or spaghetti. How would you like to add to your supper repertory

CHEESE FONDUE

Two cups whole wheat bread cut into 1-3 inch cubes, 1 cup, well-packed, grated cheese, 2 eggs, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons shortening melted, 1 teaspoon salt, shake of pepper. Butter 1-2 quart casserole. Lay layer alternately the bread cubes and grated cheese, finishing with cheese. Beat eggs, add milk, fat and seasonings. Pour this evenly over the bread. Let stand 10 minutes. Stand casserole in large pan containing hot water. Bake at 350 deg. F.for 35 to 40 minutes. Serves four generously.

QUESTION:

Would you please send me the recipe for de Luxe Double Deckers? Like a brownie with coconut topping. I would like some other cookie recipes too. — also Tamale Pie and La Polenta.— Mrs. J. L.

ANSWER.

I am mailing to you the recipes for Brownies which have appeared this year and a recent release on cookies.

TAMALE PIE

Saute in 1 tablespoon butter until golden 1 chopped medium onion and 1 minced green pepper. Remove them from frying-pan and in it brown 3-4 lb. each ground beef and pork for about 10 minutes, covered, stirring occasionally. Turn meat mixture into casserole, top with a little cornmeal mush and bake at 375 deg. 1 hour.

ITALIAN MUSHROOM POLENTA

Into Hot Cornmeal Mush (made as in above tamale pie) blend four beaten egg yolks, 1-4 cup cream, 3-4 cup grated Parmesan or 1 cup grated old Cheddar cheese. Pour into greased pan about 12x7x2. When cold and firm cut into 3-4 inch cubes. Arrange these in layers in 7 1-2 inch casserole with hot

MUSHROOM SAUCE

Melt 6 tablespoons butter and in it saute 1-4 or 1-2 lb. mushrooms sliced, until limp. Stir in 6 tablespoons flour and when blended three cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, until thick. Finish the layering with the mushroom sauce. Sprinkle the top with grated cheese thinly. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes or this amount will make eight servings.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

THE REDHEAD MAKES THE HEADLINES THIS SEASON

Courtesy of Miss Elaine Gardiner

Coppery glints add new life and beauty to hair—without dyeing.

Look into the mirror this Christmas and let a redhead look back at you.

It's you—and your new hair color is the biggest news in beauty this season.

Today, perhaps, you're a brunette or a blonde. Tomorrow (or in time for Christmas, you are your own individualized version of the redhead who is now the focal point of the fashion and beauty picture. It's a version that your friends and neighbors will salute because what you have done is simply to add red highlights to the natural color of your hair. And with a temporary color hair rinse it's a simple matter—you merely rinse a gleam of red in and it rinses right out the next time you shampoo.

The sudden popularity of red hair may stem from the spicy autumn colors featured in designers' clothes this season. Or, it may be just a new appreciation of the natural warmth of red hair. Whatever it is, the redhead is the fashionable head this season, according to the decree of the fashion and beauty authorities.

The trend has interesting aspects that make it worth almost every woman's consideration. Ellen Noreen Baum, noted expert on hair beauty, points out.

Red hair—any shade of red—has always had a great deal of appeal. There is a vitality about it that creates an almost automatic air of drama.

Women who decide to add such a touch of warmth to their hair are by no means all going to look alike, Mrs. Baum advises.

There can be a redhead in this season's style and still look different. The trick is to use a temporary color hair rinse that adds red highlights to the natural color. In that way, you are retaining your individuality because you are only overlaying a reddish sheen through which your natural coloring shows up.

Our expert has some suggestions on how to achieve the most flattering results with a temporary color hair rinse.

The woman with brown hair has a choice between sun bronze and henna bronze. If it is medium brown or dark brown, a lovely burnish can be achieved with a dark copper rinse. An auburn hair rinse adds a red gold sheen while henna bronze imparts a rich burnished red cast. Each rinse produces a coppery auburn shade when used on medium or dark brown hair.

Natural redheads have their problems, too. Red hair often fades. Even during the late teens, it sometimes loses its warmth and fire. Sun bronze or henna bronze are suggested for both dark and light shades of red hair. Dark copper can also be extremely attractive because it deepens slightly on the natural shade and adds copperu aburn highlights.

Of course, if your hair is truly white or ecoru, you won't pay any attention to the trend to red. If you're a former brunette who now is salt and pepper streaked, you may want to try the brown closest to your natural shade with just a bit of a dark copper temporary color hair rinse powder mixed in with it.

Applied with the applicator especially made for the purpose, it takes only three minutes to rinse red highlights into your hair, our expert says. With the further guidance of a color chart from your favorite cosmetic counter you're certain to find the results extremely flattering.

Club Activities

PLAINFIELD HOMEMAKERS' CLUB

The Plainfield Homemakers' club met at the Swan home on Tuesday evening with all members present, as well as the home economist Miss Thibaudeau and several mothers.

Miss Thibaudeau demonstrated how to do invisible mending. The material used was print, with a perfect match found.

Other items included points for washing woollies, to which each girl gave her goods.

Refreshments concluded the meeting.

Appreciative thanks were accorded Miss Thibaudeau for being present by Audrey Swan.

WRITE NAME OF CITY AND STATE ON ENVELOPES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The members of my family have been busily getting their Christmas card lists assembled. Last evening we were discussing this question about addressing the envelopes. When writing a letter or a card to be delivered in one's own city or town, is it correct to omit the name of the city and state and write "City" instead? (Or even "Town" or "Local"?) — Jim T.

I'm 100 per cent against writing "City" or "Town" or "Local" or anything else except the name of the city and the state. Actually, it isn't sensible or practical way to address an envelope, particularly in these pre-Christmas days when the post office attendants have enough troubles. In these days of frequently-changing addresses, your letter may have to be re-addressed to another city or town, and it's very easy for a busy post office clerk to change the street-address and overlook changing "City" to the name of the new-address city. So . . . another fruitless wandering for a carelessly-addressed letter.

Do a really good job in addressing your envelopes . . . beginning with your Christmas-card envelopes. The plan pattern is best: (1) Name, (2) Street address, (3) Name of city or town, written in full, with state name if possible, (4) Name of state, written in full.

WRITE "MISS" BEFORE LITTLE GIRL'S NAME ON ENVELOPE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This year I have on my list the names of several lovely little girls to whom I want to send individual Christmas cards. (Remembering how I, when I was a little girl, was so thrilled to receive my "very own" Christmas cards!) How should I address the envelopes for such little girls, say four or five or six years old? What about "Miss"? — Ada.

No matter how young the young lady, write "Miss" before her name on the envelope:

Miss Sandra Clark
218 Rosemarie Avenue
Pleasant City
Connecticut

These little lassies will be enchanted to receive their very own Christmas cards . . . and they will be proud to see, or to be shown, how their name is correctly, politely, addressed to them with the "handle" before their names. A timely little lesson in a social detail!

TODAY'S COURTESY QUESTION: ARE YOU A GRUMBLER?

It was a very wise man who said, "Nothing is easier than fault-finding. No self-denial, no character are required to set up the grumbling business." Here's a thought to defeat the futile, dreary, mightily unattractive habit of grumbling. For grumbling is a habit that can creep up on us so easily, so very easily. Watch it, ladies and gentlemen!

YOUNG COUPLE HONORED

WEST HUNTINGDON — An extra large crowd of friends and neighbors assembled at Mr. Alger Post's home on Thursday evening to extend congratulations to the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McBeath (nee Jean Post).

Mr. Herb Barker was chairman for the program which consisted of a reading by Miss Jane Gay, solos by Miss Rose Ann McAvoy; the Fuller quintet, composed of Ruth Wilson, Muriel Dean, Paul and Gary McTaggart, delighted the gathering with a couple of songs.

Mrs. Dean Dafoe read the address from the community and the honored guests were presented with two lovely bentwood chairs and a coffee table. Miss Dorothy Mitts, on behalf of the young people, read an address and they presented the guests with fancy pullover slips. Both Jean and Duncan voiced their appreciation for the lovely gifts. Mr. John Gay and Mr. Charles Morland also addressed the gathering and a social hour, including refreshments was enjoyed.

L.O.L. No. 300 held its annual meeting on Monday evening with a fair attendance. Past Master Arthur Hazzall conducted the election of officers for 1957 and those elected are: W.M., Orval Kellar; deputy master, Ted Pollock; chaplain, John Lainson; recording secretary, Arthur Wilson; marshal, Russell Sills; first lecturer, Alex. McCurdy; second lecturer, Donald Fargey; treasurer, Melbourne Moorcroft; tyler, John Moorcroft. The above officers will be installed at the January meeting.

Congratulations to Mr. Elmer Wilson in being elected as reeve of Huntingdon township in the election on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moorcroft received word on Monday of the death of their grandson, Paul Eckert, of North Bay. They attended the funeral at Toronto, on Thursday.

Mr. George Dyson was a dinner guest on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooke.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine and Doris, of Stirling, were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Sarles.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sills and family spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Don Sills of Halleway.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moorcroft and Warren were Wednesday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Reid.

Relations Between Two Agencies Said Excellent

NEW YORK (CP) — Lionel Chevrier, president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, said Thursday relations between the United States and Canadian agencies building the inland waterway are "excellent."

Chevrier and other Canadian seaway officials were in New York for a meeting with their American counterparts, including Lewis G. Castle, administrator for the U.S. St. Lawrence Development Corp.

He declined to comment on reports Canada has decided to go ahead with preliminary plans for an all-Canadian seaway route despite U.S. objections.

"That is a matter for the department of external affairs and American government officials," he said. "I only carry out the orders of the government."

The talks Thursday related to tolls, navigational aids and other development problems. The closed sessions were called "exploratory."

"We have a feeling of over-all progress both in construction and agreement between the two countries," said Castle. "We're moving right along on all target dates."

"There never has been any greater agreement than now," added Chevrier. "On the whole we're right up to the construction schedule."

Chevrier said the seaway is expected to handle a volume of 35,000,000 tons of shipping annually.

New Children's Hospital Will Open Sunday

MONTREAL (CP) — A dream kindled in the heart of a young doctor more than a half-century ago is to be realized Sunday when the Montreal Children's Hospital moves to new quarters in a 13-storey, $10,786,000 building.

For the first time since the institution was incorporated in 1905 hospital officials expect to have plenty of room for patient treatment and rehabilitation and adequate facilities for expanding medical research.

That was the dream of the late Dr. Alexander MacKenzie Forbes, who in 1902 while a professor at McGill University banded together a public-spirited group of Montrealers with the aim of establishing a hospital "especially adapted to the needs of young people."

The new building, with 401 beds, a chapel, a 173-seat amphitheatre, numerous classrooms and a gymnasium, is a far cry from the hospital's first quarters—a rented room in a private home with accommodation for 10 patients.

Waitress Given $1,000 Tip From Total Stranger

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A waitress said Thursday she received a $1,000 tip for serving a customer she identified only as "Mr. Johnson" a 10-cent cup of coffee.

Mrs. Gerda V. Olson, a waitress in her own coffee shop, said: "I was never so surprised in all my life."

She added: "This gentleman has been coming into my shop for about three months now. He has a cup of coffee and leaves.

"I serve him his cup of coffee and give him a big smile, like I do all other customers.

"Yesterday, however, he lingered over his coffee. Then he pulled out of his pocket this brown envelope and said 'Here's a little tip for you.'

"You can imagine my surprise when I opened it and found all those 20 dollar bills."

She took Thursday off to shop for "a wonderful Christmas."

Sunday School Lesson

God Co-operates With all Good

By ROY L. SMITH

The Gospel of Pollyannaism is very popular with us in this modern day. From a variety of sources we are being assured that God is with us, regardless of what we are or what we are trying to do. All too infrequently do we hear a voice raised in a demand that we repent of our sins and have done with our wickedness. The Apostle Paul, almost as if he had foreseen this easy optimism, has written some solemn words of warning to all men, when he says quite frankly that "in everything God works for good."

Lincoln's Wise Word

Abraham Lincoln offered a very wise word, when he said relative to some pious soul who had prayed that God might be on the side of the Union troops, "I am not anxious whether or not God is on my side; I want to know whether or not I am on God's side."

This is just a little like saying, "I would like to know whether or not my plan for the bridge has the approval of the law of gravity. I know that in any case in which I defy that law, I am defeated before I begin. In any case in which I have the endorsement of that law, I need have no fear."

God is working for good, and if we are also working for good that means God is on our side.

What Is The Good?

There are many times, however, when God and I are not in agreement as to what is good.

There was a time when I thought that a generous income, a big car, and some other advantages were very good, and I strove for them with great diligence. Then came a day when I discovered that God did not seem to think those things were good for me. At any rate, he was giving me something else. My problem then became very simple. I had to find out what God thought was good and go to work for that.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 9: "More Than Conquerors," Romans 8.

Disastrous Good

A young woman, the daughter of a rich home, had been reared in the midst of plenty. She grew up with the idea that because she was a rich man's daughter she was, somehow, superior. She came to believe that she could never get into any jam that money would not come to her rescue.

A reasonable amount of money, as also a reasonable amount of any of the other good things of life, is always comfortable. It is very easy to exaggerate the joys and advantages of poverty. Few of us, in the midst of dire need, are able to see the glories that inhere in want.

In the case of the young woman, however, that which might have been good became ruin, for the simple reason that she began to work for things which did not have the approval of God. She loaded it over friends of modest means until they began to cut her dead. She struggled to maintain appearances regardless of the fact that her father put her on an allowance that compelled her to go into debt in order to "maintain her standing." In time she wrecked her health, her home, her happiness, and her child. All because she had never really worked for those things God said were good.

There is a law of profound significance here. It always operates, like the tide—silently, relentlessly, and invariably. God is working for the good, and if we want His help, we must know what He thinks is good, and we must work for that with all our might and main. Any one of us who really learns this lesson is on his way toward the mastery of life!

GRONCHI IN BONN

BONN (AP) — Italy's President Giovanni Gronchi arrived today for a three-day state visit to West Germany.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Christmas practices have started preparing for the concert to be held in the church on December 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Smith and children, Michael and Nancy, have gone to spend the next three weeks in Florida.

Many friends of master Billie Dorey, Son of the Reverend and Mrs. W. E. Dorey, are sorry to hear of his accident last week when he was hit with a car on his way home from school. He was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital where he was a patient for a number of days. All wish of Billie a speedy recovery.

The euchre and dance sponsored by the L. A. L. Wallbridge in the Orange Hall was well attended. A happy time was spent by all.

Refreshments were served by the members of the Wallbridge L. A. B. A. No. 1168.

Mrs. James Hall and baby, of Hamilton, who spent the past month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sine and baby were recent weekend guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Sine.

Sorry to report Mr. Albert Fisher has gone as a patient to the Sanatorium, Kingston. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Skinner, and children, were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Evans.

We Sincerely Say:

DON'T BUY ENERJETS

Unless—

- YOU REALLY LACK VITALITY
- YOU ARE UNDER A STRAIN
- YOU NEED TO BUILD UP RESISTANCE AFTER AN ILLNESS

Because

Enerjets contain exceptionally high quantities of vitamins, minerals, liver and iron — that's why they cost $5.95 for a 30-day treatment — that's why we say ENERJETS are only for those who really need them, not for those who are now in the best of health.

Fast Action With Enerjets

The Enerjets box is like a calendar. It contains 30 squares. Each square holds your daily dose. Ten days from now, when you reach square 10 in the Enerjets box, you won't have to be told how much better you look and feel. You'll notice your appetite improves . . . your body feels rested, alert ready for action. ENERJETS are building you up, helping you feel better than you have in years.

When You Reach Square 30

You should experience new vigor, a buoyant feeling of well-being, the happy companionship of your family life.

Your $5.95 is Protected

We have such confidence in the Enerjets formula that we say "You are protected" because if you are not so pleased that you want to tell others about them, then just do this — mail back the empty carton with your name and address to The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co. Ltd., Oakville, Ontario. We will refund your full purchase price, plus postage. That is how confident we are that ENERJETS will help you.

Extra For The One You Love

After your 30-day ENERJET course you will feel so much better you will want someone you care for to start on ENERJETS too. Send the lid of the ENERJETS box with name and address to The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co. Ltd., Oakville, Ontario. We will forward a 10-day supply to you or the person you name with your compliments and best wishes for their good health. Only after you have taken your ENERJETS will you realize what a wonderful way this is to help a member of your family, or a friend.

Giant Power and Navigation Project on St. Lawrence River Running on Schedule

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

As the second full year of St. Lawrence Seaway construction ends the giant power-navigation project is running on schedule toward the target dates for completion of its two phases.

Great structures are rising from the river's bed all the way from Iroquois, Ont., to Montreal, more than 100 miles downstream.

Dams, canal locks and the bases for power turbines to harness the water are thrusting up in a dozen spots. Whole communities are on the move in advance of the river's rise.

Officials concerned with both parts of the development—power and shipping—say that progress to date indicates they will be completed on time, with power coming out in the latter part of 1958 and deep-draught vessels moving from the Atlantic to the continent's heart in the 1959 navigation season.

GATHERS MOMENTUM

Work on the $900,000,000 undertaking was begun in late summer of 1954, and has been steadily gathering momentum. At peak periods this year, more than 12,000 persons were employed.

Construction and the furrowing of channels in the river bed is continuing through the winter. So is the fabrication of structures to be laid in place in warm weather.

On the navigation side, Canada's St. Lawrence Seaway Authority — which proposes to spend about $215,000,000 as its share of the shipping facilities—has issued contracts totalling $178,000,000.

During the summer and fall, several Authority contracts were completed, and there was a change in emphasis from excavation to actual construction. In connection with the locks and channels of 27-foot depth.

Hon. Lionel Chevrier, authority president, describes the year's progress as "good."

Of 65,000,000 cubic yards of excavation to be completed by the authority, 30,000,000 have been dug. Better than half the 9,000,000 cubic yards of dike building—5,500,000—has been done.

CONCRETE FOR LOCKS

Concrete is being poured at three of the five navigation locks Canada is building — in the Iroquois, Ont., area of the international section and at Cote Ste. Catherine and St. Lambert around Montreal.

Excavation work should be largely finished a year from now, officials say, and 1957 and 1958 will be generally given over to construction including installation of lock gates and erection of bridges.

On the south side of the international rapids section, near the opposite bank of the river from Cornwall, Ont., the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp. of the United States government is forging ahead with its construction of two locks and channel dredging at a cost of some $190,000,000.

These are facilities that will carry deep - sea shipping around the $600,000,000 power development producing 2,200,000 horsepower of electricity in the Cornwall-Massena, N.Y., area.

The power dam stretching from the Barnhart Island to the outskirts of Cornwall for about 2,000 feet is being built by the Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission and the New York State Power Authority, which are to share 50-50 in the cost and the hydro output.

DAM STRUCTURE RISES

With the river diverted to the south of the island to permit construction, the dam structure is emerging from the dried-off bottom as more than 1,000,000 cubic yards of concrete have been poured. A considerable amount of non - electrical mechanical equipment has been installed.

A major milestone was passed late in the year when river water was diverted through the completed half of a dam being built by the U.S. between Point Rockaway, N.Y., and Iroquois Point to control the level of water for the power installation 40 miles downstream.

Rehabilitation of some 6,000 Canadian residents of "Seaway Valley," whose communities will be flooded, progressed to the "point where all homes to be moved from Iroquois town had been relocated in a new settlement above the future level of the water to be backed up by the power dam. Old Iroquois, which had 1,400 residents, will be totally flooded.

During the year, too, homes began moving up the slope of the valley from five other communities that will be wholly or partly inundated.

In the same area, 40 miles of the main line of the CNR between Toronto and Montreal is being moved above the new water level.

The entire double-track line between Cornwall and Iroquois has been relaid and was being ballasted late in the year. Grading of a new stretch of the main No. 2 highway for the same distance was in progress. Together, the two moves will cost almost $10,000,000.

Russians Cannot Trust Own Men, Taken to Camp

TORONTO (CP)—A former Soviet political prisoner says hundreds of Soviet army officers and men are being shipped to Siberian slave labor camps because the Russians cannot trust their own men.

Dr. Antin Knjashynskyj, an Austrian-born Ukrainian who spent more than 10 years in Soviet camps as a prisoner, said Wednesday night he had talked with many of the officers and men in the 21 slave labor camps which held him from 1945 until his release last year.

The men were drawn from Soviet, satellite, and Asiatic nations, Dr. Knjashynskyj said. They were regarded as dangerous political prisoners because they were all "intensely aware of their own nation's cry for independence."

The former professor of Slavic languages said there are about 15,000,000 persons in the thousands of camps strung across Northern Russia.

Dr. Knjashynskyj, who has lived in the United States for the last six months, was one of 800 political prisoners repatriated by the Russians to Austria last year.

Miner Committed On Two Charges Of Murder

SUDBURY (CP) — Istvan (Steve) Gyorgy, 27-year-old miner, Thursday was committed for trial at the spring assizes on two charges of murder.

The charges were laid in the riffle-slayings Oct. 14 of Lorraine Lalonde, 19, of suburban Minnow Lake and Sandor (Alec) Nemeth of Sudbury.

Main witness at the preliminary hearing before Magistrate W. F. Woodlife was the slain girl's mother, Mrs. Ernest Lalonde, who identified Gyorgy as the man who fired at least two shots in her daughter's upstairs bedroom.

"I went upstairs and saw him. He had a rifle in his hands and he was firing two shots. I had never seen that man before," Nemeth was shot in his Sudbury apartment, half an hour after the Lalonde slaying.

HUNGARIANS AT EASE IN SCHOOL HERE

Little more than a month ago, Bela Fejer, 12, and his brother, Emmerich, 15, were going to school in Hungary. Now they are schoolboys in Toronto and apparently finding the language difference no barrier to happiness. With them is Kasper, a dog, given to them by friends. (Central Press Canadian).

Appeal Made To Shun Modern Dances

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — The archbishop and bishops of the archdiocese of Sherbrooke today appealed to Roman Catholics to shun modern dances, describing them as immoral, and to practise temperance.

"Modern dances appear to have been invented to provoke sin," the church authorities said in a statement. "The immoderate use of alcohol is one of the greatest evils of the century in our country and in the world."

The statement was signed by Most Rev. Georges Cabana, Archbishop of Sherbrooke, it is to be read next Sunday in all churches in the archdiocese.

"Of itself, the dance is not an illicit action; it is an expression of joy and may call for artistic rhythms, grace and agility. But a transformation was made in the dance at the end of the 19th century and we come to the so-called modern dances which invite provocative stances and embraces.

PROVOKE SIN

"By their very nature and by the execution modern dances appear to have been invented to provoke sin. . .

"And what can be said about the circumstances surrounding organized dances — such frequently sensual music, the use of alcoholic beverages, immodest dress, loose talk and questionable gestures? This encompassing atmosphere favors indecent advances and unfortunately leads to the gravest licentiousness in car or other unsupervised places."

Church organizations were asked not to rent church or school halls for dances.

"Even if folklore dances for example, are good in themselves, we deem it wise to draw attention of teachers to the possible danger of developing among the young a taste for modern dances."

TO PROBE FIRES

MEAFORD (CP)—An official of the Ontario fire marshal's office is to conduct a public inquiry Monday into two recent fires which caused an estimated $650,000 damage to the Globe Mills Ltd., plant, it was announced Thursday.

Hiring, Firing Big Issue In Nova Scotia Government

HALIFAX (CP) —Hiring and firing of government employees has become a big issue for Nova Scotia's new Progressive Conservative administration, now in its third week in office.

Canadian Congress of Labor leaders are to meet here today and Saturday to follow up recent appeals to Premier Stanfield not to dismiss workers to make jobs for party supporters.

The meeting follows an announcement by the premier that employees who engaged in partisan work in connection with the Oct. 30 provincial election will be subject to dismissal."

Mr. Stanfield's party ended 23 years of Liberal rule in the election.

The labor leaders to meet here are Fred Nicoll of Halifax, Canadian Labor Congress vice-president; James MacDonald of Sydney, Daniel Nicholson of Stellarton and George A. Smith of Halifax, CLC representatives in Nova Scotia.

VARIOUS JOBS

The jobs involved are outside the civil service, mainly in the highways and health departments and the provincial power and liquor commissions. They include road foremen, grader and snowplow operators, some hospital employees, meter readers and liquor store managers and clerks. The jobs are said to number in the hundreds.

Highways Minister Smith announced Thursday that road foremen will be replaced "automatically" and that grader operators in several counties will be dismissed.

At the same time Attorney-General Donahoe said one crown attorney has been dismissed and three have resigned. He announced new appointments.

No reason was announced for the dismissal of crown attorney E. M. MacDonald of New Glasgow and Mr. Smith did not amplify his announcement.

Premier Stanfield raised the patronage issue at a provincial Progressive Conservative convention here Nov. 16, before he took over from Liberal Premier Henry D. Hicks.

APPARENT WARNING

In an apparent warning to jobseekers, he said: "The Conservative party is bigger than any individual in it. I do not intend to allow the claims of any individual seeking reward to jeopardize the future of this Conservative government."

The new government was sworn in Nov. 20. On Nov. 28 a CLC delegation including the four who will meet here today talked with Attorney - General Donahoe and Highways Minister Smith. They said later "a change of government should not necessitate a change of government employees."

The ministers were reported to have said the cabinet had many complaints about government workers but policy had not been decided.

Last Monday Mr. Smith handed Mr. Nicoll and other labor spokesmen a statement from Premier Stanfield. It said workers who engaged in electioneering or are inefficient in their jobs were subject to dismissal.

"The premier said that when the Liberals took office from the Conservatives in 1933 "there was wholesale dismissal of this type of employee.' Even charwomen had been dismissed.

WON IT ANYWAY

BOULOGNE - SUR - MER, France (Reuters)—A man won 1,000,000 francs ($2,800) in a radio contest here after admitting he had seen the answer to a "jackpot" question. After giving the right answer Claude Nedelec said: "I have to tell you that I read the answer on your question paper which the light made transparent." He got the prize anyway, for being honest.

BLENHEIM, Ont. (CP)—Liquor lounge and dining lounge licences Wednesday were rejected by voters in bordering Raleigh Township for the third time in eight years. The favorable votes fell under 50 per cent, whereas a 60 per cent vote is required.

Christmas Shoppers Given Helpful Buying Guide

OTTAWA (CP) — Christmas shoppers sometimes have a habit of making arbitrary decisions. They consider Aunt Sally, S. is a $10 gift type, and Cousin J. belongs on the $2 list.

But it's time shoppers took dollar signs off shopping lists and replaced them with thoughtful gift ideas, says Norman Hay, acting director of the design centre here.

Think in terms of people, their homes and their surroundings, rather than "how much to spend on Aunt Sally," Mr. Hay said in an interview.

MAY SAVE MONEY

This kind of a shopping list often saves money and produces more suitable gifts — or if Auntie drops down to the $2 bracket. An item doesn't need to be expensive to be interesting or useful.

"We tend to be unimaginative about Christmas presents," says Mr. Hay. "We think articles are unsuitable when they're not at all."

For instance, there's the neighborly little gift for the friend next door. A garlic press or an oven thermometer is just as suitable as a pot-holder or an apron.

And some small gifts—a bright Italian-made tray, for example—fit equally well into modern or traditional home scenes.

Much unsuitable, and costly, gift buying is done in the last-minute rush, says Mr. Hay.

But that's a problem which can be remedied by a New Year's resolution.

HELPFUL GUIDE

In the capital, Christmas shoppers have a helpful buying guide. For the last four years the design centre, operated by the National Industrial Design Council in cooperation with the National Gallery, has exhibited well-designed and inexpensive Christmas gift suggestions.

This year's display opened late in November. So far a daily average of 300 shoppers, armed with pencils and paper, have visited the exhibit.

The gift suggestions, all under $15, are selected by the design centre and borrowed from Ottawa retailers for display. The exhibit is a boon to both shoppers and retailers.

The gay array of toys in the display was selected by the Canadian Association of Consumers' toy testing committee, a group which has already commanded the attention of toy manufacturers, retailers and parents themselves.

As indicated by the toy display, the testing committee's main contention is that, at all ages, toys should answer a child's need, not just appeal to an adult buyer.

WELLINGTON — The United Church W.A. met recently in the school room with the president, Mrs. Pierson, presiding, who read a poem, "Infinite Power," as an introduction.

Mrs. Norman Foster acted as pianist.

Mrs. Nash read the minutes and called the roll, and Mrs. Fleming gave the treasurer's report.

In Mrs. Thompson's absence the president read the correspondence.

Mrs. Pierson conducted the business for the evening. Volunteers were asked to be at the church door on Christmas Sunday. It was voted to pay charges on a bale just shipped. Arrangements were made to have the money collected for white gifts, same as Christmas 1955, members volunteering to look after packing of same. The organization is to be responsible for Christmas treats for Sunday school children. A member from each W.A. group to assist in preparation, also in sending Christmas cards.

The Christmas meeting will be on the afternoon of December 27, at which time the officers of 1957 will be installed. Mrs. Aiva announced that there will be a supper on December 13th.

Mrs. Adams announced the program: Mrs. Bishop had charge of the devotional topic, "Deeper Note and Victory." She was assisted with Scripture, reading by Mrs. Alyea; solo, "The Stranger of Galilee," by Mrs. Alan Pettingell; reading of Mrs. Helen B. Anderson's poems, and dedicated to her by Mrs. Frank Harris, were "I Shall Not Live in Vain" and "A Helping Hand." Piano solo by Mrs. Norman Foster.

Following the benediction contest, "Canadian Cities," was conducted by Mrs. Pyne with Mrs. Hamel having high score. Refreshments were served by the members of group 3.

Aussies Score Two Smashing Swimming Wins

MELBOURNE (CP)—Australia scored two smashing swimming victories and Mrs. Pat McCormick completed an unprecedented double-double in leading an American sweep in platform diving as the glittering show at Olympic Pool came to a close tonight.

Lorraine Crapp, Australia's brilliant 18-year-old swimmer, won the women's 400-metre free-style in Olympic record time, beating out teammate Dawn Fraser and Sylvia Ruuska of the United States.

Murray Rose, 17-year-old Sydney schoolboy who earlier won the 400-metre free-style, added the 1,500-metre free-style tonight—with ease. He needed to set no records in winning over Japan's Tsuyoshi Yamanaka and George Breen of Buffalo, N.Y., world record holder.

TAKE 16TH PLACE

A fifth-place finish by Vancouver's Bill Slater in this event and a fourth credited to Bob Steckle of Kitchener in the light-heavyweight division of Greco-Roman wrestling added five points to Canada's point total for 16th place in the unofficial standings with a total of 52.

Russia, having already handed the U.S. its first defeat for the unofficial Olympic team title, added its 36th gold medal with a team championship in women's gymnastics. Hungary won the gymnastics team drill with portable apparatus.

Mrs. McCormick, 26-year-old Lakewood, Calif., housewife, had earlier won the springboard championship. In completing her double for the 1956 Olympic Games she successfully defended titles she won in 1952 at Helsinki.

SHOW SUPERIORITY

The net result of the swimming competition at these Olympic Games showed Australia's superiority. Australians won eight gold medals and the United States five. Great Britain, Japan, Mexico and Germany captured one apiece.

In winning the 400-metre free-style championship, Miss Crapp improved upon her own Olympic record with a time of four minutes, 54.6 seconds. She previously set a record of 5:0 in winning a heat.

Murray Rose won the 1,500-metre free-style decisively in the winning time of 17:58.9. Yamanaka was timed in 18:00.3 and a weary and obviously disappointed Breen in 18:06.3.

Bill Salter, 16-year-old Vancouver boy, swam the distance the fastest he ever did and placed fifth. He was timed in 18:38.3, about 12 seconds slower than Murray Garrety of Australia who took fourth place.

Two Basketball Games on Tap With Petes

Jack Sisson, coach at Quinte Secondary School, announced this morning that two Peterborough basketball teams will be here tomorrow for a double-header with Q. S. S. squads.

Peterborough C. I. and Quinte Secondary School will meet on the Quinte court with the junior clubs opening activity at 7.00 o'm. Saturday. The senior game will follow immediately.

Brundage Terms Olympic Game Big Success

MELBOURNE (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Oly mpic Committee who has tried and failed to deprive Melbourne of the Games, said today the people of Australia should be proud" of the 1956 Olympics, which he termed "a tremendous success."

Brundage told a press conference he was especially impressed by the size of the crowds, which ran 100,000 every day for the track and field competition and even taxed the capacity of the various facilities halls which housed gymnastic, fencing and wrestling competition. Usually, these events, and other minor sports which also drew well, are considered less popular in Anglo-Saxon lands.

The long-time Olympic figure, who was irked by slumping preparations for the games less than a year ago and who suggested the Games might have to be held someplace else, added that the Australians also could be proud of their competitive performance in the Games.

PROBLEM OF MEDALS

Brundage also admitted the problem of multiple gold medals gymnastics has been under study by the IOC and "probably will have more attention in the future."

He termed it "certainly unjust" for the Russian system, in his different gymnastics events to be able to win six gold medals plus another for all-around performance and still another for team performance while a man competing in the gruelling 10-event decathlon can win only one.

It was in the gymnastics events that Russia piled up points to help hand the United States its first defeat in the unofficial race for the Games title.

CANUCK SKIER WEDS

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian skier Art Tommy, 22, and Marylin Thorpe, 19, were married here Thursday.

Tommy, a member of Canada's 1953 Winter Olympic team and 1954 Canadian slalom champion, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Tommy of Ottawa. His father is a former backfield star with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football League.

His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Thorpe of Middlesex, England.

Television Trots Out Christmas Commercials Early This Year

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Television has trotted out its Christmas commercials early this year.

And, the TV people might ask, why not? Shoppers and merchandisers are urging shoppers to hurry hurry, hurry, and in cities and towns across the country merchants have run up the tinsel and green. It's all part of a plot to start the Christmas season in late August.

Personally, I can't get very excited — either pro or con—about rushing the season, except when it comes to television. Then it brings out the Scrooge in me.

There's an immediacy to television. If you're watching a program, you're trapped by its commercial. There on the home screen is a Christmas tree or the Christmas morning and out parade dads and mummy and Junior and Betsy, all wearing bathrobes, all with hair neatly brushed and faces scrubbed. "Ooooh!" they coo. "Isn't this Christmassy! I've always wanted a whatcha-macallit."

After this and similar Christmas morning scenes have been repeated 30 or 40 times in the living room, you begin to feel that there's little point to celebrating Christmas in any family. It's the same living room. It would be anyplace.

Furthermore, your own tree couldn't possibly look as big and shady as the tree of the commercial, and none of your family would bother to comb his hair or scrub his face—or maybe even pull on a bathrobe.

The perpetual enactment of Christmas scenes, the phony blatherskite of Christmas extolled for commercial purposes, when repeated so often before the actual event, erodes its true spirit as surely as rain melts snow.

Burgess Meredith Making First Film in Past Six Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Note to Broadway theatregoers: If Burgess Meredith reads his Shavian lines in Major Barbara with a Japanese accent, excuse it, please.

The confusion will be natural. For this week Meredith is on a merry-go-round that might even throw such a craftsman as he.

Here's his schedule for the week: On Sunday he was in Boston, helping with the rewrite of Speaking of Murder, his first effort as a stage producer. Sunday night he caught an overnight plane to Los Angeles.

Monday and Tuesday he was dubbing dialogue for Joe Butterfly, a film he made last summer in Japan and in which he plays a native black marketeer. Then he flew to New York, arriving in time for the Wednesday matinee of Major Barbara. After the evening performance, he had the rest of the week off to whip his own production into shape in Boston.

CAUGHT UP WITH HIM

I somehow managed to catch up with him out here between recording sessions at Universal-International. He was affable, if somewhat frenzied. Meredith is his first film in six years, and I asked him about his absence.

"A lot of things have intervened," he explained. "I thought I should go back to the theatre and re-establish myself as a stage performer. I would get myself involved in shows and couldn't accept film roles. For instance, I was booked for years in Tenbount of the August Moon.

"Also, I worked for a year for the Ford Foundation in Excursion on TV. Meanwhile, I was raising a family. I have two children now."

But when Joe Butterfly came along, he couldn't resist the chance to see Japan. ("The way to really know a country is to work in it.") Studio bosses pegged him for the part after seeing Hi Sakini in Teahouse, and he admitted he faced a challenge in comparing the roles. ("Joe Butterfly is sort of a Sakini with Guys and Dolls overtones.")

THIS SHOULD BE IT!

Regardless of what happened last night in Cornwall, all eyes of the Eastern Ontario Senior "A" circuit are turned on this city tonight when the league-leading Whitby Dunlops clash with the second-place Belleville McFarlands.

The Dunlops, heavy pre-season favorites to cop the league gonfalon, have piled up an enviable record thus far with a dozen wins and a tie for 23 points. They have been beaten five times, twice each by Cornwall and Pembroke and once by the Ottawa Canadiens.

In their three previous clashes with the McFarlands the Dunnies have eked out two wins and a tie. The Macs recovered from a 5-4 defeat in the tie game to roar back and score eight goals to a single return with three minutes et ire in the last period. Then they faltered and the opportunist Dunnies raced in to tie the count, and play scored-less overtime.

Smarting under this record, the McFarlands will go all out to prove they are as good a club as the Blair-led backaroos. They figure they are in better shape than in the previous tilts and besides are stronger afield.

The Dunlops, according to Manager Wren Blair have a wholesome respect for the Macs and with this in mind, tomorrow night's tilt between the clubs should be a classic. A win for the Dunlops will extend their lead to 25 points giving them a tidy margin to work on.

Playing coach Bus Gagnon shook up his shock troops in the game against Kingston the other night. Two new faces were in the Athlestewy-Gagnon-Samelenko line and inserted Freddie Etcher in his own slot. He moved over to the second line and is playing with Chuck Burns and Gordie Myles. Burns has not been playing up to par and the coach put himself alongside to pep up the former junior "A" star.

NEW FACES

Larry Kwong, one of the few Chinese puck-chasers in organized hockey, has been signed by the Cornwall Cheviles and turned out with his team-mates last night in the riverside city. Kwong, now 34, has a plenty of experience in hockey circles having played three years in the old Quebec League for seven years. He played briefly with the New York Rangers and in his younger days performed with the New York Rovers of the defunct Eastern Hockey League. Last year he played with the Three Rivers Club of the Quebec League part time and finished the season with Troy. One story has it that he is a brother of the famous Normie Kwong of the Edmonton Eskimos pro football champions.

Adams Blasts Top Winger With Complacency Charges; What Does This Guy Want?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings today share first place with Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League but their star left winger, Ted Lindsay, is down in the doghouse.

The Wings edged Boston 3-2 Thursday night in Detroit and both the Bruin goals were blamed by Detroit manager Jack Adams on complacent play by Lindsay, who has scored 300 goals since he joined Detroit in 1944.

Lindsay picked up a pair of assists when the Wings scored three second period goals, but that didn't save him from a manager-ial blast.

NOT SCORING GOALS

"I don't care how many assists he got," said Adams. "He scored his 300th goal on Nov. 18 and he hasn't scored a single goal in seven games since.

"Not only that, but both those Boston goals were caused because of Lindsay's complacency. And both of them came just after he got on the ice, so it couldn't have been fatigue that caused it. All I want is a little effort. If I can't get that, we'll find a replacement."

The Detroit scoring was handled by Norm Ullman and Gordie Howe on Lindsay's passes, and Dutch Reibel. Don McKenney and Jerry Toppazzini tallied for the Bruins, who pushed their sixth loss in 24 games.

NO HUSTLE — SKINNER

A short time ago Lindsay, a native of Renfrew, Ont., was benched in Toronto for what coach Jimmy Skinner called "lack of hustle."

"Now maybe the local fans can understand why he was benched" said Skinner after Thursday's game. "He's not doing the job he's capable of doing. And I'm convinced of it is he acts like he doesn't even care."

"He's not even bothering to check his man," added Adams, who was coach of the Wings for 20 seasons before stepping up to general manager.

Critical statements also circulated last night, hinting outside business interests were hurting Lindsay's hockey.

It was the only game of the night and Detroit 12,815 customers saw Wings add their 24th win. Wings and Bruins each have 32 points, but Wings have two games in hand.

Wings and Bruins are four points ahead of the third-place Montreal Canadiens. New York Rangers have 20 points, eight behind the Habs. Toronto Maple Leafs are fifth with 18 and Chicago Black Hawks last with 12.

Bilts Blank Hamilton 2-0; Ottawa Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Junior Canadiens are playing partial schedules in three different leagues—two of them senior circuits—this season.

Todd safaris into senior ranks, where the boys are bigger and rougher, have probably taught Canadiens to throw a little weight around.

Thursday night in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series, Canadiens took 17 of 35 penalties in whipping last-place Peterborough Petes 8-2. A second-period brawl resulted in six major penalties.

Canadiens, who also play in the professional Quebec League and the OHA Senior A series, compete only for Laurier Cup honors in the junior division.

BILTS 2-0 WINNERS

Meanwhile, at Hamilton, the league-leading Guelph Biltmores blanked the home Cubs 2-0 and thus have a four point lead over runner-up Toronto Marlboros.

The game left Biltmores at the head of the lineup with 30 points, Marlboros have 26, and St. Michael's College Majors 19.

St. Catharines Tecpees are fourth with 16 points, Hamilton fifth with 18, Ottawa and Barrie Flyers are tied for sixth with eight cards, and Peterboro with only four points in 13 games.

At Peterborough Ottawa led 1-0 after one period, and 5-1 after two.

TWO DOUBLETONS

Jerry Wilson and Dick Dunoughoff scored two goals apiece for the winners, with singles going to Andrew Tardiff, Murray Balfour, Claude Gratton and Bob Housseau.

Peterborough marksmen were scored by Wayne Connelly and Tom Thurby.

This Rates Jackie Parker High in Gridiron's Esteem

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jackie Parker says he will play "any day and all day" when the net proceeds of a football game are earmarked for crippled children.

This is his attitude towards the East-West Shrine game here Saturday. He has a rather special reason.

"I know what it's like to be handicapped and how it feels to recover," says Parker, who will play at left half in the Western offensive lineup.

In 1944, when Parker was a 12-year-old boy in Belleville, Ont., the family doctor wanted to amputate his left leg to halt the spread of a toe infection.

HAD TO BE TIED

"My feet swelled up like balloons and became inflamed. Some nights mother had to tie my hands behind my back to keep me from scratching the maddening itch," he related in an interview.

"We tried X-ray treatments and even then I got in trouble. The rays only burned my legs more."

"Finally they decided to amputate my left leg but I wouldn't let the doctor do it. 'You can try anything but cutting off my barefooted,' I told him."

Jackie won through his glea and shortly afterwards the infected leg began to heal.

Before entering high school Jackie entered high school and was able to play football with the feet slightly bound with tape.

At Jones Junior College he feet gave him more trouble. He was forced to wear #70 inlays in his boots and take grueling exercises to strengthen his feet.

COLLEGE STAR

Parker rose through the Southern Conference where he recorded a record-breaking 120 points in a season. He joined Edmonton Eskimos under the wife drafted by District Limbo.

In Toronto last month he set a record for Grey Cup competition, scoring three touchdowns and a single for the Eskimos.

His legs are now "as sound but skinny and attract a good deal of kidding from his teammates. Parker accepts their comments with a smile.

The weather forecast calls for a light fall of snow tonight with the possibility of more Saturday. But the gridiron at Empire Stadium is sheltered by a tarpaulin. Stadium officials report the turf is frozen solid.

NEUMANN JOINS TEAM

It was reported Thursday night that Peter Neumann of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four, will play Saturday, replacing defensive end John Welton of Toronto Argonauts. Welton has a knee injury. Jim Trimble, East coach, was reported earlier to be trying to get Hamilton's Ralph Tooby as a replacement.

Shrine officials reported Thursday night 16,151 tickets had been sold. With the usual last-minute rush for seats, the Shrines expect a sell out. Attendance at the first Shrine game in Toronto last year, a 66 tie, was 13,083.

Proceeds from the game will be turned over to crippled children's hospitals at Montreal and Winnipeg.

The Big Seven

Major Leagues in Turmoil Everybody Wants to Trade

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Cleveland Indians have offered pitcher Garcia to Detroit and slugger Al Rosen to Boston in their quest for a much — needed first string catcher and Cincinnati Reds' legs have made a concrete offer to Brooklyn for third baseman Randy Jackson.

This information was among a few choice items learned on the minor league convention came to an end today and baseball folks unpacked their winter clothes for the major league meetings in Chicago starting Monday.

A Tiger official revealed that Hank Greenberg, general manager of the Detroit club, has told them Garcia and second-string receiver Hal Aragon for Fritz Ostermueller, the lefthanded hitting bonus catcher.

"It's an interesting offer and we're considering its possibilities," said the Detroit official.

We could use another starting pitcher and Garcia, if right, could help us."

OFFERS ROSEN FOR WHITE

The same source also said he was aware Greenberg had made a man-to-man offer of Rosen, a hard-hitting third baseman, to the Red Sox for catcher Sammy White.

It is believed the Redlegs, seeking to solve their third base problem, have offered Smokey Burgess, their second-string catcher, to the Dodgers for Jackson.

It also was learned that the proposed multiple trade between Philadelphia and Brooklyn has simmered down to a pitcher-for-shortstop-plus deal between the two clubs. As it stands now, the Phillies, admittedly searching for a shortstop, are mulling over an offer by the Dodgers that would give them shortstop Bill Lillis and centrefielder Glen Gorbous for any one of three pitchers—southpaws Harvey Haddix and Curt Simmons and righthander Jack Meyer.

The minors wound up their affairs a day earlier than expected. They took up 29 proposed amendments, adopting 16, rejecting 11 and withdrawing two.

APPROVE CUT-DOWN IDEA

Among those adopted was a proposal to trim the major league player limit to 28 by opening day. Should the majors agree, it would mean that some 20 or 40 players would be made available to the higher minors in time for them to open their season. In turn, these higher minors would be in position to help the lower minors by sending them their excess personnel.

Currently a big league club may carry as many as 40 players until mid-May when it must trim down to 25 players.

The minors rejected all proposals to change the bonus rule.

The minor league body also agreed to drop the name "minors" by voting to be known in the future solely as "the National Association."

The body adopted in amendment reducing from one year to 30 days the time when a returning service man does not count on the player limit. It also voted for the consolidation of major and minor league conventions to be held on alternate years in big league and National Association cities.

Eight cities, including Montreal, issued invitations for next year's convention of Vancouver applied for the meetings in 1958 or 1959.

Varsity Loses To Michigan

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Tech's Huskies, with Ron Stenlund ramming home a goal with only 48 seconds left, defeated the University of Toronto 5-4 Thursday night in an international hockey match.

Toronto had won its previous four games. Michigan Tech now is 3-6.

Right winger Jack McManus and his brother,' goalie Bob McManus, put on a two-man show for Michigan. Jack got Tech's first four goals and Bob had 33 saves, some of them sensational.

Toronto scorers were Duncan Brodie, Brian Anderson, John MacDonald, and Ken Linseman.

Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Aces Thursday night ran up a 6-2 decision over the Quebec Hockey League's front-running Chicoutimi Sagueneens while Trois-Rivieres Lions scored a come-from-behind 4-3 win over Shawinigan Falls Cataracts.

Aces now are three points behind Chicoutimi, while the Cataracts and Lions are tied for third place.

Cornwall Edges Belleville In Rough Rugged Battle

CORNWALL (Special) — Cornwall Chevrolets moved all alone into third place in OHA senior 'A' eastern division action here tonight with a hard fought 3-1 win over second place Belleville McFarlands.

Chevies had been tied with Pembroke Lumber Kings and the Kingston CKLCs for fourth place before tonight's game, each team with 14 points.

Now Cornwall takes over third spot, one point ahead of Ottawa Junior Canadiens — and one full game back of the McFarlands. Cornwall led the game 2-0 at the end of the opening period on goals by Pete Payette and Moe Savard but the visitors came back with their single marker by rightwinger Rene St. Hilaire early in the second.

RENE ST. HILAIRE

Recent team addition Larry Kwong tallied the winners' final marker near the mid-way point of the last frame in salt away the nod.

Kwong, the only Chinese player in the country today and late of the International League at Troy, was making his debut with Cornwall.

Roughness marred proceedings somewhat and fiery Minnie Menard, Belleville left winger headed up the penalty-studded fray when he drew a game misconduct for swinging his stick at a fan near the end of regulation play. Altogether 18 penalities were handed out with 11 going to the losers. Cornwall outshot their opponents widely 38 to 23.

Cornwall — goal, Devaney; defence, Limoges, Lepine. Batine, Bingley; forwards, M. Savard, R. Savard, Plamondon, Henry, Muir, Reimer, Jeannette, Kwong, Payette.

LIONS GRAB END

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union announced Thursday they have signed their first new import for 1957. He is 26-year-old Emery Barnes, an end from Portland, Ore., last player cut by Green Bay Packers before the current National Football League schedule started.

Leafs Try 'Em Send 'Em Back

TORONTO (CP) — Defenceman Bobby Haun and right winger Don Hurst were returned Thursday to Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League.

The pair had been called up Tuesday on an emergency basis to substitute for injured players.

Injured defenceman Jim Thomson is expected to be in the Toronto lineup against New York Rangers here Saturday night and Leafs will return to Leafs for the game.

Two 'Sooners' Picked for All-Star Squad

NEW YORK (AP) — Oklahoma Halfback Tommy McDonald is the lone holdover on the 1956 Associated Press all-America football team announced today.

Coaches chose Tubbs for the other Oklahoman honored on the squad chosen on the recommendations of regional boards throughout the United States and based on all college games through Dec. 1.

Johnny Majors, the 162-pound tailback who led Tennessee to an unbeaten, untied season, topped Jimmy Brown of Syracuse and Don Meredith, Miami's wonder man, complete the backfield.

In addition to Tubbs, the line includes Jim Kramer of Michigan and Joe Walton of Pittsburgh at ends, Alex Karras of Iowa and John White of Oregon State at tackles with Bill Glass of Baylor and Jim Parker of Ohio State at guards.

Six of the players — Kramer, Brown, Parker, Bosseler, Tubbs and Glass—were picked in the first round of the recent professional football draft.

EXPERT

For the second successive year, McDonald has been the chief executioner of Oklahoma's "bread and butter" play—the split-T option pitchout with Tommy capitalizing on the defence either to sweep the end or call on his pinpoint passing ability.

In helping the Sooners run their victory string to 40, McDonald scored 20 touchdowns, 13 rushing, scored 102 points, completed eight of 12 passes for 183 yards, made four scoring passes and was strong on defence.

Tennessee athletic director Gen. Bob Neyland has called Majors "the best all-round football player we've ever had at Tennessee."

Brown can run over or sidestep opponents with equal ease, rushed 986 yards, scored 106 points, was a top pass receiving and could throw as well.

Bosseler is rated the equal of Doc Blanchard by coach Andry Gustafson who has worked with both and believes big Don is the best defensive back he's ever seen.

Kramer is called the "best end in Michigan history" by coach Bennie Oosterbaan. He caught 38 passes for 353 yards and two touchdowns, scored 35 points including 17 extra points in 20 tries and two field goals. On defence he was even greater.

Walton, son of former Pitt tackle Frank (Tiger) Walton, hauled in six touchdown passes including the ones which beat Syracuse, Oregon and Duke.

Cornwall Chevrolets defeated Belleville McFarlands 3-1 Thursday night in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Eastern Division game on Pete Payette's goal on a penalty for a stick-swinging episode.

In the only other senior game of the night, South Porcupine edged Alsibbi Dickinson 5-4 in the Porcupine Mines circuit.

At Cornwall, Minnie Menard, Belleville left winger, drew a match penalty for swinging his stick at a fan toward the end of the game.

Cornwall, tied before the game for fourth place with Pembroke Lumber Kings and Kingston CKLCs, moved into third place a point ahead of Ottawa Junior Canadiens and one full game behind McFarlands.

Cornwall led 2-0 at the end of the first period on goals by Pete Payette and Moe Savard. Right winger Rene St. Hilaire scored for Belleville early in the second. Larry Kwong got the final goal midway in the first period. Kwong, formerly of the International League Troy Bruins, was making his debut with Cornwall.

Eighteen penalties were handed out, 11 to Belleville. Cornwall outshot McFarlands 38 to 23.

At South Porcupine, the Porkies scored four unanswered goals in the second period to head the defending champion Eaks their sixth straight defeat.

Bill Pirie scored the winning goal. Lino Diamantini potted a pair for the winners, with singles going to Eddie Kulik and Bob Tilley. Geordie Warner had a pair for Alibibi, singles going to Jerry Labelle and Syl Ethier.

NOW THEREFORE TAKE NOTICE that pursuant to The Industrial Standards Act, R.S.O. 1950, Chapter 179, a conference of the employers and employees engaged in the said industry within the said zone is hereby summoned to meet in the Quinte Hotel, Belleville, Ontario, on Monday, December 17th, 1956, at the hour of 2.30 o'clock in the evening for the purpose of investigating and considering the conditions of labor and the practices prevailing in the said industry and for such purposes as may be required by the Minister of Labor a schedule of wages and hours and days of labor:

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that the employers and employees who attend such conference are authorized and empowered by the Industrial Standards Act to negotiate a schedule, and subject to the approval of the Industry and Labor Board and the Minister of Labor, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may declare that such schedule shall be binding upon all employers and employees in such industry which includes all persons in or hereafter engaged or employed in the work or operations included in such industry.

DATED AT TORONTO, this 22nd day of November, 1956.

(Chas. Daley)
Minister of Labor

Court Reserves Appeal on Grid Suit

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Thursday reserved decision on an appeal by the Detroit Football Company against the dismissal of its $10,000 damage suit against quarterback Tom Dublinski.

Counsel for the company, owners of Detroit Lions of the National Football League where Dublinski played before coming to Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four league in 1955, said the quarterback broke his contract with Lions.

He said the company would be satisfied with damages or a declaratory order saying it had been entitled to an injunction stopping Dublinski playing with Toronto.

Chief Justice C. T. McRuer of the Supreme Court of Ontario ruled against the company's claim for damages and an injunction last July.

Dublinski's counsel denied that any contract had been broken, and said Lions did not properly exercised an option on his services. $100,000 LOSS

Lions' counsel, Barry Pepper and Francis Gerity, said club profits in 1955 dropped $100,000, but Dublinski's counsel, L. C. Dublin, said the loss of the quarterback cudded not be considered responsible for that deficit.

Mr. Dublin said the club lost an $80,000 television contract that year, and ran up $80,000 in additional expenses.

Lions also paid Washington Redskins $10,000 for a replacement for Dublinski, he said.

Lions said it cost them two players and $10,000 to get the replacement.

Wallace Fights Anthony Tonight

NEW YORK (CP) — The only Canadian among the world's top 10 light heavyweight boxers takes on a rugged opponent tonight at Madison Square Garden in a fight that could lead to a crack at the world title for the winner.

Gordon Wallace of Brantford comes up against tough Tony Anthony of New York in a 10-rounder that could well decide who gets the first chance at Archie Moore when he defends his crown.

Wallace, a one-time lumberjack who holds the British Empire light heavyweight title, has 31 victories in 43 fights, including 15 knockouts. The 21-year-old opponent has a 25-4 record with 21 of the wins coming by knockouts.

Anthony, rated No. 5 by Ring magazine, is a 2-to-1 favorite to defeat Wallace.

The Canadian, who won the Empire title June 16 by outpointing Ron Barton in London, is ranked seventh by Ring. The National spring at Saskatoon.

Boxing Association places him fifth among its cruiserweights and ranks Anthony ninth.

Both fighters were declared in top shape by their managers, Frank Bricker, who handles Wallace, said his man is "much improved" since 1953, when he was knocked out in three rounds by the now heavyweight champion, Floyd Patterson.

Anthony's manager, Ernie Braca predicted victory for his boy.

"The way we figure it," he said "Tony will beat Wallace and then meet Chuck Spieser for the American title. Then the winner will challenge Moore. If Arch doesn't come out fighting, there will be boss of the world."

Spieser currently is rated No. 3 by Ring magazine among the light heavyweights. Wallace has scored 21 straight victories. Anthony, five.

The bout will be nationally televised, starting at 10 p.m. EST.

CANCEL HOOP TOURNEY

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Basketball Association has decided to cancel plans for a national women's tournament next year.

The bout will be nationally televised, starting at 10 p.m. EST.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, December 8, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mixed vibrations. Don't let them confuse you. Advance purposefully toward your objectives. Curb inclinations to outbursts of temper, arguments. Maintain calm, poise.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Develop your latent talents; no one else can do it for you. You are a good organizer with a steady building capacity; put this trait to good use. In free time really relax, rest.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Mercury in benefic aspect. Finish up whatever you can in true, individualistic manner. Don't delay where you know you are right. Make use of your dexterity and analytical mind.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Be wary of schemers, purveyors of get-rich-quick deals. Be sure that your plan is both worthy and workable. Your sympathetic understanding helps the afflicted and infirm.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Your planetary aspects promise an interesting and stimulating day and should inspire your best endeavors. Difficult and unusual ventures are sponsored.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — You are very active mentally. Channel your efforts to best advantage under this day's fine rays. Promote success through energetic, discerning action. Circulate among friends and associates agreeably.

September 24 to October 22 — (Libra) — You've seen many examples of how people can do great things with little equipment or encouragement — often against tremendous obstacles. Look into your habits and tactics today.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Note Libra today. There is so much good you can do — even though you may think you are already going well — if you will try harder.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Don't waste one minute of this day or week — and or you will regret it. Of course, healthy recreation and needed rest are in order, just as are humanitarian obligations.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — You can do more now than you may think. Because of others' contention or irritability you may not believe it possible to mold the day, but just try. You will be happily surprised.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — You, Capricorn and Pisces have unusually fine planetary configurations under which to go forward rapidly, constructively. Don't let foolishness dim your ambitions.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — With all your ingenuity and resourcefulness, start this day believing you can succeed, and back that faith with sturdy endeavor. Don't dawdle; don't think too much about pleasures.

You born today: With your artistic and practical sense, you appreciate fine work, can plunge wholeheartedly into plain labor, too. You dislike superfluousness, like to work in a precise, concise manner. If you develop your best traits, you will work consistently, play hard but also intelligently, and still find time to assist others. Don't speak too quickly, disregarding consequences; avoid unwise gambling.

Birthdate: Horace, Roman poet.

SIR WILLIAM

Sitting in a lounge furnished by Toronto hotels and business houses the Hungarians told strangely repetitive stories of suppression, agonizing hours of waiting for families and the uncertainty of life in a strange country.

One woman with two teen-age children said:

"I left my husband behind," she sobbed. "He was sick and told me I must take the children and get out. I used to be very brave but I don't know if he'll ever get out."

Others, speaking through volunteer interpreters recruited from Toronto's Hungarian community, also spoke of people left behind.

Few wanted to talk of their escape. There was a feeling that this was a fact not readily assimilated—something they would have to get used to.

Sandor and Anna Hatos and their two-year-old twins, youngest of the group, smiled almost wonderfully as they told of making the momentous decision to come to Canada.

CANADA WONDERFUL

"There is not much left of the old life now," Anna said. "We sold everything and find something here. From over there it seems such a wonderful place to be."

One engaged couple to be married, spoke quietly of their plans to "just find a place to get married."

When asked about their occupations most were reluctant to talk, almost as though there was a hidden fear they might not find work to support themselves and their families. Underneath all questions and answers was an unbelieving anxiety about people still in the battle-torn country.

Most were tired to take it all in. They smiled wanly at welcome speeches, moved haltingly through brief customs inspection and went gratefully to 21 rooms outfitted with banks and cots.

After today's medical and immigration procedure will finished the difficult task of fitting the people with jobs and homes was to begin. Thousands of offers of each have already poured into the centre and officials say they can place about 1,500 in the Metropolitan Toronto area alone.

3 PC CANDIDATES

Seen after the convention was called following the resignation of Hon. George Drew, there were moves to split Prentice Front of Ontario, and President Sidney Smith of the University of Toronto. Mr. Nowlan said he wanted Dr. Smith to enter the campaign. Both Dr. Smith and Mr. Nowlan, Mr. Smith, 58, issued definite statements declaring themselves out.

There have been reports, and also out—the—record claims by Mr. Diefenbaker's supporters that Premier Frost is backing the Saskatchewan candidate. The premier's reply has been that he does not concern himself with federal politics.

CAN COUNT ON ONT.

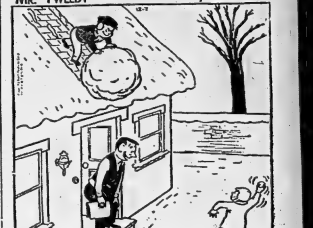
But there are indications Mr. Diefenbaker can count on a good share of Ontario's 512 delegates to add to Prairie and Maritime, votes.

Mr. Fleming can expect his main strength from Ontario and Quebec but he also spent much of the late stages of his campaign seeking delegates in the west.



Mr. Fulton, who can count on strong support from his native British Columbia and also some Prairie delegates, has done a fair amount of campaigning in the East in an effort to pick up backing there.

The main feature of the campaign has been Mr. Diefenbaker's all approach.

The day the convention was summoned to a meeting of the party's national executive here, Gordon Churchill, MP for Winnipeg South Centre, announced a "Draft Diefenbaker" movement and said it was backed by 80 per cent of the party's Commons members.

Mr Diefenbaker held his silence then and later when George Hees, MP for Toronto Broadview who had been shapign up as a strong leadership contender, dropped out of the race and announced his support for the Prince Albert member.

Finally, several hours after Mr. Fulton announced his own candidacy, Mr. Diefenbaker told a Prince Albert gathering that he would not seek the leadership but was willing to let his name stand at the convention if "Canadians generally" wanted him.

At last week's special session of Parliament on the Middle East crisis, observers generally agreed that Mr. Diefenbaker made the most impressive showing of all candidates.

ELOQUENT REFERENCE

He made an eloquent speech urging a new Quebec conference of Western leaders to heal the breach in the Western alliance. And his reference to Quebec City as "that ancient citadel, representative of the contribution made and to be made to Canada's freedom by those of the French race" could not be overlooked in that province.

Right after the speech he visited Montreal for a meeting with a committee of Quebec backers. The list of committee members was impressive.

Mail Truck Driver Shot Five Times During Robbery

Truck Found in Eastern Toronto, Mail Missing

TORONTO (CP) — Post office driver Weldon Boyd was found dead in his mail truck today, shot five times by someone who apparently rifled the vehicle of registered mail.

An off-duty patrolman discovered the body slumped on the floor of the truck in eastern Toronto. Ten miles away, in suburban Scarborough, were found 16 empty mail bags. Some of them were stained with blood.

Police checked the truck and its contents, questioned residents in the area and said they had no doubt that might lead them to Boyd's slayer. Boyd's feet were tangled in the foot pedals of the truck. His body was resting on the floor of the passenger side.

Boyd about 40, had been shot four times in the body and once in the head just behind his ear. Muzzle imprints indicated the killer pressed a revolver against the victim's back and fired.

Several hours after they had removed the body to the morgue, police were unable to say how much registered mail had been taken or to estimate its loss. The rear of the truck was packed with mail bags. The 16 discarded bags had been taken from the front end, tipped open and thrown to the street.

FIND BAGS FIRST

Police started a search for the truck after Boyd, employed by the H. W. Bacon Cartage Co., was reported overdue on his pickup trips. About 9:30 p.m. they found the mail bags strewn along Kingston Road in Scarborough Township.

Constable Robert Trimble, on his way to visit a friend, saw a mail truck parked on Pape Avenue, about two miles east of Woodbine Race Track.

Residents said the vehicle had been parked there since 7:30 p.m.

Detectives said they believe one person was responsible for the shooting, and that he rode in the truck inside Boyd.

Adopting Couple Appeals Verdict On Maat Twins

TORONTO (CP) — A young Dutch-Canadian couple have been awarded custody of their twins by the Ontario Court of Appeal, but may not have the youngsters until the foster-parents' appeal has been heard in the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Maat, 28 and 29 years old, were given the twins Thursday when the appeal court reversed a previous decision by a 3-to-1 verdict. Col. Dubin, counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Austin Heptons, announced he will appeal. He said: "Once my notice of appeal is filed in Ottawa, the court order that the Heptons must deliver up the babies will be automatically refused."

Rodney and Richard, 28-month-old twins, were put up for adoption about a month after their birth in June, 1954. Herman Maat, then 22, was a trucker, making 18 week and sleeping in his truck.

Mr. Hepton was a carpenter earning $100 a week and had just built a bungalow in suburban Scarborough. He and his wife, Ethel, were unable to have children.

LONG LEGAL BATTLE

Shortly after the twins were adopted by the Heptons, Maat, afraid of heart and started legal proceedings to regain them. In December, 1955, the Heptons were awarded custody by Mr. Justice Treleaven of the Supreme Court of Ontario. Last September the Maats, aided by Quebec immigration by a 3-to-1 verdict, Col. Dubin, counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hepton, announced he will appeal. He said: "Once my notice of appeal is filed in Ottawa, the court order that the Heptons must deliver up the babies will be automatically refused."

WOMAN FRACTURES HIP IN FALL

Mrs. Rebecca Sine, of Stirling, is resting comfortably in Belleville General Hospital recovering from a fractured hip sustained in a fall in the village on Monday. Dr. Donald Scott yesterday reported her condition as "fair".

The 84-year-old woman is well-known in Belleville and in fact, all over the county. She is famous for her delightful Christmas dinners and is known for her smiling as well as the smile".

JUDGE DECLARES LIQUOR VOTE INVALID

County Judge J. N. Kennedy, of Peterborough, yesterday threw out the vote of Havelock villagers to have the community remain dry. He ordered a new vote to be held at a later date.

In April the people of Havelock voted against having beer sold in the hotel there under the public houses licence.

Reeve Cleral Leeson was instrumental in carrying the ball to court and acted as plaintiff in the case. Belleville lawyer Kenneth G. M. Ross acted for him.

A similar vote in Tweed was declared invalid some time ago, and a new vote was in favor of selling beer in the hotel there.

The reeve has made application to the Liquor Licence Board for a new vote.

S. A. CONTINUES CAROLING APPEAL

The Salvation Army is approaching the half-way mark in its caroling appeal for 1956 Christmas. In spite of the heavy fog, local residents on Thursday evening were most appreciative of the Christmas carols. Those living in the area bounded by Moira East and College Streets will be reminded tonight of the real spirit of the season when the carolers will again be on the job. Your support is anticipated and appreciated.

FRANK PHILLIP LAWSON Trenton

Frank Phillip Lawson, 21 Terrance St., Trenton, was buried in Carman Cemetery on Saturday afternoon. Rev. G. J. Minielly conducted a service in the chapel of the Weaver Funeral Home at 1.30 p.m.

Bearers were Allan, James, Russell, Alfred, Charles and Reuford Lawson. All are sons of the deceased.

Mr. Lawson died in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Wednesday, December 5th, in his 64th year, after being ill in health for the past eight months.

Surviving besides the sons who acted as bearers, are three daughters, Mrs. Ken Buck, Mrs. R. Humphrey and Mrs. Roy Crouch, all of Trenton; three other sons, Ronald and Hayward, of Trenton, and Robert, stationed with the RCN at Halifax; two sisters, Mrs. William Lambert, Trenton, and Mrs. Louella Thompson, Norwood; one brother, Raymond Lawson of New Hamburg. 20 grandchildren.

Born in Northumberland township to the late Mr. and Mrs. John Lawson, he was a resident of Trenton for the past 35 years and with Mr. Lawson resided at Campbellford.

He was a cement finisher for Foundation Maritime and was a member of the United Church.

With Christmas little more than two weeks away, already the Belleville post office is being geared to handle the flood of greeting cards, parcels, and other mail which turns its way through the office in the week or so prior to Yuletide.

Postmaster Norman Massey notes that for the big deluge up to 125 additional postal help will be hired to augment the regular staff of 48 persons.

First of the additional postal help will be taken on about December 12th with the number gradually building up until the peak is reached during the three day period around December 17th and 18th.

Most of the additional help will be in the post office but during the rush there will be 24 additional help on the streets assisting the regular carriers.

The big headache at the local post office is finding enough room for the additional sorters to sort mail, according to Mr. Massey.

"Lucky thing the additional help is not in the office all at the same time", he said.

Of late years the public has been pretty cooperative in getting their Christmas mail away early, but "mail early" is still a good rule to follow if family and friends are not to be delivered after and not before Christmas.

Usually the rush is over a day or so before Christmas, but this year with Christmas falling on Tuesday it is expected that the big push may string out a day or so longer.

Post Office Being Geared To Carry Christmas Mail Flood

Escapee Sees 'No Hope' for His Country

VIENNA (CP)—A former member of the Hungarian parliament has decided to emigrate to Canada because he can see "no hope" for his country.

Joseph Adorjan, who spent 7½ years as a political prisoner of Hungary's Communist rulers, escaped to Austria earlier this week. His son Miklos, now with a Toronto real estate firm, is in Vienna to arrange passage to Canada for his father, his 29-year-old sister, Elelka, and three cousins.

The elder Adorjan said he would remain in Hungary if he could see hope of a settlement of any kind.

"But it is all too obvious there is no hope for my country and I am getting too old to keep on fighting against hopeless odds."

SAW REDS TAKE OVER

Adorjan, 57, was for 20 years a prominent member of the Smallholders' party, a moderate group strongly opposed to communism.

"The Communists obtained only 17 per cent of the vote in 1945, but through R.I.A. a pressure gradually took over key posts in the government."

At the end of 1948 Adorjan was arrested along with a number of other non-Communist members of parliament and was released from prison only last October in the early days of the worker's revolt.

He took part in attempts to set up a non-Communist government in the first days of the revolt, but went into hiding when Russian troops and tanks moved.

COMPROMISE IMPOSSIBLE

"Some people have criticized us for trying to get the country to break with the Russians and insisting on full independence," said Adorjan. "But there is no compromise with the Russians, they don't know the meaning of the word compromise."

The elder Adorjan said the first four years in prison were "terrible but they gradually started treating us better and the last two years before my release were much better."

The stockily-built veteran of Hungary's political wars added: "Here refugees are so grateful to Canada for what you are doing for us.

"I am glad my grandsons are growing up as Canadians for the future belongs to Canada, not my poor Hungary."

Numerical Strength of Eskimos, Indians in Quebec Increases

MONTREAL (CP)—Indians and Eskimos may be struggling to maintain numerical strength elsewhere, but in Quebec their number is increasing.

An anthropological study by McGill University, University of Montreal and University of Ottawa disclosed that Quebec's native population is up, not because the Indians lead birth rate, but because of better medical and sanitary conditions in settlements.

Today the population is 19,500, made up of 17,500 Indians in 37 main centres and about 2,100 Eskimos, dotted around the northern coastline. In 1851 there were 14,631 Indians and 1,920 Eskimos.

Anthropologists contributing to the recently published survey of the aboriginal populations of Quebec and Labrador, say the province's Indians were probably never very numerous. Even before the white man arrived, rugged land and climate made life difficult for many animals, and hunting and fishing was always proportioned to the amount of game available.

Early explorers met and fought the Iroquois, but most of the native is more likely to be an Algonquin or related tribe. Algonquin presently inhabits on his ancestral Indian 'pothlatch.

ALONG ST. LAWRENCE

The tribes are settled mainly along the St. Lawrence River, to St. Augustine on the Gulf of St. Lawrence, through the Gaspe Peninsula, and along the Ontario border as far as James Bay. About 3,300 Indians live on the Caughnawaga Reserve east of Montreal, making it the province's largest centre. Other major ones are Point Bleue, some 150 miles north, with 1,000 Indians, and Restigouche, in the Gaspe, with 870.

The Eskimos extend from Fort George, on the eastern edge of James Bay, to Cape Bay, in Labrador. Nearly a quarter of them live at Port Harrison, on the eastern coast of Hudson Bay, north of Belcher Island. Most still follow a seasonal life, trapping in winter, hunting seal and caribou in summer.

Anthropologists have a word of caution for industrialists hoping to tap this labor source as northern Quebec develops. They say that bees an Indian or Eskimo has been given white man's work, and learned white man's ways, he cannot be assured of dependable guidance. Having left it, he may find the country and old life impossible, and often ends up frustrated and ill from the tug of two cultures, two worlds on his once-simple existence.

Important NATO Council Meeting Opens Tuesday

LONDON (CP)—Every time the North Atlantic Treaty Organization holds a year-end council meeting, members call it the most important NATO has ever held. There is another one coming up next week in Paris, and the usual billing applies.

If ever the term "agonizing reappraisal" fitted the circumstances, this is the time.

In four crowded days starting Tuesday, the 15-power alliance will touch on nuts-and-bolts and complex problems as Cyprus and Egypt, ways to restore solidarity in the West, the need for a new political consultation, how to speed up the post-war reconstruction in European defence, whether the British effort in the same area can be continued and what is to be NATO's new political boss.

WSE MEN'S REPORT

Not long ago it was thought that the main business of this December meeting in the Palais de Chaillot would be to discuss the top-secret report of NATO's "three-wise men"—Foreign Ministers L. B. Pearson, Gaetano Martino and Halvard Lange of Canada, Italy and Norway respectively—on ways of improving NATO co-operation in non-military fields.

Among the main recommendations it is understood, will be an increase in the status and authority of NATO's permanent representative in Paris.

It is also suggested that the secretary-general should act as chairman at ministerial meetings, rather than have the chair rotate among ministers, and that he should keep a "watching brief" a group of permanent representatives to note it watching brief on serious problems outside the NATO geographical area, such as Russian intervention in Egypt.

These suggestions alone would normally be big news, but they may take subordinate place next week to wide-ranging talks on the Middle East and the stirrings of revolt among Russia's Eastern European satellites. Perhaps no more than at any time since the death of Stalin in March, 1953, is international diplomacy in flux, the frozen postures of the cold war show signs of thawing, and the field for speculation is endless.

PATCHING JOB

Equally important may be the beginnings of a concerted effort by the West to do a repair job on the battered Atlantic alliance, breached by differences of opinion over British-French action in the Middle East.

There appears growing agreement in Western capitals that after the discord caused by Anglo-French decision to "go it alone" in Egypt, the time is overdue for a new start. One point to be emphasized will be the necessity—sharply pointed up by the Suez affair—for independent action planned by one or more member nations which might affect other countries in the alliance.

Market Prices Remain Firm

Prices held steady on the Saturday market with eggs exposed generally at last week's prices of 55c for extras, 48c for Grade "A" and 42c for mediums and 40c for pullets.

Capon fowl sold at 60c per lb. fully dressed and rough dressed at 55c. Mature fowl brought 45c per lb.

Top grade Delicious and Spy apples sold at $2.50 per hamper as did top grade Talman Sweets; McIntosh sold at $3 per hamper for tops. Basket lots were 85c for Spy and Delicious and 75c for McIntosh.

On the vegetable market carrots and beets brought 25c per half peck; parsnips were 40c per half peck; cabbage a dime and 15c each; onions 50c per half gallon and sauerkraut 25c per qt.

Potatoes were $2 per 50-lb. bag, or $1.75 per hamper.

Butternuts were quoted at 75c per qt. Honey was 81 per four-lb. tin.

One vendor offered hardwood cut into stove lengths quoting $10 per half cord.

PERSONAL REMINDER

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — John Cleghorn got a reminder that he found his own name on a tombstone in a long-neglected pioneer cemetery. He was among the persons commemorating a group of his ancestors who died in a cholera epidemic in 1844.

SHIP'S PRIVILEGES

FONTHILL, Ont. (CP) — Dr. G. A. Jordan here has received a special mail entitling him to "the freedom of the ship" on the French liner Ile De France. He was returning from a European holiday when he performed an emergency appendix operation on a fellow-passenger, at the request of the ship's own medical staff.

Angelo LaMarca Sent to Chair For Kidnapping

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—A jury of 12 fathers has condemned Angelo LaMarca to death in the electric chair for the kidnap-murder of baby Peter Weinberger.

The jury Friday night found the 29-year-old truck driver guilty of kidnaping and first-degree murder. The judge set Jan. 14 for the mandatory death sentencing.

LaMarca's knees wobbled when he heard the verdict. Two court attendants grabbed him to keep him from going to the floor.

The defence built its case around a temporary insanity plea, claiming the 31-year-old defendant had a normal, hard-working husband and father until last spring, when a burden of mounting debts drove him out of his mind.

In that shattered state La-Marca embarked on the kidnap plot, the defence said. LaMarca contried but failed to collect a $2,000 ransom.

CALLED COLD-BLOODED

The defence asked mercy for LaMarca, but District Attorney Frank Gulotta called him a lawbreaking, cold-blooded criminal.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Weinberger, parents of the little victim, would not comment on the outcome of the trial.

The defendant admitted taking the baby from the patio of the Weinberger's Levittown, N. Y., home last July 4 and abandoning him a short while later in a Long Island honeysuckle thicket a few miles away.

Police found the child's body Aug. 24, the day after the FBI seized LaMarca.

LaMarca's wife, Donna, 31, mother of two small children, collapsed after the verdict. She was carried from the courtroom.

'Leakage' Must Stop President Tells Secretary

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower declared Friday to Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson that "leakage" of military plans to Russia "is as dangerous" as the public "is something that's not to be."

The president spoke about the matter as he and Wilson conferred in start a conference on plans reported to call for $38,000,000,000 in defence expenditure during the fiscal year starting next July 1.

The informal discussion about "leakage" of defence data in advance of any public announcement is the purpose of a two-day conference of newspaper correspondents assigned to cover the president.

Wilson first brought the matter of "leakage" of budget data and management plans, talking in private terms. He obviously was referring to information obtained by newspapers before publication.

It was at that point the president said—and both pool reporters said he showed irritation—that "this leakage is something that has got to stop."

Budapest Goes Through Another Day of Tension

BUDAPEST (AP) — Budapest went through another day loaded with tension and uncertainty Friday as Workers Council still debated today whether to call a general strike, and the Russian-backed government of Premier Janos Kadar.

The council saw Kadar for several hours Friday night, but emerged from the meeting to give no information about their meeting.

The government said they had said that a general strike might be called if Kadar continued his attitude of non-fulfillment of worker demands.

Unofficially, it was learned this morning that Kadar, made few, if any, concessions.

The general was brought to the city, meanwhile, that bands of partisans are still waging a hit-run warfare on Russian troops from mountain hideouts in southern Hungary.

SALTBURN, England (CP)—James Marley celebrated his 79th birthday by bicycling 400 miles from this Greenlands, town to Manchester and back. He figures he has covered 168,000 miles, in the last 36 years.

Court Declares Section of HTA Is Inoperative

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal declared invalid a section of the Highway Traffic Act as inoperative and prohibited a magistrate from hearing further court proceedings against an Ajax motorist charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Legal authorities said the effect of the ruling would be that all Ontario magistrates presided on a similar charge would be tried under the Criminal Code of Canada, which carries stiffer penalties for conviction — up to two years in jail.

"The crown pow will have to prove that a driver left the scene of an accident with intent to escape criminal or civil liability," said Ian Outerbridge, attorney-general's department.

"Most drivers may be acquitted for leaving the scene after hitting such things as lamp posts or bridges."

OSHAWA MAN'S APPEAL

The appeal court made its decision after hearing an appeal by Gordon Dodd of Oshawa, charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident last year.

Police said his car hit a hydro pole on an Oshawa street.

His counsel, Malcolm Robb, had argued that Magistrate F. S. Elsie should not proceed with the case because a relevant section of the Highway Act was inoperative. He was overruled by the magistrate and also by Mr. Justice Stewart of the Ontario Supreme Court.

He told the appeal court Friday that the section was inoperative because the federal government passed a similar statute, dealing with the same offence and making it punishable under the criminal code.

Andrew Laidlaw Sent to Chair For Murder

TORONTO (CP) — Andrew Laidlaw, 21, was sentenced to death in the electric chair Friday for the murder of Mrs. Mary Ann Hall, 72, in her home last March 31.

Mr. Justice Donald Morrow told Laidlaw: "You have been found guilty of a most brutal murder. You have shown no mercy to your victim. You have shown no mercy to society. Society will show no mercy to you."

Laidlaw showed no emotion as the sentence was pronounced.

Mrs. Hall was found dead in her home by her son, Ernest, who had gone to the house to check on her when she failed to answer the telephone.

Laidlaw was arrested in Montreal April 3 and was returned to Toronto to face the charge.

Mrs. Hall was found lying on the floor of her home with her head battered and her throat slashed.

Laidlaw, who had been a friend of the family, had been in the house on the day of the murder.

Police said he had stolen $20 from Mrs. Hall's purse.

Laidlaw's counsel, Arthur Maloney, said he would appeal the conviction.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

SAFE IN THE ARMS OF JESUS

Safe in the arms of Jesus,
Safe on His gentle breast,
There by His love o'ershaded,
Sweetly my soul shall rest.
Hark! 'tis the voice of angels,
Borne in a song to me,
Over the fields of glory,
Over the Jasper sea.

Safe in the arms of Jesus,
Safe from corroding care,
Safe from the world's temptations,
Sin cannot harm me there.
Free from the blight of sorrow,
Free from my doubts and fears;
Only a few more trials,
Only a few more tears!

Jesus, my heart's dear refuge,
Jesus has died for me;
Firm on the Rock of Ages
Ever my trust shall be.
Here let me wait with patience,
Wait till the night is o'er;
Wait till I see the morning
Break on the golden shore.

Most admirers of Fanny Crosby put "Safe In The Arms Of Jesus" at the very top of her long list of hymns. Written in 1868, it became one of the most popular and precious of the gospel songs.

Its theme was inspired by the verse in Isaiah 40:11—

"He shall feed His flock like a shepherd: He shall gather lambs in His arms and carry them in His bosom".

The verses, memorized as a child when she was learning to face the blight of blindness into which she was born, echoed in many of Fanny Crosby's hymns and songs. She wrote thousands of them during her lifetime. For awhile she had a commission from one of her publishers to write "three hymns a week the year round". Hundreds of her songs have dropped from sight and memory and today she is remembered for a precious few, including such gems as "Saved By Grace", "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour", "Jesus, Keep Me Near The Cross", "Blessed Assurance, Jesus Is Mine", "All The Way My Saviour Leads Me", "God Will Take Care Of You", and "Rescue The Perishing".

The deep spiritual note which is found in most of her hymns is explained by a comment which she once made in speaking of her song writing.

"It may seem a little old-fashioned always to begin one's work with prayer", she said, "but I never undertake the writing of a hymn without first asking the good Lord to be my inspiration in the work that I am about to do".

For hours and days on the mere word of gentlemen.

And in the last analysis, the legal guarantees of business rest on the good faith inherent in character. If the promises of men could not be trusted, the long-range methods of modern business would have to revert to the barter method of primitive men who brought their wares and carried home in their own hands the exchange. But because we have learned to give men credit, we can now wire sales to invisible purchasers in far reaches of the world and buy bonds redeemable in the year A. D. 2,000.

And now behind and beneath these human promises we live by, our Bible tells us there are promises of God, Who started the chain of mother love which links generation to generation? Who instilled in that spirit of service which has created the institutions of government and society which we did not earn but found here for our enjoyment? Leslie Stephen, who had lost his faith in God, once wrote a letter to James Russell Lowell, telling of the death of his beloved wife. He began a sentence with these words, "I thank," then recollecting he had no God to whom he could think himself indebted for the compassion of his heart he wrote, "I thank—something—that I loved her as heartily as I know how to love."

Yes, even those who have lost faith in God feel in their deepest moods there is "something" beyond family or fatherland to which they are indebted. Back of the human beings on whose promises and goodness we rely must be a Creator who planted the spirit of love and service in the hearts of His creatures. Neither water nor love can rise higher than its source.

We are, therefore, heirs of promise both human and divine. And it is our trust in God's promises that helps to keep us trustworthy in our promises as man to man.

Kipling once wrote of places "east of Suez where the sin't no Ten Commandments. . . "

Well, the current turmoil around and about Suez reveals the difficulties of dealing with people who do not recognize the moral laws of Sinai. Governments are afraid to trust the word of an Egyptian dictator for dictators take law into their own hands. Free nations are afraid to trust the Kremlin's promises on disarmament because the Moscow leaders look up to no God of truth and justice.

Truly, without trust in God promises cannot be trustworthy.

A Lift for Living

The Promise We Live By

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Long centuries ago in a letter written to some Hebrew Christians, the writer addressed his readers as "heirs of promise". There is something haunting about the expression "heirs of promise". It suggests the good things of life. It recalls the faces of those we have "loved long since and lost awhile". It awakens hopes of the more yet to be.

Let us approach this phrase "heirs of promise" by considering how much of our daily life is lived on promise" by considering how much of our daily life is lived on promises. A man and woman stand at a marriage altar and exchange pledges each to the other. If these are broken but sufficient remain to preserve the family pattern through the generations. The little child looks up into the mother's eyes and lisps the words "I promise" and the mother looks down at her child with a love which needs no words to express its pledge. Thus, through the ritual circle of the home we are "heirs of promise."

Likewise our friendships are linked together by promises. Friends draw up no legal contracts setting forth the give and take of comradeship. Yet there is a code of honor among friends recognized by every gentleman, even by some thieves. We are constantly extending credit to our comrades, not necessarily in a financial way, but in a mental way: that is, we credit them with good intentions when their words might be open to misunderstanding. We give our friends the benefit of doubt. We believe the best about them and bank on the best in them. If we did not count on promises we could not have friends.

PROMISES HONORED

And in business, too, one of the most impressive features to me is the vast volume of transactions made on the oral promise of men. To be sure, there are signed contracts, written receipts, surety bonds and various other legal safeguards, but even in Wall Street innumerable deals are held inviolate for hours and days on the mere word of gentlemen.

And in the last analysis, the legal guarantees of business rest on the good faith inherent in character. If the promises of men could not be trusted, the long-range methods of modern business would have to revert to the barter method of primitive men who brought their wares and carried home in their own hands the exchange. But because we have learned to give men credit, we can now wire sales to invisible purchasers in far reaches of the world and buy bonds redeemable in the year A. D. 2,000.

And now behind and beneath these human promises we live by, our Bible tells us there are promises of God, Who started the chain of mother love which links generation to generation? Who instilled in that spirit of service which has created the institutions of government and society which we did not earn but found here for our enjoyment? Leslie Stephen, who had lost his faith in God, once wrote a letter to James Russell Lowell, telling of the death of his beloved wife. He began a sentence with these words, "I thank," then recollecting he had no God to whom he could think himself indebted for the compassion of his heart he wrote, "I thank—something—that I loved her as heartily as I know how to love."

Yes, even those who have lost faith in God feel in their deepest moods there is "something" beyond family or fatherland to which they are indebted. Back of the human beings on whose promises and goodness we rely must be a Creator who planted the spirit of love and service in the hearts of His creatures. ## EGGHEADS AND TECHNICIANS

When Dr. T. Lloyd Jones, principal of the Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph, addressed the annual banquet of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association here this week, he made some interesting observations on the educational trend in Canada.

Dr. Jones said flatly that "we need more eggheads in Canada." He also said that many of the old universities believe the heart of university education lies in the faculty of arts but many of these schools are beginning to change their attitudes. He predicted that in future more emphasis would be placed on the sciences. There was a clear inference that Dr. Jones approves of this change in attitude. The change, though, is not likely to increase the production of eggs and a great variety of other products of farm and home.

By a curious coincidence, on the same day that the report of Dr. Jones' speech was printed in The Ontario Intelligencer, there came to the editorial desk an issue of the Vancouver Sun which contained three editorials, from the Peterborough Examiner, the Montreal Gazette and the Kingston Whig-Standard, grouped together under the general heading "The Ivory Tower." All three editorials had the same general theme—the danger of turning our universities into trade schools.

There was, however, a slight difference of outlook. The Kingston and Peterborough papers were primarily concerned with the question of the role of the arts faculty with the sciences; the Edmonton Journal's editorial was devoted to a discussion between Dr. E. W. R. Steacie, president of the National Research Council, whose theme was the distinction between pure science and applied science. Dr. Steacie defined pure science as being concerned with inquiry for the advancement of knowledge for its own sake; applied science as the use of knowledge for practical purposes.

Not many days ago an editorial in The Ontario Intelligencer pointed out that not all distinguished scientists in exhibiting a deep and burning interest in justice and humanity and contrasted this with the record of some men who had received a liberal education in the liberal arts. Careful observation, though, should not be misinterpreted as indicating a preference for trade training over an arts course in the university. The same could be said of inhumanities. It is suggested that their own inhumanity just proved that not all men who are exposed to education benefit from it. The scientists, on the other hand, are nearly all concerned with pure science and its advancement; in other words, to use Dr. Steacie's definition, they were interested in the advancement of knowledge for its own sake. And that, rather than any distinction between the arts and the sciences, is the more accurate distinction to make. Whether a man studies Greek or physics, what we need to know is whether he is doing it primarily to acquire knowledge for its own sake or to get along in the world.

There is nothing wrong with trying to get along in the world or with learning to apply the knowledge which other men have discovered. Originally, however, it was not the function of universities to teach these things. It is not now, or at least ought not to be, the primary purpose of a university, although in training students for the professions the temptation inevitable that universities should be concerned with the practical values of knowledge as well as with the love of knowledge for its own sake. What Dr. Jones seems to have had in mind, for good reason, is that what is now their secondary function in training professional men may be made their primary purpose, and that the pursuit of knowledge for its own sake will be relegated to a secondary position. The universities are discovering it increasingly difficult to resist the pressure to regard more trades as professions and indeed many of the universities have already yielded to this pressure and are issuing degrees in a wide variety of courses which have only the remotest connection with "inquiry for the advancement of knowledge for its own sake."

It is obviously impossible, and undesirable, to attempt to divorce training some of the professions from the universities. Indeed, it is obviously necessary for the university program to become primarily devoted to the training of technicians. It is true that, by taking trade training at the same school at which others of his own age are studying the arts and sciences, the young technician might acquire a deep interest in the expansion of the horizons of men's knowledge. But it is also true that there would be another danger of the university as a whole losing sight of its primary function, the promotion of a love for the pursuit of knowledge for its own sake, the production of scholars.

As Dr. Jones said, we need more of them.

GRACIOUS LIVING

Practically the only homes being sold these days are those designed for gracious living.

Some of them must be inhabited by misfits. There just are not that many gracious people around.

Reading real estate boards' advertisements, in any metropolitan daily, one would suppose that the suburbs were inhabited solely by people who went through their days serenely and without even the annoyance of a rankling thought.

Everything, one gathers, is tea and sympathy in these homes.

They are the type where one says "Gracious" when the sewer plugs and "Good gracious" when the basement leaks.

Won't somebody please build a home in the suburbs designed for the raising of children and ulcers, which is a normal crop for most families.

COMRADESHIP

He was fishing when I had
He had never seen before
Came and asked what luck he'd had
And sat with him on the shore.

He knew all the anglers' terms.
He inquired about the bait—
Was it minnows, salt worms,
He requested him to state.

You have tackle like my dad's,
Rods and reels appear alike.
Cast among those lily pads
And maybe you'll get a strike.

There's no age to rod and line.
As a universal clan,
Any body of eight or nine
Can be comrade to a man.

Gay and Gallant Fighters

By I. N. S. in the Ottawa Journal

There was no military parade or ceremony post-card-ish about Clark's funeral in Toronto. He fought World War I in the air with gallant distinction—DFC but he was a civilian in World War II and died as a civilian.

Yet he fought World War II with equal distinction and the part he played unquestionably caused his too early death.

As director of public relations for the RCAF and then all the armed forces Clark was left behind. He fought not only the enemy but those inevitable enemies at home: sloth, unpreparedness, public apathy, government bull-headedness, brass-hatism, rumor and ignorance.

They set various times offered him high rank in uniform. He stuck to his "civvies". "My job", he'd say, "requires me to tell civilian ministers and marshals and generals what to do differently and how to do it while I wear a saluting and saying 'yes sir'."

I know how good Joe Clarke was because I was on his staff and knew him well. Furthermore I think of the early days of the Air Training Plan. Joe Clarke more clearly'n he'd pull out a foolscap pad and write his "things to do" and tack it up on the wall. Some and three sheets, one item to a line. The Jackson Building was pretty empty each evening by the time he'd given up his uneven battle with the "things to do" lists.

Some of us knew then that the doctor had detected a touch of the "ticker", as he called it, but it was a time for dying. Joe would say, and many of his friends were getting theirs overseas so "why should I hang back?"

So there was a new list every morning, a fresh sheet of foolscap and the first item would inevitably encounter during the day. Lining recruiting, training, bases and the local newspaper editor asking rude questions? Joe would be there. Any time interested it shouldn't have happened, sometimes it was necessary, because he'd have to convince the editor and his community that the war wasn't being lost by egg-heads.

It wasn't always easy defending wrong or slander or carelessness sometimes it was just a hard-headed fighting right. Nor was the public large always the same. Some of his abiding task was to convince Cabinet and Air Council (the "inner and outer") that in a people's war the people had a right to be kept informed.

"It's not good for the public to know how many of its bombers don't reach their objectives", Joe would reply. Joe would come back to his desk and as he went by my desk I'd be told to send for him. Once I'd know he had been really angry. But he'd not yell. His desk would become a plotting table and from it would soon come the beginnings of an operation designed to evade red tape. Joe had a profound respect for Queen's Rules of Regulations (Air) ought not necessarily to be interpreted as committing the sin to the enemy. Before long off he'd go again to argue his case and I'd see him shaking his heads together like a kid playing at air battle and sending the enemy to the right.

But let one of us criticize a senior officer or the system and he'd be unamused. He knew there had to be officers, even poor ones. He'd go to bat over a remark fell on a man with a good fighting record. "Don't be censorious by sitting down and he'd say slowly: "Do you know that man one night over the North Sea . . ."

* * *

Ebullient was Joe, with a gay sense of the grotesque, a scoffer's delight in unmasking fraud, a vivid conversationalist in a word.

The long-distance phone he used in surgery in Ottawa, Halifax, Trenton, desertions in Moncton, big food in Toronto Manning Depot, too many brass hats at Macleod? No long official correspondence for Joe. He'd grab the phone and grab it again and get all sides of the story, truth and untruth. Then he'd grab the receiver the hell he'd confront the minister or the Chief of the Air Staff and tell them the facts of life.

Sometimes I heard people doubt that Joe really spoke out critically when the chips were down and the chiefs were present. That doubt was unfounded. He loved to talk and liked to make humor his main weapon, but if need called for righteous wrath Joe had it bountifully and he buttressed it sometimes with an elaborate sense of the power of profanity.

In fighting the air war (I speak only of the air war because it is all I was even close to) Joe worked on the assumption that nothing, absolutely nothing, was his business. For a time the authorities thought differently and fancied Joe was simply a man to distribute their publicity. He brought them down in flames.

Old grief and glory Clark! But as the aircrew began to pour forth and the aircraft followed suit the headaches grew less and the glory came into its own. Per ardua ad astra, and before too long Joe was able to tee up those exhilarating stories of "the few".

As the war moved overseas Joe pushed his PRO's over with the bombers and fighters into the planes. He even got plain reporters into the fray. "Churchilling up the place", sniffed some authorities; but Joe Clark knew that the Canadian public deserved something to cheer and cherish. Very soon the people acquired a new pride in their airmen and in the training plan whose slowness-to-get-started had been all aloud was the inevitable beginning of what was to become perhaps Canada's greatest single contribution to victory.

I've touched on but a few of Joe Clark's chores. Photography, public-warning, aerial news, movie-making, recruiting campaigns, public visits to schools and universities, ceremonial parades — Joe put his full strength behind the RCAF load long before it attained even the promise of quality — war propaganda at its finest and skewed, recruiting lures, education programs. His footprints-in-the-sand were long, his ardor relentless.

* * *

When came occasions for the "doors" to gripe on platforms he'd be thanked for a word in there, and when people did confront him with praise he always turned it off to his staff, by how better. Joe worked harder than anyone else, a driver of ideas, more ideas than anyone else, a shouter, will to win than anyone else. He died the complete of the abiding impossibility of his position. He could never be satisfied. The authorities he always argued the case of the public; the public he always argued the case of the authorities. He could never explain himself. He could not know it.

Yet, others did as much as and maybe more than Joe Clark in the war, and died earlier. Joe knew this and kept saying so. But as they buried him in Mount Pleasant cemetery near the purely "civilian" service I felt sure that, as he passed over, the trumpets of a very glorious company sounded for him.

'Dirty Tory' Is Unmasked

A R. F. in London Free Press

Davie Fulton, MP, told a story to show how fanatical is the hatred of Hon. W. A. C. Bennett, Social Credit premier of British Columbia.

A school teacher in his riding, who was an ardent follower of Mr. Bennett, one day said to his pupils: "You have come to school in the school buses. Who gave you the buses?"

"Mr. Bennett", came the rousing answer.

"You came to school on fine new highways? Who built the highways?"

"Mr. Bennett", shouted the children.

"Who built the fine bridge across the river?" she asked.

Again they shouted: "Mr. Bennett."

"Who was responsible for this beautiful day, the flowers and the birds?" she continued.

There was a pause. Then a little voice on a front bench ventured, "God".

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

TOUCHED BY THE HAND OF GOD

The church of Jesus Christ should never forget the great heartwarming experience of John Wesley. That man and his family founded one of the greatest of modern denominations; but also released spiritual currents felt today in all parts of the world and in every branch of the Christian Church.

Young Wesley, a minister in the Church of England, was at the beginnings a prodigious failure. Everything to which he set his hand seemed to fail and he only raised up enemies and these were in no small measure due to his own mistakes.

On the evening of May 24, 1738, he went to a Moravian prayer meeting being held in Aldersgate Street, London, where the leader was reading Luther's preface to the Epistle to the Romans.

"About a quarter before nine," wrote Wesley in his Journal, "while he was describing the change which God works in the heart through faith in Christ, I felt my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ, Christ alone for salvation, and an assurance was given me that He had taken away my sins, even mine, and saved me from the law of sin and death."

Someone has written that "From that little room, the flames swept on until America, India, and the islands of the sea 'as well as his own British Isles' sang of the riches of God's salvation in the human heart."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 8, 1936

Mr. H. R. Cory has been re-elected mayor of Trenton for a fourth term. He defeated Mr. Henry LaFleur by a majority of 867. The vote polled was, for Cory, 1232; for LaFleur 366.

The city council has approved the sale of the city gas plant to Mr. H. A. Walter of Buffalo, N.Y., provided the sale is authorized by the rate payers at the coming municipal election. The sale price is $50,000.00 and the rate payers will further be asked to vote on a by-law granting the purchaser a fixed assessment of $30,000.00 for ten years. Prior to this the city council with regards to the sale voted 10 for and 4 against. The rate payers will also be asked to express their wishes with regards to the employment of a city manager. Mayor Harry Hill presided at the meeting.

30 YEARS AGO

December 8, 1926.

The Rev. John Lyons, M.A., rector of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton, has been appointed vicar of St. Thomas' Church in this city. The appointment was announced today by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Sexsmith, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel LaRue of this city are visiting friends in Oshawa.

Mrs. James Bankier of this city will sing at a concert in Colborne this evening.

Mr. Harold Coon of the College of Pharmacy, Toronto, is spending a few days in town.

From our file copy at this time in 1896: "Three wild geese settled in the river yesterday about 100 yards below Asbury Point and they are still there despite the shots aimed at them from shotguns by a host of men an occasional volley of stones."

40 YEARS AGO

December 8, 1916.

Belleville Market — Prices: butter 45 cents per pound; eggs 60 cents per dozen; dressed chickens $1. to $1.50 per pair; ducks $1.50 to $1.80 per pair; geese $1.75 to $2. each; potatoes $2.50 per bag.

His Grace Archbishop Spratt has received a telegram from Capt. the Rev. James Nicholson announcing his safe arrival in England. The Rev. Father Nicholson was presented with a purse of gold by his parishioners at Prescott before leaving for overseas to serve as a chaplain. About three years ago Father Nicholson served the parians of Stirling and Frankford for nearly a year and bore many friends there while stationed there.

Sergt. H. D. Bateman is home from the military camp at Kingston to spend a few days leave.

50 YEARS AGO

December 8, 1906.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ridley of Midland, Ontario, have arrived here to visit relatives and friends until after Christmas.

Mr. Percy Geen is home from the College of Pharmacy, Toronto, to spend the Christmas vacation.

Mr. John Johnston, school inspector for South Hastings, is conducting examinations at the Model School in Madoc.

Mrs. W. J. (Phipps) Osborne has returned to her home in Fredericton, N.B., after visiting relatives here for several weeks.

From our file copy at this time in 1896: "The Two Vagabonds" will be the attraction at the Carman Opera House tomorrow evening and this play is sure to attract a large audience.

Pearson Wins Paper's Praises

Christian Science Monitor

Mr. Pearson, the Canadian Minister for External Affairs, Lester B. Pearson, is not only holding aloft the Liberal banner in Canada, but is eloquently stating the attitudes required in the free world of influence if they would maintain it at bulwark of Western liberties and a helpful moral support for the United Nations.

No Canadian we know of has taken a more consistent, more constructive, more courageous, more fair-minded stand in the Canadian elections in June, according to reports, anything but a chore boy to Americans.

On the Suez question during the Middle East crisis has asserted a position of outstanding leader-ship for United Nations and Canadian initiative launched the UN police forces, which will, unless its purposes are misserved, permit a British-French withdrawal from Egypt without risking a return to an explosive situation there.

Mr. Person refused to join with the United States in condemning what he thought hasty. And he felt the United States was wrong in voting against the Israelis when they might have won unanimous approval, instead of a lonely minority vote.

In taking the position it did, Canada has not only well served the UN but the Commonwealth of Nations.

Americans, caught "in the middle" between their own valued allies and the Afro-Asian countries, can well appreciate the challenge the Canadian Government had to face. Besides being allied to Britain, the Commonwealth, and the United States by close political and economic ties, Canada has long

Man Himself Best Machine

Montreal Gazette

In the contemplation of scientific advances, Man sometimes becomes a little dissatisfied with himself. Electronic computers can do a thousand mathematical calculations in the time it takes a human expert can do one. He can build a robot that will walk, talk, perhaps will Man himself be able to survive the journey?

The truth is that the more science discovers about Man, the more it appears to be the fact. It is true that Man cannot do some of the things, survive in some of the places that machines can. But no machine yet has been able to match the complexity, the delicacy, the automatic adaptiveness of the human structure.

Machines have been constructed to take the place, temporarily, of lungs and heart, during operations. They are complicated, large, usually expensive. Whole teams of experts, engineers, chemists, metallurgists, is required to produce a machine that will take the place of a few of man's specialized muscles.

And the match of a human brain and its memory and recognition cells, we are told, would require a computer several city blocks long.

Man is producing some amazing machines. But the most amazing machine of all remains Man himself.

mic interests, Canada is a middle-sized power with a special role to play in world politics.

Both in its Prime Minister, Mr. St. Laurent, and its Foreign Minister, Mr. Pearson, it has able executors for the almost unique role it is called upon to play in free-world affairs. One day, we feel sure, all the nations of democracy and many other governments will be thanking the present leaders of Canada for their part in the free world's most dangerous crisis since World War II.

Come on Out, The Air is Fine

Reader complaining about excessive sweating — the reader uses a word for it that you can't find in the Bible — finds himself in a dilemma:

"Despite the fact that my clothing is on the thin and light weight side of winter wear, this perspiration persists, and I have been warned that it endangers my health when I desperately seek the relief of cool or cold winter air while my pores are open from perspiration. I am 29 years old, 6 feet tall and weigh 235 pounds. I drink 8 tall glasses of various non-alcoholic beverages per day."

In your place, young man, I'd consider only my only personal comfort at such times and leave it to the fishwives to worry about the effect of "exposure" on my health.

I suppose winter underwear is less painful nowadays, but even so, I think it is a mistake for those who live, work or play mostly indoors to change to heavier or warmer underwear in the winter. It is uncomfortable most of the time, and such excessive warmth causes excessive sweating, both visible or sensible and invisible vapor loss. This keeps the clothing constantly damp, and hence the pores are inside feels the cold when he goes out more than he would if his underwear were dry. It is like wearing damp shoes or socks — and having cold feet.

So this 8-foot, 235-pound molycoddle had better bequeath his winter underwear to the moths, "use comfortable armor the year around and put on an overcoat, sweater, wind-breaker or whatever other extra cover he likes when he goes out in extreme cold weather.

Nine out of ten Americans would probably agree with the reader that excessive worry about clothing crazy and dangerous. You see, nine out of ten Americans learned what they (think they) know from (1) the almanacs distributed by the nostrum makers when you and I were young, Maggie; (2) from the conventional pictures of businessmen, with coat collar turned up, braving wind and snow on their way to the nearest spot for a quickie. One such picture is more effective than a thousand words — especially my words — in the health education of most Americans.

I think about that, sometimes I get so — well, just one word will do, you know — the pounding away at it here when I might be travelling leisurely and lovingly from green to green, that is, as sort of an unofficial delegate from the finest bowling green in the world. The two things are the feeling that the warmer we are in winter, for a while yet and the fact that I get so much fun out of it.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Walking in the woods the other day I came to a cluster of young trees, the ground under which was literally carpeted with hundreds of red squirrel cones that had been nipped off the boughs. I sat down. In a few moments, however, I found a little pile of needles, and one after another for half an hour several dozen more.

Up in the pines I detected three red squirrels, very quietly and industriously without any of their usual vociferation, trimming off all the cones they could reach and they could find.

I moved fifty yards off and put up my binoculars on the spot. Presently, the squirrels came hurriedly from the pine trees, the ground and the cones off the harvested twigs and branches, making away with them. They were burying them in prepared holes in the not yet frozen ground.

Later in the day, I met a forester at the village.

"We pay 48 a bushel for red pine cones," he said. "The depot is in charge of lands and forests harvests several thousand bushels to be stored and in due time sifted for the seed, which we then plant in the special nurseries for reseeding. A good backwoodsman can collect as much as a whole bushel from one red squirrel's cache. He's been wander in the woods and find there and there and search around until they locate the stores. Squirrels are very useful to our forests."

"Isn't it mean to the squirrels?" I enquired.

"They forget where they put them," assured the forester. "They don't need them and they could possibly use. As a matter of fact, they're useful to us. Squirrels also do a wonderful job of wild reforestation."

Red pine is one tree the foresters seek the seeds of with special attention, and trees are periodic in their seeding, and red pine will go as long as eight years without producing a cone.

The seeds of trees are extremely small. A full pint bushel of white pine seed taken from a great many bushels of cones there are 28 000 seeds. And in a bushel of sifted white birch seed there are twenty million.

TODAY'S TALK

LEFT-OVERS OF TIME

To us all come many brief left-overs of time into which we either put some work or else just let the time travel on. But during the hours of the working day, and during many of the hours that are given largely for relaxation, there are left-overs of time which, whether we use we can make of them—if we but think, plan, and put them to use.

We meet these left-overs of time all through the day. On trains we find them and feed them ideas. To and from work we have many of these same left-overs, and they have a message if we but listen. And they are right up to us before our dinner, or when awaiting an important conference.

In our walks these left-overs creep in again and again, and they whisper to us the last thing at night, before falling to sleep. It is by taking advantage of these small—and some times large—left-overs, that we initiate many wonderful things, and give hope and comfort to others through our prayers, helpful letters, or some small, thoughtful act.

It was during these left-overs of time that the late President Roosevelt initiated his state dinners of time often find their best customers among the left-overs of time. Some of time might well be named the fill-ups of selected joy!

In my time they have talked and every day that I ride upon trains I look with books, reading and profiting from these left-overs of time. A half hour from a breakfast, or from a walk in the early open air. Across the years I have had many a good meal talking—workmen. They are using up one of these left-overs between them.

The Apostle of Labrador

By NICHOLAS MIKA

One cold morning some forty years ago a dog sled hurried along the snow-covered coast of Labrador. Behind the sled was a man wearing a fur coat and sealskin boots. He was a doctor on his way to a remote settlement where a boy was dying. As he urged his dogs to speed, the sun rose and the snow slowly began to melt. To some precious time he decided to make a short-cut across a bay. He knew that the ice was already thin, but he had done it many times before. He would rely on his eight huskies and if the ice would hold, he might be there in time to save the boy's life.

Suddenly he heard it—crack. The ice under him gave way and a moment later he sank into the water. He managed to reach an ice pan and to free the dogs from the sinking sled. They remained beside him. Wet and chilled with the cold he thanked God to be safe, at least for the moment. Slowly, the ice block drifted far from shore. When night approached, a wind came up. He thought of the boy, of his patients along the coast and deep in the desolate wilderness, of his friends, the fishermen and Eskimos. And he prayed.

When he realized that there was no other choice, he killed three of his dogs, skinned them and wrapped their skins around him so he would not freeze to death. The night seemed endless . . . He thought about his life.

CAME FROM ENGLAND

Six years before he had come from England to this barren part of the world. As a missionary doctor he had sailed on board a small hospital ship along the coast of Newfoundland to treat sick and injured fishermen and preach God's word. One day he was called ashore to look after a man dying from tuberculosis. This day decided his whole life. When he entered the miserable but where six pale, half starved children in rags stared at him with pleading eyes, he knew that this was his call. He knew that his place was among these people, that he had to come to them as their doctor and friend.

And so he began his work of mercy. With little or no pay, but with a heart burning with pity and love for men, women and children who never knew modern medical care, who drank ice-cold water as their only medicine and wrapped a dead fish around a bleeding wound because that was all they knew. His heart went out to the orphans, the crippled, the blind and the suffering. He treated their wounds and operated, sometimes on a rough kitchen table, sometimes on the ground in a barely lit snow hut.

Others followed his example, doctors and nurses came to his help. They knew that his people were cared for, he went to Europe for a while to lecture and tell about the misery and need of more than thirty thousand fishermen and trappers who lack-

Know the coniferous evergreens (So named because the cone is bare of their bloom). Among the most popular are: (1.) Spruce, the well known Christmas Tree with foliage standing straight and stiff. (2.) Fir, which has rather blunt, flat foliage appearing as if in two rows on stem. (3.) Arborvitae, with foliage that looks scaly when pressed. (4.) Juniper, which grows tall, slim and elegant. There are a number of varieties of each species.

Install Officers Sergeants' Mess Of Hasty Pees

Installation of the new slate of officials highlighted the regular meeting of the Prince Edward Sergeants' Mess Friday night.

WO2 Howard L. Kokesh was formally installed as president, succeeding L. Sergt. F. G. Leavitt, by Regimental Sergeant Major J. S. Downes of Trenton.

Other officers are: vice-president, WO2 A. S. Stalker; secretary, Sergeant F. B. Butler, and treasurer, L. Sergt. F. G. Mew.

The mess executive consists of S. Sergt. M. S. Rashotte, Sergt. A. K. Wagar, WO2 I. K. Smith and Sergt. K. L. Hogan.

The audit committee is WO2 G E. Scott and WO2 R. J. McLuskie. The mess committee is composed of Sergeant G. K. Carter, S Sergt. Rashotte, Sergt. V. Allen and Sergt. W. C. Oudenkirk.

Plans were formulated for the annual children's Christmas party scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 16. The annual turkey shoot will take place on Sunday, Dec. 23.

ed hospitals and medicine, who died from starvation and were so desperately poor that one father killed his two youngest children and himself to give his wife and other children a chance to survive on the meagre food.

DISLIKED SOFT LIVING

When funds poured in he went back to Labrador. He did not like city life and comfort any more. He felt at home in the snow huts and preferred his sealskin boots and his warmest fur coat to the fine city clothes. After travelling for years on a schooner or a dog sled, he even hated to ride in a train.

Although he was living in one of the remotest roomers of the earth, the world began to talk about the doctor of Labrador. But to the trappers, the Eskimos and fishermen, he was not only a doctor, he was their friend, whom they could trust, whom they could call when they needed him. He would come through night, ice and snow on his dog sled and bring them hope and help.

He thought of them, when he crouched on the drifting block of ice that night. His hands and feet were numb, but his eyes were burning. Would they wait in vain for him?

When it dawned he tied the frozen bones of the three dogs together and made a mast on which he fastened his shirt. God help me! he prayed. For five hours he waved his signal until some Eskimos saw him from the shore.

Today in Labrador schools and hospitals bear the name of the first doctor who came there. A doctor honored by all the world, knighted by the King of England, loved and remembered by thousands—Sir Wilfred Grenfell.

Sir Wilfred Grenfell appeared on Newfoundland stamps in 1941.

Intelligencer Staff Holds Yuletide Party

The first obligation of a newspaper is to get the news to its readers post haste. However, due to the great influx of international news to the newsroom of The Ontario Intelligencer yesterday it just wasn't possible to get one important bit of gossip in the columns of the "family journal." Our sincere apologies for the omission.

The significance of the news warranted a spread on the front page but today we will have to be content with putting it inside.

Thursday night staffers and friends of The Ontario Intelligencer enjoyed a quiet pre-Christmas party at the Knights of Columbus hall. Hugo Digginis and his quartet provided the orchestral and vocal whine, and the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion served delicious goodies.

The night provided a wonderful opportunity for all the staff to get to know one another better. Spot dances were held as was a square dance set, led by Mrs. Claude Tice, wife of the city editor.

Sports editor George Carver did a commendable job behind the microphone announcing the various contests, and his assistant, Garry Alexander, stood stolidly by the door acting as bouncer—however, his services were not required.

If anyone should find a pair of fleece-lined rubber overshoes, size 9, and a wallet, I would be greatly appreciated if he would return them to Harry Mulhall who was a distinguished visitor from CJBQ.

50,000 Hunters In N.S. Carted Off Large Kill

HALIFAX (CP) — The deer-filled forests of Nova Scotia heard the rifle cracks of 50,000 hunters this year and officials say it appears they carted off a record number of kills.

While more bullets were fired apparently they were better aimed because the human kill dropped for the first time in five years. Only two men met their deaths this season.

The usual heavy influx of outside hunters climbed this year, officials say, most of those reporting their kills to be successful. There are no bag limits. When all reports are in wildlife officials estimate the number killed to be close to 45,000.

While sickness officials most is the fact that a widespread safety program was apparently effective. Hunting mishaps were recorded between three and five shooting fatalities, several shootings and at least one death from exposure. This year, after the season's close, one man was still missing and two were known dead.

The deer-hunting season was helped by a prolonged Indian summer—high temperatures and little snow. All this, coupled with plentiful targets, resulted in the high estimate of kills.

About 20 hunters became lost during the season but because of the warm weather most came out with no ill effects.

Along with deer, some hunters reported shooting several bears and wildcats. Moose, once the big game of provincial forests, are protected by game laws, and none were reported seen by hunters.

Days and Customs of All Faiths

Bible Sunday Founded 1904

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, Dec. 9 — Today is "Bible Sunday," one of the Church of England's gifts to the Protestant world. The day will be observed in the churches of many countries, with sermons, exhibits, study groups, etc., emphasizing and honoring the place of the Bible in Christian life. As a special day in the calendar Bible Sunday came into general recognition in 1904.

It had been part of English tradition since 1549, when the first English Prayer Book was produced by Archbishop Cranmer, and had been kept by American Anglicans (Episcopalians after the Revolution) since their arrival on this continent.

In the Anglican church Bible Sunday is the second Sunday in Advent; in Protestantism generally it is the second Sunday in December. Sometimes the two are the same, as this year; sometimes they are a week apart.

When Cranmer was making up the new Prayer Book, the Protestant Reformation was at its peak in Europe. One chief characteristic of the Reformation was its great concern about acquainting the people with the Holy Scriptures. The Archbishop found, in the Mass book of Salisbury Cathedral, an old prayer beginning "Blessed Lord, who has caused all Holy Scriptures to be written for our learning" and he translated it from the Latin and included it in his book. (The fact that he assigned it to the second Sunday in Advent has no significance.) The word "all" in the opening phrase of the prayer was particularly appropriate to the Reformation frame of mind, for one of the reformers' chief complaints was that there were many parts of the Bible the people never heard read in the services of the church.

SECOND GREATEST PILLAR SAINT

Tuesday, Dec. 11 — Back in the early days of Christianity there were men called "stylites" who spent all their time at the tops of pillars. Stylites is the Greek word for pillar. Many of these strange pillar saints spent years on their lofty perches without ever coming down for any purpose.

Most famous of them all was St. Simeon, who lived for 68 years on his column, moving occasionally to a new and higher one — his last was 66 feet high. The second most renowned was St. Daniel, who is honored today. He lived for 84 stop his pillar just outside Constantinople, after occupying it 33 years.

Such eccentric behavior in the name of religion seems bizarre to us today. We joke about these "ecclesiastical flagpole sitters" and tend to think of them as show-offs. But we miss the point. They were only following the mood of their time. Spiritual perfection was thought to come through withdrawal from the ordinary stream of life and through endurance of inconvenience, discomfort or even pain. And in the most devoted men of that age deliberately sought the lonely discipline — some in caves, some in the desert, some at the tops of pillars—that would set their hearts on the joys that are not of this world.

THEY WERE REAL SAINTS

We make a great mistake if the unfamiliar pattern causes us to assume these men were not real men and real deep piety. Exhibitionists may attract the curious for a while, but in the end the world never calls them saints. Crowds flocked to Daniel, gathering at the foot of his pillar to be healed of illnesses or to listen as he spoke to them quietly about the love of God. Kings and princes came to him for advice on matters that dealt with the world he had renounced. Perhaps one sees the "world" most clearly from a pillar outside it.

Disciples organized themselves around St. Daniel, who neither encouraged nor rejected them. They built a monastery nearby and profited by living in the great man's shadow.

Daniel's life had been dedicated to the Lord even before his birth. At 13 he was put into a monastery and soon afterward he was taken by his abbot to see the great Simeon Stylites, who persuaded the boy to climb up to him, gave him his blessing, and foretold that he would suffer much for Christ. From that time on Daniel knew what he would do.

Simeon was his model. When Simeon died, Daniel inherited his cloak, and finally his position as the world's number one pillar saint.

Daniel died in 483, and was buried at the foot of his pillar.

Mrs. F. Adsett New President Of Society

The Bridge Street United church WMS met in the Sunday school auditorium at 2.30 p.m., Thursday, for their Christmas meeting with Mrs. C. Hyde in the chair in the absence of the president, Mrs. Erle Denyes, a good attendance being present.

The meeting opened with the singing of Hymn 48, "In the Bleak Mid-Winter" followed by the prayer of Thanksgiving.

The secretary and treasurer's reports were received, following which a life membership pin was presented to Mrs. Hudgins, who was one of four to receive life membership in the W.M.S.

Reports were also received from the departmental secretaries.

Mrs. H. M. Davis, as Christian Stewardship secretary, drew attention to the allotment for 1957, reading a letter from the secretary on prayer.

Mrs. Bateman reported for the nominating committee and nominated the following slate of officers for 1957: past president, Mrs. Erle Denyes; president, Mrs. F. Adsett; 1st vice-president, Mrs. H. Warren; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. C. Howie; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. G. Kellett; secretary-treasurer, Miss Madeline Young; recording secretary, Mrs. J. E. McArthur; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. Sutton.

Departmental Secretaries — Christian Stewardship, Mrs. H. M. Davis; Community Friendship, Mrs. C. Bateman; Study, Mrs. G. E. Meyers; Associate Members, Mrs. D. Pringle; Christian Citizenship, Mrs. W. It was announced that the next meeting of the group would be a pot-luck luncheon and installation of officers.

Mrs. Adsett's and Mrs. Ruggle's group then took charge of the program for the day with the singing of "Silent Night" followed by the devotional by Mrs. Ruggle with Bible reading, a short story and prayer.

Mrs. J. Demeza favored with a delightful solo "Night of Nights."

Mrs. R. Patterson then conducted a very impressive candle-lighting ceremony, assisted by seven other ladies, which ended with the singing of "Joy to the World."

Mrs. Ruggle gave a very interesting talk on "Round the World at Christmas" beginning with the birth of Christ on Christmas Day on the Fiji Islands, all around the world and back to Samoa, where Christmas Day dawns 24 hours later than in the Fiji Islands and gave a short description of the weather and customs at the 17 countries at Christmastime.

Mrs. Adsett thanked all those taking part in the meeting for their services and also thanked Miss Dick Holman for her assistance with the Christmastime decorations.

The meeting closed with the Mispah benediction after which the ladies retired to the ladies' parlor and partook of a cup of tea and Christmas cake and cookie, where the table was tastefully decorated with seasonal attitude display.

WEDDINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Andrew McGee are shown signing the register following their recent marriage in Holloway Street United Church. The bride is the former Miss Dorothy Helen Bonter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bonter of Bellville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McGee, of Stirling, Ontario. (Photo by William Riley, Belleville).

McGEE—BONTER

Baskets of white chrysanthemums, pink snapdragons and ferns adorned the chancel rail of Holloway Street United church on Saturday, November 10, at 2.00 p.m., for a very pretty wedding, when Dorothy Helen Bonter of Bellville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bonter, became the bride of Gerald Andrew McGee, of Stirling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McGee. Rev. Dr. H. J. Larman, officiated. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. Clifford Parrott, church organist, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mr. Alfred Hughes, who sang before the ceremony, "Because" and during the signing of the register, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Harold Bonter, was lovely in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace, nylon net, and taffeta fashioned with fitted bodice of lace over net, and full-length skirt of nylon net over taffeta, accented by pleats of nylon net and peplum of Chantilly lace cascading into a deep sweep at the back. A bow of matching lace, with Peter Pan collar and long sheath-like sleeves ending in "V" points over the wrists complemented the bodice. Her headdress was in the ballpillbox style with tiny seed pearl clips, and her veil of French illusion was accented with lily-of-the-valley embroidery. She carried a white Bible crested with ruby red tea roses, with white satin streamers knotted with tiny rosebuds.

Miss Lenora Noyes of Belleville, sister of the bride, as matron of honor; Miss Jean McGee of Stirling, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Jean Draycott of Belleville, as senior bridesmaid, and Miss Beverley Bonter of Belleville sister of the bride, as junior bridesmaid, were gowned similarly in powder blue nylon net in bouffant style, over nylon net and taffeta. Their long torso bodices over taffeta featured sleeveless scalloped neckline, and three-quarter length sleeves of pink pointed noregays of pink and white carnations. Pink picture hats were matching gloves and headdresses.

Little Miss Marilyn Jamieson, cousin of the bride, was a demure flower girl in her pink nylon taffeta in similar style to that of the other attendants. She wore a matching pink headdress, gloves, and carried a bouquet of pink, blue and white baby flowers.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church parlor, where the bride's mother wearing mink brown with beige accessories, and corsage of pink carnations, received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in black with pink and black accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

The bride's table was appropriately appointed with a white Irish linen cloth, silver candelabra and bouquets of the bride's colors and her attendants. A three-tier wedding cake centred the table.

For travelling to Buffalo, Niagara Falls, and Paris, Ontario, the bride chose a green wool gown, with grey fur jacket, black accessories, and corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. McGee will reside at R.R. 2, Stirling.

Guests were present from Montreal, Niagara Falls, Trenton, Centreton, Hamilton, Belleville, Paris, Stirling, Wooler, Peterborough, Carrying Place, Midland and Marmora.

Previous to her marriage the bride was honored by a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Bray Noyes; a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Geraldine Jerome with Miss Jean Draycott and Miss Lenora Noyes the bride was also presented with a steam and dry iron, and end table from her fellow workers at the Ingersoll Machine Co., Belleville. Following their marriage the bride and bridegroom were entertained at a shower in their honor by Stirling communicity friends and neighbors.

RUSSELL—LITTLE

Christ church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, December 1st, at 2.00 p.m., for a very pretty wedding, when the Rev. Everett Smith, assistant rector, united in marriage, Beverley Carolyn Little of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henry Little, to Melvin John Russell, son of Mrs. Ada Russell, and the late Mr. William Russell, Chrysanthemums and ferns adorned the sanctuary and white satin bows the guest pews.

Mr. J. B. Herdman, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of white nylon net lace over satin, fashioned in floor-length with fitted bodice accented with seed pearls and moonstones. She wore a matching headdress in Jura style, and carried a white prayer book crested with rosebuds and white chrysanthemums with white satin streamers.

Miss Dorothy Little of Toronto, attended the bride as maid of honor, while Mrs. June Orr of Kingston, and Mrs. Elaine Scott of Belleville, all sisters of the bride, as bridesmaids, were gowned in turquoise net and lace over taffeta, and the maid of honor in shrimp lace and net over taffeta. They wore matching feather headdresses and carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

LAC Joseph Richard of 6 RD Trenton, attended the bridegroom, while LAC Ronald Bain and Sgt. C. Jarvis, also of 6 RD, Trenton, were ushers.

The reception was held in Christ church parish hall, where the bride's mother, received, wearing a gown of dusty rose lace, with matching feathered hat, and corsage of yellow roses. The bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centered by a three-tier wedding cake topped by miniature replica used on the bride's parents' 35th wedding cake, consisting of two love birds sitting on a wishing well holding rings, surrounded by white carnations, lily-of-the-valley, and white satin ribbon.

For travelling to Guelph, Kitchener and Hamilton, the bride chose a slate-grey ensemble with feathered hat, and corsage of white chrysanthemums. Upon their return, the young couple will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Toronto, Kingston, Glace Bay, N.S., and Camp Borden.

'Going Steady' Detrimental to Teen-Agers

Students' work and classroom inspection preceded the monthly meeting of St. Michael's Parent Teachers Association on Monday last. Held in the school auditorium, Mr. J. A. Prunisch, president, acted as chairman. The Rev. F. F. Murphy opened the meeting with a prayer.

During business agenda, motions were passed to donate funds to be allocated to uniforms for basketball team and also for Christmas party. Secretary, Mrs. Mary Timothy won the attendance plaque for the evening.

GUEST SPEAKER

Reverend Sister Mary Claude introduced the speaker, Rev. Father W. J. McGee, B. A., Assistant, Church of St. Michael and Archangel, Father McGee, with the assistance of several leaders, broke the audience in small participating groups who discussed the interpretation of terms "teen-agers", "going steady" and opinions of teen-agers going steady. The leaders reports were varied but all agreed that the "lightness of teen-agers going steady" has become a matter of passage private concern on the part of parents and teachers.

Father McGee said that the matter had received considerable public attention recently in Massachusetts. Publicity was generously given to an action taken by Msgr. Joseph F. McGlinchey, pastor of St. Dorothy's Church, Boston and director of the parochial high school.

According to a joint statement issued by Msgr. McGlinchey and the high priest's faculty advisor, St. Mary's High School, students who persist in "going steady" are to be barred from "any school leadership or honor" in the school. Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston publicly endorsed it.

A superintendent of the Boston public schools said the action of "Msgr. McGlinchey's stand on this very real problem of teen-agers is an admirable one. It going steady so often leads to serious trouble, interference with school work and robs the young-sters of the carefree, happy lengues of "growing up" — the friendship and companionship of all ages at a time of association as possible.

Mr. Ken Soden expressed the association's thanks to Fr. McGee. He was also congratulated by Mr. T. A. Kelly for the excellent efforts in promoting football in the city.

Refreshments were served by class mothers, Mrs. Fred Bowerman, Mrs. R. Keitch and their assistants.

This and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

There is much being written and orally speculated about Sir Anthony Eden and his future. Probably the enlightened know little more than the ordinary. T & T would like to tell you about an incident that happened to us in London, 1938. It happened shortly after Mr. Eden resigned from the Chamberlain cabinet. For his convictions, for principles, and from disgust with the committee of Non-Intervention etc., and etc., the then Foreign secretary sacrificed office, power and the splendor of a transient popularity. He found that in his heart and mind he could compromise no longer with the evil forces that were running unchecked across the European continent.

It was our privilege at that time to know quite well a lady who had been the governess to two British Prime Ministers, Asquith and George and Ramsay MacDonald. This informed woman who had spent a lifetime behind the scenes of political drama from the time of the suffragette movement to the days of Conservative. We asked her, "Why, why didn't Eden blow the whole corny mess wide-open?" Her friend looked at us with a smile, and she spoke quietly the most beautiful smile we have ever known. She told us, "I do not like the comment, but Mr. Eden is an honorable man. If he had blown the whistle he would create an international and national condition which is not the right of any statesman. He is too honest. He would rather sacrifice himself, his reputation and for his convictions than create a situation that might cause his personal strength but do irreparable harm to the country. He is a man of great courage."

That was a long time ago. It is nineteen years since we sat with the day when we listened to Mr. Eden make his summation speech in the House of Commons over the Christmas weekend. Vividly, we remember the tall, slender, dapper man, but certainly a sick-at-heart and worried statesman surrounding the agonizing day when his conscience would force him to declare "I am compelled to be with evil any longer." T & T wonders if the conscience of this man of integrity and conscience is going through the agonizing days once more.

Our friend who disagreed with the Chamberlain philosophy and who had devoted a long life in world peace labor, believed in the unshaken and unshakable belief of then young foreign secretary. Those who may not agree with Sir Anthony Eden can at least have the great satisfaction of disagreeing with a man who will agree with him have the great faith that this man of integrity will not be found wanting and one who calculated about his decisions after long searchings of our reasoning, we wonder if the manhood of the Prime Minister of Great Britain is not an attribute that exists in too short supply in world statesmanship.

Sir. Albert Schweitzer writes "a good conscience can be the very best pillow." We seem so far removed from all the dissimulation surrounding us at home and abroad.

A weekend thought: "The truth shall make you free." If words are given their true meanings, the super sensual superlatives are pretty empty and the truth is not a jealously guarded.

T & T firmly believes that what others do well and better should be passed along for its readers to enjoy. Periodically we cross across something which will be of interest to the readers. "The Chronicle" of the Canadian Federation of University Women has edited and lists there are many items of interest, especially to women, which we would like to share with others. The status of Canadian women is always a matter of interest.

Mr. Grace Wambold, Q.C., of Halifax, was elected Member-at-Large in the Province of Nova Scotia, the first woman to be elected in any provincial election. It is interesting to note that, from 1758 when the first Assembly was established in Nova Scotia until 1851, there existed no legislation which expressly deprived women of the right to vote in provincial elections. It was generally accepted before the Federal Parliament granted political equality in the first elections

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE HOME REMEDIES ARE WORTH TRYING

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Everybody hears about nagging wives. I guess it's because men seem to think nagging is an exclusively feminine trait. Or else they want people to think it is so as to distract attention from the fact that men can be naggers, too.

I know they can, because I've got one of them for a husband.

All he has done through eight years of married life is nag, nag, nag. "Why can't you ever be ready to go anywhere on time?" "Why can't you keep the children quiet on the only morning in the week I can sleep late?" And I guess you see that I have at least one shirt in the drawer that has all its buttons on?" "Why can't you?" "Why can't you?" "Why can't you?" That's all I ever hear.

What can you do with a man like this except take a gun and shoot him? — Mrs. W.

Dear Mrs. W.: I just don't believe you'd do it. Have you the gun and shoot your man! If you've put up with his nagging for eight years, somehow I think you love him in a way that will keep him safe no matter how much he nags!

So let's start thinking along different lines from thoughts of violence, and suggest that the first thing the wife of a nagger might do is to try and discover if there might not just possibly be some small amount of reason for the nagging, whatever it may be about.

If a husband is customarily kept waiting for his wife when they are going out somewhere, for instance, perhaps he may have a justifiable grievance there. It may be that, as a matter of routine, she never starts to get ready in time. She may take the view that waiting a few extra minutes is nothing at all steamed up about anyway; that she could just sit quietly and read the paper until she's ready to go.

And theoretically, of course, she may usually be right.

But, on the other hand, in practice she is completely wrong. Just because waiting a few minutes may seem a matter of routine, it is altogether fair to ask another person to put up repeatedly with an unnecessary inconvenience, even though a minor one? And which is preferable in the long run—to take the trouble to organize oneself a little better, thus doing away with the cause of that irritating piece of nagging, or to go on in the same haphazard way, inviting the nagger and the one nagged at daily rubbing each other the wrong way?

And then, did it ever occur to you that it's a husband who keeps complaining about buttonless shirts, or some comparable matter, that may be trying to say, in addition to wanting a shirt that's ready to wear, that he wants a little more affection and thoughtfulness shown him?

Perhaps his wife has so much on her hands with the care of the house and children that, without realizing it, she neglects her husband. Maybe he's become so taken for-granted that he feels more like a piece of furniture in the house than the man who's supposed to be the beloved head of it. So, in order to get some of that attention he misses, and because his conscious self would consider it childish to let it be known that he felt a lack of love, his subconscious prompts him to nag about a lack of buttons.

Wouldn't it be worth trying to keep those buttons sewed on so that a husband feels his wife is looking after his needs as well as those of the house and the children?

Obviously, not all nagging husbands can be cured by measures as simple as these. There are some to whom nagging is just the outward and visible sign of some unrest buried so deep within them that only expert psychological help can uncover and remedy it. And there are some whose wives are so conditioned to the faults about which their husbands nag them that they would rather be nagged than take the trouble to correct those faults.

But I think a surprising number of cases might respond to the simple home remedies if they were applied with sincere affection, tact and patience. Certainly the home remedies are worth trying before it is assumed that the condition has got beyond their help.

Don't you think so, Mrs. W.?

Women's Activities

VICTORIA BAPTIST WMC

The Women's Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist church met recently in the church parlor with a good attendance.

Mrs. J. Payne was in charge of the worship service and chose as her subject "Christian Stewardship." She took the Scripture reading from Psalm 24 and 1 Peter 4:10.

The usual reports were read and business transacted.

A new list of requested White Cross supplies was received from Mrs. Lillian Grills, Assoc. Mission Circle Director, and a special collection was taken for this purpose. Plans were made for the Christmas food box to Dr. Aileen Vining in India.

A Christmas party was planned for December 20, at the church. There will be an exchange of gifts.

Mrs. Arnold Orr and her group were in charge of the program: a play "The Challenge of the Cross", was ably presented by the following ladies, Mrs. A. E. Berry, Mrs. Bert Orr, Mrs. W. Neal, Mrs. W. Fayres, Mrs. Arnold Orr, Mrs. Harold Orr and Mrs. P. Spracklin.

Mrs. H. Wellbanks furnished soft musical selections throughout the play.

C. W. L.

MARMORA — The Catholic Women's League of Sacred Heart church was held in the parish hall on December 3rd. The president, Mrs. Charles Cook was in the chair.

The roll call of paid up members was called and correspondence dealt with.

The treasurer's report by Mrs. J. O'Neill, showed that $150. had been donted for our missions and orphanage. The registration campaign was discussed and canvassers named. Plans for parties also made for a Christmas party on December 17th.

The program was put on by Circle 3 and bingo was played. Group 3 served refreshments.

MARSH HILL W. M. S.

MARSH HILL — The Christmas meeting of the Marsh Hill W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Finkle and Mrs. Leslie Finkle with ten members present.

The president, Mrs. Leslie Finkle, opened the meeting with reading, "Christ in the Home," and "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem."

A letter was read from Mrs. Coulter, the Presbyterial Christian Stewardship secretary, stating that the allocation for 1957 was the same as 1956, and the missionary for prayer was, Miss Margaret E. Brown, of Pincher Creek, Alberta.

The members reported sending 11 cards and making five quilts. Mrs. Walter Lindenfield—gave a reading on "Temperance". She stated that there were very few petition votes to be taken in December.

Mrs. Harold Detlor reported that the St. Simon Band had put the worship service on at Sunday School and the children had repeated verses of Scripture from memory, and they had a bale to send.

Mrs. Bartindale, literature secretary, reported sending for the "Missionary Monthly" for next year and had one more subscription this year.

Mrs. Scarles gave a reading "The Meaning of Stewardship." The program was in charge of Mrs. Allyn Finkle and opened with a reading, "Nativity," "The Story of Christmas," written by the late Helen Anderson was read by Mrs. Harold Detlor.

Mrs. Allyn Finkle read "From Bethlehem" "Thought by the Way," read by Mrs. Alex. Tanner.

Mrs. Allyn Finkle read, "The Son of the Saviour." Was there a sign over the inn in Bethlehem where the mother was found to be Jesus? The shepherds found a sign at that Bethlehem inn. During the month of December, many signs of the Festival of Christmas will be in evidence. Christians accuples a vital place in the Christian religion.

"Do we as individuals in the fellowship of the church, display the "Sign of the Saviour?" Some professing Christians have become like Christmas—commercialized, paganized. In fact lives men see the sign of self but no sign of the Saviour. They are Christians in name only. The "Sign of the Saviour" is us means that the Holy Spirit is present."

The worship service in the Missionary Monthly was followed, the theme being, "His Constant Lamp."

Mrs. Allyn Finkle, the leader was assisted by Mrs. Leslie Finkle, taking the part of the member of-stage. Mrs. Alex. Tanner representing Burma; Mrs. Farley Lindenfield New Guinea; Mrs. Frank Finkle, Canada; Mrs. Fred Campbell, Malava; and Mrs. Bartindale, Hong Kong.

After the benediction, the hostesses served refreshments.

Satin Evening Coat

By TRACY ADRIAN

James Galanos, young California courturier and twice winner of an American Fashion Critics' Award, designed this impressive evening wrap.

It is an elegant double-breasted greatcoat made in a straight, floor length column silhouette of lustrous oyster white satin. This model is also perfect for theatre going as it is shown, with a small satin toque. Other features of the coat are flap pockets, self buttons, wide revers and two pleats at the back of the hem for ease in walking.

This project a huge success.

Mary Fletcher, Joan Ford and Frances Anderson will be the committee to purchase a refrigerator for the kitchen.

Margaret MacGinnis gave the financial report for the closing of the year's activities, and Mikey Lake reported the Sunshine Fund. The motion was passed to donate money for the flowers at Christmas time.

Following the business session, Archdeacon J. B. Creegan presented the new slate of officers for 1957, which is as follows: president, Alice Wonnacott; 1st vice-president, Helen McCormick; 2nd vice-president, Mary Fletcher; secretary, Della Stewart; treasurer, Mickey Lake; reporter, Joan Taylor; vestry council, Catherine Boulet; study group, Diana Settle; telephone convener, Mary Hoogan; nursery, Donna Creegan; social convener, Joan Ford; layettes, Marion Huson, Frances Anderson, Nadine Thorne, Jacqueline fund, Phyllis Hume.

Archdeacon J. B. Creegan wished the new executive every success and thanked the members for the work and service during the past year.

Marguerite Coake gave an interesting and complete report on the vestry council meetings.

Hostesses for the evening were, Doris Day, Donna Creegan and Freida Patterson.

Contact Club Elects Officers For Next Year

Monday night, the Contact club of Christ church, held its final business meeting for the year 1956 with president Catherine Boulet, presiding.

A thank-you letter was read from Mrs. L. A. Page of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill church. The Contact choir, for a number of years, has contributed towards the education of a child in India, and a similar letter was also read from Pulampur, India, describing the work and progress of the children, especially the club's charge in the mission.

An equally interesting letter was read from "The Bishop Horden Memorial School", Moose Factory, signifying a typical Christmas at the mission school, and showing how the club's yearly parcel adds to their enjoyment.

Marguerite Coake read the final report from the recent peanut campaign and thanked all for their co-operation in making

CAKE TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY OF THIS FINE CLUB

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

During World War II, a few of my friends and I started a knitting and sewing club, meeting three times a week to knit and sew for various war activities. Since the war we have carried on our work for local hospitals and for children's aid. I remember very well the date we had our first meeting (I doubt very much if anyone else remembers the exact date) and on this date, month after year, I would like to entertain these local friends with a party at my house. For dessert I would like to serve ice cream and a birthday cake with the lighted candles to indicate the number of years we've had our club and with the addition of one candle "to grow on." Would you approve of this idea, or do you think it would seem childish? — M.W.

I heartily approve of your fine idea. Let this birthday-of-your club party . . . and I'm positive your guests will be delighted at your memory and remembrance!

BRIDE MAY WALK UP THE AISLE ALONE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that you have advised a bride who has no father to have her mother or uncle or other male relative escort her to the aisle and then to have her mother give her in marriage. My father is dead. I would like to have my mother give me in marriage having her stand in the aisle in the first pew on the left of the aisle, as you have suggested. But I do not want to have an escort as I walk up the aisle: I have no brother to be my escort, and indeed I have no male relative I especially wish to invite for this very personal "service." On the other hand, I don't like the idea of the bride walking up the aisle with her mother (neither does Mother). Under these circumstances would it be proper for me to walk up the aisle alone?

— Bride-to-be

Yes. It is entirely correct for you to walk up the aisle alone, and under circumstances such as those you mention, many brides prefer to do this.

BRIDE INVITES "THE GROOM'S BRIDESMAID"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the prospective bride and groom are talking over the ones they would each like to have as attendants, and she suggests to him that she would like to have his sister as a bridesmaid, is it all right with the sister?

— Leona H

No. It is the bride-to-be who does the inviting, even though she may not know the sister of the groom-to-be.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENTS FOR SECOND BABY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion we are having, please answer this question: Is it proper to send announcements of the birth of a second baby, with the line of the first baby? — E.D.

Yes . . . certainly!

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

LEGS NEED SPECIAL CARE IN WINTERTIME

Soft and smooth of texture are legs regularly massaged with hand cream or lotion.

Most women realize that the face and hands need extra attention during cold weather in order to prevent chapping, dryness and redness. But legs are often a forgotten feature in the beauty program. This shouldn't be, since they, too, need special care in wintertime.

Your stockings may be so sheer as to be almost invisible but they won't do a thing for dry legs if the skin beneath them is rough and flaky. And what such a skin does to the nylon themselves is, well, much too expensive! So make it a point to keep the texture of leg skin as smooth and soft as your facial complexion. The rest of the legs should be just as habitual as the care of one's face, and with habit, once perfected, takes but a few minutes each day.

Bath oils are already dry and flaky, bezin getting them in shape by rubbing a lanolin lotion or baby oil on them before bubbling or bone showering, since lubrication, and lots of it, is the very best hand cream or lotion. Use one of the types which are not sticky since you don't, of course, want nylons soiled. The non-sticky types are better, too, since they absorb more quickly into the skin, leaving no residue whatsoever. Remember, especially, to cream legs after your weekly "de-fuzzing" to prevent irritation or irritation.

The "complexion" of your legs will also be improved if circulation is good. In this connection, exercises help. Stretching the legs out to a footstool that is on a level with the seat of your chair is restful and relaxing. And for real elevation, lie on the bed and put your heels on the wall at a 45-degree angle for about 15 minutes. This will relax your entire nervous system and help your circulation at the same time.

And there you have it. Give your legs a wintertime treatment—and a treat! They'll not only look better but, when you look at them in the mirror, you'll feel better.

QUESTION:

I would like the recipe for Club Chicken Casserole. Recently at a buffet supper we were served a casserole dish of chicken, rice and almonds. It was moist but not too moist. Could be eaten with a fork. Do you know it and also any other casserole dishes suitable for a buffet supper?—Mrs. M. H.

ANSWER:

Yes, I have the club chicken and it is very good.

CLUB CHICKEN CASSEROLE:

Four tablespoons butter, 5 tablespoons flour, 1 cup chicken stock, 1 1-3 cups evaporated milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 cups cooked rice (1 1-2 cups when raw), 1 1-pound boiling chicken, 3-4 ounces can broiled mushrooms sliced, 1-4 cup chopped pimento, 1-4 cup green pepper, chopped, 1-2 cup slivered blanched almonds. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, chicken stock, milk, and salt. Boil chicken and remove meat from the bones in rather large pieces. Into casserole put alternating layers of sauce, rice, vegetables, chicken, finishing with the sauce and almonds. Do not have the chicken too moist or it will dry. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes to heat through and brown the top. Note: If desired, you may sprinkle some crushed potato chips over the top.

BARBECUED CHICKEN:

One 3 1-2 pound roasting chicken or two 2 pound fryers, cut up, salted and peppered flour, 1-2 cup butter or half butter and shortening, 2 cups catsup, 1-2 cups water, 4 tablespoons each lemon juice and sugar, 2 tablespoons each brown sugar and Worcestershire sauce, 2 finely chopped medium onions. Dredge the chicken pieces with the seasoned flour. In hot melted butter (first amount) in large frying pan cook the chicken until evenly browned. Transfer to very large casserole or two medium ones. In saucepan combine catsup, water, lemon juice, butter (second amount), Worcestershire sauce and sugar and onion, and bring to a boil. Pour evenly over chicken. Cover and bake 1 1-4 hours at 325 deg. Fahr. or until tender.

QUESTION:

I would like you to tell me how to do sweet apples up with sucary! . . . would you please write it as for pills and liquid. . . how much sucary! for applesauce?—Mrs. G. R.

ANSWER:

I have never packed sweet apples with sucary! but basing the proportions on the pack for other sweet fruit try for each pound of pared and cored and quartered sweet apples 2 cups water in which add 1 tablespoon sucary! liquid or 20 tablets and 1-4 sliced lemon. Bring water to boil with sucary! and lemon in it, add apples, simmer three minutes. Pack hot in sterile jars having liquid cover apples and 1-2 inch headspace. Process pints or quarts in hot water bath 15 minutes. Carefully tighten seal.

To make Sugarless Applesauce wash, pare, quarter and core cooking apples. Weigh. To 3 lbs. add 1 cup water and 1 tablespoon sucary! solution (or 2 little more of either if desired). Bring to boil, cover and simmer until tender. Grated orange rind is a good addition.

Here's Why Oil Mileage Is Poor

By EUGENE MILMOE

In a brand-new engine, oil consumption is not at its lowest until parts wear to a good seat—then, after many thousands of miles of wear engine oil demands are stepped up again. In between, there are many reasons for poor oil mileage.

It's often the fault of the motorist himself. If he fills up with cheap, low grade oil, he is bound to find his mileage going more than it should. High speed driving and an overheating engine will also deny him good oil mileage—so will an overfilled crankcase.

Oil is very often lost through defective gaskets and seals. Such loss sometimes go undetected because inspection is not made at the right time—e.g., when the engine is running at normal operating temperature. Other fairly common causes include a defective crankcase ventilation system, oil dilution, a clogged filter and late valve timing.

• • •

H.H. writes: "I have trouble when I try to start my car after miles an hour. When I push down the gas pedal, it seems to balk . . . then it picks up and runs all right. I have a new carburetor, plugs and points have been checked. The valves were ground, too. Will appreciate your advice."

(A) Have the carburetor idle adjustment checked again. Poor idle can setting often causes this type of trouble.

C.P. asks: "After thoroughly checking over the ignition system on my 1955 car, a garageman recommended hotter type plugs to eliminate carbon fouling troubles I had reported to him. They've been installed a short time, so I can't tell yet if he is right—but can you explain his theory?"

(A) A plug of correct heat range will stay clean by burning away all of the carbon deposits on it. If the plug is too cold, however, the oil is not burned away and should be, and eventually the plug is heavily crusted with carbon.

• • •

From H.B.: "My entire fuel system, manifold heat valve, starter, plugs, points have been checked and a new battery and regulator installed, yet my car still refuses to start if the engine is hot. Since vapor lock remedies didn't help, I've been assured that isn't the trouble, either. When the engine is cold, there is no difficulty in starting."

(A) Since all the usual checks haven't turned up the troublemaker, investigate the ignition coil. Although it's uncommon, the coil can fail when it becomes hot.

• • •

From W.S.: "I have a 1955 V-8 with automatic drive which I purchased new from a local dealer.

"I have no complaint as far as handling, riding or mileage is concerned. The only trouble I have had is with the automatic valve lifters, particularly when I do considerable city driving. They seem to want to stick, especially when the car is stopped and just idling. The car has a filter and has always had the best grade of detergent oil used in it per manufacturer's instructions. Hope you can help."

(A) Often, trouble under these circumstances is caused by insufficient oil pressure to the hydraulic lifters.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT

Be careful about your driving—be sure about your car.

GUNS NEGRO MOTHER

ZEBULON, Ga. (AP)—An aged white man shot a young Negro mother of six children to death with a shotgun after she "teased" him late Wednesday. Sheriff J. A. Riggins reported. Riggins said H. T. Dukes, 71, a retired farmer, was jailed on a murder charge following the shooting of Maybelle Malone, 30.

Much Fine Literature on Gardening

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

People who garden a little, or a lot will be delighted with a Christmas gift which furthers their hobby. They are always searching for new ways to do old chores. A good book on their favorite hobby will be treasured for years. Open your eyes and observe what this hobby-ist has tried so far, and ask a few discreet questions before you choose the book which will be truly welcome.

Here are a few suggestions—books which are new, or well previous. And if your local dealer cannot supply them, he will order them for you. But, do get the order in at once to have it in time for Christmas. "Men and Gardens" by N. Faltbrecher—Knopf, New York, publisher. This goes into the reason why men make gardens, a real jewel for those who enjoy the background and history of gardening from earliest days to the present. "The Gardener's Big Book" by Cynthia Wescott—Doubleday. This is an excellent revised edition of a standard reference work with color plates which assist in identifying pests and up-to-date chemical control is given.

"Gardens I Have Known"

"The Guide To Roses" by Bertram Park, Van Nostrand, is written by a lover of roses who has had 40 years experience in growing roses. This is a book for advanced rose enthusiast. "Bedding Plants" by Roy Genders—Chas. Scribner's Sons, publishers. This is by a professional English gardener, who knew that English are tops at flower-bed culture. The use and treatment of hundreds of plants is described. "Plant Gardening in a Small Greenhouse" by Mary Nolen—Van Nostrand, tells how to enjoy your greenhouse twelve months in the year. This is for the amateur and describes how with little effort or expense a greenhouse may be a delightful part of the home and garden.

"Bird Houses, Baths and Feeding Shelters" by Edmund J. Sawyer—Cranbrook Institute of Science of Bloomfield Hills, Michigan. This is an illustrated pamphlet on how to make them and where to place them for the most fun for the bird, boy, or man who likes to build, and who enjoys the company of feathered friends through the year.

"Pinks, Cultivation and Selection," by F. R. McQuoe—publisher Chas. Brandhorst, Bound, Mass. Illustrated.

Thanks are members of the carnation family and also related to our beloved sweet William. They have a long season of bloom and provide a riot of color, and sweet fragrance. This is for the backyard gardener who is seeking something new.

CANADIAN PUBLICATIONS

A monthly reminder of your thoughtfulness will be provided if you subscribe to Canada's own garden magazine. "The Flower Grower" has been popular for many years. One of the best, "Horticulture" is the oldest gardening magazine in Canada. Canadian Homes and Gardens, 73 Richmond Street, Toronto, is full of interest for the home and garden subjects from the Canadian angle. This is a good magazine for Canadian gardens. The Paul Prise, formerly editor of The Canadian roses. This is a book you can choose Gardener's Chronicle, England, this is one of the best. The name of this periodical. Every phase of gardening is covered from the experimental to age old practices at $5.00 per year this is a bargain.

A pair of plastic coated "green thumb" garden gloves will make a welcome gift in the low price range. English garden tools of stainless steel will last a long time. Then, a keen edge and balanced form will make them a delight to use. Choose a trowel, a fork, a hoe and a tree-fork for the woman gardener. They are small but strong.

The Week's News

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The women of Budapest took a turn in keeping alive the flame of patriotic defiance. Twice this week in the Hungarian capital, they screened the approaches to defying Russian tanks, to march to the city's chief squares to place flowers at national monuments.

Wearing black veils of mourning for their fallen husbands, the women pushed Soviet officers, armed with them, shouted epithets at the Hungarian secret police, and sang the Hungarian anthem when Soviet tanks backed off the path. Once Soviet troops fired shots into the crowd. At another point, the Russian-directed Budapest police used rifle butts to disperse the women.

The female demonstrations, Tuesday and Wednesday, were followed by street clashes Thursday in which at least two nationalists were killed. Russian tanks and armored cars were at all main street intersections as the tense atmosphere continued.

The Hungarian puppet government announced the United Nations secretary general, Dag Hammarskjold, would get a welcome on Dec. 16, the date he had set for an inspection of conditions in the Hungarian capital.

EMIGRATION EN MASSE

A new style of emigration—the movement to Canada of entire sections of Hungarian life—appeared in the making. In Vienna, Canada's Immigration Minister Pickersgill said the entire faculty and student body of the University of Sopron's school of forestry is ready to move to British Columbia. With dependents, the group numbers close to 500.

A move was also afoot to bring to Canada the entire Budapest Opera Company. Such plans appeared much less firm than that of the foresters. The opera company—singers, musicians, stagehands, designers—escaped from Hungary in a group and now is in an Austrian refugee camp.

A large segment of the Hungarian Olympic team in Melbourne was reported seeking refuge in Australia or North America.

BRITISH CRISIS

At the normal traffic rush hour one day this week Piccadilly Circus in the heart of London was almost deserted. The absence of traffic was one of the results of economic alternatin of Suez. Gasoline was scarce—and expensive. The government imposed a new tax on it, and the refiners increased their price, too. In the cars of the crowds cost due to blockage of the Suez Canal.

The fuel shortage cost about 1,560 British workers their jobs this week, but it was for short time. The government appealed to Canada and the U.S. to forge interest payments due on post-war loans.

EDEN'S RETURN

Prime Minister Eden will return to London next Thursday after his convalescence in Jamaica. Although the government won a vote of confidence in the House of Commons on Tuesday, opposition continued that Sir Anthony would not long be in the seat of Downing Street. "Psychologically, he has already ceased to be prime minister," one commentator said. The Daily Express.

Earlier days this week, the Commons held a sort of inquest into the Egyptian expedition. The revolt of the Tory backbenchers failed to materialize, except for a shot-lived flare in the confidence vote.

MANITOBA NICKEL

Manitoba, which hasn't had much luck in oil, hit it rich in nickel. The International Nickel Company announced it will spend $175,000,000 to develop two nickel mines in northern Manitoba, together with smelter, refinery, power plant, railroad facilities and a new town.

The development will make Manitoba the world's second largest nickel producer, after the Sudbury area in Ontario.

WEATHER NEWS

Western Canada had its coldest weather of the season. In central Alberta it was 47 degrees below zero. Albertans could enjoy a chilly laugh at a report dispatched from Massena, N.Y., which told how 175 workers on the St. Lawrence seaway walked off the job because of the "extreme cold." The temperature: 15 above.

STRANGE PLANT

WINNIPEG (CP)—A new plant a cross between durum wheat and rye has been developed during research on cereal plants at the University of Alberta. This particular plant may not be of any commercial value. The scientists said, but the methods used in developing it may be useful in finding other new cereals.

TOUCH TV AERIAL; DIE

LEONARDTOWN, Md. (AP)—Two men were electrocuted Thursday when a television antenna they attempted to erect on the roof of a house was blown onto nearby electric wires.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON SURVEYAL

Although Mrs. White-throat's exact age is not known, her characteristic actions have enabled us to identify her as many summers that we know she must be nearly old. A year ago, judging by her dark, guarled feet, tottering gait, slow movements, and hoarse beating heart, we never expected her to return from her winter quarters. So when in early May we recognized her humped-up form on the feeding tray, we were delighted.

However, migration had taken its toll out of her. Feathers stuck out in all directions. She had already lost some, but now she was too tired to move when we opened the window to put out a bark plate of fresh porridge. For more than a week she just sat around, eating little, drinking so often that we feared she must have a fever, and scattering feathers.

Then her husband of the previous summer joined her on the feeding tray, and after another few days to our great surprise we saw him feeding love to the sickly "old lady". With that she vanished.

About two months later, a little chipmonk-type bird—Chipping Sparrow, eating crumbs and porridge. In the usual manner, she shuffled about on the tray on her tummy, scarcely using her feet. Her beaks had disappeared, but of course she was not agile, in search of worms. He was quite able to be fed on our crumbs. How did she survive?

There had always been great rivalry on the feeding tray, and as summer waned, gradually was pushed around their own children by each little newcomer. First all the birds tolerated the tiny, dark Junco, and he paid no attention to any of them. He was quite unafraid of us, and not only came for meals, but ate around, doing nothing. Some time before, we had noticed that the left side of his head looked wet, and soon we discovered that a sticky liquid must be on the feathers. Could it be poison?

As the crowd of diners dwindled and his own father, mother, and sister left, Darky stayed on the feeding tray, and began hopping onto the window sill, always with his left side toward us. The eye would be shut, and we would say, "Darky is asleep again." He would spend the night there, because he was always on hand at 7 a.m. The dark camera his little form could just be distinguished.

By mid-September we realized Darky's left eye never opened. He was now filled on that side.

One evening at twilight he did his special stunt that we had often seen him do. As we watched, he flew straight up from the tray. We never saw him again.

Opera Company May Move to Canada in Body

TORONTO (CP)—Interest in establishing the Budapest Opera Company, now in a Vienna refugee camp, in Toronto, is being shown here by representatives of music, ethnic and business organization.

A Canada immigration department spokesman in Ottawa has said the department's officials in Vienna have investigated but that the company would like to move in to Toronto.

In Toronto Thursday, Edgar Burton, president of the Robert Simpson Company Ltd., said he believes the newly-formed Canada Council could sponsor the company as a contribution to Canada's centennial.

Dr. Ettore Mazzoleni, principal of the Royal Conservatory of Music said Toronto would be fortunate to get a well-known opera company of international reputation.

"There would be trouble finding a suitable place for them to perform," he said. "But problems are sometimes good because they beget great challenge created."

Walter Susskind, conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra said he last heard the Budapest Opera Company in 1948 and at that time it was regarded as one of the finest in Europe, if not the world.

Vancouver and Stratford Festival societies have expressed interest in presenting the company, it was reported.

Union Agrees To Owner's Plea, Restores Picket

CINCINNATI (AP)—The owner and clients of the Crow's Nest Cafe got their friend Nick Baum back his old job — picketing the place.

Baum, an amiable retired waiter, had made fast friends while picketing the cafe for the hotel and restaurant workers union in a health insurance dispute.

Then last week he was replaced. "He was such a nice old guy that everybody missed him when he was taken off the line," said cafe owner Charles Bonfield.

So Bonfield and 28 patrons got up a pillion asking Baum be restored to picket duty.

The union held a special meeting on the unconventional request and finally agreed to "bow to popular demand."

Notes on Seaway Made Public

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States have made public an exchange of diplomatic notes in which Canada states its intention to go ahead with the preliminaries for a future all-Canadian St. Lawrence seaway despite the U.S.'s formal objection.

In the exchange — disclosed here unofficially Wednesday — the U.S. has told Canada it considers the construction of a unilateral St. L. agreement with that country, but has accepted it in the interests of the great seaway project it is progressing.

The work proposed by Canada is the dredging of a 27-foot channel up to Cornwall, which would be tied into navigation locks on the Canadian side at that point to provide a channel 30 feet deep. It believes the newly-formed Canada Council could sponsor the company as a contribution to Canada's centennial.

Dr. Ettore Mazzoleni, principal of the Royal Conservatory of Music said Toronto would be fortunate to get a well-known opera company of international reputation.

"There would be trouble finding a suitable place for them to perform," he said. "But problems are sometimes good because they beget great challenge created."

Municipality Did Not Give Real Reason

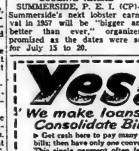
TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Court of Appeal justice said Thursday that municipalities should give notice of any by-laws being passed which will clearly affect a man's property.

Mr. Justice R. E. Laidlaw said that this does not mean a municipality should give notice to everyone on every by-law, "but that an owner of property affected should be given notice in fairness."

He made the observations in dismissing an appeal by Scarborough Township of an earlier decision allowing Robert John McFarlane and his wife to obtain a licence to operate a service station. They had obtained a licence but it was rescinded by the township when residents of the area objected. The township declared that the licence was revoked under a by-law passed to restrict the number of service stations in any zone.



There were already two other stations near the proposed station, Mr. Justice Laidlaw said, that the township was evasive and ambiguous and that "this was not the real reason for refusing the licence."

Borrow Billion To Defray Cost

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. treasury Friday announced a new borrowing of $1,000,000,000 to be used in part to defray the cost of sending financial aid to Britain.

Britain, confronted with depletion of her gold and dollar reserves by the Suez crisis, has asked for waiver of an $82,000,000 interest payment due the United States Dec. 31. Britain also plans to draw on the International Monetary Fund for a large sum.

The British actions will mean a loss to the U.S. treasury of cash.

'Pocket' Takes Over From 'Rocket' Scores Pair In Habs Win Over Hawks

Also Gets Assist in 3-1 Win In Fight-Riddled Victory; Lalande Gets Chicago Goal

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Perhaps the only way National Hockey League clubs can make consistently headway against Montreal Canadiens is to set both Richard brothers in hospital at the same time.

Earlier this season, with little brother Henri out of the lineup, Maurice held up the family end and helped keep Montreal near the top. Friday night, with the Rocket still benched with a sore elbow, the Pocket Rocket scored twice and got one assist as Canadiens beat Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 in Chicago.

Henri's first goal, in the second period, broke up a scoreless tie. Hec Lalande tied it for Chicago in the same period but Bernie Geoffrion's goal earlier in the third and Henri's second killed the Hawks.

All the excitement was not in the goal scoring or on the ice. With 5½ minutes left, Forbes Kennedy of Hawks shoved Montreal's Bert Olmstead began mixing it and were sent off with two-minute roughing penalties.

STARTS OTHERS

When they returned they went at it again and were given five-minute majors.

As they left, other squabbles started on the ice, but were abandoned as the players stopped to watch altercations in the stands.

Shots on goal were almost even as Jacques Plante, who was penalized once for tripping, kicked out the white Rocket's stopped 24. Canadiens were shorthanded frequently during the game but Plante and the defence proved equal to any Chicago threats.

Giants Are Favored to Beat Browns

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Giants are 10-point favorites to defeat Cleveland Browns Sunday and clinch their first Eastern Conference crown in the National Football League since 1946.

The Giants-Browns game in New York, the Bears-Cards meeting in Chicago and the Pittsburgh-Lions get-together in Detroit highlight the circuit's six-game weekend program.

In other Sunday games Baltimore is at Los Angeles and Philadelphia at Washington. In today's only encounter, Green Bay is at San Francisco.

The Giants need either a victory or a tie to wrap up the Eastern title. New York whipped the Browns 21-9 in Cleveland Oct. 14 and has shown steady improvement since, winning five, losing one with one tie.

The Giants have a 7-3-1 record. The second-place Cardinals are 6-4 and third-place Redskins 5-4.

The Bears, trailing the pacesetting Lions by half a game in the Western Division, have been installed nine-point choices to beat their intra-city opponents.

Russians Sweep Olympics Americans in Second Place

MELBOURNE (CP)—The Olympic scoreboard today flashed, "Farewell and bon voyage 1956; good luck, Rome 1960," as the Olympic Games ended with solemn ceremonies on a chill, damp afternoon.

The final competitive totals, following a Russian victory in the soccer final, showed the U.S.S.R. with 37 gold medals to 32 for the United States. In unofficial team standings, Russia had 722 points to 593 for the U.S. The Russians also amassed more total medals—gold, silver and bronze—with 99 to the Americans' 74. No matter how it was scored, it was a Russian victory.

Although the U.S. showed a marked superiority in track and field, bettering its 1952 Helsinki showing with 15 gold medals in men's and one in women's, Russia piled up huge chunks of points in 11 gold medals and 181 points in gymnastics at the 16-day festival in wrestling.

Canada made its best showing since the Second World War, scoring 52 points and picking up gold medals in canoeing and rowing, a silver medal in rowing and bronze medals in shooting and women's diving, as well as a third bronze medal won earlier in the equestrian events at Stockholm.

The Canadians placed 16th among the 67 competing countries in the unofficial point standing.

Eleven world records were set and 31 Olympic marks were broken in the sports carnival that started Nov. 22 and finished as concluded when the flame in the Olympic torch was extinguished.

Russia's final triumph was a 1-0 decision over Yugoslavia in one of the roughest soccer matches of the tournament. Players on both sides were guilty of unnecessary foul tactics, and personal feuds flared.

After this rough - and - ready scramble, another capacity crowd of over 100,000 settled down for brief but impressive closing ceremonies. The final day's attendance pushed the unofficial total over 2,000,000 and appeared to have assured a small profit for the organizing committee.

The 67 flags were carried into the stadium with Greece first and Australia, as host, last, while a 2,000-piece military band played.

Only about 1,500 athletes appeared at the closing, intermingled in a way the committee said would typify "friendly intercourse" and "spirit of sport."

Avery Brundage, American president of the International Olympic Committee, took the salute of the athletes at the edge of the track today and then formally declared the games closed.

Stumping the Russian, who made their first Olympic appearance at Helsinki in 1952 and lost to the U.S. 614 to 553½, showed remarkable all-around improvement. Their great scoring strength lay in the gymnastic events, wrestling, boxing and shooting. But there also had a double winner in track with Vladimir Kuts in the distance events.

East-West All-Star Teams Clash on Cold Snowy Grid

VANCOUVER (CP)—The best from the East and West were to meet here today in an all-star football game that promised a warm clash in chill, snowy weather.

Coaches from the East team, selected from the Big Four Football Union, and the West, from the Western International Football Union, Friday night predicted a hard-fought battle and would use lots of aerial action.

The weather office promised snow flurries and chill weather.

The game was a chance for the Eastern players to show themselves after serving the Grey Cup go West to Edmonton for the third straight year.

Coach Jim Trimble of Hamilton Tiger-Cats this week conceded they play "good football" in the West but "I still think we play better football."

Confident of victory, Trimble would set quarterback Sam Etcheverry for the East and West tied 6-6 at Toronto.

Coach Frank (Pop) Ivy of Edmonton, piloting the West, also made no prediction about the outcome.

Both coaches said the fact that proceeds go towards helping crippled children will make players all the more anxious to play their best.

Meanwhile, officials kept the ground at Empire Stadium covered with a nylon tarpaulin. They said the tarp would help the field condition for the game.

Ivy, usually a ground-attack man says he will do a bit of throwing.

"We have four of the top five pass receivers in the WIFU," he said, "Bud Grant, Harry Lampman, Ken Carpenter and Ron Stewart. Normara and Jackie Parker can catch a little too."

He has named Frank Tripucka of Saskatchewan Roughriders, top passer in the WIFU last season, to quarterback the West. "most of the way."

Trimble said Sam Etcheverry of Montreal will be throwing along with Hamilton's Ron Curtis, at fullback.

"That way, either Etcheverry or Tony Pajaczkowski and we can use a lot of pitchout and option stuff. And we have the receivers, too.

"This Hal Patterson is as great a ball player as I've ever seen. Harry Curtis, the other end, is a great receiver."

Defensive end Johnny Welton of Toronto, suffering a knee injury, is being replaced by Pete Neufeld of Hamilton. The 210-pound Neumann arrived here by plane Friday.

Attendance was expected to top 20,000.

Radio coverage will begin at 12:45 p.m. PST, 03:45 p.m. EST. For the first time, the Jeff Nicklin Trophy will be presented to Parker as the outstanding player in the WIFU.

FLETCHER WINS BERMUDA

HAMILTON (AP)—Pat Fletcher of the Montreal Golf Club won the individual competition for pros Friday in the fourth annual Bermuda Goodwill golf tournament. Fletcher had a 54-hole total of 209.

The four-man competition was won by the Greenwich Country Club of Greenwich, Conn., with a 54-hole best ball total of 182.

Marksmen, Crews Big Winners For Canada in Olympic Games

MELBOURNE (CP) — Two eagle - eyed marksmen and a couple of crews of strong-shouldered oarsmen were the major contributors to Canada's best showing at the Olympic Games since the Second World War.

There was a big lift, too, from the aquatics team—a third place in diving and three shipfuls of ribbons by the swimmers. It was the first time in the post-war Olympics that the swimmers and divers have got among the first six.

There was help also back in June when the equestrian team scored a third place at the equestrian plaster of the games in Stockholm.

TRACK PICTURE DARK

That is the bright side of the post-war picture. In track and field — the glamor sport of the games—the comparison is rather woeful. The same applies pretty much to canoeing and weightlifting among the sports in which Canada has been a regular competitor.

Canada finished the 1956 games with 32 points and 16th place in the unofficial point-standing of nations. It is based on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 compilation for the first six places in each events.

In 1948 at London Canada was 20th with 25 points; in 1952 at Helsinki 34th with 30 points.

Canada's medal collection at Melbourne was two gold, one silver and three bronze. In 1948 there were no goal medal winners, one silver and two bronze. In 1952: one gold, two silver, no bronze.

The gold medal winners here at Melbourne were Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., in shooting and the University of British Columbia fours without coxswain in rowing.

HAS PERFECT SCORE

Ouellette won his medal with a perfect 600 score in the small-bore rifle competition from prone position. His feat duplicated that of George Genereux of Saskatoon who won the clay pigeon shooting event in 1952 at Helsinki.

This repeat by Canada's marksmen has its unusual side. In 1952 a rifle team was sent to the Games for the first time in more than 20 years and there was much discussion then as to whether a rifle team should go alone.

The University of British Columbia eights were the silver medal winners at Melbourne, barely beaten by Yale University's crew.

Another rifleman, Gil Boa of Toronto, won a bronze medal in the same event in which Ouellette beat the world's clock about, and Boa also placed sixth in the small-bore competition from three positions. He had a fourth-place finish in 1952.

The UBC oarsmen and the two riflemen each accounted for 15 points—a total of 30 in Canada's 50.

Little Irene MacDonald of Hamilton won a bronze medal in springboard diving. Added to the four medals added to that in the unofficial scoring, the swimmers contributed six more, giving the aquatics team a total of 10.

Fifth places were earned by Virginia Bryant of Toronto in the women's 100-metre free-style, by 16-year-old Bill Slater of Vancouver in the men's 1,500-metre free-style and by the girls' relay team in the 400-metre relay.

Three Toronto horsemen—Brian Herbinson, John Rumble and Jimmy Elder — won a bronze medal for Canada, placing third in the equestrian team standings at the equestrian events held in June in Stockholm. A ban on importation of horses to Australia forced the change in venue.

Outside of these achievements, the pickings were poor.

The track and field team scored exactly four points on two fifth-place finishes—by Ken Money of Perris, Ont., in the men's high jump and by the men's relay team in the 1,600-metre event.

At least that was one point better than the three won in 1952. In that year the 1,600-metre relay team placed fourth.

Those games also marked the second time in succession that Canada's girls have failed to score a point in track and field.

In comparison, at the 1948 game the girls accounted for 11 points and the men three for a total of 14. There was even a bronze medal won by the girls in the 400-metre relay.

However, the combined showing of men and girls in track and field in 1948 was far from the lush medal-gathering days of 1928. In that year Canada collected four gold, four silver and seven bronze medals.

CANOEISTS FALL OFF

In 1932 the collection was two gold, four silver and three bronze. It tapered off in 1936 to one gold, one silver and five bronze. Since then there hasn't been a track-and-field medal of any kind.

In the rowing events, Canada's canoeists also have slowly gone under. They won a silver and a bronze medal in 1948 and with other placings accounted for 14 points. They won a silver medal in 1952 and, again with lower placings, scored seven points.

This year it was a complete blackout for the paddlers.

Weightlifters scored five points in 1948 and seven—with a silver medal thrown in—in 1952. This year there was a sixth place—for one point.

The yachtsmen haven't scored a point, let alone a medal, since 1948. Then they had two points.

The rowing crews came from nowhere to win here. But they were handicapped in 1952 at Helsinki. Their shells were damaged in shipment and the oarsmen had to use make-shift, patched-up and borrowed shells.

One wrestler—Bob Steckle of Kitchener—eased his team into the point column at Melbourne. They counted none in 1948 and 1952. Steckle got himself a fourth place in the Greco Roman competition after missing out in the free-style.

The teams in Canada's 85-man delegation which scored no points at Melbourne were: canoeing, yachting, basketball, boxing, gymnastics, fencing, cycling.

Canucks Win Over Brandon

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

As captain of Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League, Phil Maloney likes to set a good example.

He did it in a big way Friday night, scoring four goals and assisting on one as the Canucks defeated Brandon Regals 5-3.

The combination of a Brandon loss and Port Arthur victory for Edmonton Flyers over Victoria Cougars enabled Edmonton to pull into a first-place tie with the Regals in the Prairie Division of the WHL.

Maloney had help from linemate Wiggie Wylie on all four goals and it was Wylie who scored the other Vancouver goal. Les Lilley, former Canuck, Bob Chrystal and Norm Johnson scored for Brandon.

In Edmonton, Cummy Burton scored an overtime goal to give the Flyers their victory margin. Bill McCreary had opened the scoring for Edmonton in the second period with Wayne Brown tying the score in the third.

McFarlands Go Down To 4-0 Defeat Before An Inspired Whitby Club

Outlucked Around Foe Net With Donlevy in Star Role; Burns Gets 2 for Winners

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Whitby Dunlops' playing coach Bus Gagnon apparently made a wise move when he shifted himself to the line on which his prize junior Charlie Burns plays. For the guy with the plate in his noggin scored two goals last night to lead an inspired Dunlops team to a 4-0 victory over the Belleville McFarlands.

The Dunlops never played better hockey. They were full value for their four-goal blank, albeit a couple of the tallies were more or less tinged with flukiness. The McFarlands couldn't do a thing right and the reverse goes for the Dunnies.

The Maroons scored two in the first period and never looked backward. They battled the Macs to a scoreless tie in the second frame then pummeled home a pair of insurance markers in the third chapter to reach up their thirteenth victory of the season.

The win gave the Dunnies 27 points and extended their top-riot lead over the McFarlands, who have 18.

The game was one of the best senior tilts seen here this winter but a goal or two would have cheered up the 1,200 fans who saw the fray. It was a clean-fought affair as senior games go with Referee Ned Vitarelli handing out eleven penalties, six to the Macs, one a misconduct to Coach Bep Guidolin for arguing over a minor sentence.

The McFarlands were unable to pierce the Whitby defence with Jack Donlevy, the Dunnies' netminder, coming up with a fine performance. The Macs' shooting was off the beam and they were missing or hitting the post from close in all night. Their passing could have been better, most of the tables failing to reach a mate's stick.

Whitby took advantage of everything that came their way and they got practically all the breaks, if you can call them that. Early Luck frowned on the Belleville crew all night.

The McFarlands did not look too good around their net early in the first period and were sloppy in clearing the puck. This set the way for Whitby's first goal when Burns drove one rubber past Bell after being set up neatly by Gagnon with Don O'Connor assisting.

Benoit and Ted O'Connor got the heave-ho for pushing and the Macs took over. Donlevy kicked out some stinkers and beat Mac-Donald cleanly when the Macs' winger raced in on him alone.

The Dunnies rolled back with an all-out offensive and Bobbie Attersley put them two up with a hard shot to the corner from well out. It was a screened beauty that Bell never saw.

St. Hilaire and Ted O'Connor started a shoving match and got the gate. Later Gagnon it appeared, slashed the stick out of Guidolin's hand which went unnoticed by the referee who promptly takes the Belleville coach with a minor and misconduct for protesting loudly and strenuously.

The McFarlands battled desperately for the scoreless second chapter but the Dunnies met them check for check and limited their speed. The McFarlands had their share of the play but seemingly could do nothing right around Donlevy's bailiwick.

Minutes after the second session went off together for high sticking Ian Gamble and Gerry Redmond, one of the clown princes of senior hockey, got the heave-ho midway through the period and try as they did the Macs could not penetrate the Whitby defence or else shot wide or hit the post.

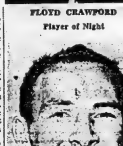
Three minutes of the third period had flitted away when the Dunnies got their initial goal. Burns was in the corner and had skated back with the puck when he made a wild shot that went over Bell's head into the net.

The McFarlands never gave up but they lacked that clicking something that usually means goals. The checking was hard on both sides with Crawford standing out on the Macs' defence.

Midway through the period the Dunnies wrapped up the shutout package with Ted O'Connor firing the final goal of the night. He was near the blue line and let go a blast that went through several players from a well-nigh perfect screen. That was it.

It was the second shutout of the league season, the other being the 5-0 victory of the Ottawa Canadiens over Cornwall on October 28.

Floyd Crawford was named the player of the night with Johnny Muretich, by virtue of his three goals against Belleville, being given the player-of-the-week award.



The lineups:

Whitby — Goal, Donlevy; defence, Ted O'Connor, Benoit; McBeth, Redmond; forward, Burns, Attersley, Myles, Ford, Tom O'Connor, Gagnon, Bennie, Etcher, Samolenko.

Belleville — Goal, Bell; defence, Crawford, Lemonde, Benoit, Boiley; forwards, St. Hilaire, Guidolin, Payette, M. Menard, MacDonald, Murcilich, W. Menard, Whalen, Gilbert, Jones.

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (Reuters)—Fishermen here report that this autumn herring catch was the smallest in peacetime for more than a century.

Anthony Belts Wallace in First Round

NEW YORK (CP) — Canada's Gordon Wallace, the British Empire light-heavyweight champion, lasted just 1:19 minutes as a Madison Square Garden headliner.

Tony Anthony of New York's behalf, the former lumberjack through the ropes Friday night for a knockout victory in 1:34 of the first round.

Wallace made it back into the ring with one knee still on the floor at the 10 count, in the verdict of referee Barney Felix.

"He was on his feet at nine," said co-manager Lou Viscusi. "Anthony could also knocked him down in the first and he got up and knocked him out. I'd like to go to the commission to make a protest."

WANTS SPIESER NEXT

Anthony, a 21-year-old former Golden Gloves champion whose china chin makes a whirlwind start advisable, began clamoring immediately for a title fight with Wallace's heavyweight elimination bout with Chuck Spieser of Detroit. Champion Archie Moore is under boxing commission orders to defend his 175-pound crown by Mar. 1.

The weights would have gone against Wallace if the fight had lasted anywhere near its scheduled distance of 10 rounds. But as it was, the fact that Anthony weighed 173½ pounds to Wallace's 164 made no difference.

Anthony exploded Wallace's hopes for title consideration when a left hook to the head in the early seconds of the round. The New Yorker cut loose with both hands, backing the Brantford fighter toward a neutral corner and then sent the off-balance Wallace through the ropes with another two-fisted flurry.

Wallace went down on his back on the edge of the ring apron, his head hanging in the laps of ringside observers. Radio announcer Don Dunphy had trouble finding his mike in the confusion of clearing Wallace's features out of the way.

FANS UNHAPPY

Any needle Wallace's handlers might make to the New York State Athletic Commission isn't likely to get much consideration. But the small crowd of about 2,000, which paid $3,000 to see the televised show, booed the sudden ending. The fans felt short-changed.

Al Berl, acting as knockdown timekeeper, tolled off the count as Wallace hung almost in front of him. By the time the count had reached five, Wallace's face was still out of sight.

He tried to recover, pulling himself up on the ring ropes between eight and nine. At the final count he was climbing under the ring ropes.

The result likely shuffled Wallace right out of the ratings. Going into the fight as a 2½-to-1 underdog, the 26-year-old Canadian was listed No. 7 contender in the Ring magazine ratings while Anthony held down No. 9 position. In the National Boxing Association Wallace was No. 5 with fifth, Anthony ninth.

Wallace went into the bout with a record of 31 victories in 43 fights, including 15 knockouts. He won the title June 26 by outpointing Ron Barton in 15 rounds in London, Ont., who usually was by a knockout or gets knocked out himself, brought his career record to 39 wins and 22 knockouts. It was the fifth time Wallace had been stopped.

Bears Climb Into Lead Tie

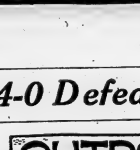
ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Hershey Bears climbed into a three-way tie with Providence and Buffalo for the American Hockey League lead by taking an easy 4-2 win over Rochester Americans Friday night.



Ed Panagabko tallied for the Bears at 10:15 of the first period on a screened shot. Ben Woit came right back for the Americans 30 seconds later with a long drive from the point but the Bears took the lead again as Panagabko scored.

Bronco Horvath tied it again for Rochester early in the second session but Hershey moved in 3-2 for Hershey before the end of the period. Willie Marshall got the last Hershey goal in the third.

Referee Pete Gross was felled by a deflected puck early in the second period. Macchio suffered a leg injury in the melee and had nose to his lip and was taken to hospital.

LAVAL DUMPS McGILL

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Raymond and Michel Lagace each scored two goals and got two assists to lead Laval University to a 6-5 victory over McGill Redmen Friday night in a Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League game. Georges Lamoureux and Jean Marois got the other Laval goals. Dick Baltzan scored twice for the losers and Jack Mortimer, Phil Turcotte and Lou Konyk got one goal each.

The Problem of Too Many Deer

Not so long ago, while making a purchase in one of our local stores, a friend of mine, who stood next to me, inquired as to my luck with the woodcock last season. One thing led to another and before I knew it we were talking about deer hunting.

It developed that he was not in favor of shooting does. Perhaps that is a mild way of saying it. He was opposed— diametrically, completely and unalterably—to any open season on female deer. When he found lack of agreement in my pack, he really let go.

He damned all smart-alec outdoor writers, biologists, game wardens and the Pennsylvania Game Commission. He classed all doe shooters as unmitigated game hogs and meat hunters. For five full minutes he held forth, loudly and with much invective. Then he stomped out of the store without saying goodbye.

This man is a physician, a busy one. Every working day his office is crowded. His only chance to spend some time in the woods appears to be Sunday, Saturday and during a few short days of the deer-hunting season. Yet he knows, according to him, more about deer management and conservation methods than the Pennsylvania Game Commission and its entire staff combined.

TOO MANY "EXPERTS"

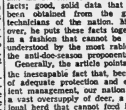
Unfortunately, we have with us far too many of these arm-chair ecologists and part-time amateur biologists. If they kept their ideas to themselves it wouldn't be so bad. Trouble is, they are flagrant and rave about the mismanagement of our deer herd and, strangely enough, do a great deal to shape public opinion. Folks quote them as "old-time deer hunters" and that seems to qualify them as experts.



At long last there has come to the public print an article which tells, in non-technical language, the whole sorry story of our deer herd. By "deer herd" reference is made to the entire national picture, not the animals of the single state.

This article bears the realistic title, "We Must Shoot More Deer." It was written by a gentleman named Robert Crichton and it appears in the Saturday Evening Post dated November 3rd, 1956. In case you happened to miss it, go to your public library where they keep a back file of magazines and read this astonishing and actual sickening story of the deer of our nation.

As an introduction, the article states: "Last winter alone, 2,000,000 deer died a lingering, agonizing death from overbrowsed ranges." Then it goes on to give the whole sorry story of overbrowsing, malnutrition, stunted animals, and so on.

Mr. Crichton is a sound writer and he has done a workmanlike job. He is in no sense an alarmist and his statements are based on facts; good, solid data that has been obtained from the game technicians of the nation. Moreover, he puts these facts together in a fashion that cannot be misunderstood by the most rabid of the anti-doe-season proponents.

Generally, the article points out the inescapable fact that, because of adequate protection and efficient management, our nation has a vast overpopulation of deer, a herd that cannot feed itself on the present national range.

WASTEFUL AND CRUEL

Nature's method of meeting this problem is both cruel and wasteful which cannot obtain enough food, naturally die during the winter months. Extreme malnutrition results in stunted growth of the animals which survive. In 1920 the average whitetail buck weighed 180 pounds, with some weighing 250 pounds. Twenty years later—1940—the average buck weighed 127 pounds and the average is no better today.

An interesting corollary to the general problem is the damage that an oversize deer herd can do to our forests and to farmers' crops. For example, Pennsylvania's Department of Forests and Waters in 1934 planted 1,000,000 small trees to protect badly eroded areas. Nine years later, 1,500,000 of these trees had been eaten by deer while the rest were so overbrowsed that, if any, survived. Overall damage to forests in general and to farmers' crops throughout the country has been reliably estimated to run well into billions of dollars.

Today our conservation commissions are composed of trained, intelligent men. Game management is their specialty, their livelihood, but they must know whereof they speak. So, in the future, instead of forming hasty and unconformed conclusions, let me urge you to read Mr. Crichton's article and then place your trust in the men who know their jobs.

U.S. Government Puts Halt on Moscow Hockey

BRUNSWICK, Me. (AP) — The U.S. state department has turned down plans for United States amateur hockey players to compete in the world tournament in Russia next year because of Soviet actions in Hungary, team officials said Friday.

Officials of the U. S. Amateur Hockey Association team, currently in training, said the group will be permitted to go if the competition is changed to some other place in Europe. They said Sweden is being considered as a possible site.

The international competitions in Moscow are scheduled to start in late February or early March. Canada last month decided not to send a team.

Minor Hockey

Maple Leafs, Rangers and Canadiens took victories from the Browns, Bruins and Black Hawks this morning in the Intermediation of the B.M.H.A. The Red Wings and Barons fought to a 1-1 tie in the other fixture.

Fred Spafford, Mike Culhane, Barry Ashbee and Ron Ellis each fired a goal as the Habs downed the Black Hawks 4-0. Jimmie Rutherford drew an assist on one of the Canadiens' goals. Collis Hale and Bill Elliott scored for the Hawks with help-ers going to Mike Conley and Forrest Smith.

Maple Leafs had the morning's only shutout, edging the Browns by a 1-0 score. Norman Richards was the key man in the Leafs' lone goal unassisted.

Doug Buckley for the Wings, and Brian Colligan for the Barons each had goals in the 1-1 deadlock. Dave Hannah assisted on the Red Wings' goal while Eddie McCullagh got an assist on the Baron marker.

Rangers rolled to a 3-1 victory over the Bruins with Gord Pfeiler netting two goals for the Rangers. Jimmie Dau-ins scored

Mahovlich Gets Four Goals in Irish Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The experts have long called Frank Mahovlich of Toronto St. Michael's College Majors one of junior hockey's outstanding scorers and a better-than-average prospect for stardom in the National Hockey League.

Mahovlich has never fully lived up to his press notices, mainly because of frequent injuries.

Even this year, when he seemed ready to make his move, Mahovlich was injured early and missed a few games.

But Friday night the winger came into his own, scoring four third-period goals to give Majors a 5-3 win over the leading Guelph Biltmores in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series contest.

THREE QUICK ONES

He also assisted on St. Michael's first goal to open the scoring up the win. Three of his goals came within four minutes and 31 seconds of the last period and gave Majors a 4-2 lead. They never were headed.

In other action Friday night, Barrie Flyers pulled off a surprise win from Peterborough, Guelph, Oshawa, Woodstock and Chatham.

Flyers picked up their third point this week by whipping Marlboros with a goal in each period. Billy Ferban, Tommy Black and Dale Rolfe scored for Flyers. Walt Boyer fired Toronto's marker.

Flyers were outshot 40-34, but goalie Ross Brooks was spectacular in turning aside all but Boyer's drive.

At Ottawa, Dick Dumoucbel, Claude Ruel, Jean Picard and Bob Rousseau tallied the Canadiens' goals, with Ron Mazon the lone Peterborough snipper.

IMPERIAL STARTS MONDAY

SARNIA (CP)—Nine local rinks and 27 from centres in Ontario, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin open play here Monday in the 28th annual Imperial bonspiel.

The out-of-town contingent includes three rinks from Brantford, two from Orillia and one each from Peterborough, Guelph, Oshawa, Woodstock and Chatham.

Northern Clubs May Switch To Junior OHA

NORTH BAY (CP)—The high cost of maintaining imported players with families may force Northern Ontario cities to switch from senior to junior hockey, say observers around the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group.

Junior players command salaries of about $75 a week, but the senior men are asking $100 a week, and with crowds dropping all over the circuit the $25 difference in the payroll could mean the difference between a loss or profit to most clubs.

North Bay Trappers, though they lead the four-team league, have been hardest hit by dwindling crowds, but even Sudbury Wolves, who usually draw 3,000, have been luring only 3,000 into their arena.

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds are reported to be heavily in favor of the change and observers say Sudbury, North Bay and the Soult Ste. Marie Indians feel the same way.

If the league did demote itself it would demand a "no transfer" rule from the Ontario Hockey Association to keep junior-calibre players from the North mierating to Southern cities as they now do.

Olympics Came in Like Lamb Went Out in a Wrangle

MELBOURNE (CP) — The 1956 Olympics came in like a lamb and went out like a roaring debating society.

Despite overtones of international politics, amity reigned in the opening events. Cheers were accorded to East and West in the opening parade and Russia's Vladimir Kuts drew as much applause as did United States sprinter Bobby Morrow. Each won two gold medals.

But before the Games ended, there was international bickering in 10 of the 17 classes of Olympic activity, ranging from an appeal to a jury of honor in the 3,000-metre steeplechase to head-butting in a water polo game.

Politics were involved in some of the wrangles. Others demonstrated the Olympic spirit at least to the extent of proving that national athletic officials are willing to tangle with all comers, regardless of international alliances.

HUNGARIANS IN MIDDLE

Tension surrounded the Hungarians, who had left for Australia at the height of their country's rebellion against Russia. Many Hungarians were making plans to go into exile following the suppression of the revolt by Soviet tanks.

Olympic officials avoided early trouble by adopting the old Hungarian emblem as the country's official flag. But the presence of many Hungarian expatriates in the stands kept the issue quietly alive.

It boiled into violence only once, when Hungary met Russia in water polo. The Hungarians, who eventually took the title, won 4-0 but the Russians took their defeat hard.

While the stands jeered the losers, two of them were injured. The second incident, which sent a Hungarian to the dressing room with a cut eye, brought spectators storming towards the pool, and the referee called the game eight minutes early.

Another incident involving Hungary was the double-reverse play by track officials which switched the gold medal for the 3,000-metre steeplechase from Britain's Chris Brasher to the Hungarian runner-up, Sandor Rozsnoi and then gave it back to the Briton a few hours later.

A short time after Brasher set an Olympic record in winning the event, it was announced that he had been disqualified for fouling Ervet Larsen of Norway, who finished third. British officials appealed the decision to the jury of honor, which nullified the disqualification.

That was the only time the jury of honor was called upon, but there were plenty of other disqualifications, some hotly disputed.

CANADIAN FUZZLERS

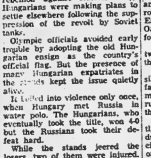
Alex Oakley of St. John's, Nfld., first man out of the stadium in the 20-kilometre walk, was disqualified along smoothly as an official on a motorcycle pulled up and waved him to the side of the road. The official didn't speak English, so the highly literate Oakley never found out the reason for his disqualification.

A Canadian weightlifter who was two ounces overweight also got thumbed out of the Games.

Gerry Gratton of Montreal, a silver medallist at Helsinki in 1952 failed to make the weight in the middleweight division and was ruled out just before the start of the competition.



Protests in the Olympic rowing tournament occasionally induced the judges to reverse a decision. Intervention by Canadian officials gave light-heavyweight Bob Steeksle of Kitchener one such victory in the two-Canadian competition and reruted in his gaining a fourth-place finish.

The United States entered a formal objection to judging methods at the men's platform diving final in which Mexico's Joaquin Capilla edged two Americans for the gold medal. The decision stood, but the judges got a stern lecture before the 10-metre finals, in which U.S. entries took the top three places.

Russia's sweep in men's gymnastics was accompanied by criticism of the judges for alleged discrimination against the Japanese gymnasts, who finished a close second. The judges' decision was unchanged.

AT THE McCARTHY — "Rebecca", one of the all-time great motion pictures and winner of the Academy Award will begin an engagement at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre Monday. The David O. Selznick production directed by Alfred Hitchcock stars Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine, pictured here. The screen version of Daphne du Maurier's best-selling novel is distributed by Twentieth Century-Fox.

AT THE BELLE — "Look, Gals, what I've got", could well be the meaning in that glint in Debra Paget's green eyes. The joyous young star plays Elvis Presley's girl in "Love Me Tender", the guitar-swinging idol's debut film, continuing at the Belle Theatre as Richard Egan plays the core contender for her affections in the Twentieth Century-Fox suspense drama that's breaking all attendance records for the theatre.

Movie Column

Wyatt Earp Highest Rated Of Cow-Poke Sagas on TV

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Highest rising western star of television these days is straight-backed, smooth-talking Wyatt Earp, otherwise known as Hugh O'Brian.

The ratings show that the Earp epic has been shooting down its opposition on Tuesday nights and racking up the largest audience for that evening. It is reckoned to be the highest rated of the cow-poke sagas, and ranks with Disneyland and Lawrence Welk, one of ABC's three top shows.

Naturally this is hitting and hurting to O'Brien, who was born in Rochester, N.Y., and grew up on the Chicago south side.

Why has Earp been so successful?

FAMILY SHOW

"Partly because it's a show the whole family can watch," says O'Brian. "We don't insult the intelligence of adults. In fact, a breakdown of our audience shows that it is divided almost equally among men, women and children. Strangely enough, the women lead slightly.

"Also, we have been favored by our time. Last year we started out opposite Phil Silvers and he beat us by a few points. Then Silvers moved up a half-hour and that favored us. A lot of people preferred to move to another half-hour show rather than come in on the middle of an hour show, such as NBC hods."

"I work from July through November—on the shows," he said. "Mainly about two days a week, shooting 10 of them and then taking a week off while the writers catch up. It's hard work, but it leaves seven months of the year in which I can do anything I want."

FAMOUS CLOCK

At The Park

First Showing

"Escapade" Has Youth Magic

"Escapade"—a film that glows with the magical quality of youth, has three big stars heading the cast. They are John Mills, Yvonne Mitchell and Alastair Sim.

Also prominent in the cast are Jeremy Spenser, Andrew Ray and Peter Asher. The picture will be presented at the Park Theatre on Monday for its first Belleville showing.

Based on the long-run hit play by Roger Macloughal, the film tells an inspiring story about what with the escapade of three young schoolboys in showing their elders they are capable of promoting a plan for running world affairs.

Mills and Yvonne Mitchell appear as husband and wife; Sim is a drily humorous headmaster, and Colin Gordon shines as a hard-bitten newspaper reporter. Marie Lohr is another member of this first-rate cast.

NEW GOLF SYSTEM

NEW YORK (AP)—A new system for awarding the top U.S. tournament golfers of the year was announced Friday by Ed Carter, tournament bureau manager of the Professional Golfers' Association.

The plan is based on a point system, the points to be awarded on the basis of 45 points for the winner, 44 for the second-place man, and so on down to one point for the man who finishes 45th. The winner also will receive a five-point bonus, making his total 50 points.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Monday, Dec. 10, 1956

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Start the week with a real go-ah-it attitude. Then sustained effort, properly directed, can reap solid gains. Do not be distracted by unimportant matters. Be sensible in diet.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Some indications. Be on the alert for opportunities that present themselves. Use your organizational ability to good purpose. Handle possible tensions in your usual calm manner.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Don't permit your active, imaginative mind to be wasted on unworthy projects. Carefully analyze commitments before allocating energy or time to them. Pace yourself according to demands.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — An active period for gathering data. Information that will prove beneficial later. Keep emotions in check when hectic hours unfold. A clear head produces responsible thinking and results.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Some negative influences. Close your eyes to them, and concentrate on duties, routine — only the best. Don't embellish methods or programs without sufficient thought. Counteract competition wisely.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — If roadblocks loom up, handle them calmly. Your progress can continue with careful thinking, well-laid plans. Creatively is one of your talents, use it fully.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Venus rays make auspicious. Chime in with an extra special performance of your own. Contacting the public, reading, developing new methods, creating a demand for your products encouraged.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Prepare to execute week's program with due speed, continuity, zest. Others look to you for guidance; don't let them down. Figurehead or supervisorial activities until essentials have been handled properly.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Your Sign, Jupiter, suggests coherent expression, cohesive action. Curb a tendency to abruptness. Being blunt may lead to temporary gain, but weigh the loss of friendship against it.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — It will take brains and brawn to meet all this day's demands but you can handle them well, providing, of course, you are physically fit and willing. Have faith.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Cleverness must be accompanied by honest intentions and a desire to achieve honorably, unselfishly. Meet adversities, new responsibilities with calm, faith and the desire to conquer.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces)) — Day has many good offerings for the alert, honorably ambitious. Be one of these!

You born today have great personal magnetism, sincerity, straightforwardness and a wealth of talents and ability. It is important that you nourish and develop these God-given assets and apply them daily. Don't stifle new ideas, but don't go to extremes in pursuing your desires or ambitions, either. Study, improve, promote your talents. Keep health fit. There is no field in which you cannot attain; its fealty up to you. Birthdate: Cesar Franck, Belgian composer; Thos. H. Gallaudet, pioneer teacher of the deaf.

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

MAY BE BENEFICIAL

The shock treatment which the U.S.-U.K. alliance received from the Suez attack on Egypt in the Middle East "may in the long run bring about a NATO association, a British Commonwealth Association, and a Western alliance stronger than ever before."

Mr. Pearson attacked critics who, he said, have been "making sacrificial use of the tragedy" in attacks on Washington in recent weeks.

"We all have some responsibility," he said. "But the faults are not all on one side and it is of no assistance to direct vituperative attacks on the United States for the part it has played and has not played. . . .

"Perhaps we have begun to learn how a consolidation of free states should be done. Now it is time to learn how it should operate."

INTERPRETATION SEEN

Canada's policy in the Middle East had been misunderstood, misinterpreted, and, at times, misrepresented.

"I confess that we received the news of the Anglo-French intervention . . . with surprise and shock. It was not taken to us by the government, as it was to most people."

The shock was greater, Mr. Pearson said, because the two countries had been consulted by the Commonwealth and their Allies.

Canada did not "indulge in any gratuitous condemnation of the Anglo-French action but did say then and since that it regretted the action and what brought it about.

"We felt that the purposes of France and Britain were not likely to be achieved by their action and that feeling was shared by a majority of the U.N. members."

Canada had obligations as a member of the UN and as a member of the Commonwealth and NATO and it was not easy to reconcile the obligations.

RUSSIA IN THE WINGS

He said Russia was waiting to exploit the Suez crisis if there was no ceasefire. He asked what would then have happened to the western alliance.

The establishment of the UN peace force could prove a great importance to history, "and if it doesn't succeed it won't be our failure."

Russia's intervention in Hungary was one of the most sordid and cruel episodes in the history of Soviet relations with its neighbors, Mr. Pearson said. But:

"The spirit of freedom still prevails in Hungary. In the long run it will prevail and we must help it prevail."

140 HUNGARIANS

Others told of experiences in Russian - operated concentration camps where they were allowed out in the sun/only one hour a week.

It became their custom to strip to get as much sun as possible but guards tried to stop them by complaining that they could no longer see their identification cards which were pinned to the discarded clothes and were supposed to be on them at all times.

Undaunted, the Hungarians planned the sun bath through their own flesh and continued their sunbathing.

Immigration Minister Pickersgill has cabled Ontario's Premier Frost that at least 6,000 Hungarians will be in Canada by Jan. 10 — with 4,000 earmarked for Ontario.

Additional accommodation is being found to take the load off the reception centres. A Toronto monastery and a newly-built barracks at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds will be outfitted to give temporary accommodation to refugees who have been through the centre.

PC LEADERSHIP

Nominees at that first convention were Hon. Robert Rogers of Manitoba; Mr. Guthrie of Ontario; C. H. Cahan of Quebec; Sir Henry Drayton of Ontario, Hon. R. B. Bennett of Alberta; Hon. R. J. Manion of Ontario. Seven others, including Mr. Meighen, declined nomination.

The second ballot gave Mr. Bennett an overall majority and led the party until 1938 and then went to British exile as Lord Bennett of Mickleham. He died June 26, 1947.

The 1927 convention at Ottawa chose Dr. Manion as his successor. The other candidates then were M.A. MacPherson, Regina lawyer; Joseph Harris, MP for Toronto Danforth; Hugh Guthrie, MP for Toronto Greenwood, and J. Earl Lewis, Winnipeg lawyer.

Dr. Manion won easily on the second ballot and led the party until after the 1940 general election when he suffered personal defeat.

Mr. Meighen, then a senator, was chosen by a party group to head the party. He resigned from the Senate but failed in a bid for election in Portage-la-Prairie. R. B. Hanson acted as House leader until Prime Minister Mr. Meighen called the 1942 convention in Winnipeg.

Candidates were Premier Bracken of Manitoba; Mr. MacPherson, Mr. Harris, Mr. Lewis, that MP for Lake Centre, Sask.; Howard Green, MP for Vancouver South, and Hon. H. H. Stevens, Vancouver, a cabinet minister in the Prime Minister Bennett.

The first ballot was indecisive: Bracken, 428; MacPherson, 222; Diefenbaker, 120; Green, 88 and Stevens, 20.

The Stevens and Mr. Green withdrew and the second ballot was Bracken, 393; MacPherson, 253, and Diefenbaker, 75.

When Mr. Bracken resigned in 1948 at the age of 62, more than a dozen men were mentioned as possible candidates but only three were nominated: Mr. Drew, then Ontario premier, Mr. Diefenbaker and Donald Fleming.

34 Defecting Members of Team Going to States

MELBOURNE (AP) — Thirty-four defecting members of the Hungarian Olympic team plan to go to the United States, it was announced today at a meeting held shortly after a second plane, bearing 45 teammates, departed for their devastated homeland.

Seventeen of the 46 athletes and officials who elected to remain behind met in the rapidly-emptying Olympic Village late this afternoon to discuss the future. The press spokesman said they will get together again Monday to make final plans.

Among the 17 were four-minute miler Laszlo Tabori, Edwin Zador, star of the Olympic champion water polo team, and fencing leader Jozef Babrian.

Zador, who made farewell to his departing mates in the Olympic Village, said it is highly likely that 20 or more of those who left may end their journey at the Milan terminal point.

Of the 176 Hungarians who came here, about one - quarter either are staying in Australia or planning a new life in the United States.

LEAVES VILLAGE

Among the defections was that of Laszlo Nador, assistant chief de mission. He took an active part in the revolution against Soviet communism and heard only in the last day or so that he is on the blacklist at home. He disappeared from the Olympic Village.

Nador was head of a department in the ministry of sport. His wife and small child are believed still there.

Moldrich was a competitor in the modern pentathlon. Today a cable reached Swedish journalist Ollie Lindquist telling him that Moldrich's fiancee, Maria Kiburjer, had escaped from Budapest and was in Malmo, Sweden.

Arrangements were made to inform Moldrich about his sweetheart's escape during a stop at Singapore.

NEAR HALF MILLION

Russ Set up Fake Borders To Halt Hungarian Refugees

VIENNA (Reuters) — Russian border guards have set up fake frontiers inside Hungary in a new effort to stem the flow of thousands of Hungarians fleeing into Austria.

Hungarian refugees arriving at the Austrian frontier town of Andau today said the fake frontiers are illuminated at night and baited with Austrian flags.

The reports said that those apprehended are herded into trucks and taken to imprisonment in the Hungarian interior.

FEAR ARREST

Authoritative circles in Vienna pointed out that an increase in the number of refugees in the last two days was apparently due to the wave of arrests in Hungary. Many workers who had accepted leading posts in the workers councils were being threatened with arrest by the Kadar regime.

Many of the 2,400 refugees who arrived in the last 48 hours were completely exhausted and wet through, as they had to walk through mud for several miles.

Today's arrivals brought the total number of refugees to 171,429.

CHILDREN KIDNAPPED

One of the grimmest stories yet to come out of Hungary reached here Friday—a story of Russian soldiers seizing schoolchildren and herding them on trucks and freight cars.

Reports from Budapest said that on Tuesday large numbers of young persons were seized from schools and colleges throughout the Hungarian capital. They were taken to Kelenfold station and herded into railroad freight cars.

Railroad workers downed tools and rushed out of the station to tell what was happening. The stationmaster went to the Russian military headquarters to protest, the reports added.

The reports also described how Russian soldiers went the same day to a boys school near Lather House, the Protestant church building in Budapest, and loaded boys on three trucks.

Workers at the nearby Standard Electrical Works rushed to try to stop them. The Russians opened fire. In the fracas, the schoolboys in one of the trucks escaped.

SAY 17 KILLED

Reliable sources reported Friday night that at least 17 persons were killed and 30 injured in fighting Thursday between pro-government and nationalist supporters.

These sources said 120 persons were arrested in the battle opposite the West Station in Budapest's Lenin Boulevard.

First reports had listed only two killed.

Britain May Make Arms Cut

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain is contemplating an arms cut to help her economy overcome the effects of the Suez crisis, an informed source said Friday night.

The reduction in defence expenditure will be discussed in Paris next week when North Atlantic Treaty Organization chiefs examine future military plans.
